Get Hired with a 21st Century Skill Badge

University of Maine System invites you to participate in Education Design Lab's BadgedToHire initiative. The global economy is changing—do you have the skills employers are looking for?

Begin today with the Resilience Badge!

Did your internship get canceled? Is your summer job not happening? Are your volunteer/travel plans squashed? Or are you always looking for ways to set yourself apart from the pack? Then this is for YOU! Take advantage of this summer to build your resume and be resilient.

University of Maine System recognizes that you are confronted with daily changes that impact your life, loved ones, employment, and community. In these times, our capacity to be resilient is more important than ever.

Supported by Education Design Lab's platform called vsbl (pronounced visible), this learning experience is a free, online course to understand and improve your resilience. Even though it's a self-paced experience, you won't be alone. You will be part of a community of UMS learners striving to be resilient. The course will help you practice the four sub-competencies of resilience:

- Focus on solutions,
- Exhibit flexibility,
- Learn from experience, and
- Demonstrate self-awareness

Upon successful completion, you will receive an industry-recognized digital badge, a micro-credential which you can add to your resume or share on any personal or professional social media platform.

The University of Maine System is happy to collaborate with Education Design Lab's BadgedToHire initiative in the offering of this unique opportunity!
