Maine Campus April 19 1982

Maine Campus Staff

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.library.umaine.edu/mainecampus

Repository Citation
Staff, Maine Campus, "Maine Campus April 19 1982" (1982). Maine Campus Archives. 1230. https://digitalcommons.library.umaine.edu/mainecampus/1230
Trustees oppose apartheid

By Mary Ellen Matava
Staff Writer

Four UMaine trustees interviewed and they were against the apartheid practices in South Africa, but one said he would definitely vote to direct companies with branches in that country.

"I am strongly opposed to the policies of government in South Africa, and as a trustee of the University of Maine I feel that we should try to direct companies with branches in South Africa," said a trustee from Westbrook and chair of the finance committee.

"I am strongly opposed to apartheid," said Joseph G. Hakanson. "I think there is no dispute with the premise that most everyone is opposed to apartheid, including trustees, faculty members, students, and the administration.

"The UMO Council of Colleges has taken a position that they want each college to determine its own policy," said Hakanson.

"The question is, what to do about it," said Hakanson.

"Most everyone on campus supports the divestment of funds from companies with branches in South Africa, and as a trustee of the University of Maine I will vote for total divestment of funds from companies with holdings in that country," said Alan M. Elkins, a trustee from New Hampshire.

Russell described his version of a Moral Majority as "the granolas and apple-jacks" to the show. He was referring to a description of UMO students contained in the "selective guide to colleges" and the "granolas and apple-jacks" to the show. He was referring to a description of UMO students contained in the "selective guide to colleges." He joked about Secretary of State Alexander Haig. "Al Haig's idea of a sports car is an M-1 tank with the top down."

"My humor has to do with people unless they are handicapped or members of theInternal Revenue Service can no longer help the Screen Actors Guild, Ed Asner, has been made an honorary general in the guerrilla army in El Salvador. He offered his own idea for a television series, a pilot for a "moral majority" show called "Real People." He said people were arguing that gays shouldn't be school teachers because the "falkland islands crisis. He said England should get the sheep, Argentina should get the goats and the Falkland Islands.

He expressed his opposition to the metric system and said, "get the kilometer out of the classroom and back in the European movies where it belongs." He proposed his opposition to the metric system by saying, "get the kilometer out of the classroom and back in the European movies where it belongs." He proposed his opposition to the metric system by saying, "get the kilometer out of the classroom and back in the European movies where it belongs." He proposed his opposition to the metric system by saying, "get the kilometer out of the classroom and back in the European movies where it belongs." He proposed his opposition to the metric system by saying, "get the kilometer out of the classroom and back in the European movies where it belongs."
Police Blotter
by Richard Mulhern
Staff Writer
Police investigated a reported breach Wednesday night at the Brann House on College Ave. A Brann House resident reported that after hearing noises coming from the kitchen at about 1:45 a.m., he looked out his window and saw someone standing outside the kitchen window. Going downstairs to the kitchen, he reportedly confronted a man carrying a five-pound ham toward the library. The man dropped the ham and exited the window, fleeing into the darkness with an accomplice who was waiting outside.

A Penobscot Hall resident Wednesday reported seeing two persons running down a basement hall carrying a couch. Police said the couch, valued at $100, was returned several days later by unknown persons.

Speaker series designed to inform career women
by Claudia Tucci
Staff Writer

The "Women Who Work" speaker series, designed to give women students a realistic understanding of the prospective workplace, will begin this evening with the theme "Women in Business."

Jane P. Norris, president of Mechanics Savings Bank in Auburn, and Eva Horton, owner of Krotia, Inc. of Portland, will speak about their daily work lives at 7:30 p.m. in the Danna Yancek, Memorial Union. Speakers will answer questions and a reception will follow. The public is invited.

"Our basic desire is to increase the realism of students' perceptions of work... to get rid of some of the glamor attached to titles," said Mary Childers of the UMO Equal Employment Opportunity Office. Childers is associate director of the Leadership in Educational Equity Project.

The EEO Office and the Women's Center jointly developed the four-part series, which is also sponsored by the Office of Career Planning and Placement and the Panhellenic Council. The April 19, 22, 26 and 29 sessions will be held from 7:30-9:30 p.m. in the Danna Yancek.

Themes for the three successive sessions are respectively "Women in Politics," "Women in Medicine" and "Women in Non-Traditional Jobs."

Some of the other speakers will be Republican gubernatorial candidate Sherry Huber (April 22); midwife Ariel Wilcox (April 26); and New England Telephone Co. engineer and construction supervisor Cheryl Wilson (April 29).

Speakers from non-traditional women's occupations were chosen, since the series is meant to offer students role models, Childers said. Most women are employed as clerical workers, she said.

The series is to introduce students to women who have been especially successful in commonly agreed-upon terms, or on their own terms, she said. As an example, "It's commonly agreed upon that the president of a bank is successful."

The efficiency department available now thru Aug. 29, 100 per month. Call 827-7231 after 4:00.

Cash reward for return of Swiss Army knife lost March 31. Call 7422.

Send in your classifieds: $1.20 for each additional word.

Police said the couch, valued at $100, was returned several days later by unknown persons.

Trustees oppose apartheid
(cont. from page 1)

He said the divestment from companies with operations in South Africa would be showing disapproval for what goes on in that country. Another option would be for university officials to meet with the company and verbally express their disapproval.

"What the university does could have little impact or it could be very significant," Harckman said. "There isn't a grand deal of dispute on the fundamental problem," he said.

"What strategy to use is the question."

Richard I. Morin, trustee from Fort Kent, said he hasn't decided how he will vote on the resolution yet. "I have a positive feeling with the move to diversity, but I don't feel I can decide until I receive all the information about it," he said.

"I am very much opposed to the regime in South Africa," said Harrison L. Richardson, trustee from Portland. "There is a general sense on the board not to support a racist country."

"I believe that we as an institution are complying with a special set of guidelines for no direct investment in business activities in South Africa."

The university may hold invest-ments with companies that have operations in that country, but we are not directly supporting the apartheid policies of the South African government," Richardson said.
Freshmen enrollment not affected by aid cuts

by Wendy Barrett
Staff Writer

The number of freshman admitted for the fall semester of 1982 has not declined as a result of proposed cuts in financial aid.

William J. Munsey, director of admissions, said the fall freshman class will be about the same size as the freshman class last fall.

"We are projecting 2,434 freshman students for the fall of 1982," Munsey said. Out of this number, 2,074 will be housed on the UMO campus and 360 will be housed at BCC.

"As of April 1, we had approved 3,972 applications and 2,600 of these had sent in their deposits," he said.

Munsey said they are overadmitted, but have to offer more than one admission for every available seat. A lot of these students have applied to other colleges as well and may decide to go elsewhere.

The total number of freshman admitted is broken down by the colleges. Presently, the projected number of students in the College of Arts and Sciences is 992. In the College of Administration, 229; College of Education, 182; College of Engineering Sciences, 242; College of Life Science and Agriculture, 273; College of Technical Engineering, 65; and the Women's Program in the position of Advertising.

The Last Epidemic." Medical Consequences of nuclear weapons and nuclear war. Coe. Lounge, Union.

Friday, April 16. Friday Night. Student Activity Center. The Mighty Ducks.

noon. Intervarsity Christian Fellowship (IVCF) Speaker, Cliffe Knechtle: "What Rules Your Life?" On the steps, Fogler Library.

8 p.m. Guest Lecture Series. Dr. Samuel Sandler, Dept. of Political Science, Barllan University, Israel. Reception follows. 101 EM.

Staff Writer

return of Swiss expatriate students was chosen, Munsey said. Children said they are employed as clerical workers or trained in the Women's Program.

non-traditional programs were chosen, Munsey said. Children said they are employed as clerical workers or trained in the Women's Program.

any agreed -upon non-traditional programs were chosen, Munsey said. Children said they are employed as clerical workers or trained in the Women's Program.
Leader needed

When one looks at the job of the chancellor of the University of Maine, one might ask what it is the chancellor actually does. One of the main duties of the chancellor is to act as a leader in higher education. However, Chancellor Patrick McCarthy has come under some heavy criticism lately for his lack of leadership in a number of different issues.

State Senator Richard Pierce and former Senator Bennett Katz, two leaders in education in Maine, have accused McCarthy of sitting back and ignoring certain issues, which he should have become involved and taken an active stand.

In the fall, Gov. Joseph Brennan made the decision to withdraw from the New England Board of Higher Education, which allows students to attend other New England state schools at a discount. McCarthy did not object to this decision even though it could affect the education of hundreds of Maine students.

Husson College nursing program, which McCarthy did not object to this decision even though it could affect the education of hundreds of Maine students. McCarthy also failed to take a stand on the Husson College nursing program, which could directly compete with the new UMO nursing program. He said it wasn’t his job.

But perhaps the most obvious of duties which Chancellor McCarthy has failed to fulfill is existence responsibility when it comes to convincing high school students to go on to higher education. If Chancellor McCarthy were really doing his job, would Maine actually rate this low? And it’s not because Maine students have a lack of knowledge either, as they consistently rank high in both Scholastic Aptitude Test and Achievement tests.

And yet when the government continues to cut financial aid programs, which directly affect whether or not many students will be able to attend school at all, again McCarthy does not speak up to fight these cuts.

Katz says McCarthy views his job as a manager, but this state doesn’t need another manager. He’s absolutely right. We need a leader, someone who is going to stand up for education. Someone who will fight for what America really stands for – equality of opportunity. If McCarthy continues to sit back and let the government and other institutions cut up the University of Maine, we might as well close the doors.

What we need is a leader, someone who will fight for us instead of someone who just accepts what is handed to us. How about it?

N.S.

One eye on the clock

Kathy Mclaughlin

What the fighting was all about

I was one of the 2,000 and some odd people who attended the ATO Fraternity Fight Night Friday night and, I must confess, I actually enjoyed myself. The feeling doesn’t settle with me very well though. I felt like I indulged myself in something I shouldn’t have.

I was always one of those calm, non-violent types. I thought boxing was a sport for animals. Now I wonder if boxing is an animalistic sport for humans.

I felt really out of place when the person behind me was yelling, “Kill him! Kill him!” I couldn’t believe what my ears were hearing. Did the person actually mean that?

The object of the game seemed to be just that – to kill each other. Each boxer was taking swings at the other, with the intent of actually injuring the other person. That is inhuman to the point of actually being frightening. To think that boxing is only a game.

What was even more frightening was the way the crowd reacted. When one of the players was dominating the other player and putting him on the defensive, the crowd went into a frenzy. The enjoyed one boxer beat the other until he hurt him, until he actually drew blood from him.

The irony of it all was that the entire night was for the benefit of the United Way. The contestants were then, in essence, beating each other up to benefit someone else. How courageous of them.

Despite the feelings I have about the violent sport and how I feel that it is too bad to have to resort to violence to raise money for a good cause, I think there were some very good points about the evening.

Fraternity Fight Night brought in about $3,000. In comparison to other benefits like the Fiji marathon, in terms of money raised, Fight Night brought in far more.

Practically every fraternity on campus participated in Fight Night. Each group had their own territory staked out and joined together in cheering for the boxers. This is perhaps one of the few times you see the fraternal spirit displayed so vividly.

But I wonder if the meaning of the whole thing was lost to all the competition and all the violence. I wonder how many people that night knew what the fighting was all about.

Promotion

To the editor:

What was it about the eventment of the Saint John Bosc Maine Campus that was so irritating? After all, bright blue trunks on two days I have to travel down upon in several ways.

I am aware that groups have the right to press and I don’t mean for my political views to be not unlike that of U.S. Army who is to be all that he is immediately: similarities; was shot to boost my appeal to my sensuality of mankind?

What was it about the eventment of the Saint John Bosc Maine Campus that was so irritating? After all, bright blue trunks on two days I have to travel down upon in several ways.

I am aware that groups have the right to press and I don’t mean for my political views to be not unlike that of U.S. Army who is to be all that he is immediately: similarities; was shot to boost my appeal to my sensuality of mankind?

What was it about the eventment of the Saint John Bosc Maine Campus that was so irritating? After all, bright blue trunks on two days I have to travel down upon in several ways.
Promotion was irritating

To the editor:

What was it about the advertisement of the Salesian of St. John Bosco issued in the Maine Campus which was so irritating? After tossing the bright blue tract around for two days I have come to the conclusion that I felt irritated upon seeing it again.

I am aware that religious groups have the right to express their opinions, to advertise their organization, to promote what they believe and they have the right to expect that their beliefs be treated with respect. I am not concerned that the promotion of the Salesian is accurate or inaccurate.

I am concerned about the issue of freedom and respect. Freedom of religion is protected by the Constitution. However, religious groups have not been given the right to express their beliefs to a large enough public in a manner that is respectful of the beliefs of others.

Perhaps, if the Maine Campus ran another promotion for any group they could inform the public of the purpose of the organization in some way. I am not pleased at facing a bright blue cover imbued with men out to change the world when I open my most distinguished publication.

Laurie Ester

Circumcised

To the editor:

In reference to a commentary which I wrote and which you circulated and printed in last week's Maine Campus;

Which words and sentences in and out? I realize editing can but that sabotage it for coherency. I'm not complaining, however, and lose its meaning.

Ed McCarthy

374 South Main St.
Old Town

Clean up your grammar

To the editor:

I tend to be charitable, and attribute many of the spelling and grammar errors I see in the Campus to have and the lack of adequate proofreading. That these errors are so numerous detracts substantially from the image of the Campus as a professional product.

The errors I point out in the April 19 article are a symptom of plain ignorance. While so many people have abused the plural word "media," by using it in a singular sense, that "common practice" has made it singular in some quarters, this is not the case with "criteria" and "phenomena."

These there are examples of Latin-derived nouns; the singular forms are medium, criterion and phenomenon (there are others: datum, maximum, etc.) Plural is constructed by replacing the underscored suffix with a.

William L. Soule

Not rain, nor April snow

To the editor:

On Wednesday April 7th 1982 the University of Maine at Orono once again was attacked by the insatiable monster bringing that white stuff many people call snow.

Everybody from Hades to heaven stayed in their warm, peaceful homes and watched while this monster covered and closed both the Orono and BCC campuses; everybody that is except for the faithful few who, with sheer determination and obedience dared with hostile opposition and resistance to fight this insatiable monster.

Being BCC students we would personally like to thank the following seven people: Paul, Jan and Larry; the cooks and assistant cook, Mr. Murphy and Mark; manager and assistant manager, and last but certainly not least, Wayne and Scott; the pot scrubbers.

All right you guys!

Ann Menzietti

Linda Meader

Rhonda Stokes

Jean McEntire

The Maine Campus, Monday, April 19, 1982.
Anti-war talks for Buenos Aires
Haig pledges his ultimate effort

AM-Falklands (AP) - Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., returning to Buenos Aires on Thursday for a second round of talks to avert war between Argentina and Britain over the Falkland Islands, said "the stakes are so great they demand the ultimate effort" by all participants.

His Air Force jet landed at Buenos Aires' Ezeiza airport hours after the official Argentine news agency, Telam, reported Argentine warships were sailing south toward the British-declared war zone around the Falklands.

Haig, who has been conducting intercontinental shuttle diplomacy between Washington, Buenos Aires, and London, arrived here at 10:30 p.m. - 8:30 p.m. EST. Haig called for a "flexible approach by both sides, not an abandonment of principles" in the search for a peaceful solution to the crisis. He later signed a statement with Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez and they will resume talks on Friday.

"They are going to try to defuse the situation," government sources said. "They have a purely political decision to make." What Argentine officials said there would be no cease-fire, however.

In his arrival statement, Haig called for a "sustained effort" by all participants. He added that "the stakes are so great they demand the ultimate effort" by all participants. He added that "this is not an abandonment of principles" in the search for a peaceful solution to the conflict.

Argentina's three-man military junta, which has controlled the country since the 1973 coup, remained committed to the war effort, despite Haig's démarche. Argentine President Leopoldo Galtieri had reaffirmed to President Reagan his personal desire to continue the war effort, and said Argentine forces were "completely secure due to war material in the water." Navy officials acknowledged that, although "measures of self-defense" had been taken and navigation around the islands was "secure," material in the water was "secure." Navy officials declined to say if this meant specifically that the waters were mined. In Washington, the White House reported that President Reagan had received a telephone call from Argentine President Leopoldo Galtieri.

According to the White House statement, Galtieri "reaffirmed to President Reagan his personal desire for a peaceful resolution of the dispute."

In Washington, the White House reported that President Reagan had received a telephone call from Argentine President Leopoldo Galtieri. According to the White House statement, Galtieri "reaffirmed to President Reagan his personal desire for a peaceful resolution of the dispute."
Black Bears split four game series

by Nancy Stores
Staff Writer

The UMO baseball team, which hadn’t played a game in nearly two weeks, split doubleheaders with both Holy Cross and the University of Vermont this weekend.

Maine traveled to Holy Cross Friday for the twinbill and won the first game 17-3 before losing the second 9-6. The Bears then returned to Mahaney Diamond for their home opener Saturday and breezed by the Catamounts 6-1 before being edged 4-3 in the second game of the day.

Tom Mahan picked up his second win of the season in the first game against Holy Cross as leftfielder Brad Colton provided the brunt of the offensive power with a grand slam homer. Catcher Poochie Pickett and rightfielder Tom Vanidestine also had homers as the Bears launched a 15-hit attack on the Crusaders.

Holy Cross left 11 men stranded while the Bears left eight.

In the second game of the day, sophomore Sta Lacagnata picked up his second loss in three attempts while the Bears could only manage six hits.

The Crusaders took a 3-0 lead in the first inning as leftfielder Jim Vest led the attack with a two-run inside the park homer. Holy Cross then expanded on the lead, making it 8-2 before the Black Bears finally rallied for four runs in the fifth, including a solo homer by third baseman Jeff Paul.

Lacagnata, who lasted only 4½ innings, said “I just couldn’t throw strikes. My motion wasn’t smooth and I was getting behind every batter. It was a matter of mechanics.”

Although he has had shoulder problems, Lacagnata said his arm felt good.

Saturday, Maine opened up before a large crowd and got the 6-1 victory behind the five-hit pitching of sophomore Billy Swift, who got his fourth win in as many starts.

Maine took the lead in the second inning when Rick Lashua led off with a single and was knocked in by Pickett. Shortstop Peter Adams, who had not played against Holy Cross due to a swollen arm which had been hit by an errant throw in practice earlier in the week, then scored Pickett on a line shot single to right.

Lashua then came through again in the third, hitting a two-run homer to give Maine a 4-0 edge. Pickett added another run in the inning when he doubled and then scored on a Mark Sutton two-bagger.

Vermont scored its only run in the top of the fourth on a passed ball. Maine made it 6-1 in the bottom of the inning when Jeff Paul scored off a double by firstbaseman Kevin Bernier.

Junior Joe Johnson got his fourth loss in five starts in the second game and gave up a two-run homer in the seventh inning which gave Vermont the edge over the Black Bears.

Maine got the first run of the contest in the first inning when Bernier scored on a line shot by Colton to center field that the centerfielder had problems handling.

Anthony Cimino rears to fire a pitch at an opposing batter. (Storey photo)

Vermont came back for two in the third, however, before Maine tied it up in the fourth as Bernier scored again on a throwing error. He then knocked in Paul in the fifth with a hard hit double to give Maine the lead.

Catamount catcher Dan Gasparino killed the Bears’ hopes for a sweep, however, when he hit a two-run homer in the last inning.

Coach John Winkin said the team had some pitching problems, Lacagnata said his arm felt good.

In the Friday, April 16 issue of the Maine Campus, a story entitled, Football Squad Holding Spring Workouts, Varsity Football coach Ron Rogerson’s name was incorrectly spelled. The spelling should have been, Ron Rogerson, not Ron Rodgerston. The Sports Department regrets the error.
The punches came fast and furious at the third annual Fraternity Fight Night.

Kappa Sigma knocks them out

Max Carroll
Staff Writer

Kappa Sigma won the third annual Fraternity Boxing Championship held at the Memorial Gym Friday night by registering three victories and no feats.

Kappa Sigma was led by: Tyler Winter, Darryl Hendricks, and Bill Madden.

Winter won a unanimous decision over Edward Garcia of Phi Kappa Sigma in a quick, well fought fight.

Hendricks defeated George Franz of AM by route of a technical knock-out midway through the second round of the seventh fight.

Madden defeated Carlie Mull of Sigma Nu in the first round knock-out in the twelfth fight of the night.

Tom Gale of Sigma Chi captured the Most Outstanding Boxer Award by pummeling the body and head of SAE's Ernie Johnson for three long and brutal rounds of boxing.

According to fight Chairman Jeff Bryant, the night netted approximately $3000, which is going to be donated to the United Way Foundation.

Yaz, Hoffman pace Sox to 4-3 victory

BOSTON AP - Glenn Hoffman tripled and then scored on a wild pitch in the top of the ninth to give the Boston Red Sox a 4-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Sunday.

Hoffman's leadoff triple drove out reliever Roy Lee Jackson, 2-1, and Jerry Garvin came on. After an intentional walk, Garvin uncorked a wild pitch enabling Hoffman to score, the winning run.

Reliever Luis Aponte, 1-0, who replaced Boston starter Mike Torrez' after the Blue Jays had gone in front 3-2 in the seventh, earned the victory with 2 2/3 innings of hitless ball.

The Red Sox tied the score in the eighth on a walk and two-out singles by Carl Yastrzemski and Carney Lansford.

The Blue Jays took a 2-0 lead, scoring in the second and fourth innings, before getting a final run in the seventh.

BOSTON, MA - Robert Parish poured in 31 points, and Boston breezed to a 119-99 National Basketball Association victory over the New York Knicks Sunday night.

Parish had 10 points in the first quarter and 15 in the fourth to carry the Celtics to their second winningest season.

Boston led by 21 points late in the first half, but the Knicks rallied to close the gap to four, 73-69, with 3:31 left in the third quarter as Paul Westphal got their last eight points in the spurt.

Boston then reassured command and outscored New York 25-12 for the rest of the third quarter, which ended with the Celtics leading 84-74.

The Celtics then buried the Knicks with a 15-2 burst to start the final period. Parish got six of those points as Boston opened a 99-76 bulge. The Celtics' biggest lead of the game was 108-84.

Boston never trailed and threatened to put the Knicks away early. Leading 13-8, the Celtics erupted for a 15-3 run, with Parish scoring 11 of the points.

That made the score 28-11, and the Celtics maintained a 36-43 halftime lead.

Boston completed its regular season record of 58-24, five victories less than the 1972-73 team. The Knicks finished 47-35.

Larry Bird added 15 points for the Celtics, and Rick Robey tied his season high of 14. The Knicks were paced by Larry Bird with 20 and Maurice Lucas with 16.

The Knicks closed their season with five straight losses, while the Celtics won 26 of their last 30 as they head into the playoffs.

Track team bows to UNH 109-56

By Paul Friday
Staff Writer

The mens track team was bowled over in their meet against the University of New Hampshire Saturday as the Bears lost 109-56.

One of the few highlights for the Bears was the performance of junior sprints, Kevin Tarr who won the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Tarr was named the Most Outstanding Boxer.

The team travels to Dartmouth next weekend for the Dartmouth Relays.

Budweiser
AMATEUR
ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

Budweiser is pleased to announce this week's intramural/club sport athlete of the week.

Tom Cale, a sophomore from Farmington, has been chosen for his outstanding performance in Fraternity Fight Night.

Tom, a computer science major fought in the 169 lbs weight class and was named Most Outstanding Boxer. Tom fought the hard rounds before gaining the unanimous decision.

Congratulations Tom, this Bud's for you!