Subject: RE: Request for syllabi/information about pandemic-related courses and activities

Hi Nic,

There are two class activities in my BUA 351 last semester that are related to Covid-19.

The first one is extra credit work – I asked students what their experience has been after the courses moved online. The second one is a company valuation term project - I asked students to model whether their company will suffer a liquidity shortfall due to Covid-19 under the worst case scenario.

1. The first attachment compiles the answers from all students who turned in the extra credit work.
2. P.8 in the second pdf is an example of the distress analysis.

Hope all is clear. Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks,

Claire

AD Colleagues---

For those who haven't already forwarded this material in response to other requests, thank you in advance for soliciting the following from faculty in your colleges/divisions:

1. Word or PDF copies of COVID-19-related course activities, assignments, projects, etc. from spring 2020;
2. same as above for summer and fall 2020, including syllabi for courses focused entirely on COVID-19 (all disciplinary perspectives, all areas of scholarly expertise); and
3. any materials for COVID-19-related symposia, special journal issues, lectures, colloquia, conferences, presentations, etc. planned or projected for summer or fall 2020.

We'll happily accept materials throughout the summer, but please collect and forward what you receive in response to this initial request to Jon Jue-Wong by the close of business next Wednesday, June 3. We'll organize these materials in an Academic Affairs Google Drive as a resource for the university community, and we will also pursue stories/marketing opportunities in coordination with Margaret Nagle and individual faculty to showcase the innovative work being done all across the campus.

Thanks again for your help.

Best,

Jeff
