WRITINGS IN MAINE HISTORY

As the land-grant university for the state, the University of Maine at Orono produces much of the scholarship currently available on Maine history. An important part of this scholarship comes in the form of doctoral dissertations and masters theses. All such projects are collected in the University's Fogler Library and are available in the library's third-floor Special Collections Department for use by scholars, students, and other interested parties. Below is a list of theses and dissertations completed since 1969, when the MHS Newsletter last offered a similar list.
