"The act of creating is an attempt to understand connections. They can be between the conscious and the unconscious, personal and public, intellectual and emotional, or almost anything, perceived or not perceived.

There is also the relationship between idea and concept, mind and body, body and tool, tool and technique upon medium and project to place, which are constantly layered over the reasons for creating within the process of doing.

Artists work through these connections to give themselves and the world glimpses of possibilities as to how things fit into our world.

For me that process is important. Having a plan that allows for discoveries to be made and acted on along the way that will enlighten and enliven the result is one of the reasons I find great joy in my work. It is also a tool to keep me present within the process. I believe creation happens only in the present. The past and future are only tools to help us fully focus on the here and now."

-Mark Harrington

Harrington lives in Franklin, Maine. He exhibits across New England, and his work was recently installed (among 70 sculptures) at the Maine Audubon headquarters in Falmouth as part of "A Celebration of Art and Nature," summer 2014. Please see attached resumé.

Thanks very much for submitting an application to the September 2014 Cultural Affairs/Distinguished Lecture Series funding competition. Once again, as we had many excellent proposals asking for a total of over $23,000 in CADLS support. We had only $15,000 to award, so were unable to fund some proposals for their full amount requested. We wish we had more funds for all of the great events brought forward to the Committee.

In its meeting on October 8th, the CADLS Committee awarded $400.00.00 for your project.

Thank you.

Final Report, Visiting Artist: Mark Herrington.

As an added bonus to the two scheduled events, Herrington also met with Professor James Linehan's Senior Capstone Class ART 499 to discuss future endeavors and how to make a living as an Artist. There were 16 people in attendance during the capstone class.

The October 30th, Thursday evening lecture wasn't as well attended as we had hoped, with more than twenty students, faculty and staff present. Herrington presented images of his work and spoke in reference to the notion of, "Sculpting in the Moment".

On Friday October 31st Herrington conducted a workshop on Sculpting in the Moment. The workshop was well attended, with more a dozen students producing Sculpture using techniques and tools Herrington demonstrated. We had as many participants as we had tools. Since this workshop, students who attended have been bringing in a number of logs from trees that came down due to the November 1st weekend snowstorm. The wood is in preparation for more sculpture to be produced next semester (Spring 2015) using Herrington's techniques.

Mark Herrington's lecture and workshop were advertised thru two separate e-mail fliers. These went out once to the College two weeks prior to the events and again five days before the events. Copies of the flyer were also hung in Lord Hall, FSTA, and the Wyeth Center. All supported events totaled 48 plus people in attendance.

Please see attached e-flier.

Thank You,
Greg Ondo
