Biographical / Historical

A printing plant was purchased by the University of Maine in 1915 and with it the University of Maine Press (later to become the Printing Office and now known as Printing & Mailing Services) was founded. In 1967, the Printing Offices moved to a new building attached to a wing of the Public Information and Central Services (now known as the Keyo Building). Over time the Service has seen a number of technological advances, particularly in printing equipment used.

Today the mission of Printing & Mailing Services is to provide high-quality, eco-friendly, economical printed material, supplies, and fulfillment services in support of the work and goals of the University of Maine community and its affiliates.
