Candidate Humphrey
urges student restraint

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey urged students to keep their dissent within the frame work of the democratic system, Friday at the Memorial Gym.

"A university is a place to reason differences, to resist to violence, the Democratic presidential hopeful told his U. M. audience.

He called attention to a "communication gap" between the so-called Establishment and today's youth. Humphrey appealed the rise of individual spirit, but called for it to be kept within a system flexible enough to channel this energy into constructive activities.

"You don't need to tear down the country to build the country up," he declared.

Humphrey set down a new set of three Rs. He stated that reason, restraint, and equality an equal individual person.

After his prepared remarks, the Vice President fielded questions from a panel of four students.

Humphrey stated that the Paris peace talks could include representatives from both the Viet Cong and the US. He said that the each of the negotiating nations was free to have whomever they wished on their side of the conference table.

Later, this response brought a quick rebuff from State Department sources, which said there had been no agreement in Paris on the touchy subject of representation.

On the subject of the feasibility of a professional army for the U.S., the Vice President said the combination of "professional, voluntary, and selective service is best for now.

More important, he added, was the nuclear non-proliferation treaty that was being formed with the US and the U.S.R. "walking arm in arm." This is the "most important step toward world peace" and Humphrey wished that there was more "emthusiasm."  About 3000 persons packed Memorial Gymnasium to hear Humphrey's speech, sponsored by the Political Lyceum Committee and the Class of 1969. Some 200 persons who could not be admitted to the gymnasium heard the address over loud speakers in the adjoining fieldhouse.

After his Oroano appearance, Humphrey flew to Augusta where he was the keynote speaker at the Maine Democratic state convention.

Science fiction

The Vice President, noted for his oratorical agility, was at a loss for words once in Friday's question and answer session.

Humphrey had nothing to say about the "Report from Iron Mountain on the Possibility and Desira-tity of Peace." He had never heard of it. He was not alone.

Here's how P. Schuyler Miller characterizes the Report: a report of a study group set up by the United States Government to determine whether our economy and our society can survive the end of the Vietnam war and a possible long period of peace. The group's finding that war is the stabilizing balance wheel in most human societies: that the capacity to make war is the greatest social power a nation can exercise.

"Massive social welfare programs such as public housing, education, rehabilitation, and the like, if not powerful substitutes for war, the Study Group opines,

This spring the matter of a self-imposed curfew in the UN dormitory box; a record number of girls voted to replace the present system. They were presented the alternative of a night watchman system and asked to accept it or reject it. Cones acccepted it and were told the final details would be presented to them for a vote in the late Spring.

Karen Thurston, newly elected AWS president, outlines proposed curfew regulations to girls from SDS. It was a two-way exchange, as the girls offered comments and criticisms of the proposed system.

The curfew went before the committee, this time the Executive Board of AWS, presided over by Karen Thurston, newly elected AWS president. Two weeks ago the committee issued its proposed revisions to the by-laws. The proposal included a 6 o'clock a.m. definition of an overnight. In an effort to clear things up, Karen Thurston took on the job of meeting with people anytime she could to explain the system in full. On Tuesday night, May 14th, in response to questions which had been raised to her and to the Dean's office, she met with a small group of girls from SDS to explain the system and to listen to any complaints and suggestions the girls had.

Dean Thomas Carey began by reviewing the proposed changes. The sign-in system will be changed. Each woman will have a card which she will flip over to indicate that she was in bed between six a.m. and the departure time will be the only required for the sign-in system. Women who wish to have a night watchman will have to fill out blue slips. Blue slips will only need head resident approval for first semester freshmen under 21. A girl who is out and returns after that time will have to sign in. No midnight hour of the dorm. The date and the departure time will be the only re-
will have to sign in after 6 a.m. will be fined by the Executive Board, not the self, in this case. was a whole, not the individual girl. Several committee members told Miss Thurston, who was not on the Executive Board last semester, that there would be some check in line included in the new system. It had been made clear, they said, that an overnight could be defined by the Executive Board, not by the Constitution Committee.

The suggestion of having parents decide what privileges their daughters should have, Dean Yeat-man, Assistant Dean of Women and adviser to AWS, said that in other schools where it has been tried most parents didn't give permission for their daughters to leave without signing out, and that most girls did not want their parents asked.

On the issue of penalties for lack of sign-in, Miss Thurston urges student restraint.

The purpose of the penalties is to maintain a uniform system dough out the system. The minimum penalty had been a one night cur-

Chi Omega wins trophy in Choice 68, RFR 2nd

CHOICE 68 was as much a success in every way as can be. It was worthwhile for University of Maine to participate. Also, there was more interest because we were able to see at the candidates," said Hayes Gagahan, campus coordinator for Choice 68.

Choice results from UMaine compared favorably with national figures, although there were several exceptions. The University of Maine also conducted a faculty ballot, however, this was not of a national proportion. Gagahan said only two-three of the votes were for Choice 68.

Choice had one-two-three of the votes was Maine were won.

Of the 3,454 total votes, only 2, 187 were usable. "The University of Maine had one of the highest error rates in the nation," he said.

Maine's first choice was Sigma Chi. Sweetie McCartney with 684 votes; Robert Kennedy, second with 342; President Johnson, fourth with 133. President Johnson, fourth with 133.

Nationally the order was the same, except George Wallace reelected in fifth place.

By more than two-one vote. UMaine students called for a phase reduction of U.S. military activity in Vietnam. No other item was for all-out military effort; third, a call for maintaining curtail bombing, and fifth, use of nuclear weapons.

Faculty members voted for the U.S. should begin a course of phased reduction of its military activity in Vietnam. Second was a call for immediate withdrawal of American forces.

More than half the faculty voted for the bombing of North Vietnam, a call for immediate withdrawal of American forces.

Faculty members decided job training and employment opportunities should receive highest est priority in government spending, followed by a call for non-income subsidy third, housing, fourth, and fifth, a call for strict law enforcement.

Daniell photographs displayed in Union by Judy Jennings

George Daniell's series of photographs, "Maine and the Key West," will be on display in the Main Lobby of the Memorial Union until the end of August.

Dorothy Jackson of Modern Photography has said, "Daniell's work is marked by vigor, strength, and mass. It is close to people. His constant shows their relationships. His is an optimistic concept of a total thoughtful observer and recorder of people and places. He will continue to contribute to enlightenment."

Following his graduation from Yale University in 1947, Daniell became a freelance painter and photographer. In 1947 he was awarded the Jennie Seaman Gold Medal at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts for submitting the best oil painting.

Daniell has had photographs published in U.S. Camera, Life, Time, Coronet, Modern Photography, and Esquire. In addition, he is a regular contributor to Downeast Magazine.

Daniell's works were included in Edward Keinonen's exhibit "Then and Now" at the Museum of Modern Art, New York City. His photographs were also part of "America's Many Faces," which toured the world.

In addition, Daniell has photographs of John Marin and Georgia O'Keefe in the permanent collection of the Museum of Modern Art in New York City.

Daniell spends his summers in Ellsworth at Goose Cove Farm, and has a winter home in Key West, Florida.
