Scope and Contents

This collection began with the research done by Rita Breton as part of her graduate work in history at the University of Maine. Breton conducted approximately twenty interviews with Maine women about their lives and work during the Great Depression and WWII. In addition, in the fall of 1982, students in Edward D. "Sandy" Ives' class AY 125 were asked to locate and interview people on the topic of women's lives during the Depression and World War II. The semester project yielded forty-five series. Collection also contains numerous photographs. Some of the interviews relate to Winkelman's M. A. Thesis "Work is What Keeps You Going: The Life and Times of Bertha Moore Lord: An Experiment in Biography," University of Maine, 1986.

According to Blanchard, "...I think it was for six weeks in the Home Management house our senior year, and ran a home. We even had a baby; I think it was from Little Wanderers, about 6 months old. We had turns as cook, baby tender, housekeeper, and then some had assistants. So it was good practical experience." (See transcript, pg. 6.)
