III. Summary of program requiring funding (title; featured artist(s); speaker(s); scheduled date(s):

The Department of Philosophy is seeking funding support from the Cultural Affairs/Distinguished Lecture Series Fund for its 2010-2011 Philosophy colloquium Series. This series of public talks will provide opportunities for students, faculty, and community members to hear and discuss stimulating lectures on a wide range of topics that are relevant not only to philosophers but to current topics of ethical, social, and political import. Some of the events enable collaboration and communication with other units on the campus and in the community.

1. "Double Effect and Its Critics: Why Is Killing Wrong?"

David Cummiskey, Professor, Bates College

October 26, 2010

David Cummiskey's research interests focus on contemporary Kantian ethics, consequentialism, and medical ethics. He is the author of Kantian Consequentialism (Oxford, 1996), and is currently working on Asian ethics and international approaches to issues in medical ethics. Professor's talk is timed to coincide with Professor Jessica Miller's bioethics class's coverage of this very important topic for pre-med and nursing students.

2. "Reassessing Hegel on Art and Agency: Kara Walker's "Insurrection" and the Sensible Situation"

Lydia Moland, Assistant Professor, Colby College

November 4, 2010

Lydia Moland is the author of Hegel on Political Identity: Patriotism, National Identity, Cosmopolitanism (book forthcoming from Northwestern University Press). Her current work involves connecting the history of philosophy, especially Hegel, with contemporary ethical and political theory. To bridge these two spheres, she focus on the concept of "practical identity," a term used to describe the commitments we make that inform our ethical lives. Professor Moland's talk will be of special interest to students in Professor Kirsten Jacobson's class this semester on Hegel, and to students and faculty in the art department

3. "The Difficult of Naming; On The Way to Language with Martin Heidegger"

Nico Jenkins, European University of Interdisciplinary Studies

December 2, 2010

Nico Jenkins, a young scholar who is teaching this semester at Husson University, is interested in Martin Heidegger, positions of identity and the fourfold. He is also working with Derrida's "l'avenir", Jean-Luc and Nancy as well as several of the Italian operai thinkers on positions of community. His talk will draw the interest of our many students who enjoy German philosophy, as well as historians and other in the UMaine community who are interested in the German intellectual tradition.

4. "Spinoza: His Logic"

Dr. Robert Tredwell, former chair of the philosophy department, University of Maine

January 28 (tentative)

Dr. Tredwell's talk will fill a gap in our philosophy offerings, as we do not currently cover Spinoza, an important figure of the rationalist movement of the seventeenth century. It will also provide a chance for the department members and students to become reacquainted with a former chairperson of the department.

5. "Pornography and Philosophical Authority"

Nancy Bauer, Professor, Department Chair and Professor, Philosophy Department, Tufts University

April 14, 2010

Professor Bauer is the author of Simone de Beauvoir, Philosophy, and Feminism (New York: Columbia University Press, 2001) and many important articles in continental and feminist philosophy. The controversial subject of her talk is sure to engage many interested parties.

6. "Narrative Medicine"

Philosophy Visiting Scholar Craig Irvine, Director of Education, Program in Narrative Medicine, Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons

April 21, 2010

For more than 10 years, Dr. Irvine has been designing and teaching cultural competency, ethics, narrative medicine, and humanities and medicine curricula for residents, medical students, attending physicians, and other health professionals. He has over 20 years of experience researching the history of philosophy, phenomenology, and narrative ethics, and over 25 years of experience teaching ethics, humanities, the history of philosophy, logic, and narrative medicine at the graduate, undergraduate, and preparatory school levels. He has published articles in the areas of ethics, residency education, and literature and medicine and has presented at numerous national and international conferences on these and other topics. As well as giving a colloquium talk, Dr. Irvine will be on campus to teach one meeting of Professor Jessica Miller's seminar on narrative medicine.

IV. Budget Proposal Form must be attached.

Funding for current application is contingent upon submission of reports for any previous grant awards, including final budget and attendance figures.
