Dr. Shedd to give Commencement address

Mr. Mark R. Shedd, superintendent of schools in Philadelphia, will be the commencement speaker for the University of Maine's summer graduation exercises Friday, August 16, at the Memorial Auditorium.

Dr. Shedd attended schools in Bangor, received his A.B. and Ed.D. degrees from the University of Maine, and his Ed.D. degree from the Harvard Graduate School of Education. He began his career in education as a social studies teacher in Bangor, and later was an elementary principal and supervisor in Caribou, supervisor of elementary education in Auburn, and rural district superintendent in Westbook, Conn. He was elected superintendent of schools in Englewood, N.J., in 1962, and in 1967 he became superintendent of Philadelphia schools.

In his present position Dr. Shedd is head of a school system with 12,000 teachers and 260,000 pupils.

Dr. Shedd was born in Portland, graduated from Harvard College in 1908, and received his Ph.D. from Harvard in 1912. He is the biographer of Columbus, author of the monumental "History of U.S. Naval Operations in World War II," and chronicler of his state, his college, and his nation.

A member of the Harvard faculty for 40 years, he retired in 1955 and is now Jonathan Trumbull Professor of American History Emeritus. During World War II, he served in the U.S. Naval Reserve, and rose from the rank of Lieutenant Commander to Rear Admiral. He has received many honors for his work as an historian including the Presidential Medal of Freedom and two Pulitzer prizes. He has spent his summers at Northeast Harbor for some 30 years.

Stevens was born in Guilford, and received his B.S. degree from the University of Maine in civil engineering in 1928. He served as an instructor in civil engineering at the university following his graduation and later worked for the New York Telephone Company. He returned to Maine to become town manager of Ashland at the age of 25. Later he was town manager of Guilford and of Milo. He was named State Tax Assessor in 1951 and in 1947 he was appointed Commissioner of the Maine State Tax Department. In 1954 he was appointed to his present position chairman of the Maine State Highways Commission. He is the first person to hold this post three years serving in his third seven-year term.

U.S. Artists exhibit works in Alumni Hall

The University Art Department, in keeping with its tradition of providing not only classroom instruction in art, but also exhibits by nationally known artists, is sponsoring several such displays this summer. The lobby of Alumni Hall presently houses a variety of paintings, including casein, watercolors, etchings, serigraphs, intaglio, mezzotint, acrylic-intono, offset lithograph, and offset emulsion work. All by the California Group. The artists included in this show have studied extensively at such art schools as the Chouinard Art Institute, the University of California, the School of Fine Arts in San Francisco, Laguna Beach School of Art, Chicago Art Institute, Minneapolis Institute of Art, and Pomona College. This exhibit is at the University courtesy of the Old Bergan Art Guild of Bayonne, New Jersey.

Construction is quite prevalent during the summer months on the "Maine" campus, and this summer is no exception. Several buildings, including Alumni Hall, Winslow Hall and Crosby Laboratory, are undergoing renovations. Fernald Hall will soon be added to the list.

A storeroom on the first floor of Alumni Hall is being converted into offices for accountants, who are now crowded into the front of the building along with the Treasury offices. Another phase of the Alumni renovation, scheduled for completion in mid-January of 1969, calls for the conversion of Little Theatre into executive offices. In Crosby Lab, where work should end in mid-summer, old equipment used by the Mechanical Engineering department is being replaced by up-to-date machinery. A new front is being constructed on the building also, so that the entrance will be from the East Annex side of the building instead of from behind Little Hall.

The plans for Fernald Hall are now being revised and work should begin soon. Downstairs the old coffee shop will be enlarged and supplied with new equipment, and upstairs new offices will be constructed for the personnel Deans. This latter move is a continuation of the long-range objective of moving all offices not directly connected with the library out of the library. Thus, increasing space for library facilities.

The Alumni offices and Graduate School will also move out of the library; the former will go to North Hall (the old infirmary) and the latter will move to Winslow Hall when renovations are completed there.

Face-lifting

Crosby Laboratory undergoes an about-face—so that it now fronts toward East Annex—prior to receiving up-dated mechanical engineering equipment in its newly designed interior.
ETV — from small beginning to big educator

The State of Maine Educational Television Network, composed of three non-commercial educational television stations and one transmitter station, was established in 1962 to provide televised instructional services to the public schools of the state to supplement and enrich the curriculum at the elementary and secondary levels.

Since going on the air in the fall of 1963, the instructional program has been of great value to the many remote isolated rural schools of the state currently unable to offer children the variety of instruction and other depth of instruction pertinent to competitive education.

The State of Maine Educational Television Network was established by an enabling act (Chapter 247 of the Private and Special Laws, State of Maine) and a million and one-half dollar bond issue passed in referendum by the Maine citizens in 1962. The four stations are: WMEB, Channel 12, Orono; WMEM, Channel 10, Presque Isle; WMED, Channel 13, Calais; WMEB and WOAR (Translator), Channel 4, Madawaska, Maine. These stations are interconnected by a 700-mile microwave system, with WMEB, Channel 10, Augusta, Maine; WCBB, Channel 11, Durham, New Hampshire; and WOAR Channel 2, Boston, Massachusetts.

WMEB, Channel 12, Orono, was the first station in the Network to begin broadcasting. It was followed one month later, in February, 1964, with WMEM, Channel 10, Presque Isle; WMED, Channel 13, Calais; WMEB and WOAR (Translator), Channel 4, Madawaska, Maine. These stations are interconnected by a 700-mile microwave system, with WMEB, Channel 10, Augusta, Maine; WCBB, Channel 11, Durham, New Hampshire; and WOAR Channel 2, Boston, Massachusetts.

From time-to-time, programs aimed at specific interest groups are presented. This type of program includes such examples as supervisory training, telecourses broadcast in 1965, 1966, and 1967 for supervisory and management personnel in Maine industry, and other community service programs. It is hoped that this area of broadcasting will be expanded in the future.

Educational Television in Maine is concerned with three specific areas of program material. During the morning and early afternoon, the Network presents instructional programs for use in the schools of the State as part of the daily classroom work.

During the evening hours, the Network offers an alternative television service to the general public. This service includes programs of a cultural and informative nature, generally not available on commercial channels. A number of programs are for children out of school.

From its beginning in 1962, the Network has been of great importance to the continuing education division of the University of Maine. As supervisory training telecourses broadc ast in 1965, 1966, and 1967 for supervisory and management personnel in Maine industry, and other community service programs. It is hoped that this area of broadcasting will be expanded in the future.

The State Department of Education is charged with the responsibility of selecting the in-school television programming, while the University of Maine provides an evening educational television service. During 1966, the University of Maine Continuing Education Division offered its first college credit course via television over the Maine ETV stations.

One hundred eighty thousand students attend some 200 public and private elementary and secondary schools in the viewing areas of the three stations of the State Network. In 1966-67, thirty-five telecourses were presented, more than any other New England state.

The network in-school schedule of programs is also transmitted by the privately owned WCBB, Bates, and Brooks station, WMEB, Channel 10, Augusta, Maine. University of Maine also work for the Network on a part-time basis.

The southern portion of the state receives an educational television program service from WENH-TV, Channel 11, Durham, New Hampshire, licensed to the University of New Hampshire. The in-school television service available from this facility to southern Maine is not the same, but similar to, the program service offered by the State of Maine Educational Television Network and WCBB. It is proper to note, however, that all but 20% of the population of the State live in areas served by one or more educational television stations. Both WCBB and WENH-TV broadcast evening schedules much the same as the State of Maine ETV Network.

Some of the programs presented both as part of the in-school and evening service are produced in the Network's University of Maine studios. Other programs are supplied by two ETV network affiliations, the Eastern Educational Network and the National Educational Television Network.

The Eastern Educational Network is a cooperative association of 27 ETV stations in the Eastern United States. These stations exchange programs with each other, making the program service available to all stations without fee.

The National Educational Television Network produces programs of national and international scope for its 117 member stations across the United States. These programs deal with cultural and informational subjects of national interest and provide the local station with programs they would not ordinarily be able to present on their own. NET operates under a six million dollar grant from the Ford Foundation and supplies each network affiliate with 5 hours of new programs weekly. Besides this, programs originally produced by NET are available for replay.

The State of Maine Educational Television Network has 29 full-time employees, most of them professionally trained in television production or engineering. Students from the University of Maine also work for the Network on a part-time basis.

Five hundred and twenty-eight thousand Maine residents live in the viewing areas of the three State of Maine Educational Television Network Stations. A recent audience survey of the Network's Orono station indicated that 1 out of 2 TV viewers were watching ETV, and 1 out of 4 watched ETV in the week prior to the survey and could remember programs by title or subject. This is equal to the latest national average for ETV viewing.

ETV's total budget for 1966-67 is $311,500. The Network operation is financed in its entirety by legislatively appropriated funds which for the fiscal year 1965-66 were $298,526. The total budget for 1966-67 is $311,500.

The Knack—last summer's production ends Saturday

"The Knack," which will play through Saturday at the University of Maine Summer Theatre, is dedicated to the proposition that almost any girl can be seduced by a reasonably attractive man who applies more modicum of guile and perspicacity to the game.

However, before the women of Maine rise up in wrath at this imputation of nullity in their sex, they had better take note of the fact that "The Knack" was written by a woman.

The author is Ann Jellicoe, a British playwright considered by the British in World War I, and her plays are still being performed. She is related to the Admiral Jellicoe who commanded the British fleet in World War I, and who has an intense interest in the women's role in the war. Miss Jellicoe is the daughter of a noted London photographer. Her plays have been produced by the Admiralty and the British Broadcasting Corporation. "The Knack," which will be held outside East Commons, Tuesday, August 13 from 5:15 to 6:00 p.m.

Students living off campus and faculty members may buy tickets at $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12.

Lobster Picnic is planned

The Annual Lobster Picnic will be held outside East Commons, Tuesday, August 13 from 5:15 to 6:00 p.m.

Students living off campus and faculty members may buy tickets at $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12.

Tickets must be purchased before Friday noon, August 9, and may be obtained from Mr. Deering at the Summer Session Office in the Education Building.

In case of bad weather the meal will be served as usual in the dining halls. Those with off-campus tickets will be served at 5:15 to 6:00 p.m.

John Huard will appear on "Community Compass"

John Huard, middle line backer for the Denver Broncos, makes a special guest appearance on the Maine ETV production "Community Compass." Thursday (August 8) at 7:30 p.m. The program will be broadcast over WMED, Channel 12, Orono; WMEN, Channel 10, Presque Isle; WMED, Channel 13, Calais and over WCBB, Channel 10, Augusta.

A former University of Maine football star and Waterville resident, Huard divides his time between professional football and his work as a probation and parole officer for the state. Huard will appear as one of the guests on the ETV program which will deal with the problems of teenagers.

Penobscot County District Court Judge Ian MacInnes will appear along with John Huard and program host Philip Rice for a discussion of the "Visual Generation," broadcast in Maine and throughout the northeast last May.

Seven Negro students who did not receive a letter of acceptance from an American college last spring will spend four years at the University of Maine. They will attend because a student, faculty, and administration committee decided this would be the most fitting memorial for the slain King scholar, Martin Luther King, Jr.

The interviews were held at Federal City College, which had 2000 more freshmen applications than it could take. First the first semester, those students from other disadvantaged groups will be enrolled in regular classes and treated as other students.

Educators hope the program will grow to include black students from all the United States and students from other disadvantaged groups. Of the several possibilities open to Negro students, this fall's freshman class was chosen because educators believe the interaction of these students with Maine citizens will be beneficial to both.
