From all of us at the Maine Public Broadcasting Network,
have a safe and enjoyable fall!
Public Radio—Where in the world would we be without it?

Public radio helps you to understand your world better, how events affect you and what it may all mean. At this writing, we are in the process of determining special coverage on the devastating aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. Besides our regular news program coverage, special one-time programs, extra newscasts and live press conferences, we are also offering the Day to Day and Talk of the Nation programs during our afternoons. We are also planning to offer live coverage on John Roberts’ Senate hearings to be the next Chief Justice of the Supreme Court as well as hour-long hearing summaries each evening at 7 p.m. We know that you value your public radio station’s ability to react quickly and flexibly to situations such as these, and that MPBN is the place on the radio dial you count on for in-depth news and analysis in times of need.

While some of you may have welcomed the extra afternoon news during our coverage of Hurricane Katrina, we also know that many of you missed our regular offerings, including afternoon music. Our digital future may offer us an economical win-win situation. It is expected that the FCC will make their final ruling this fall on whether to allow radio stations to utilize new digital band-width technology to offer multiple over the air programming streams. This means that in addition to our current over the air analog service (that will stay the way it is), we may be able to offer one or two additional digital channels with entirely different programming! We are in the process of converting all of our radio transmitters over to digital. Perhaps you’ve heard a delay when switching from one station to another. We have also been surveying you—our members—with the member opinion form to determine what formats or programs—new, old, or at different times—you’d like to be able to hear. It is likely your current analog radio will work for many, many years to come, but yes, you will have to buy new digital receivers to receive these new services. We’ll continue to keep you updated.

We are very pleased that Elena See has accepted the position of Classical Music Director. Elena has been very busy getting our music library in order and planning enhancements for classical music offerings. A weekly request morning, “Live at 11” performances, a focus on new releases and artist interviews are all in store for listeners! Elena will also be spicing up the Monday afternoon 2 p.m. classical music program with a wide variety of interesting pieces to give you perhaps a bit more of an “active listening experience.” Elena would love to hear from you if you have any comments about our classical music offerings. She can contacted at ese@mpbn.net or 800-884-1717.

Barry Darling is MPBN’s weekend, early-morning, classical music host. One Saturday morning this summer, he paid tribute to the fifth anniversary of Robert J. Lurtsena’s passing with an airing of Robert J.’s trademark bird recording introduction. Following the positive response to that, we’ve decided to bring those birds back early on Saturday and Sunday mornings just after Garrison Keillor’s Writer’s Almanac at 6:05 a.m.

In Tune by Ten with Sara Willis features a variety of contemporary folk and singer-songwriter artists each weekday evening at 10 p.m. and has developed a very loyal following. We have also aired similar music on Saturday evenings and Sunday mornings with David Dye’s World Cafe. Over the summer, the World Cafe began moving away from a “folk sound” to include more pop or band sounds—which unfortunately changed the listening experience. We’ve discussed this with the producers, and they now continue to provide us with just one program each week which we air at 9 p.m. on Saturday. As for Sunday mornings, it’s now In Tune by Ten, Sunday Morning! If you have comments or suggestions for Sara, she can be reached at swillis@mpbn.net.

Note: For those of you who would like “more pop or band sounds,” the future promise of digital multicasting may be the answer. Our Web site currently offers live streaming of our signal, a totally separate classical music service, on-demand playback of many of our programs, and a searchable archive of our local news reports. We are now starting to look at other ways to offer some of your favorite programs in this new age of changing technology. "Podcasting" can enable you to download quickly a program such as Maine Things Considered to play back and listen to at your convenience on your ipod or similar device. Stay tuned!
Award-winning host offers “another spin of the world”
PRI’s The World with Lisa Mullins

PRI’S THE WORLD on MPBN brings one-of-a-kind international stories home to America, Monday through Thursday at 3 p.m. In each broadcast, news anchor Lisa Mullins guides listeners through major issues and stories, linking global events directly to the American agenda.

The result is an award-winning hour of breaking news, in-depth features, hard-hitting commentaries, and thought-provoking interviews found nowhere else in U.S. news coverage. In addition, the program features regular segments, including world music, showcasing world artists and their work, and the popular GeoQuiz, in which listeners test their knowledge of locales far and wide.

A seasoned journalist, Mullins brings more than 20 years of reporting experience to The World. She has covered major news events around the United States and produced reports from China, Albania, Italy, Mexico, and Northern Ireland. She has interviewed key figures on the international stage, including U.N. Secretary General Kofi Annan, U.S. Secretary of State Colin Powell, and Afghanistan President Hamid Karzai.

Mullins also hosts the American broadcast of the BBC documentary series The Changing World, which focuses on such issues as Muslims and modernity, and the black market trade in guns. She co-produced The Vegetable Chronicles, an award-winning series of public radio documentaries about diet and disease. Mullins has also hosted the American broadcast of the annual Vienna Philharmonic’s New Year’s Day concert.

Public radio program directors nationwide have praised Mullins as one of the best announcers in public radio. She received the bronze award for “Best Network Anchor” in the New York Festival’s international radio competition, and Boston Magazine honored her with its “Best Radio Voice” award. Mullins has won numerous other awards, including the Golden Reel Award in the category “National News and Public Affairs” from the National Federation of Community Broadcasters. In a recent interview, Mullins revealed a little about herself:

Up Close with Lisa Mullins

- Birthplace: Stoneham, Massachusetts
- Alma mater: Simmons College, Boston
- First experience in broadcasting: Circa 1974, co-hosting the first Stoneham High cable television newscast. We had a TV audience of four, excluding the school principal, my co-host, and her family.
- Fun facts:
  - Hidden talents: Baton majoretting
  - Favorite bumper sticker: “I know hell is hot, but is it really humid?”
  - Worst job: Working the lunchtime grill at Friendly’s.
  - Most therapeutic job: Smashing glass bottles into an enormous metal bin at the local recycling yard.
  - Favorite public radio personality: Alex Chadwick
  - Favorite films: East of Eden, Grand Canyon, Truly Madly Deeply
- Just once, I’d like to... on the air!: Interview Springsteen and perform Broadway classics—just not at the same time.
- Significant others:
  - More than I can count. They are my buoys.
- Why hosting PRI’s The World is the best job in the world:
  - You can’t go a single day without learning something.
- So, what did you learn today?:
  - That in Tuva, the word for “hello” translates as “hold back the dog.” Isn’t that great?
- My turn. What’s my favorite passage from one of the gazillion books I read for work every year?:

4  Fall 2005
Glad I asked. Here's a passage from one of the more fabulous books I've read recently. Salon.com's Wanderlust: Real Life Tales of Adventure and Romance. It's the only book I've read with "romance" in the title in a long time. Anyhow, the opening essay called "Why We Travel," written by Pico Iyer. My astonishingly well-traveled niece appreciated this passage so much that she quoted it for her college admission essay. I would have, too, if he'd written it back then.

Pico Iyer: "We travel, initially, to lose ourselves; and we travel, next, to find ourselves."

He goes on: "We travel to open our hearts and eyes and learn more about the world than our newspapers will accommodate. We travel to bring what little we can, in our ignorance and knowledge, to those parts of the globe whose riches are differently dispersed. And we travel, in essence, to become young fools again—to slow time down and get taken in, and fall in love once more...

Yet for me the first great joy of traveling is simply the luxury of leaving all my beliefs and certainties at home, and seeing everything I thought I knew in a different light, and from a crooked angle... Abroad, we are wonderfully free of caste and job and standing... people cannot put a name or tag to us. And precisely because we are clarified in this way, and freed of inessential labels, we have the opportunity to come into contact with more essential parts of ourselves (which may begin to explain why we may feel most alive when far from home)."

I love that.

~ Masterpiece Theatre 35th Season ~

SHERLOCK HOLMES:

The Case of the Silk Stocking

Sunday, October 23 at 9 pm

MASTERPIECE THEATRE'S 35th season opens with a new mystery inspired by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's immortal detective. Rupert Everett stars as Sherlock Holmes, the sleuth who just can't say no to a new case, with Ian Hart as Dr. Watson. This fiendishly original, completely new Holmes mystery written by Allan Cubitt is set in London in November 1902. The corpse of a shabbily dressed young woman is discovered in the mudflats of the Thames. Oddly, the dead woman is not wearing her own clothes. What does this mean? Armed with psychological insight, Holmes baits a clever trap. (Photo: © Tiger Aspect Productions/Laurie Sparham.)

KIDNAPPED

Sunday, October 30 at 9 pm

A MYSTERIOUS INHERITANCE.

A wicked uncle. A luckless orphan befriended by a daredevil rogue. Shipwreck. Swordfights. True love. Who could ask for more? Robert Louis Stevenson's gripping tale of Highland adventure is retold in a two-part, swashbuckling adaptation. Iain Glen stars as the legendary Scottish rebel, Alan Breck, with James Anthony Pearson as Davie Balfour, the young hero whose abduction on the eve of inheriting the family title sets the story on its wild ride through mid-18th-century Scottish history. Farewell and Thank You

The staff of the Maine Public Broadcasting Network and the board of trustees acknowledge, with deep gratitude, the many accomplishments and dedication of our president and CEO, Mary Anne Alhadeff. As she leaves MPBN to take over the leadership of KERA in Dallas, Texas, we thank her for her commitment, hard work and passion for the mission of public broadcasting in Maine.

Thank you, Mary Anne, and best wishes!
