Summer Theatre to perform second reading of "Don Juan"

by V. Kerry Inman

The Reader's Theater presented "Don Juan in Hell" on June 27; a second performance is scheduled for Friday night July 19. "Don Juan in Hell" is a cutting from George Bernard Shaw's longer work, Man and Superman. The two acts of Don Juan in Hell are an expression of George Bernard Shaw's philosophy of the life force.

The plot is simple. Since his execution Don Juan has been in Hell and is quite unsatisfied with the situation when Dona Anna arrives after having ended her long and fruitful life. About the same time Dona's father arrives from heaven vowing never to return. Along with the Devil the three engage in what turns out to be a rather lengthy and somewhat involved conversation. George Bernard Shaw shows himself to be the most eloquent of the life force philosophers but not the most profound.

The cast of four did not do a terrible job with the play, but considering that the audience paid an admission charge something more was to be desired. No one need be disappointed that the play was presented as it often is as a chamber theater production. But, next to nothing was done with lighting, the traditional music was omitted, the expense of formal wear for the readers was eliminated, and nothing was added to the overall effect of the play by these omissions.

With the exception of John Ballou, the readers were not at their best. True, the audience was small on the night of the first production, and audience reaction does make for a more spirited production. But, the performance of June 27 lacked almost any kind of enthusiasm. A little would have added a great deal of enjoyment.

The weak spot of the play was the role of Dona Anna. Mrs. Lynda Salisbury Fentor, who read the part, filled in for Mrs. Barushok, who was listed on the program. The weakness of the part of Dona Anna was not totally due to Mrs. Fentor's lack of preparation. Shaw is particularly unadroit at portraying women. There never could have been a woman like Dona Anna—not even in Victorian England.

The production was not entirely satisfying, and no one seemed impressed that a slipshod job could be done with a chamber theater production.

To play until July 27

LUV, "a perfect comedy", begins July 24

Luv?

The Summer Theatre Company in rehearsal for a scene from the forthcoming production "LUV." The three members of the cast for the July 24-27 comedy are Lenore Grunko (Ellen), Alden Flanders (Harry), and Neal Fenter (Milt).

"Taking a Chance on Love," the long-popular Vernon Duke song that Ethel Waters first introduced so successfully, does not apply to the play with the misspelled title "Luv," according to Phil Hayes, director of this Murray Schisgal comedy at the University of Maine Summer Theatre to be presented Wednesday through Saturday of next week.

Hayes insists that those who reserve their tickets for this comedy that ran 26 months in New York, will be taking no chance whatsoever. "This is the convulsingly funny play," he says, "that Norman Nadel, critic of the New York World Telegram and Sun, called 'A perfect comedy,' and that Walter Kerr, then critic of the N.Y. Herald Tribune and later of the N.Y. Times, called 'The answer to a theatregoer's prayer.'"

"Luv" is a spoof on modern fads and poses about love. It does not poke fun at the universal emotion that makes the world go round, but at the current cliché-ridden, mooning pretenses to love that are sprinkled with Freudian jargon and soap-opera sentimentality.

Its story involves two miserably modern, morose men and one woman whose moans and groans while groping for perfect love evoke a crippling hilarity in onlookers. Each preposterously tries to outdo the others in claiming the greatest unhappiness, travestying the gloom of the so-called Theatre of the Absurd.

Neal Fenter (Milt) will have the role of a husband who has fallen out of love with his wife, to be played by Lenore Grunko (Ellen). Alden Flanders (Harry) will be seen as a would-be suicide who is persuaded not to dive off a bridge and to try love as a cure for his pessimism.

The presentation of "Luv" is being directed by Phil Hayes in the pattern of the original New York production, which was staged by Mike Nichols, who also gave his masterly direction to "Barefoot in the Park," "The Odd Couple" and the film "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf." Its setting on a bridge high above one of Manhattan's rivers has been designed by E. A. Cyrus.

Tickets for "Luv" are available at the Summer Theatre box office in the Memorial Union Building. For reservations call 866-7557.

To speak

Dr. George Davis, authority on James Whitcomb Riley, will present a reading of Riley's poems Wednesday, July 24, at 2 p.m. in the Main Lounge of the Memorial Union

Dr. George Davis, Indiana educator, to speak July 24

Dr. George E. Davis, well-known Indiana educator and authority on James Whitcomb Riley, will give a reading of selections from Riley's works Wednesday, July 24 at 2 p.m. in the Main Lounge of the Memorial Union. Davis is recognized as one of the best interpreters of Riley's poems and has performed them throughout the mid-west.

He received his B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. from the University of Iowa. After serving as teacher and administrator in Iowa public schools for many years, he went to Purdue University where he remained until his retirement in 1962.

During his years at Purdue, Dr. Davis became well-known for his work in gerontology, serving as chairman of the committee on education of the White House Conference on Aging. He has also worked with the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and the American Medical Association and is now chairman and executive director of the Indiana Commission on Aging and the Aged.

Bridge?

The entire cast of "LUV" rehearses from a bridge—the location of the play.

Trustees name Extension Agent

Dr. Forest V. Muir, 29, formerly of Columbus, Ohio, has been appointed Cooperative Extension Service poultry specialist for the department of animal and veterinary sciences at the University of Maine, effective July 1.

The appointment, the first made for this position, was approved Friday (July 12) by members of the university's Board of Trustees.

Dr. Muir, a graduate of Southern Illinois University in 1961, will be responsible for the planning, supervision and evaluation of field trial research in support of Maine's poultry industry. His work is expected to strengthen the Extension Service poultry program through field research, particularly in implementing on a practical basis the results of laboratory research.

A native of West Frankfort, Ill., Dr. Muir received his master of science degree in poultry genetics in 1963 from Southern Illinois University and his doctorate in 1967 from Ohio State University.

He was a graduate assistant at Southern Illinois from 1961-63 and a graduate assistant at Ohio State from 1963-67. He is a member of the Poultry Science Association.

Dr. Muir is a member of The Society of Sigma Xi and of Gamma Sigma Delta. He is the principal author of two poultry publications and collaborated in the publication of two others.

Francis Fortier, prominent violinist, will present "Violin and the Dance" Monday, July 22, at 8 p.m. in Hauck Auditorium and a violin recital Tuesday, July 23, at 3 p.m. in Lord Hall.

To perform

Francis Fortier to give violin program

Francis Fortier, artistic director of the Bar Harbor Festival and internationally known violinist, will give performances on the university campus Monday, July 22, at 8 p.m. in the Hauck Auditorium, and Tuesday, July 23, at 3 p.m. in Lord Hall.

The program Monday, which combines the violin and dance, is a creation by Fortier, who believes that the two go together although they are rarely paired professionally. Fortier and his company, consisting of Dorothy Fiere and George Temal, ballet soloists; Judith Olsen, pianist; and Matthew Chait, narrator; will perform pieces by such well-known composers as Vivaldi, Corelli, Bach, Scarlatti, Minkus, and Samuel Barber.

Tuesday afternoon's program is a violin recital in which Fortier accompanied by Judith Olsen, will perform works by Vivaldi, Mozart, Douglas Moore, Cesar Franck, Prekiefieff, and others.

Fortier, who has received degrees from Columbia, Yale, and Julliard, made his European debut in 1966 when he was awarded the Bath Festival Award.

We don't sell status. Just a car. One that gets up to 27 mpg, hardly uses oil between changes, and goes a long way on a set of tires. Of course, the fact that it's practical is no secret. And everybody is going to know that you're saving money. But that's the price you pay for a Volkswagen.

the McCarthy error

by Mike Scanlin

McCarthy has been elected President. He is sending two envoys to Southeast Asia to try and settle American affairs. They are General B. Submissive and General I. A. Coward. The plane is about to leave, but first:

- General Submissive, what is your mission in Southeast Asia?
- * To get out of Viet Nam. Not to mention Laos, Burma, Thailand, Cambodia, and Hoboken.
- I see. What is your battle strategy, General Coward?
- * Massive concession and tactical abandonment.
- * Yes, we firmly believe in the "donchano" theory.
- Isn't that the Dominoe theory?
- * No, it's "donchano". Don't you know the Communists kill to get what they want?
- General Coward, what will you say to the people the U. S. has, by treaty, promised to help?
- * I'll say, in my most diplomatic French, "tant pis."
- * Yes. After all, it's their fault you know.
- How's that?
- * That they'd be naive enough to believe us.
- What about the rest of America's treaties?

- * They're (chuckle) almost as believable, aren't they?
- * Enough American boys have died on foreign soil.
- * We figure we ought to bring them home. Now.
- * Yeah. An 'H-bomb' could kill 'em all at once, clumped together. Save a lot of time and tax-payer's money, not to mention the balance of payments.
- * Yeah.
- * After all, the voters are sick of a Viet Nam war. They want security for today. T'hell with tomorrow.
- I see. Sort of a "peace in our time", eh?
- * Yeah.
- But eventually, sooner or later . . . .
- * We'll build a big wall, all around the country.
- Hasn't that scheme been tried before?
- * Yes, but we're going to imbed broken glass in the top.
- Well, what happens when the Communists are finally at the wall?
- * The draft-dodgers will have to go to Spain.
- And the SdS?
- * They'll be busy trying to blow a hole in the wall.
- * Yeah.

Famed children's author to visit campus July 23

Dr. Leland Blair Jacobs, Professor of Education at Teachers College, Columbia University, and nationally recognized authority on language arts and children's literature, will visit the Orono campus of the University of the State of Maine on July 23 to speak with students enrolled in summer session classes at the University.

Dr. Jacobs will offer a public lecture at 9:15 a.m. in 137 Bennett Hall and will visit with seminars and classes throughout the day. The topic of his 9:15 lecture will be: Truth's Doors and Book's Keys.

Dr. Jacobs has long been noted for both his writing in children's literature and for his delightful, entertaining talks on this topic. A grandfather as well as an author and editor, "Jake" (who's recently been signing his letters "LBJ") has discovered how to teach children with talks and story-telling sessions and with books which he's titled Just Around the Corner, Belling the Cat, Old Lucy Lindy, Poetry for Young Scientists, and Is Somewhere Always Far Away?

While teaching and lecturing nationally, Dr. Jacobs has written numerous articles for Childhood Education, The Instructor, Grade Teacher, Elementary English, Teachers College Record, and other educational periodicals. The senior editor of two series of books for children, he has also written for teachers the two very valuable professional texts Children and the Language Arts and Using Literature with Young Children.

Teachers, librarians, parents—all those interested in this area of children's literature—are cordially invited to attend the 9:15 meeting with Dr. Jacobs in 137 Bennett Hall (the physics building) on the Orono campus.

NOTICE

During this summer session the State of Maine Educational Television Network will conduct three special studio tours for teachers, combined with teacher orientations for use of television in the classroom. All teachers are cordially invited.

They are: Monday, July 15; Monday, July 22; Monday, July 29; all at 2:30 p.m., at the ETV Studios, Alumni Hall.

Agronomists study soils, pollution crisis

The environmental pollution crises in agriculture was discussed by members of the American Society of Agronomy's northeast branch Monday (July 15) at their opening session at the University of Maine.

Delegates registered Sunday for the four-day meeting which was divided between the Orono campus and Aroostook County where they toured research plots and other agricultural sites Wednesday.

Four pollution problems—animal manure, fertilizer nutrients, pesticides and food processing waste disposal—were discussed at the Monday morning session in Room 130 Little Hall. Speakers were Joseph E. Steckel, associate professor of soil chemistry at Rutgers University; Charles R. Frink, soil chemist, Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, New Haven; Thomas J. Sheets, project leader, pesticide residue research laboratory, North Carolina State University; and Lester M. Klashman, regional director, Federal Water Pollution Control Administration.

Papers were presented at two Tuesday sessions on crops and soils. Dr. Paul R. Hepler, associate professor of horticulture, gave a paper on theoretical and applied problems associated with plant population and yield of sugar beets at the crops session in the Memorial Union, Bangor Room.

U.M. speakers at the soils session were Dr. Frederick E. Hutchinson, Hepler, and Darryl N. Brown, all of the plant and soil sciences department, who presented a paper on the relationship of soil pH, exchangeable aluminum and depth of liming to growth and chemical composition of sugar beets in Caribou loam, under greenhouse conditions. Hepler and Hutchinson gave a second paper on germination, yield, and quality of sugar beets under field conditions as related to soil acidity, phosphorus and aluminum.

The group left for Aroostook County Tuesday afternoon where Aroostook State College at Presque Isle was their host.

South Campus building is site of July 12 trustees meeting

The chairman of the committee seeking a new chancellor for the newly consolidated U. of M. reported to the board of trustees that he was "much encouraged" by the progress thus far in finding a chief executive for the multi-campus system.

Dr. Nils Wessel of New York said the committee had compiled a long list of candidates and was busy checking credentials and getting background information. But he said that he could not predict when the final selection would be made.

In other action at the July 12 trustees meeting, Robert N. Haskell of Bangor said a budget for the various campuses of the university, including operating funds and capital improvements, was being prepared and would be ready about the middle of August. The trustees approved the appointment of 54 faculty members and also approved a number of new academic programs including a bachelor of music degree program at Orono.

The board authorized the construction of a new building at Portland which combines the advance study and Law School facilities. The building will be located on a plot of land bounded by Deering Avenue, Falmouth Street, Granite Street, and Exeter Street. The trustees also agreed to sell a 50-foot right-of-way strip in the Stillwater section of Orono to a group planning a shopping center at that site.

Scholar Program honors Martin Luther King

Contributions for the Martin Luther King Scholar Program, which will help finance the education of needy Negro students at the University of Maine, are being accepted, Dr. Gerald Work, faculty chairman for the fund, said Thursday.

Funds for room, board and tuition will be borne by the university and a grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity, Work said, and the additional funds are being sought to provide tutorial assistance, books, and other personal expenses.

The university's director of admissions, James A. Harmon, and Asst. Prof. Maurice O. White of the College of Education will be in Washington, D. C., Friday (July 19) to interview prospective students for fall admission. The interviews will be conducted at Federal City College, a newly-established college which received 5,000 applications for 3,000 places in its freshman class, chosen by lottery. Fifty-five of those who were not admitted have expressed interest in the U. of M. program, Work said.

Officials at the Job Corps Center in Poland Spring have also expressed interest in the program, Work said, and several students may be accepted from the Center. The committee has definite commitments to enable them to accept seven students in the fall, and more may be accepted if sufficient additional contributions are received.

Contributions may be sent to the Treasurer's Office, Alumni Hall, U. of M. Orono campus, Work said, pointing out that these contributions are tax deductible.

Establishment of the fund was announced in early June by Dr. James M. Clark, now vice president for academic affairs, who headed a committee composed of student, faculty and administration representatives to study possible memorials for the slain Negro leader. The scholarship fund was recommended as a first step toward a larger program which may eventually include other disadvantaged and minority groups. Remedial work, tutorial assistance and special counseling to help with adjustment problems are part of the contemplated program.
