Scope and Contents

A series of interviews and supplemental manuscript material on dowsing or water witching, most conducted as part of a class project in Edward D. "Sandy" Ives' Oral History and Folklore: Fieldwork (AY 125) course at the University of Maine in 1984. Other accessions were added to the series because of their focus on dowsing. Dowzers discuss techniques and materials; uses of dowsing in archaeology learning to dowse; beliefs about dowsing; dowsing as a way of healing; locating ley lines; and tell dowsing stories.
