Zabilski To Northeastern Coach Accepts Position At Boston University Beginning August 1

The University of Maine will lose one of their best liked coaches when on August first Joe Zabilski becomes head coach of football and basketball at Northeastern University.

Coach Zabilski

Coach Zabilski is well liked by both faculty and students and his loss will be felt by all. Many have heard of his success as varsity line coach at Orono and as head of basketball and track here at the Annex.

Coach Zabilski was first approached on April 6th and accepted the new job last Tuesday. He has the distinction of being the first man considered to fill the position at Northeastern.

Coach Zabilski is leaving us thrilled at the challenge offered him in being head coach of a fine university, but he regrets leaving all his friends who helped make his stay at the U of M so pleasant. He wants to thank especially the members of his team and the student body with whom he came in contact.

Ironically his first opponent at Northeastern will be the U of M. After which his team will oppose Bates, Colby, New Hampshire, Brooklyn College and Devens. At present the prospects are not exceptionally bright as last year's Northeastern won only one out of six games. The basketball team posted a 10-8 record which looks a little more promising.

Joe Zabilski graduated from Boston College in 1941 where he was mentioned on several all-American teams as guard.

While at Boston College Zabilski played in the Cotton Bowl in 1940 and in the Sugar Bowl in 1941.

ALLIES LOSING THE PEACE; DR. HERMAN

Speaking before the student body at the assembly Wednesday, Rev. Stewart Herman of the World Federation of Churches outlined the stakes and mistakes of the United States in Europe. He declared that while we won the war we are doing a good job of losing the peace in Europe. Our stake, in Europe is peace and prosperity.

Paying more attention to our mistakes, he said that what we are doing now in relation to Trieste and other hot-spots in Europe, we should have done a long time ago for the right reason.

As Dr. Herman sees it, the three major mistakes we made in Germany were the Potsdam policy which is only a slight modification of the Morgenthau Plan which wanted to reduce Germany to an agricultural country; the denazification plan as we have carried it out; and the underestimated power of the Christian faith. In relation to the Potsdam agreement, he stated that it has displaced many people, and that these unsettled elements of the German population will constitute a serious problem in the years to come.

While many Germans were members of the Nazi Party, some of the most ardent followers of Hitler were not members of the party, and this last group included many women who had a great influence. The present plan for denazification is ferreting out many members of the Nazi Party, there is only one way

ROTC Military Ball Tonite; Choose Queen

Catir Brothers To Provide Music

O. K., gang! Here it is — the biggest event thus far this year. Yes, sir, it's the R. O. T. C. club's terrific Military Ball. And tonight is the night, so what do you say we march up to the Fort Student Union and partake in what should be a lively jive-fest.

As for dress—well, this shouldn't present too much of a problem. In fact the U. S. government has donated the dress for you R. O. T. C. students, but vets might well attend in their old uniforms or perhaps some might prefer to go in a tux or matched suit.

All indications point toward the dance as being a gala affair with a rich crop of luscious Westbrook Junior lovelies slated to add to the evening's enjoyment. The R. O. T. C. Club has arranged to have the Catir Brothers, that stupendous ensemble of Westbrook Legion fame provide the music.

As an added pleasure Gascoigne and his singing bar waiters will provide the crowd with entertainment consisting of songs and antics. Next will come an exhibition by a specially picked drill squad from here on the campus. This event should revive fond memories for you vets.

The climax of the ball will come when the "Queen of the Cadets" will be chosen from among the girls attending.

The Student Union Building Drive

As of the first of next week there will be a magical blossoming out of posters and other informational gadgets through the campus announcing the opening of our Student Union Building Drive. The actual soliciting of money will not start, however, until the week of May 17.

The aim of this publicity campaign will be to acquaint each and every student with the urgent need for such a building on the Orono campus. It will also serve to inform the student of the facilities which the building will offer once it is completed.

An interesting fact on Student Union Buildings is that all but 8 state universities in the country boast of such a recreational building for their students; of the 4 Maine colleges, the University of Maine is the only one which does not have a Union. In the past the student body has stood side by side

Language Listening Room In Adm. Bldg.

The Language Department has furnished a room in the Administration Building for the after-hours use of language students. The room, besides being comfortably furnished with easy chairs and sofas, has a combination radio-phonograph with the complete Linguaphone sets available in French and Spanish.

The room is on the second floor of the Ad building next to the Maine Annex Office. It is open for use by any interested language students.

It should be pointed out that this is not a lounge. The room is available for the sole purpose of listening to the Linguaphone records. It is locked at all times, but will be opened on request. This is to make sure that only language students will be using it.

The following arrangements have been made regarding the use of the room: to obtain the key during the morning or afternoon, see Mr. French or Mr. Crouse's secretary. For evening use, Roy Nickerson has a key and is in the Maine Annex office, beside the Language Listening Room, every night till ten o'clock; for other times, or during weekends, make advance arrangements with any of the above.

It is hoped that the students will take advantage of this unusual opportunity to brush up on advance knowledge of French or Spanish. The University went to considerable expense to obtain the records and furnish the room, and it is hoped that it will be used. It makes a fine place for groups to get together and talk over the language, and listen to the records.

I'm Usually Wrong . . . BUT

The following was printed last week in the MAINE CAMPUS, the big brother of the ANNEX. We usually try to be original, but this seemed to have a message that strikes home down here, too, and was well put together. Thanks, Orono; Brunswick, read on!

By Bill Brennan

Despite popular opinion, extensive research has uncovered that vacations are no longer periods when students toss aside their books, forget everything they've learned in classes, and blissfully wander about without a care.

No, vacations have become a period when students do more studying than normally, recall everything they have accumulated from classes, and worry about the multitude of examinations which await them upon their return to school.

It's unfortunate, but true, that many of the professors and instructors now expect their students to spend a large part of their vacation studying for exams, all of which come during the first week back to classes.

That's the way it is, and experience has taught us that there is little can be done about it as far as protesting is concerned. One hardy soul suggested that no one prepare the required work, but there's always one person who is cager, nulling the effect of such a roundabout protest.

It is this column's duty to try and do something about the situation. Perhaps we've been defeated too many times on other issues, or perhaps we're just beginning to realize the futility of it all, but we don't have the energy to get really excited and demand changes, etc.

If one can't attack, one must try to pacify, so just for this week we take the role of "The Great Pacifier."

Contrary to many thoughts, teachers are humans, with all the shortcomings of humans. It is a good bet to wager that many of them don't like work any better than we do. It is even possible that teachers like to spend their vacations just messing around. And if these assumptions are correct, then we know why we have tests right after vacation.

Picture, if you can, the poor instructor coming back from vacation. He hasn't prepared any lectures or class exercises, just as we haven't prepared any assignments. He doesn't want to get back into the grind of teaching, just as we don't want to again begin the work of studying.

What does he do? Simple. He tosses a test at his class so that he will have time to form his lectures.

That's the only possible reason why we have so many exams following vacations. So please bear with your instructors. They feel the same way we do about coming back to school, but they're in a much better position to make the transition from leisure to work easier and less painful.

News Of Maine Spring Festival

The Student Senate, those lads who have been burning the midnight oil in the Ad Building for the last couple or three months, are combining unceasing efforts with clever ingenuity in their preparations for our gala Maine Spring Festival next month. This affair, which will climax our social calendar for the year, is slated for the weekend of May 21-23.

Tickets will go on sale May 3rd, and these ducats are guaranteed to admit you and yours to a social weekend which will be memorable throughout your college years. Surprise, fun, and relaxation will be the order of the days. To provide exactly this our noble Senators have arranged for activities which will include a tea dance, a clam-bake, a boat excursion, a Maine Masque presentation, a formal, numerous athletic events — and we could go on indefinitely. To provide music for this weekend, our gallant diplomats have contracted FOUR bands to make atmosphere for your pleasure.

For further news and detailed information on this dance keep your eyes glued to the future issues of "The Annex". Take a tip from us, all you Aggies, Techs, and white collared A & S boys — get your date today!!!

Mrs. Derby New Chem. Instructor

About the campus during the past week, and particularly about the Chemistry Department, students have caught sight of an unfamiliar-looking young woman who seemed to be trying to inure herself to the Brunswick campus and our way of life here. The young woman is Mrs. William Derby, wife of Tech Student Bill Derby, who is working as a chemistry instructor during the absence of Dr. Knopf.

Mrs. Derby, and it makes us somewhat proud to say it, was graduated from the University of Maine in December of 1943. For two and a half years she worked with the Chemical Research Company of Boston. This is her first teaching position.

In answer to the question "How do you like it here?", Mrs. Derby replied with her ever-present smile, "Oh, I like it fine." When asked what she thought of the students here, the new instructor diplomatically answered, "They're making out all right." "Making out" is New England jargon, but Mrs. Derby, since she was born in Massachusetts, is entitled to use it.

As for the students whom Mrs. Derby instructs, they only comment as though somewhat surprised, "She seems to know her stuff".

RULES AND REGULATIONS

"Laws, rules, regulations. Damn it, this place is getting more like the Army every day. Chicken . . . I call it."

Remarks like this one are becoming more and more frequent around the campus. Perhaps because the regulations are getting more numerous.

Even a casual examination of the existing regulations under which we live, however, will prove that each is well founded, just, and actually exists for our own benefit; and will serve to prove that the administration is not employing a dictatorial technique. The administrators of the school are more than willing for us to set up our own rules and live by them. But when we begin tearing buildings and equipment apart, pulling stunts that endanger lives (such as throwing firecrackers through transoms), and in general, acting in the manner of addebrained adolescents, we force them to make and enforce certain rules.

One of the strictest and most dangerous to break of the rules, is the one governing fire fighting equipment. It was put into effect because a few nitwits with a three beer capacity like to stage water fights. Naturally this usually results in considerable damage to property, and if there is ever a fire may result in loss of lives. Empty extinguishers and broken hoses are most ineffectual against fires.

Areas of play are limited because of the prohibitive cost of replacing asbestos shingles. The cost comes out of our own pockets, so we gain nothing by disregarding this rule.

Proctors go batty trying to preserve quiet during study hours, simply because noise is an excellent excuse for not studying. Theoretically we are here to study. From the looks of the probation list, we are not doing very much of it. Disturbing the guy who wants and needs to study is to say the least most inconsiderate.

Recently we acquired a set of rules governing our conduct in the mess-hall. When we act so disgustingly as to throw food at each other, or to raise an unholy din because of an unavoidable delay in the line, we tend to give the School an unsavory reputation. The University does not profess to be a finishing school for young gentlemen, but neither is it a hog-farm.

Contempt and disregard for adult order is a childish trait. We are no longer children, and it's high time we ceased to act like children. We are here of our own free will and accord and most of us damn well appreciate the opportunity that the University affords us.

We must admit, however, that all the childish behavior which we have condemned here is the practice of a minority group. But until the majority takes an active interest in discouraging such conduct, all of us must accept a share of that unsavory reputation that this minority brings to our campus; and all of us must also be willing to accept the rules which they bring.

FACULTY FACTS

By Charles W. Lewis

Why it is, I don't know. But every once in a while someone asks the question of whether or not Mrs. Gordon was born in Germany. The reason why they ask such a question is undoubtedly due to her fluent command of the German language. German, however, is not the only language she speaks fluently. Instead of addressing the class with "Guten Tag", as she did on the first day of school, she could just as easily have remarked, "Dobry den", or "Bon jour".

Mrs. or Frau Gordon as the students call her, without much persuasion on my part, admitted that she was born in New York City in the year 1914. Because she had developed a keen desire for traveling as a child, many of her summers were spent in Europe. Upon being graduated from The Spence School in New York in 1932, she left for Spain. In the fall of that year she attended the Sorbonne in Paris. While there she studied French literature, history, and art. The first part of the following year, she returned to America and studied philosophy, psychology, and related subjects at Columbia. After going abroad again that year, she studied for a while in Greece before going to Germany. At the University of Munich she took courses in German literature, history, and economics. Because of the rise of the National Socialist Government in Germany at the time, she returned to France where she studied for the following three years. During that time she made numerous trips to all parts of the continent. She also spent one summer visiting in North Africa. Since war between the United States and Germany appeared to be inevitable, she left Italy in 1939 and returned to America.

Perhaps it's the New England climate, or perhaps it's a tradition around here — I don't know — but after finally settling down, she found time to get married. Mr. Gordon was, at the time, working for the Ebasco Utilities in New York. Just prior to his enlistment in the navy in 1940, he was employed by the Roscoe B. Jackson Laboratory for Cancer Research.

Shortly after the United States became actively engaged in war,

Frau Gordon was granted a Harvard scholarship. Upon completing a special course in Russian, she worked with the Soviet Gov. Purchasing Commission (a lend-lease commission) in Portland Oregon, and San Francisco, California. She was the official interpreter and assistant to E. M. Privalov, the "Chief Engineer" (coordinator of all Russian-American lend-lease activities on the Pacific coast).

Mr. Gordon returned from the Pacific in 1945. A year later both he and Frau Gordon came to the U. of M. Last year, in addition to German, she taught French. Next year she will be transferred to Orono where she will teach either Russian, German, or French.

I feel very sure that all the students who now have her as an instructor will look forward to the possibility of having her again next year — that is, if we make it to Orono.

CAMPUS CUTIES

By Don Povich

The vision of loveliness you see pictured here is Mrs. Roger Ellis (that's right, Mrs.), wife of Roger Ellis of 32 Crawford Drive, Lambert Park, Bath, Maine (that's the Annex of the U of M Annex), and she is the commuters' answer and challenge to the campus men.

Doris Ellis originally came from Newton, Mass. She stands five feet one inch over all and weighs 120 pounds which in itself is enough to tell the good students that the body is as lovely as the face. She has been around this world 27 years, two of which she has spent married to Roger. She is a graduate of the Mercy School of Nursing in Detroit in the class of 1941. After leaving school she worked in the Percy Jones Hospital in Battle Creek, Mich. And this is where our love story begins.

Doris was an Army nurse in the Air Convalescent Hospital in Miami, Fla., and Roger of course was the patient. Sounds a little bit like something out of a story book but nevertheless Rog is as good as ever and he and Doris plan to live a long life together.

Some of the students seem to think that all the beauty around here is hanging on the walls of the barracks. Well a good number of the commuters are married men and they don't think so. They're living with their "Campus Cuties" every day and we commuters are proud of these girls who are helping so much to secure a higher education for their husbands.

Dr. Knopf

Doctor Knopf is now in the Conery Nursing Home in Auburn. He is eagerly looking forward to returning to our campus and is very grateful for the cards and flowers which have been sent to him by the students.

Eck Allen At Annex For Week's Stay

Football is here again and with a week's stay is Maine's Mr. Football Himself "Eck" Allen. Here to look over the men and himself an advance idea of it to expect next fall when the season begins. While Mr. Allen is the men out for spring football will have the benefit of his advice the spring football season at Orono does not start for a week as a result "Eck" is able to be in us. In a recent interview he commented that although the number of men out for spring football is small, he was much encouraged by the spirit shown by the men. Allen stated that a large measure of success of next year's Maine had depended upon the men from the sophomore class both here and at Orono.

Asked to comment upon the efforts of the football coaches here the Annex Allen said, "The men here show that they have had good training and show that Coach Raymond has done a fine job."

Allen stated that the making of a good football team lies largely in the spirit shown by the men. He believes that the success of last year's Maine season was largely due to a highly spirited team.

When Allen was asked to comment on next year's team he said that he would make no predictions but that his job would be largely one of rebuilding. With about five first string men back from last year's team he said that he would place the largest effort in filling the openings left by graduates. The biggest question mark is who will be Maine's quarterback next year.

Allen also stated that he was sure that he would feel the loss of Joe Zabalski, his line coach, but he wishes him all the success in his new position.

Intramural Softball Off With A Bang

Spring is supposedly here, although not so indicated to any great extent by the recent weather, and of the various athletic activities now getting under way, softball will be the primary, organized, intramural sport. Many men from every building were seen taking their cuts at the plate or loosening up their creaking arms during "pick-up" games in anticipation of the initial contests which began this week. Keen competition like that displayed during the basketball season is expected from every team in its fight for the campus championship, and from all indications, we look for an extremely tight race right down to the wire. Thus far, not too much is known about the potential strength of any one team, and for that reason, no so-called "favorite" has been established. So when you hear the familiar cries of "Kill the umpire!" and "We wuz robbed!" resounding around the campus, you will know that it is caused merely by a crucial game in the softball league.

The schedules and rules by which each team shall abide have been posted on most of the bulletin boards around the campus, and umpires for each battle have been carefully selected. Likewise, three fields have been designated on which all games are to be played. These grounds were picked not only because they are reasonably level, but also because they are far enough away from buildings to keep the cost of broken windows and "Navy shingles" at a minimum. Each team will play only one game with all the other teams in its respective league because time will not allow another complete re-play of the schedule. Games which are postponed when inclement weather prevails will be discounted entirely.

Norton Resigns

Due to the fact that Vance Norton found his studies interfering with his college life he has voluntarily resigned as Sport Editor of "The Maine Annex." The Staff wishes to thank Vance for his hard work and we know the student body share our feelings. Vance has often written the entire sports page without outside help; he is also responsible for a good number of pictures which appear in our publication.

SMITH PLACES SEVENTH IN P. B. C. ROAD RACE

Irving Smith from Brunswick wearing the colors of the University of Maine finished seventh in the Portland Boys' Club five-mile road race. Smith ran the route in 28.04, which is just two minutes longer than the former record for the race. The winner, Ed Shepard of Gorham, ran the race in 25.48 minutes to set a new record. Smith ran with the leaders throughout the race and defeated several fine runners including Kippy Richardson, last year's winner.

NOTICE

The Maine Annex Outing Club is taking to the sea come Sunday next. Two boats owned and operated by Jim Linscott of building 25 will carry the members of the club on a trip around Casco Bay. The Outing Club will leave the Annex about 8:30 on Sunday morning, journey to Falmouth Foreside where they will board the boats and start a trip which will last the entire day.

Intramural Track Meet Under Way

An intramural track meet will again take place here at the Annex this year. This meet is being held not only for the benefit of the regular track squad, but also for any other men who wish to compete because they were unable to go out for the varsity team. All men who compete will be representing their respective dormitories, and the dorm garnering the most points will be the winner. The field events will have taken place by the time this writing is published, but the running events are to be held in Brunswick on April 27th. The final results of the meet will be recorded in this paper next week. There is still time to enter in the running events.

It is also of interest that all records established in the meet here last year are put up on the line to be bettered. Any new records which are set this year, therefore, will stand for other men to break in future meets of this kind.

Records as they now stand are as follows:

- 1 mile run — 5:38 — Lutes and Orach (tie)
- 100 yd. dash—10.6—Humes
- 100 yd. low hurdles—11.9—Cates
- 880 yd. dash—2:21.9—Lutes

Student Union

with the U of M faculty, alumni, and friends, in soliciting for and contribution to all new buildings which have been added to the Orono campus which offered recreational services. An example of this combined aid is the new Library which Maine students now enjoy.

The new Union Building will serve a dual purpose; not only will it offer its services for the students' leisure time with its dining room, cafeteria, pool room, bowling alleys, lobby rooms, etc., but it will also stand as a lasting memorial to those 180 men and women students and alumni of the University who gave their lives in World War II. Such a worthy cause merits the support of every student.

The generous response to the Union Building campaign in the past can make a Memorial Union Building a reality on the Maine campus by possibly 1949. Fine progress towards this goal has already been made. You, as a student, can appreciate better than anyone else the values such a building will have. Success is within our reach; when the time comes we urge you to give what you can to this deserving project and help make — Every Student a Union Building Contributor.

to do the job, and to do it right needs a good nose for Nazis which only comes from many years of experience.

In regard to the powers of the Christian Church, he believes that if the priests and pastors were given a free opportunity to do what they could, the reconstruction of Germany would be over that much sooner.

Dr. Herman spent about twelve years in Europe. During the first few years he was in Germany. He was in a concentration camp for a while, and then proceeded to London where he was for some time. Since the end of the war he has done extensive travelling in Europe.

Dr. Herman was introduced by Mr. Halkyard of the math department.

DAYDREAMS

By Sid Folsom

As I sit here at my desk, my gaze wandering past the borrowed typewriter to the open window beyond it, fanned gently as I am by the warm Spring breezes, pacified by the calm of the blue skies, relaxed by a severe case of Spring fever, and filled with a great curiosity, as the poem says, as to "where the flowers' is", it seems that my thoughts have passed through that window, and have transported themselves to remote spots. Spring is in the air, Joe. And with it come the budding of flowers, the leafing of trees, and the turning of a young man's fancy to thoughts of what they say the women have been thinking about all year long. Ah me . . . how many times have I heard that phrase quoted by campus wits? And yet there may be much truth in the matter. But then, how would we know? We are students at the Maine Annex. You remember, Brunswick Boys' Town! Nevertheless, it would be suitable to the situation if one of us were to take it upon himself to go forth into the outside world some weekend and investigate this rumor. Although winter is now past, it was a long one while it was here, and the women should have had plenty of time to get in practice. Any volunteers? Or maybe we should arrange for typically Spring weather for the weekend of May 21, and form sort of a vigilantes committee among the boys to look into the situation. But then on the other hand, each of us may be so busy with his own affairs that weekend that we won't want to wait for organizing. Oh, well, if any of you learn any facts which may have bearing on the situation, let us know. Gallup is our middle name.

As I said before, along with Spring come the flowering of flowers and the leafing out of leaves. And that can remind you of only one thing. Just let your collegiate mind wander far from these ivy-covered walls of the annex, far from the happy cries of frolicking freshmen, to some other campus. Let us choose a mythical spot, one which we have heard of, but which as yet seems unreal. Let's see . . . How about the Orono campus? A natural! According to rumors, Spring also visits that campus. The trees bud, the flowers bloom, the grass grows, and according to rumor, confirmed by some of the few who have visited the spot of late, little leafy bowers appear here and there, shaded from the sun during the hottest hours of the day, and caressed by the balmy breezes which accompany the season. Just shut your eyes, lean back, and let your thoughts wander there for a moment or two. Nobody will miss you here, and just think of what you'll find there. Amidst the joy that is Spring, amidst the leafy trees, on the cool grassy lawns, in the shade of giant trees, there, too, are happy students. Did I mention co-eds before? I was thinking of them. Anyway, there they are. Dozens of them! Over there under that elm, do you see that luscious red-head? Doesn't it look as if she's having a little trouble with her math? Big-hearted guy that you are, wouldn't you like to help her with her homework? Hmmmm . . . Or over there in the sun: it looks as if those four girls are preparing for a busy afternoon of study. There are books there somewhere, although somewhat obscured by the cokes, potato chips, two-piece sun suits, and intense feminine atmosphere . . . Wouldn't you like to join the merry throng, Joe College that you are, and help them study? Or maybe it could be arranged for the books to be forgotten for a while. Who knows? And maybe after the sun falls behind the trees, you could make use of that nice little convertible over there in the parking lot. Just in case you've been out of touch with society for a long time, let me refresh your memory: a ride in the country, a weiner roast in the evening, twosome or other can be a lot of fun. Or maybe a little dancing, or perhaps a swim later in the season, canoeing, swimming. Then a slow, sweet back home under the mellow in the conveniently small seat of car, one arm on the wheel and other elsewhere . . . Interestd, Sounds pretty good after that winter, doesn't it? Spring, it's derful!
