Town debt less resources, 3,894.12

The undersigned has made a careful examination of the foregoing accounts and find them correct and properly vouched and would respectfully submit them to the town for their approval.

J. M. Hopkinson, Auditor.

District No. 1.

This school is now reduced to four scholars and should be classed with some other district. Summer and fall terms taught by Miss Lizzie I. Dennett, of Deering. Although this was her first attempt in teaching, she seemed to take in the situation and made the best use of her time. She might have been very profitably employed in one of our best schools, she seems peculiarly fitted to win the affections of her pupils and keep them engaged. We emphatically recommend her method of management and her practice of supplemental exercises at the board with smaller scholars.

District No. 2.—Union Scarboro' Corner.

The summer and winter terms were taught by Hattie E. Moulton. Number attending summer term, twenty-four; average attendance, eighteen. There was a good attendance during the summer term and the improvement was satisfactory. The winter term was not so well attended but for what reason has not been explained. The order was good, Miss Moulton is a good scholar and with a little more confidence in herself will make a good teacher. We think in this case she labored under the difficult task of "keeping in her own district."

District No. 3.

Cyrus M. Elden, teacher. This was Mr. Elden's first school, and as is often the case with young and inexperienced teachers some errors in discipline and teaching were discovered, yet this was in part counterbalanced by his interest and zeal and as a whole the school was run with a fair degree of success. We think that by practice and observation Mr. Elden may become a successful teacher.

Winter term, W. C. Waterman, teacher. We visited this school at the commencement and at the close and both times with pleasure. The closing examination showed good solid work and a corresponding degree of thoroughness.
District No. 4.

Fall term, Miss Dora A. McCorrison, teacher. This was as is usual in this district a good school. The scholars appeared to be interested and by the aid of the ever ready teacher accomplished a fair amount of work and made a good showing at the end of the term.

Winter term, Hermon H. Locke, teacher. At the first visit we found the school rather noisy and restive, and not well booked on many topics taken up, but the zeal and perseverance of the teacher together with his original ideas resulted in infusing new interest into the school and at our final visit we were well satisfied. It is seldom that we find a school that has learned so many lessons in one term on subjects not found in the text books as this one has in the term just closed. Mr. Locke has made a good beginning as a teacher, and only requires experience, and a little more regard to system, to rank well in his profession.

District Nos. 5 and 14.

Summer term, Millie Eaton, teacher. We were much pleased with the closing examination of this term of school. The teacher showed herself capable of handling any first class school.

Winter term. Ira W. Libby, teacher. This was Mr. Libby's first school and was fairly successful. The room was kept tidy and the order good. At the examination some of the classes showed very well indeed, and some others very poor; but, as a whole, we think Mr. Libby has done well.

District No. 6.

Summer term was taught by Miss Fannie Hill. This is one of the best schools in town. Miss Hill is a faithful and conscientious teacher, but needs more confidence in herself and a little more attention to the supplemental exercises—which are now being used in the country schools.

Fall term taught by Varney T. Smith. Mr. Smith, one of our best teachers, was not quite as successful in this school as usual. His health becoming impaired before the close, he could not act himself. The scholars were making good headway at the time of our visit, and Mr. Smith was assiduous and devoted. We did not have a closing examination.
Mr. E. B. Hopkinson, colleague, took charge of the school after Mr. Smith left, and at the time of our visit was giving his usual attention and energy to this new line of business. We were much pleased with the appearance. School is still in session.

District No. 7.—Kimball's Corner.

Fall term. Fanny F. Hill, teacher. This school is small and composed of small scholars, but they are very well advanced for their ages. Miss Hill has a good reputation as a teacher, but there was a lack of harmony between the scholars and teacher this term that prevented sure success, and thus much of the usefulness of the school was lost.

Winter term. Annie Rounds, teacher. Miss Rounds conducted this school with her usual success, and with satisfaction to committee and the district.

District No. 8.

Summer term taught by Miss Laura Stone. Miss Stone has the qualifications of a first class teacher. The pupils in this school are quite young and it requires a good deal of attention to keep them all employed. Miss Stone succeeded in keeping all at work and good progress was made. The school house needs repairing—an out house and a blackboard.

Winter term taught by Charles H. Bangs. Mr. Bangs was obliged to leave on account of sickness and the school was not examined at the close.

District No. 9.

Summer term, Celia Campbell, teacher. This school, with the exception of District No. 1, is the smallest in town. This was Miss Campbell's first attempt at teaching, and we should judge from the appearance of teacher and scholars at the closing visit, that the school was a success.

Fall term, same teacher.

This school was visited but once by the committee, notice of its time of closing not being received in time to visit it.

We feel confident from the appearance of the school at this visit, that it was a profitable term and that Miss Campbell will succeed as a teacher.
Summer term taught by Miss Nellie Boothby. This was a profitable school. Miss B. is one of the very few who are willing to step off from the old beaten track of merely hearing recitations, and give instruction. She did so by blackboard exercise and instruction in supplementary text-books.

Winter term taught by Mr. Eugene C. Carle. Mr. Carle is a wide-awake young teacher and was doing well at our visit. School yet in session. Good order was maintained and no appearance of laziness on the part of teacher or pupils.

Summer term, Hattie E. Smith, teacher. This term was visited but once by the committee and then it was at the first of the school, at which time the teacher seemed to be doing her utmost for all concerned and with a fair prospect of success, but a spirit of diffidence and a habit of speaking too low to be heard distinctly was noticed in the scholars, which must be very detrimental to the prosperity of the school, as it is annoying to the teacher and committee.

Miss Smith possesses those qualities which are calculated to make her popular as a teacher of town schools. The final visit was not made owing to negligence of the committee.

Winter term taught by E. P. Elwell. Mr. Elwell evidently does not fancy the business of teaching. The general appearance of the school was one of inactivity—teacher and pupils seemed to have fallen into the calm latitudes. The examination near the close did not show satisfactory advancement, or thoroughness in all branches.

District No. 12.—Moderation.

Summer term taught by Miss Lucy A. Milliken. Miss Milliken's experience and past success recommends her to our best schools, and we considered her school on the whole successful, but it did not reach her own expectations and was not all we desired to see. There seemed to be a lack of interest among the scholars. There are some good scholars in this school; there are also new wall-maps and good black-boards in this house. There was a large number of instances of tardiness and only one scholar not absent one half a day.
Fall term. Vesta Walker, teacher. The opening of this term indicated a very profitable one and the attendance was excellent. At our closing examination we found the school quite noisy and not so thorough in review as we wished. The teacher worked hard but the scholars evidently did not.

Winter term. W. P. Parker, teacher. Mr. Parker is a scholar and a worker, and his school indicated it. At the commencement we found it noisy and restive, and at its close it was quiet and attentive. We were especially pleased with the map drawing and written work, of which there was a large amount. This school room is sadly in need of school apparatus, such as maps, a globe, a dictionary, &c., none being visible at the time of our visits.

District No. 13.

The summer, fall and winter terms were taught by Miss Addie Hill. Miss Hill is one of our best teachers and had she the proper text-books and black-board in the school room, would have made her term a very profitable one to the scholars. Her drill class of small scholars gave a good report of her labor. Winter term still in session.

District No. 15.

Summer term, Annie S. Benson, teacher.

Miss Benson is a teacher of some experience although a stranger in this town. At our first visit we were much pleased with the school and predicted an unusually profitable term. Everything appeared to favor this conclusion, teacher in earnest and scholars in harmony with the teacher.

At our final visit, our expectations were not fully realized. There evidently was "a screw loose somewhere." The teacher appeared as much interested as before, but not so much interest was manifested by the scholars. The room was untidy, and the general showing of the school as to discipline and review was not quite satisfactory. Just where the trouble lay we cannot tell, but we feel confident that the fault was not entirely with the teacher. Some of the classes passed a very good examination and should be remembered as worthy of praise, among which were the Grammar and Physiology classes.
Fall term, Lucy Hamlin, teacher.
Especially were we pleased with the efforts put forth by this teacher, for a first class school. The teacher seemed to regard thorough discipline as the first requisite of a good school.
The closing examination was very gratifying to us.

Winter term, F. A. Brackett, teacher.
This was Mr. Brackett's first term in this town. At each visit we found the room tidy, school quiet, and all at work. Considering the length of term, (only eight weeks) a fair amount of work was done, and well done.

District No. 16.—Buxton Centre.

Summer term. Miss Annie Rounds, teacher. Miss Rounds is well-known in this town as a successful teacher, and her efforts in this school resulted in giving satisfaction in the District and to the Visiting Committee. At each visit we found the school orderly and scholars instructed in their work, and the amount of work done comparing favorably with other schools, especially among the primary scholars.

Fall term taught by the same teacher and with equal or better success than the summer term.

Winter term. Irving Blake, teacher. This is one of the most advanced schools in town, and, although the teacher may have erred in judgment in carrying out his ideas of discipline to the extreme, and thus caused some feelings of dislike in the District and among the scholars, yet the examination at the close of the term showed a thoroughness not acquired without much hard work by both teacher and scholar.

District No. 17.

Summer term taught by Miss Carrie L. Merrill. This school promises exceedingly well. Miss Merrill was a ripe scholar and a faithful and conscientious teacher; but after continuing five weeks, Miss M. was obliged to leave—her health failing—much to the regret of the committee and to the great damage of the scholars welfare.

Mr. Eugene C. Carle took charge of the school in the fall and taught until November. Mr. Carle did a good work here—but not as thorough as we would like to see. This is some good hard work needed in this school and more than one term is needed to accomplish the purpose. The house is sadly out of repair. A black-board is needed, and a general renovation is called for.
GENERAL REMARKS.

In summing up our report we find that there is much to commend in our schools, and as usual, some things to condemn.

We have endeavored to report the schools as faithfully as possible and without prejudice or favoritism. Some of our teachers have ventured to step out of the old ruts of our fathers and are doing good work outside of the text book. This is as it should be. It is impossible to find a text book whose author has exhausted the subject under consideration and a few, well-timed, original ideas of the teacher expressed in an off-handed manner is often productive of more good than the most carefully written essay.

We believe that the common schools of our country are the greatest institutions of the age, and are productive of more good than even those of higher grades, colleges and classical schools not excepted, for while the schools of high rank benefit the few whose wealth enables them to take advantage of the privileges to be obtained at these institutions, the great mass of children and youth of both sexes commence their educational career and end the same in the town school.

While we admit that there has been great improvement in the management of our town schools within the last fifty years, yet we think that still greater improvement is needed to enable our scholars to derive the greatest possible good from them. These improvements do not depend upon any one class of persons. There should be efficient and interested school officers and teachers. It is not enough that these possess a knowledge of the text books in use in our town; they must have a desire above the selfish one of getting possession of the money raised for the support of the school. They must have a love for the work, an earnestness to impart the knowledge they possess and a determined will to succeed.

Some, perhaps a majority of the teachers in this town the past year possess these qualifications, but all do not, and here the chairman of the school board would say on retiring from office, what he would not while in office, that he believes the Superintending School Committee are the proper persons to employ teachers. They are in a position to know the wants of each school in town better than any one else can know them, and are brought in contact with teachers and can often make such selections as they think they need. Of course, mistakes would then occur, but not so often as by the present method of hiring teachers.

By the present arrangement agents are sometimes elected, simply, because they have never had the office, and it is their turn and if they don’t get it, they may be offended. It does not matter that the person elected as agent has never visited the school house since he became a voter in the district, except to attend a school meeting; it is of no consequence that he may be unable to read and write, he is a member of the district, has children to send to school perhaps, (and perhaps never had,) and his claim to an office must be recognized. Of course these cases are of rare occurrence, yet they do occur. Then again agents are sometimes elected on account of their social position in the district, but whose private business engrosses their time and attention, and the affairs of the district are run with the least possible trouble to themselves. Another class of agents sometimes elected is the small-souled, penurious “two-cent man” whose sole and only object appears to be to get greatest possible amount of school for the least possible amount of money, and the ability of the teacher not taken into account. Happily our agents are not all selected from among any of these classes. Some of them are good true men, large hearted and generous, and have the welfare of the district school as much at heart as that of their own families. Again we wish to appeal to the parents for their assistance in making our schools profitable.

First, provide the scholars with good and sufficient text-books. This can best be done by the town. Let them have a plenty of blank paper for supplementary exercises, and then question them as to their progress at school. Be sure that you send them early enough to get to the school house in season to be ready at the usual hour for study. It is a great annoyance and injury to the scholar and the school to have a number of tardy ones coming in 5 minutes late, and habits of tardiness thus formed are apt to cling to one through life. Finally, we ask you to assist the teacher in enforcing the rules of the school. If some general exercise is required do not hamper and embarrass the teacher by sending a note requesting him to “excuse Johnnie” from doing his j art.
In general, we would say that our schools will not be pointed at as the index of our civilization much longer, unless their possibilities are more faithfully attended to. The claims of that part of our population between the ages of six and twenty-one, demand some serious attention; the wide margin between what might be done and what is done, will soon be discovered by the scholars themselves, and for one step in advance, and in the right direction, we should say, choose an agent who will take an interest in the matter; make the house comfortable and home-like; provide a black-board that chalk will make a mark on; keep the out-houses in such a condition that they will not be public nuisances, and then provide such text-books for the desk as the teacher will and should be required to use in a general drill exercise for the whole school. We recommend supplementary exercises in Science of Common Life, History, Physiology, Botany, Political Economy, Physical Geography and Civil Government.

We cannot give up the impression that these matters would be better attended to were the district system abandoned, as there are now, when some of the districts are too small to maintain a school by itself, so many disadvantages that the money is not used to the best use for the children.

The committee hereby give notice that they will be in session at the school house, Buxton Center, on Saturday, April 11 and 25, at 10 A. M. for examination of teachers for the summer terms, and Sept. 5 and Oct. 3 at the same place and hour for examination of teachers for fall and winter terms, and no certificate will be granted to teachers who do not attend one of these examinations, unless special arrangements are made previously.

Respectfully submitted,

A SIMPLE STATEMENT OF FACTS!

THE CUMBERLAND SUPERPHOSPHATE!

THE BEST FERTILIZER

SOLD IN THE STATE OF MAINE.

Since the establishment of the Bureau of Inspection of Fertilizers, the

has attained the highest analysis each year, containing all the elements of plant food in the most concentrated form. In other words, one ton of CUMBERLAND SUPERPHOSPHATE has nearly as much plant food as 2 tons of some other brands sold in this State.

ANALYSIS FOR 1884.
