Biographical / Historical

The Maine Autism Institute for Education and Research (MAIER) was established in 2014 as a unique partnership between the Maine Department of Education Office of Special Services and Inclusive Education and the University of Maine College of Education and Human Development. The program received significant financial support from the Maine Department of Education, which continues to provide the bulk of its funding today. These organizations have joined forces to promote evidence-based strategies and effective practices for inclusive education throughout Maine. Deborah L. Rooks-Ellis, Assistant Professor of Special Education/ Early Intervention served as the first director of MAIER. In October, 2022 the program was renamed the Maine Access to Inclusive Education Resources and Sarah Howorth, Associate Professor of Special Education and Special Education Graduate Programs Coordinator was appointed as the new MAIER director, with the focus changed to Maine Access to Inclusive Educational Resources.

MAIER serves as an information and resource clearinghouse for professionals and families to assist in accessing and navigating programs and services related to inclusive education of students with disabilities. MAIER ensures that professionals, families and individuals who are at risk of or have identified disabilities receive information about practices to promote inclusion that are grounded in research.

As of 2024, MAIER no longer received funding from the Maine Department of Education (DOE) for professional development training (in person and online), honoraria, travel for the presenters, a research assistant, and a graduate assistant. The special education faculty in the School of Learning and Teaching are now on the CEEDAR Maine State Leadership team, which focuses on creating more inclusive educational resources. The DOE is moving the funding to those initiatives.
