COVER ILLUSTRATION: Main Street Celebration, Ellsworth, c. 1910. The cover image, a detail from a 1910 postcard, shows Ellsworth, Maine decorated for Fourth of July festivities. The town was in particularly high spirits for that year's holiday, as Ellsworth was selected as a stop for President William H. Taft's July 1910 tour of Maine. As William G. Chrystal explains in this issue of Maine History, Fourth of July celebrations have long been an important exercise in forming a collective American identity. Image courtesy of the Ellsworth Public Library.
