"The good that she did will never be fully known"

Glowing tributes were paid to Mrs. Anne Stodder of Bangor when she died in 1942. She had been a most beloved woman whose deeds of kindness and generosity were not generally known. Frequently her gifts were made anonymously.

The following excerpt from a Bangor paper accurately reflected her fine character:

"Mrs. Stodder's memory will live in the hearts of those who came to know her keen sensitiveness to other's troubles and who found in her a generous, kindly and sympathetic friend. The good which she did will never be fully known because she did not wish it so. But in countless quiet and unobtrusive ways, as the years came and went, she made Bangor a happier city and brightened the less fortunate lives that touched her own."

During her life Mrs. Stodder showed keen interest in the University. She helped many worthy students. She gave a room in the University Library which, when the top floor of the building is converted to Library uses, will bear her name.

Her generous gift of $250,000 made her the University's second largest benefactor. The $250,000 bequest was given in two funds: $50,000 was paid to the University immediately, the income to be used to assist needy and deserving students. The balance which will be paid to the University upon termination of a trust to establish the "Anne E. Stodder Fund," the income to be used for the general purposes of the University. This unrestricted use of the income will be particularly helpful to the University in meeting special needs as they may arise.

Mrs. Stodder's bequest will carry on her wonderful spirit of helpfulness. It will prove invaluable in assisting deserving students and in helping to build a stronger and finer University.

PHYSICAL THERAPIST

ESTHER RANDALL '44 is one of a handful of highly trained specialists, known as physical therapists, working with polio. Few physical therapists can boast of a background and experience similar to that which Miss Randall has developed in the short period since her graduation from Maine.

Miss Randall has done graduate work in major polio rehabilitation centers, including the famed Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, and is one of the few girls to have attended the Harvard School of Medicine.

"I don't know how I ever made that year," she claims, referring to her study at Harvard. "I went through the entire year holding a medical dictionary in one hand and poking cadavers with the other hand and trying to understand what was being said."

Thus Miss Randall casually dismisses her accomplishments. Her many friends and classmates at Maine will remember her as a cheerful girl who was an outstanding student and campus leader, as well as a key figure in the women's athletic program. That she was even admitted to the Harvard Medical School, let alone completed the year's course, is a distinction granted few women. Within the past few years the course no longer admits women at Harvard, the training being done at Simmons.

Changes Plans

As a student in Home Economics at Maine, Esther Randall planned to go into teaching, but when she won the scholarship award to be a transfer student to the Merrill-Palmer Development School in Detroit, she found a new field of work that appealed to her immediately.

Part of her study program in Detroit was visiting nursery schools and one such visit took her to a school for crippled children. Her interest in the school's program promoted the physical therapist working with the children to suggest to Miss Randall that she study the work and following her course at Harvard, she worked for a year at the Boston Children's Hospital, then came to Maine to work one summer at the Pine Tree Crippled Children's Camp. That fall she went to Portland to work with Dr. Henry Lamb, widely known orthopedic surgeon. Remaining in Dr. Lamb's office for two years, she left to go on to Warm Springs. While at Warm Springs, a major epidemic of polio broke out in Buffalo, and Miss Randall went to the Buffalo Children's Hospital in New York, returning to Warm Springs following the outbreak.

New York Experience

Last winter in New York she worked not only with polio patients but also with paraplegic and spastic cases. The customary daily routine of life has to be carefully learned by these patients and Miss Randall spent hours training the patients to walk on busy streets.

"First we would start out on the quiet streets, gradually build up in traffic until we had them walking on the busy streets. One of the big training projects was teaching them how to step up and down on curbsides, how to get on and off buses, since that is a part of daily life for any working person."

Last spring Miss Randall took three patients, all rabid baseball fans, to a Yankee-White Sox game at the Yankee Stadium. These three men felt that the disease and accidents which had crippled or removed their limbs had removed baseball from their lives. Esther Randall thought otherwise, stacked the wheelchairs into a station wagon, put the men aboard and headed for the Stadium. A bad moment came when the hand struck up the National Anthem and the men could not arise. Initially the men passed dazed looks to each other, but as Miss Randall, without a word, stood up, they confidently straightened in their chairs.

"The patients are amazing," she says. "They don't waste time feeling sorry for themselves. They're all too busy trying to improve."

Modern medicine has turned Warm Springs, Georgia, an ancient Indian curing spot, into a place of near-miracles, Miss Randall reports. The average daily number in residence throughout the year is about 150 with about 750 patients cared for over a year's time. There is absolutely no distinction made in the care and housing between Pay and Aid patients, the financial classification being known only to the personnel of the Foundation in charge of financial arrangements.

"HOT SHOTS"

WHILE Maine forests are quite "fireproof" during the winter months, a few short months will bring the period of the year when forest fires often remain a hazard for weeks at a time. When the snows have come and gone, forestlands in the state will again become tinder dry and ready to burst into destructive flames at any provocation.

"Hot Shots"

By the time Maine's woodlands again face the danger of forest fires, a highly-trained University fire-fighting crew will be ready to go into action. This crew takes pride in the name given to them—"Hot Shots."

When the tragedy of fire in the woods strikes, there will be little to distinguish this crack crew from any of the ash-blackened volunteers from nearby towns. The distinguishing feature will be the businesslike, professional manner in which they work, and the progress they make against the blaze.

Hundreds of men who now hold positions of authority and direct a scientific and usually successful attack against Maine's fires

75 Students

In an effort to increase its effectiveness in protecting the state's forestlands, the department organized the "Hot Shot" fire crew about two years ago, composed of forestry students. About 75 men compose the squad which under the training and direction of Professor A. G. Randall has become an effective self-sufficient fire-fighting crew. They may work either as a unit, or as straw bosses over groups of volunteers. In a real emergency, the "Hot Shots" could serve as a nucleus for an organization of some 750 fire-fighters.

The crew is made up of selected men, and their training has been rigorous and extensive. Under Forestry Department rules only those students whose grades are high enough to stand two or three days' absence are eligible, and great stress is placed on physical fitness.

As seniors leave each year to take full-time forestry jobs, the personnel changes. Therefore, the training is a continuous process. Theory learned in the classroom is put into practice in the university forest, and at the department's summer camp at Indian Township near Princeton.

The digging and cutting of fire lines, laying of hose, and exercises with the outfit's portable pumper are serious business with the "Hot Shots," as are the knotty problems provided by Professor Randall and other members of the department. Used in these problems and exercises are the hundreds of tools, pumps and other equipment provided by the Forest Service. These implements are neatly packed and kept in a well-filled room in the basement of the University's Plant Science Building.

Loading about a half-dozen large, red-painted boxes into trucks, the Hot Shots would be on their way to the forest fire within minutes, and fully equipped for the job. The shovels, pulaskis, axes, brush hooks, rakes, beaters, hose, and Indian pumps are sharp, clean, and ready for instant use.

The "Hot Shots" got their first and only test to date when fire raged through a large tract in the Greenfield-Myra area. Many Maine people can feel a little more secure in the knowledge that there is another highly trained force immediately available if the need arises.

Physical Therapist

The excellently trained personnel feel each newcomer is a challenge. They work with him patiently and persistently until muscles respond.

The unwritten law at Warm Springs is never to treat a patient as a sick person. He has been ill—very ill—but is now on the road to recovery. There are many stages of convalescence, of course, and some patients are in a more weakened state than others, but in no case is there any coddling. Children and adults, alike, fiercely resent any catering. They must be helped to be sure, but only in the things that are absolutely beyond their power to do for themselves. They will not stand being wasted on.

"They are there to get well," says Esther Randall. "Nobody expects miracles, but some of the things I have seen happen border on the miraculous. The patients are working every minute with one goal in sight. They are not looking for sympathy. They're looking for help."

Esther Randall, filled with the love of her work and enthusiastic by nature, must be a great asset down in Warm Springs, Georgia. A patient just talking with this Lewiston girl must get a new lease on the future but Esther Randall neatly dodges any reference to herself. Assistant to Mrs. Hazel R. Stelhers Remedial Activity Director, Mrs. Randall was asked who would take charge of the department when Mrs. Stephens left for an extended trip to the International Polio Conference in Denmark this fall. With a grin and a shrug she replied, "Oh, I don't know. Me, I guess."

Thus casually does this young Maine alumna brush aside acknowledgement of her professional progress. But down at Warm Springs they know Esther Randall and the work she does.

February, 1952
Vice-Chairman Retires—

Alvah Small '94, Vice-Chairman of Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc., has retired from that organization after 45 years service.

A native of South Portland, he received a B.S. degree in Civil Engineering. Later he obtained a C.E. degree. After working as an inspector for the New York Insurance Exchange for two years, he joined the staff of Underwriters' Laboratories as assistant engineer in the Electrical Department Advancing rapidly, in 1916 he was made Vice President and for a number of years was in charge of the Laboratories' New York Office and testing station.

In 1935 Mr. Small was elected president of the Laboratories, making his office at the headquarters in Chicago. He was elected vice-chairman in 1948. He has been active in the work of the American Standards Association, the National Fire Protection, National Board of Fire Underwriters and other organizations engaged in safety and fire protection. He was cited for valued service during World War II.

Paper Researchers—

Two Maine men graduates of the Chemical Engineering Department, have been appointed to the professional staff of the Department of Pulp and Paper Manufacture at State University of New York College of Forestry, in Syracuse. They are Donald W. Libby '43 and Harold R. Hickson '51.

Mr. Libby has been named project leader for hardwood research being done at Syracuse. Co-sponsors of the studies, which have already developed the commercially practised "Chem-grounderwood" process, are an international group of paper, pulp and paper manufacturers organized as Empire State-Paper Research Associates, Inc.

Mr. Hickson is one of several technical assistants working with Mr. Libby and directors of the project. Both men assume their duties this fall.

Mr. Libby went to the forestry college position from the Solvay Process division of the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation of Syracuse. He had been employed there three and one-half years and had been in charge of technical service by the company's pulp and paper laboratory. He served in the Pacific in the Navy during World War II, and is married to the former Orel Lanning of Syracuse.

Mr. Hickson serves as a bomber pilot with the Air Force in Europe during the last war, and at one time served as a laboratory technician engaged in chemical research for the American Sales Book Company of Niagara Falls, New York. He is married to the former Margaret Langley of Bangor.

Paintings Displayed—

Fourteen original water color paintings by Philip J. Brockway '31, Director of Student Aid and Placement at the University, were placed on exhibition in Bangor last month. The exhibition was entitled "Scenes and Seasons."

The old covered bridge at Stillwater, recently dismantled, is shown in one of the paintings. Other scenes reflect the beauty spots of the Cold Stream area.

Mr. Brockway began sketching about 10 years ago, turning to water colors four years ago. Most of the paintings in the exhibition were completed in the last two years. In recent years he has had the guidance of Professor Vincent A. Hartgen, head of the Art Department, in developing his technique.

African Missionary—

"Keep your eyes on Africa! There is much there that Americans might well learn, especially about how to take religion seriously. The African Christian is not ashamed to own his Christian faith and not afraid to live by it." So commented Rev. William B. Booth '41 as he prepared to return to Africa last month following a furlough in this country.

Mr. Booth used his furlough time to take graduate study at Yale Divinity School. In addition to Maine where he studied agriculture and animal husbandry, he attended Bowdoin College and took his theological training at Hartford Seminary. He has also studied at the University of London and Cambridge University.

From 1946 to 1950, Mr. Booth and his wife, the former Zilpha Burdick of Chaplin, Connecticut, worked among the Bantu of South Africa. While there, he supervised African churches, served as Head of the Theological Department at Adams College, a school for Africans, and built up the churches of an area 600 miles through.

The Booths' two-year-old son Harold returned to Africa with his parents. Mr. Booth is specializing in agricultural and educational missionary work in Adams, Natal, South Africa.

City Managers—

Two Maine alumni have recently accepted new positions in the field of Public Administration. Joseph F. Courtney '44 recently accepted the position of Administrative Assistant to the City Manager of Medford, Massachusetts, while Leonard I. Bishop '50 has been appointed Town Manager of Wells, Maine.

Mr. Courtney has been serving as an instructor in government at Northeastern University during the past two years. He is a veteran of World War II having served as Navy Public Relations Officer. Leaving Maine to enter the service, he entered Northeastern upon his return and received his degree in government there in 1948. The following year he attended Boston University Graduate School for a master's degree in political science.

Mr. Bishop left the Town Managership of Carmel and went to assume his new post. He was recognized throughout New England when the Carmel town report was awarded a certificate of outstanding merit for being the best municipal report for towns under 1,000 population.

Associate Director—

Dr. George F. Dow '27 of Orono, Clerk of the General Alumni Association, has been appointed associate director of the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station, President Arthur A. Hauck announced last month.

Dr. Dow will assume the duties and responsibilities of the late Dr. Fred Grise, who was director of the station for more than 20 years. As the administrative officer in charge of the research work in the experiment station, he will be responsible to Arthur L. Deering '12, Dean of the College of Agriculture.

A native of South Portland, Dr. Dow received his M.S. degree at the University in 1929 and went on to receive a doctorate from Cornell in 1938. He joined the staff of the University following his graduation in 1927, and has served continuously except for the time spent in graduate study. He has been associated with the Agricultural Experiment Station as a research worker in agricultural economics, and since 1947 as assistant director. He taught agricultural economics and farm management in the College of Agriculture from 1929 to 1947.

Dr. Dow is chairman of the Boston Milkshed Price Committee, which developed the Boston formula for pricing milk consumed in the Boston area. He is present chairman of the New England Research Council on marketing and food supply. He also represents the northeast as regional administrative advisor for cooperative research in dairy marketing and on the advisory committee for Experiment Station projects under the Agricultural Marketing Act.

To Wisconsin—

By vote of the faculty of the Department of Economics, University of Wisconsin, Dr. Henry B. Kirshen, professor of economics and head of the Department of Economics, Sociology, and Business Administration at Maine, has been asked to teach American labor history at Wisconsin next semester. He will receive a leave from the University to meet this request.

In addition to teaching the labor history course made famous by Dr. Selig Perlman, Professor Kirshen will teach “American Institutions and Labor” to a group of young German trade unionists brought to this country by the State Department. He will also participate in a labor seminar.

During Professor Kirshen’s absence, Professor Henry C. Hawley will serve as acting head of the department.

Receiving his doctorate from the University of Wisconsin in 1937, Dr. Kirshen was a student of the late John R. Commons, one of America’s best known economists, and Dr. Perlman, whose classes he will teach. Dr. Kirshen joined the Maine faculty in 1929, having received his B.S. degree from Whitman College in 1926 and a master’s degree from Columbia in 1929.

Botany Research—

Relief for millions of sufferers of arthritis may be closer as a result of a research by Dr. Eugene C. Ogden, Assistant Professor of botany at the University, and four other botanists.

Dr. Ogden recently returned from a year spent in the southwest and Mexico in search of plants that might be used in the production of cortisone. Dr. Ogden worked for the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Cortisone is a substance that naturally occurs in the adrenal glands of human beings. When the adrenals fail to supply the amount necessary, rheumatic fever, arthritis, and other ailments often result. For such illnesses physicians now often inject cortisone.

A Mexican firm, Synthex, produces cortisone on a large scale. U.S. drug companies are now anxious to start production. The plants now being used are the century plant, soap bush, and the yam.

Dr. Ogden’s work took him to nearly all parts of Mexico.

Emerson President—

Jonathan W. French, former dean of the University’s Brunswick Campus, has been elected president of Emerson College in Boston.

President French, who has been dean at Emerson since he left Brunswick, was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1937. He studied at Columbia University graduate school and earned the master’s degree at Harvard. After studying at the University of Paris and the University of Dijon in France, he taught at Bowdoin and Phillips Academy in Exeter, New Hampshire.

Staff Specialist—

Dr. Esther McGinnis, former University faculty member, has been selected as a staff specialist to carry on work of the Special American Home Economics Association project in “Family Life Education.”

For two years head of the Home Economics Department, Dr. McGinnis was here from 1916 to 1926. More recently she has been director of the Merrill-Palmer school in Detroit, Michigan, and has served the American Home Economics Association as a field worker.

National Speaker—

At the annual meeting of the National Theatre Conference in New York City last month Professor Herschel Brickes, Director of the Maine Masque Theatre, was one of the speakers. He spoke on “Present-Day Relations of the University to the Communities.”

Speaking with Professor Brickes were Mordecai Forchik, who talked on “The European Theatre,” Bob Porterfield, who is head of the Barter Theatre, which is the state theatre of Virginia; Robert Schmertz, who is head of the American Artists sent to the Berlin Arts Festival; Worthington Miner, a director for a CBS dramatic program, who talked on “Opportunities for Television Writers,” and John Gavner, one of America’s leading drama critics and theatre authorities. The general topic of discussion was “A National Theatre for this Country.”

Panel Member—

Professor Edward F. Dow, head of the history and government department, attended the annual National Conference on Government in Cincinnati last month. This conference was sponsored by the National Municipal League.

Representing the University, Dr. Dow was a member of a panel which discussed “Training for Public Office.” Later in the conference he presented a paper on “Direct Legislation and City Government.”

The general theme of the meeting was “Strengthening Self-Government” and discussions on civil defense, city management, city finance, and many other topics were held.
President’s Visit—
General Alumni Association President Myron C. Peabody ‘16 visited the campus on December 12 to meet with the Alumni Secretary and to visit faculty and administration officials.

Mr. Peabody met with George Lord ’24, Association Vice President, George Dow ’27, Association Clerk, Charles Crossland ’17, Chairman of the Deans Committee, and Donald Taverner ’43, Alumni Secretary to discuss the administration of the Association and the status of the current alumni dues campaign.

In visiting with President Hauck, the deans and administrative officials, Mr. Peabody extended the good wishes of the Association.

Western Visits—
Several Black Bear Clubs enjoyed visits from Head Football Coach Harold Westerman in December. On December 6 Coach Westerman addressed the Providence (R I) Gridiron Club, arrangements having been made by the Black Bear Club of Rhode Island. The Black Bear Club of Portland met on December 7 to hear Coach Westerman speak and to watch motion pictures of the 1951 Bowdoin-Maine game. December 12, the coach traveled to Boston where he spoke to the Black Bear Club of Boston and again showed films of the Bowdoin-Maine game. The Maine Club of Auburn Lewiston received a visit from Coach Westerman on December 20 at which time he was their guest speaker.

Washington, D. C.—
The Honorable Clifford G. McIntire ’20, Congressman from Maine’s Third District, was honored at a meeting of the Washington Alumni Association on November 28. In addressing the group, Representative McIntire expressed interest in participating in the activities of the Washington Association.

Also attending this meeting as visiting alumnus were Brigadier General George M. Carter ’18 of Augusta, and Smith McIntire ’32 of Penham, brother of the Congressman.

Artemus Weatherbee ’39 reported to the group on the accomplishments of the Washington Association’s Placement Committee Harland Leathers ’32, the Association’s Vice President, in charge of the meeting.

Adjourning the formal meeting, the group met at the John Leits House where a birthday party was held honoring Kay Mills ’47, Washington Association Secretary.

Boston Alumni—
The Fall meeting of the Boston Alumni Association was held at the Hotel Beaconfield on November 13, with the President of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters as the speaker. Her discussion of the history, aims, and activities of the League was of much interest to the attending alumnae. The Boston Alumnae initiated early plans for their Annual Spring Meeting at this time.

Eastern Alumni—
A meeting of the Eastern Association of University of Maine Women was held on December 3 at the home of Mrs. Waldron Sawyer (Winona Cole ’43) in Bangor.

Guest speaker for the meeting was Miss Jessie Fraser ’31, member of the University’s Board of Trustees. Miss Fraser spoke on her last summer’s trip to the West Coast and Mexico, and illustrated her talk with slides and an exhibit of Mexican articles.

R. I. Black Bears—
The Black Bear Club of Rhode Island met on December 7 at the home of Alfred B. Lingley ’20 in Cranston for a steak dinner, business meeting and social hour. Guest at this meeting was Donald Taverner ’43, recently appointed Alumni Secretary.

The scholarship activity of the club was thoroughly reviewed and plans for the current season discussed.

Familiar Faces

This busy gentleman is Alvin P. Myers. Many alumni will recognize Mr. Myers immediately but “Alvin” will probably come as news to many former athletes.

To them it was always “Vinny.” These alumni will fondly remember turning in pieces of equipment to “Vinny” at the Stock Room in Memorial Gym.

Vinny came to the University in March of 1941 as Stock Room Clerk in the Athletic Department. Today, Vinny is Manager of Athletic Equipment and Athletic Grounds. However, returning alumni looking for him will probably still find him overseeing activities in the Stock Room.

Married and the father of two fine children, Vinny can often be found in his spare time at the Orono Fire Department where he is a lieutenant.

Hundreds of former wearers of the Pale Blue join us in a salute to Vinny!
Campus Comment

(Bill Matson '52 is city editor of The Campus and last year served as assistant editor of The Prism. President of the Press Club, active in the promotion of numerous campus activities, Bill also finds time to work on the sports desk of the Bangor Commercial. He is a member of Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity and lives from Portland. His "Campus Comment" is a regular feature of the Alumnus this year.)

By Bill Matson '52

Oh the weather outside is frightful, but the fire is so delightful so if there’s no place to go let it snow let it snow let it snow.

How well that familiar song fits into campus life now-a-days. Sub-zero temperatures and blustering snow storms seem to be the order of the day. Those early morning classes are getting tougher and tougher to attend with the thermometer outside the window gaily sounding off at five and ten below. However, the Maine student body doesn’t seem to mind it too much. Bundled in heavy hoods and long storm coats both men and coeds trundle off to class. This is the time of the year when the coeds get a chance to show off their beautiful ski outfits that they got via catalog this fall. And the men, they’re just bewildered. Those storm coats with the hoods are good for outside wear, but we must give credit to the demon who invented them for sleeping bags once inside the confines of the classroom.

Ah yes winter is upon us again. Expressions such as: "How can I take that exam my hands are so cold I can’t write," "Hey fellows who wants to help me push my car," "No no, not the ramp." Yes, it was the same when you grads went to college, and as in your day whether it was in '36 or '39, classes go on, basketball games draw capacity crowds, students look forward eagerly to the Winter Carnival so they can stand in the freezing cold to watch an ice show. It’s no different now than it has been in years past.

And despite all the yelling and complaining when the snow starts to fall, the fellows and girls experience a peculiar thrill when the soft, fluffy white stuff Complaints go to the ground. Activities and social affairs keep rolling at the same fast pace. And despite the thought that finals loom up in the not too distant future, things have been popping along University row.

Class Officers

Class officers have already been elected. Usually, these class elections are held later in the year, but this year, the General Senate’s election committee saw fit to push the date for the balloting ahead. More than 1200 students went to the polls after a week of the heaviest campaigning for office that we’ve seen after three years on this campus. Results of the election follow.

SENIOR CLASS: Greg MacFarlan, Stockton Springs. President, Jack Christie, Ellsworth Falls. Vice-president, Dotty McCann, Portland. Secretary, and Martha Pratt Bath, treasurer.

Pittsfield, Mass., treasurer.

with journalism students at an informal meeting before her scheduled address in the Little Theatre on "Washington and the Far East.”

Masque

The Maine Masque came through with another hit recently when it produced Jean Kerr’s well known comedy, "Jenny Kissed Me.” Sparked by Phil Haskell, Bath the regular Masque organist, who took part in his first lead role as Father Moxman the priest, the three-act comedy thrilled the numerous students, faculty, and outside guests that saw the performance during its four-night run. Masque veteran Marguerite Floyd, Brewer as Jenny, also turned in a fine job.

Blood Donors

The Politics and International Relations Club, the Chieftain and the Red Cross College Unit will joint-sponsor a blood drive on campus sometime next semester. Although final arrangements haven’t been made, it is known that a Red Cross Mobile Unit assigned to this state will be on campus for several days. Already a challenge has been received from the University of Idaho urging Maine students to match their blood donations. According to early reports, enthusiasm for the drive is high. The military department under Lt. Col. William M. Summers has informed the committee that the ROTC will be behind them 100%.

Selective Service Tests

Along the military line, over 150 University students most of them freshmen, recently took the Selective Service College Qualification Test in an effort to prolong their college careers long enough to finish their education. Another test will be given in April to permit freshmen who did not take the test this time to try for deferment in the summer and the fall. Under the Selective Service Law now in effect freshmen are automatically deferred for this school year.

The results of the male vote on campus as to whether or not the Men’s Senate should remain as a governing body, turned out as expected, when only 185 students cast a ballot on the issue. Of the total of 185 votes cast, 174 of them were in favor of abolishing the Men’s Senate.

On the campus for 16 years, the Men’s Senate just about folded last year when none of its members bothered to show up for the meetings, and thus failed to get the number needed for a quorum.

As a result, the General Senate called for a plebiscite vote to determine the opinion of the male students on the matter. The general apathy plus the official returns indicated most clearly that the Men’s Senate was not needed on campus.

Smiling happily is Frances Willett ’53 of East Corinth, Honorary Lieutenat Colonel for 1951.

Senators

It was recently united State Senator Week on campus. Within one day of each other, both of Maine’s senators, Margaret Chase Smith and Owen Brewster, delivered speeches in the Little Theatre before jam-packed crowds.

Another celebrity recently visited the campus for a speaking engagement Mrs. May Craig, well known Gannett Publishing Co. Washington Correspondent, talked COACH Rome Rankin's varsity hoopsters went home for their Christmas vacation with a 1-3 record in the pre-holiday cage play. They will cut their vacation short by a week to get in three days of two-a-day practice sessions before leaving on a two-game Yankee Conference trip on which they meet Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Bates

Rankin's Bears have been strictly an up-and-down club this far. They looked good while beating Bates at Lewiston in the first game of the season 71-60. Capt. Jack Christie, Ellsworth Falls dunked 22 points as the Bears led all the way Bates pulled to within 3 points of the lead in the final quarter but Maine rallied to gain the win.

Bowdoin

Three days later, Dec. 8, Bowdoin's scrappy Polar Bears came to town to supply Maine's first home-court competition. The Brunswick team supplied more than enough and took home a 68-42 win. The Pale Blue like something less than a first-class college team in netting only 23 percent of their field goal tries and repeatedly throwing the ball away.

Colby

The next week Colby's high rated, undefeated Mules took the floor in Memorial Gym against the Bears in what was expected to be a runaway. Coach Rankin played the same men as he did in the Bowdoin game, but they looked like a different bunch of boys this time. With a near-capacity crowd screaming so loud that at times the players had difficulty hearing the referee's whistles, the Maine "Mutts" played the Colby "Jeffs" to a standoff for three periods before the Mules' height and depth paid off. Trail ing only six points at the 35 mark, the Bears tired as Colby pulled away to a 90-73 win. Jack Christie, only 5'8" but a dynamo, was tremendous for Maine. He tossed in 27 points, which included nine out of the foul attempts, and excelled in all departments. Bob Churchill, Kazar Falls, 6'4" center, chipped in 19 points.

Vermont

On Dec. 15, the Bears traveled to Burlington for their first Yankee Conference engagement. Johnny Norris, Bangor, 6'5" forward, played his first game—a transfer student, he is eligible for Yankee Conference games but not for state series play until next semester. He tossed in 17 points and looked sharp. Churchill netted 24 points, but Christie, who had averaged 20 points in the first three games, was held to one foul point and that may have been the difference as the Bears dropped their third straight, 49-54.

Freshman Coach Bob Hollway has rounded his first-year men into the kind of team that is drawing the students to Memorial Gym early enough on home-game nights to watch the preliminary tilt. The frosh opened with a sparking 85-54 win over Coburn. In their second outing they dropped a tough one to the high-class Maine Maritime Academy 57-66. The Middles, who played in fast company, were playing their ninth game in two weeks.

Keith Mahaney, Fort Fairfield, and Bert Daniels, Houlton, have led the frosh scoring parade to date.

WINTER SPORTS

Coach Ted Curtis has had his skis working out whenever snow conditions permit. Time trials were run in the cross country event before Christmas vacation. Ted said he was highly pleased with the times recorded by Dick Hatch, Auburn, co-captain of the team, and Ralph Baxter, Ashland, who placed one and two respectively.

TRACK

The annual freshman-sophomore track meet opened the indoor season just before vacation. The sophs dropped the first-year men for the second year in a row 65-52. Bill Calkin, Orono, of the freshman team, was high man of the meet with 13 points. Good marks were posted in the pole vault, high jump, shot put, and 600-yard run. The event has been run every year, with the exception of two war years, since the field house was completed in 1927.

Coach Chester A. Jenkins, who has handled Maine track teams since 1928, looks forward to the event each year because it gives him a chance to see his first and second-year track hopefuls perform against competition. Jenkins had his varsity indoor track team working out daily up to the beginning of vacation. The first meet is with Bates at Lewiston Jan. 12.

The veteran Maine coach is faced with the problem of finding replacements for Ed Leighton, broad jump, Floyd Milbank, weights, Barney McCauslan, high jump, and John Wallace, mile.

INTRAMURALS

At the end of the third week of competition in Intramural Basketball, Phi Eta Kappa was leading the fraternity division with a record of 4-0. Close behind and definitely still in the running were Phi Gamma Delta 3-0, Phi Kappa Sigma 4-1, Sigma Alpha Epsilon 4-1, and Kappa Sigma 4-1.

The Phi Gam's, now in second place, were last year's fraternity division and campus champs.

In the non-fraternity division, Dunn Hall 3, with a 4-0 record, was setting the (Continued on Next Page)
CIVIL ENGINEERING RESEARCH

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the fourth in a series of articles about the Department of Industrial Cooperation and the people who do its research work. This month's article deals with the Civil Engineering Department and its head, Professor Weston S. Evans. Future articles will give details about other specialists who handle investigative work for the DIC.)

During recent months Professor Weston S. Evans, head of the University of Maine's Civil Engineering Department, has been actively engaged in organizing the Maine Section of the American Society of Civil Engineers. Professor Evans' efforts in behalf of this new professional organization for Maine civil engineers are typical of the great interest which he has taken through the years regarding numerous projects for the betterment of his profession and the University.

Professor Evans is now serving as a member of both the Education Committee and the Local Qualifications Committee of the ASCF. As a member of the latter group he passes on the qualifications of applicants for membership from Maine and New Brunswick.

A graduate of the University of Maine in 1918 with a B.S. degree in civil engineering, Professor Evans received his M.S. degree from Maine in 1923. In 1929 he was on sabatical leave for graduate work at the University of Michigan. During World War I, he served as a second lieutenant in the Army Engineers. When he returned from the service he was employed as a transfarman by the Great Northern Paper Company.

WESTON S. EVANS '18

In 1920 he returned to his alma mater as an instructor in civil engineering, and in the years that followed he rose through the ranks to become the head of the department and professor of civil engineering in 1934. Prior to this he was appointed student personnel adviser for the College of Technology.

The Civil Engineering Department has always worked closely with industry, the State Highway Department, and the Maine Technology Experiment Station. With the establishment of the Department of Industrial Cooperation in 1945, the Civil Engineering Department started a series of projects under the auspices of the DIC.

These projects have included the planning and design of a water storage dam, foundation studies, the designing of various small buildings, assisting architects with water analyses, and other work of this nature.

The work of the Civil Engineering Department has always naturally been closely associated with the Maine Technology Experiment Station. Early studies by Professor Walter Leavitt, of the CE department on the causes of strength and weakness in cement mortars received national recognition. The application of statistical methods to engineering problems in another field in which pioneering work was done.

Professor Evans points out that his department is ready to assist industry through the DIC program in all of the various phases of civil engineering. He feels that the department can render service especially in the field of sanitary engineering. Its services, too, may well be utilized in the field of investigation to determine methods of construction and causes of failure.

Besides Professor Evans, others in the Civil Engineering Department who have done DIC work are Professor Seymour J. Rychmen and Hamilton Gray. Others available for DIC work in the department are Professors Walter Leavitt, Joseph Trefethen, Frank M. Taylor, Lawrence Goldthwaite, Kern C. Jackson, and George W. Wadlin.

Professor Evans and the other specialists in his department are ready to tackle your civil engineering problems. Why not make arrangements through Director John B. Calkin, of the DIC?

pace in the American League. Corbett Hall 3 and Corbett Hall 4 trailed with 3-0 and 2-0 respectively.

The National League was in a three-way tie among Castoffs, Grads, and North Dorns 10, all with 2-0 records.

ALL-TEAMS

Maine's undefeated football team received a bagful of assignments to All-Teams. In addition to the All-Maine Intercollegiate team reported last month, the Bears made other All-Teams as follows:

SMALL COLLEGE ALL-AMERICAN (Honorble Mention), Easton, end; Harry Richardson, Kittery, tackle; Bogdanovich, h.b. and Gordon Pendleton, Saco, fb. PORTLAND SUNDAY TELEGRAM ALL-MAINE: Friedman, Maine, offensive team, Bob Whytock, Biddeford, end; Richardson, tackle, Dick Breen, Lewiston, tackle; Pocus, guard, Bogdanovich, h.b.; defensive team, Ed Cianchette, Pittsfield, tackle, Ray Cox, Bangor, guard; Charlie Burgess, Bath, h.b.; and Jack Butterfield, fb.

ATHLETIC BANQUET

Jim and Jack Butterfield, Steuben, both All-Maine choices, were elected co-captains of next year's football in a precedent setting vote at the Annual Fall Sports Recognition Banquet.

Letters and numerals were awarded to 100 Maine athletes at the banquet.

The Maine Conference Publicist Bill Stearns of New Hampshire presented the VC Bean Pot to Capt. Pete Pocus, Rumford, during the banquet. Pocus reciprocated by presenting to New Hampshire the football used in the 0-0 tie that the Cats and Bears played last fall.

Other Captains elected during the evening were Carleton MacLean, Ashland, varsity cross-country; Fred Libby, Hartland, varsity captain of freshman cross-country; Kenneth Woodsum, South Portland, and Kenneth Parady, Old Town, honorary co-capitans of freshman football.

Twenty seven of the varsity letter winners got the major "M" for the first time. They were presented "M" sweaters by John M. O'Connell, university trustee and Cliff Patch '11, chairman of the Maine Athletic Board.

"We are tremendously pleased with the accomplishments of the athletic squads this fall," said President Arthur A. Hauck, especially of the high standards of sportsmanship of which we are so proud."
Necrology

Jeanne Irene Moreau
Following a period of ill health, Jeanne I. Moreau died in Bangor on December 10, 1934. She had been an instructor at Westbrook Junior College from 1941 until last June, when she was forced to retire because of her health. Prior to going to Westbrook Junior College, she taught at Benedicta, Malakwa High, and Bangor High.

Faculty

Instructor Emeritus Everett W. Davey died in Orono on November 27, 1931. He had been a resident of Orono for the past 50 years—40 as a teacher and 10 in retirement. His teaching was in the field of mechanical engineering as many a graduate will remember. Mr. Davey was a past master of Mechanics Lodge A.F. and A.M. and had served as secretary of that lodge for 30 years. He was very interested in Boy Scouts and had worked with them for more than 40 years. Friends were asked to omit flowers for the funeral and contribute to Boy Scout work in Orono instead of surviving a son, Lawrence 22, and a daughter, Pauline Davey Hitchings 39.

Mrs. George C. Grant
(Elma Savage) 10 Congress St., Augusta

On Thanksgiving Day, Hellenrace Lancaster and James Stanley Brown U. S. N. R were married at the Unitarian Church in Amherst, Mass. Lt. Col. Hatt- well Lancaster, commanding officer of the Air Force R O. C. U. unit at Amherst College, gave his daughter in marriage Barbara Lancaster Raymond and her husband Gordon also 37, of Portland attended the ceremony which was performed before members of the immediate families. Upon Lt. Brown's release from the Navy, Hellenrace and her husband will return to his native Oklahoma where he formerly worked for Cities Service Oil Co. He attended Oklahoma University, Rice Institute and Louisiana Poly- technic Institute and holds a degree in petroleum engineering. At my request, Hellenrace sent a long letter with the details of her colorful career in the WAVES. She was a member of the first class of WAVES to receive a commission at Midshipman School at Smith College in 1943, followed by posts in Boston, Portland, and Pearl Harbor where she was stationed on Ye Day. After a short period of civilian life, she was recalled to the service in 1946 and sent to New Orleans. This old city where she lived in the heart of the French Quarter in the oldest apartment building in the U. S. proved one of the most interesting of her varied residences in her travels. Since 1948, Hellenrace, now a Lieutenant, has been stationed in Washington, D. C. This past summer her duties included an extensive jaunt abroad, covering such points as Argentina, North Africa, Greece, Italy, the Riviera, Paris, Germany, Lon- don, and even a stop in Iceland on her way home. It was an exciting trip complete with marquees, packing and all. In her own words: "It was out of this world and I had the time of my life."

Hellenrace sent the following items to classmates met in her travels

During her stay in Boston, she roomed with Kay Laffin '40—a also a WAVES—now Mrs. George Mahoney of Ellsworth. Kay's husband has recently been appointed Insurance Commissioner for the State of Maine, and I hear that the Mahoneys and their two children will soon be moving to Aumata.

Emil and Kay (Duplese) Hawes and their two children now live in a new home in New Brunswick, N. J., where Emil, a Major in the U. S. Air Force, is on the staff of a new Air Force ROTC Unit at Rutgers University.

Hope Jackman is Assistant Dean of Women at New Jersey State Teachers' College and is also studying for an advanced degree.

Ruth McClelland Jewell, whose husband, Duncan, is a Marine officer, lives at 405 Wellington Rd., Alexandria, Va.

Thanks, Helenrace, for a column full of news, and best wishes from all of us.

Neil Sawyer of Bangor has been elected president of the Bangor Community Concert Association for the 1951-52 year. After serving with the U. S. A. during World War II, Neil became associated with the Andrews Music Hall in Bangor, and is now president of the corporation. He is married to the former Sally Parsons of Presque Isle and they have three children.

Congratulations are in order to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Mosher (Margaret Steen) of Union Springs, N. Y., on the birth of a daughter, Ellen Jean, on October 20.

I recently had a chat with Emily Blake McMonagle, whose husband is State Director of schools for unauthorized territory. They live here in Augusta at 224 State St. and have three children: Charles 7, Jane 6, and Ellen 2. Emily told me that Mary Ellen (Buck) and Ernest Smith and their three chil- dren live nearby in Monmouth where Clement operates a dairy farm.

"It is felt that the editorial appearing in the December 13 issue of THE MAINE
CAMPUS under the title "Toast to Stein Song" is worthy of alumni interest.

"The Maine Stein Song called a tavern song" and "pagan" by faculty concert committee members in 1903, was described as such differently in the New York Sunday Times Magazine of November 18.

Frances Boushall, in an article attributging the greatness of many college songs to the strong sentimental tie between college and composer, said this of the Stein Song:

"Nor could a fiery poet with no college affiliation expect to set down a sonnet, heroic couplet or Spenserian stanza as effective as "Fill the stein"

And which of us pulled to our feet with countless other Maine men by the soul-stirring magnetism of "our song at games, banquets, or rallies, will not agree? "Effective" "Simple"
"Nostalgic"

I was very fortunate to have had a recent experience of interest as a guest of Emerson College, representing the University of Maine, at its Founder's Day ceremony which was held at the Charles Street Meeting House with Robert P. Tripp as chairman. It was a brief and delightful excursion into the academic realm for me, cap, gown, and hood and many notable moments among the charming exercises. We were guests of the college at a luncheon also,
and we were most pleasantly entertained.
This was all for this month's landmarks, so we close with best wishes for the New

Churches

A complete and carefully documented history of worship and houses of worship in early Portland is found in Parson Smith's Diary and in Mr. Deane's Journal. From the first church meetings, when the hardy settlers struggled through deep drifts to the cold and uncomfortable little meeting house (where they had to stand during the long service, there being no pews) to the time of the demolition of the old First Parish Meeting House, we have a clear picture of the churches of Portland.

This same church on Congress Street, though built in 1740, did not have a steeple until 1759, not until 1803 were the pews painted. It was a truly imposing structure whose massive white-oak timbers were selected as carefully as those going into a frigate. The high-partitioned pews were squared round a step above the aisles with a railing and short balustrades atop the partitions. Hunged seats were built around three sides and the fourth was taken up by a door as high as the partition, giving the pew the appearance of a prisoner's box.

The pulpit was opposite the front entrance in the middle of the length of the church, which was placed broadside to Congress Street. It was painted white, decorated with green and over it was an elaborate sounding board, hung on a rod suspended from a carved pineapple in the ceiling. This sounding board hung to within three feet of the minister's head. In front of the pulpit, facing the congregation, was the deacon's seat, where for some time sat Judge Samuel Freeman in long waistcoat and breeches.

The services and prayers were long. During prayer the congregation stood turning up pew seats to gain room. At the annual fast in 1750, Parson Smith says he had uncommon assistance with an hour in each of the first prayers. At the 'Amen' all the seats went down with a thankful bang somewhat annoying to the good Parson.

It is interesting to note that the two fluted pillars at the end of the narrow building at Free and Congress Streets originally supported this same pulpit in 'Old Jerusalem,' as the First Parish Church was sometimes called.
