Students catch bike thief

by Tom Hawkins
staff Writer

The UMO Police Department charged an Orono high school sophomore with a Class D theft crime Wednesday, regarding a custom bike valued at $711. Police said as a result of this incident, two other bikes, also believed to be stolen from campus, were recovered.

A witness in Boardman Hall observed the suspect approach a "stump jumper" custom bike chained to a road post at the south end of Boardman Hall, and break the chain with a bolt cutter. The witness yelled at the suspect and after receiving no response, informed other people in the building.

As the suspect sped off, a group of concerned students from within Boardman Hall chased him. As the suspect passed the library, traveling south, other students joined in on the pursuit, including the roommate of the owner of the bike. As the suspect and the group of pursuers passed Deering Hall one of the pursuers hailed a motorcyclist, who promptly ran the suspect off the road. The suspect was detained until police arrived.

The suspect was taken into custody, and was released to his parents. The suspect will be referred to a juvenile intake worker.

Investigating officer Sergeant Mike Zubik said, "We rarely see this kind of citizen involvement."

Responsible drinking a nationwide concern

by Jim Emple
Staff Writer

Responsible beer consumption resulting from responsible beer advertising is not just a concern at UMO, but concerns people nationwide, said the vice president for student affairs Tuesday.

"We're not telling people not to advertise, we just want them to do it responsibly. I've never asked anyone not to advertise in the Maine Campus," Thomas Aceto said.

Aceto took part in a nationwide BACCHUS (Boost Alcohol Consciousness—Concerning the Health of University Students) conference in Atlanta, Ga., in August 1983. Twelve guidelines were agreed upon by an eight person Inter-Association Task Force representing the American College Personnel Association, the Association of College and University Housing Officers International, the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators and BACCHUS.

The General Student Senate voted Tuesday to accept an amended version of the guidelines, 16-15 with one abstention. The changes included some minor phrase clarifications and some rewording to include faculty, staff and administrators as members of the university community who are also influenced by beer advertising.

Ed Cutting, off-campus senator, said Aceto's Sept. 20 letter to Colonial Distributors, Inc., which concerned the advertisement showing a college student receiving an additional $20 from his parents with the slogan "looks like a Stroh's Light night," was an act of censorship.

Aceto said he sent Colonial Distributors, Inc. an advisory letter which was not binding.

Scott Oliver, general manager of Colonial Distributors, Inc., wrote back to Aceto on Sept. 29, saying, "The ad's intent was not that of promoting malice, cheating (your parents out of $20) or 'boozing it up' as you put it. The purpose was to intelligently promote our product. Your comments are appreciated, as well as any future comments you may want to share with us."

Alumni director resigns

by Hope Kerley
Staff Writer

Executive Director of the University of Maine General Alumni Association Lester Nadeau resigned Wednesday morning. Nadeau was convicted on two counts of assault last month, one of which involved a thirteen-year-old boy.

Alumni Association President William Johnson said Robert Holmes, GAA director of funds, will serve as the acting director of the association until June, when Johnson expects the GAA executive committee will name a permanent director.

Johnson said Nadeau's resignation letter stated that he was resigning "with deep regret."

Petition to challenge Teamsters Union

by Colin Strainge
Staff Writer

A petition drive calling for a change in the bargaining unit which represents 652 university employees is being circulated on campus by an assistant chef at UMO.

Lorenzo Severance, an assistant chef at Stewart Commons, is gathering signatures to call an election challenging the Teamsters Union's right to represent the kitchen and physical plant workers. The petition would allow the Maine State Employees Association to present their position to the people currently represented by the Teamsters.

By law no election can be held except during the 30-day period 90 to 60 days before the expiration of a contract or when there is no contract in effect. This means there could not be a challenge until April 1985 because there is a contract in place.

Severance said, "The majority of the people I've talked to would like to hear what MSEA has to say."

Walter Stilphen, a Teamsters official in Augusta said he did not think there was support for the challenge to the Teamsters.

As of Tuesday Severance said he had collected about 200 signatures toward the election. In order to call an election a minimum of 30 percent of the 652 Teamsters in the UMaine system would have to sign the petition.

A major complaint is that a large percentage of the union dues paid to the Teamsters is used for union activities outside of Maine, Severance said.

"I feel the state (of Maine) would benefit if the union we had was right here in the state," he said. The money from dues would be spent within Maine and add to the overall economy of the state.

Severance said the 3.5 percent pay increase for the Teamsters was unfair compared to the 5.4 percent increase negotiated for the faculty and professional staff of the university. The failure of the Teamsters to reach a better agreement encouraged him to

FIJI on probation for alcohol violation

by Ron Gabriel
Staff Writer

Phi Gamma Delta fraternity will be on university probation until May 10, 1985 for an alcohol violation at a party Feb. 23.

Wendy Walton Tripp, UMO's conduct officer, said fraternity members who were supposed to check identifications "were out mingling" during part of the party, enabling minors to enter.

Jeffrey Stewart, president of Phi Gamma Delta, said because the "11 to 2" party was a closed party there was no one at the door checking I.D.s.

"Some guys who came weren't invited," he said. "We recognized they weren't rushes and we asked them to leave."

The minors were later reported to the police by a resident assistant or resident director because they "were doing something" in Penobscot Hall, Stewart said. "When questioned by police, they said they had been to a party at Phi Gamma Delta."

As a result of the probation, "11 to 2" parties and other open, campus weekday parties will not be allowed. The fraternity must also develop a non-alcoholic rush program and promote it to the other fraternities during probation.

Tripp said when deciding a fraternity's punishment, its past offenses and reasons for the offense are weighed with the offense itself. No standard punishment exists for specific violations.

"Police said they had no trouble with Phi Gamma Delta in the past," Tripp said.

Fraternity members tried to "change the party around" when they were faced with a possible alcohol violation, she said.

"In the case of a party, if a fraternity is doing everything it can do to comply, and a minor comes in and drinks, the fraternity would probably not be found guilty," Tripp said.

William Prosser, assistant director of police services, said fraternity members' actions after a violation occurs are reported to the conduct office and help determine an appropriate punishment.

"We look for things where the brothers of the house have failed to fulfill their obligation with the police to keep the party peaceful," Prosser said. "If the behavior is such that it violates state law, then it is reported to Wendy. If it appears that it was condoned by the brothers of the house, it is also reported."

Greek Week starting Sunday

by Hope Kerley
Staff Writer

Greek Week at UMO will be from Sunday, April 22 to Saturday, April 27. Panhellenic Public Relations Officer Kathy Moran said the week will feature activities that cost less for people wearing Greek letters than for those without them.

The movie "Spring Break" will be shown at 7:00 and 9:00 p.m. in 110

Little Hall on April 22. Admission is $1.00 for those wearing Greek letters, $1.50 for those without.

Greek Awareness Day, on April 23, will feature public relations tables from each fraternity and sorority on campus, and be held from 9:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. in the North and South Low rooms of the Memorial Union. Points will be given for fraternities and sororities with the most highly-attended tables.

There will be a Greek sing at 7:30 p.m. in the Pit at the Memorial Gymnasium, with points given for the "most enthusiastic group and biggest turnout," Moran said.

Wednesday, April 25 features a Greek blood drive from noon to 8 p.m. in the Pit, also with points for the fraternity or sorority donating the most blood.

Thursday is Greek pub night at the Oronoka from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m., with the band Soundtrac. Pub night features a $1.00 cover charge for those with Greek letters, a $2.00 charge for others, and fifty cent draft beer for everyone. There will be a shuttle bus from the Union side entrance steps from 7 p.m. - 8:30 p.m., I.D. is required.

Greek Week ends with the Greek Games, which begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, April 28 with a car parade starting at the steam plant parking lot. Official opening ceremonies are at 1:00 p.m. at the field behind the Memorial Gymnasium, followed by games at the field. Moran said some of the events will be a keg throw, chariot races, a "muddy obstacle course," tug-of-war, wheelbarrow and three-legged races.

Speaker terms N-War 'Twilight for the Species'

by Lisa De Bruyckere
Staff Writer

Humans may be extinct following a nuclear war, the director of the Ecosystems Center at the Marine Biological Laboratory in Massachusetts said Thursday.

George Woodwell spoke on "Nuclear War: Twilight for the Species?" at a lecture sponsored by Sigma Xi, a scholastic honor society at UMO.

"The earth is now blessed with a total of 15,000 million tons of nuclear weapons. That's enough to provide each citizen on earth, each of you, each of a billion Chinese and 3.8 billion others with three tons of TNT," Woodwell said. He said the bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki in World War II totaled 32,000 tons of TNT.

"We have enough nuclear weapons to have 1,000 World War II's every Saturday for a month or so," said Woodwell.

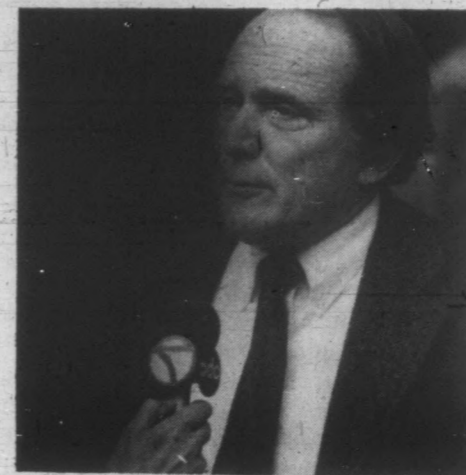

"Long-lived organisms that reproduce slowly are vulnerable," said Woodwell. "Short-lived organisms that reproduce fast will be more resistant. If one is fortunate enough to be a survivor, the cold and dark would be a totally different world and a very difficult one to live in."

Woodwell said after the nuclear warheads have exploded, "people would find themselves traveling in cold and dark to get to a better place. There would be a disruption of services that normally occur in a civilization. Water supplies would freeze up. Fires would persist, adding smoke to the atmosphere, complicating and prolonging climatic changes. There would be sufficient ionized radiation to kill mammals. There would be one-tenth the normal light, with respiration outrunning photosynthesis...there would be no liquid water."

Even if bombs were not dropped near tropical forests, the effect on the systems would be significant, said Woodwell. "It's very clear that a lowering of the temperature of tropical forests by just 10 or 20 degrees Fahrenheit is enough to kill many plants and many animals. Darkness would extend and there would be a reversion to the Stone Age. Almost anything one does towards a realistic nuclear war leads to one or two months of a reduction in temperature well below freezing."

"The fires would be big enough to penetrate the stratosphere, and in the process, oxidize nitrogen which reduces ozone in the higher atmosphere," Woodwell said. "Ultraviolet radiation would no longer be absorbed by ozone. If the surface of the earth is dark, that's not a problem. As the atmosphere starts to clear, ultraviolet radiation would reach the surface of the earth."

Woodwell said more research is needed in the area of nuclear weapons. "Every opportunity should be used to examine the consequences in detail in the hope there will be some recovery of common sense."

Union

solicit information from the MSEA, he said.

Stilphen said, "What you have is probably a dissident member who is trying to get free press. If we do a poor job in representation then we have to worry about losing the unit. I don't believe we have done a poor job."

Richard Trahey, MSEA representative, said his union had not made a decision on whether to pursue the possibility of challenging the Teamsters yet and probably would not do so until their annual meeting in October. He said MSEA was committed to several other projects currently, including the settlement of their own contract with the state.

Trahey said of the 200 signatures already gathered, "It would indicate a high level of dissatisfaction to me."

Beer

Chet Gay, advertising manager of Colonial Distributors, said, "We withdrew our advertising because we got shafted by the letter and didn't get a fair shake in the pub (Bear's Den). We could have spent considerable in advertising, but we withdrew the ads because we don't want to be made a fool of."

William Dalton, manager of catering and conferences services, said, "We don't allow distributors to campaign and promote their products in the Bear's Den during our student beer survey. We want the students to choose which beers they want and campaigning is unfair and influences sales."

Dalton said the four-week survey is conducted at the beginning of the school year and allows students to decide, according to the amount sold, which five of the 15 beers offered would be sold in the Bear's Den during that year.

Ann Merry, advertising manager of the Maine Campus, said, "We've lost approximately 600 inches of beer advertising (more than $2,000) from this time last year." The advertising department thinks the letters sent by Aceto to area distributors have caused this decrease.

Aceto said he has sent letters to Barstan's Restaurant and to Colonial Distributors, Inc.

He said the letter to Barstan's didn't have anything to do with advertising in the Maine Campus, but in response to a flyer that appeared on campus in October. He

Amended version of the BACCHUS guidelines as passed by the UMO General Student Senate Tuesday:

- 1.) Alcohol beverage marketing programs should avoid demeaning sexual or discriminatory portrayal of individuals.
 - 2.) Promotion of beverage alcohol should not encourage any form of alcohol abuse nor should it place emphasis on quantity and frequency of use.
 - 3.) Beverage alcohol (such as kegs or cases of beer) should not be provided as free awards to individual students or campus organizations.
 - 4.) No uncontrolled sampling as part of campus marketing programs should be permitted and no sampling, or other promotional activities, should include "drinking contests."
 - 5.) Where controlled sampling is allowed by law and institutional policy, it should be limited as to time and quantity. Principles of good hosting should be observed including availability of alternative beverages, food and planned programs. The consumption of beer, wine and distilled spirits should not be the sole purpose of any promotional activity.
 - 6.) Promotional activities should not be associated with otherwise existing campus events or programs without the prior knowledge and consent of appropriate institutional officials.
 - 8.) Informational marketing programs should have educational value and subscribe to the philosophy of responsible and legal use of the products represented.
 - 9.) Beverage alcohol marketers should support campus alcohol education programs that encourage informed and responsible decisions about the use or non-use of beer, wine or distilled spirits.
 - 10.) If permitted, beverage alcohol advertising on campus or in institutional media, including that which promotes events as well as product advertising, should not portray drinking as a solution to personal or academic problems of students, faculty, staff and administrators as necessary to social, sexual or academic success.
 - 11.) Advertising and other promotional campus activities should not associate beverage alcohol consumption with the performance of tasks that require skilled reactions such as the operation of motor vehicles or machinery.
 - 12.) Local off-campus promotional activities, primarily directed to students, should be developed in consultation with appropriate institutional officials.
- Be it further resolved that the University of Maine at Orono advise beverage alcohol marketers that they will not be permitted to promote their products on campus unless they agree to abide by the above marketing guidelines.

said the flyer exhibited progressive pricing tactics which influences irresponsible drinking. The ad offered Stroh's Beer at 25 cents a glass from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. and 50 cents a glass from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

He said, "I don't care if they (Barstan's) sell beer at 10 cents a glass all night, it's the progressive pricing I don't agree with."

Judy Gilman, general manager of Discount Beverages, Inc. in Orono, said that several area businesses and distributors received letters from Aceto, but she has only seen the letters written to Barstan's and Colonial Distributors, Inc.

Mike Dolley, of the Haffenreffer Beverage Co. in Brewer, said, "We haven't received any letter from Tom Aceto." Dolley said the company didn't have a budget this year for on-campus advertising.

Bob Dion, sales manager of Maine Distributors in Bangor, said "We haven't received a letter from any university department concerning advertising. We placed an ad in the Campus a couple months ago."

Betty St. John, manager of the Time Out Family Restaurant in Orono, said, "I know we got one (a letter from Aceto)," but could not offer more details.

Bob Thomas, general manager of the Time Out, said, "I believe we did (get a letter) the latter part of last year." He said the reason he pulled his advertising from the Maine Campus was because it did not produce any positive results.

"My tax money supports UMO. The Bear's Den doesn't have the overhead we have to pay. Our business has been cut in half causing us serious problems. We might have to close," he said.

"We could take out a full page ad and it still wouldn't help," he said.

Aceto said the guidelines are an attempt to show the beer industry that the public wants a change. "Miller has supported these guidelines, and Budweiser is coming out with some soon," he said. "They've recognized that they can't advertise the way they have been."

Patrick J. Fox, vice president of sales for the Stroh's Brewing Co., sent a letter on Feb. 28 to all Stroh's distributors listing a set of 11 guidelines to be used by them in the promotion of all Stroh's products aimed at the college market.

Aceto said, "Their guidelines are the same as ours, except they eliminated the final guideline."

On March 30, Leonard Goldstein, vice president of sales for the Miller Brewing Co., sent a letter to distributors saying, "It is essential that all promotional activities reflect the premise of responsible, moderate consumption. Any promotion involving consumer behavior that encourages abusive or excessive consumption should definitely be avoided."

Aceto said he's concerned with practices that depict irresponsible drinking. "I received several letters from faculty who supported my position of the Stroh's advertisement."

He said across the country people are taking a stand against beer companies promoting the irresponsible use of alcohol. "At no time will I ever tell the Maine Campus what to print. These guidelines are advisory, they're not law."

Bangor Cinema to premiere 'Firestarter'

by Patti B. Fink
Staff Writer.

The world premiere of Stephen King's "Firestarter" will be held at the Bangor Cinema May 9.

King said the idea to hold the premiere in Bangor was suggested to him by the movie's producer, Dino De Laurentiis. King said he agreed "because that's where I live."

King said, "All we needed was a group to sponsor it." The proceeds will benefit Northeast COMBAT, a local consumer action group.

"With people out of work and people stretching the dollar," consumer advocacy "is the most worthy charity I can think of," King said (Bangor Daily News, 4/13/84).

Besides, King said, "They could use the dough."

John Supranovich, executive director of COMBAT, wants the premiere to be "a gift to the city."

Both the premiere and the reception following the movie are red carpet, limousine events. Supranovich said even the programs should be spectacular. He said he is hoping for 12-page inserts with photographs and possible small biographies of "the principals of the movie such as the actors, director, Stephen King..." within the programs.

The Bangor theater will open at 6:30 p.m., a half-hour before the program begins, said Supranovich.

The $25 tickets were sold out Wednesday, Supranovich said.

Supranovich said people still interested in attending should send their names and addresses, in case there are cancellations, to the following address: "Firestarter," P.O. Box 1183, Bangor, Maine 04401.

Stephen King

Robert Kelly, district manager for the cinema, said the Bangor Cinema seats about 500 people.

This is the first world premiere held in Bangor, Kelly said.

"Firestarter" features an all-star cast. Director Mark Lester said, "We have people that we never imagined would ever be in the movie, people like George Scott, Martin Sheen and Art Carney." (The Movie Magazine, spring, 1984).

Drew Barrymore, from E.T. - The Extra-Terrestrial, plays the little girl with pyrokinetic powers that cause fires when she is angered.

Jeff Jarvis and Mike Wood handled the special effects for the movie. "Mike and myself have tried to develop some new, interesting, and different ways of burning people and burning houses down," said Jarvis (The Movie Magazine, spring, 1984).

It's with this type of interest we can help to reduce the crime rate on campus."

UMO police said the Fuji bike had an original value of $600, but approximately $195 worth of parts had been previously stolen off it. Police said the thief was in the bicycle repair and sales business.

The UMOPD has recovered a Trek bicycle reportedly stolen in the fall of 1983. The owner is requested to call the police, identify the bike, and claim it.

Alcohol control

The administration claims that their alcohol policies are designed to promote "responsible drinking." Aside from the fact that "responsible" is a relative term, there are some serious problems that administration is creating, and the nature of some of those policies is insulting.

One of the things this university, and particularly Residential Life, tries to promote, is social interaction. The restrictive alcohol policies have taken great strides toward eliminating a prime source of that interaction. It is a fact that no matter how hard the administration tries, students will drink and some will on occasion have a few too many. Before the crackdown, particularly in the dorms, parties served as a way for students to drink in a relatively controlled atmosphere in which they were able to meet and get to know a large number of their fellow students.

The result of the crackdown is that students have taken to going into their rooms in groups of three or four (just under the quota that would qualify it as an illegal party) with a case of beer or a fifth of something. A policy that leads to this type of activity is hardly promoting responsible drinking, and it is all but eliminating social interaction.

Also, the way the administration looks at alcohol related issues is insulting to the student body.

A case in point would be last Tuesday's meeting of the UMO General Student Senate. Speaking in favor of a resolution before the senate on policies for alcohol advertising, Thomas Aceto, vice president for student affairs, complained about beer advertising directed at students that promote "irresponsible drinking." There are a couple of points that Mr. Aceto missed. First, beer distributors approach their advertising from the perspective that people are going to drink beer, and their goal is to convince those people to drink their beer.

Second, and here is the insult. Mr. Aceto seems to be acting on the assumption that students at UMO are mindless fools and that merely looking at a beer advertisement will cause them to rush out and get sloshed the first chance they get. Come on! Students have been exposed to advertising for beer all of their lives, and by the time they get to college they have already decided how they are going to deal with alcohol.

Students do not need an organization of highly-paid surrogate parents telling them how to behave. What they need is an administration that treats them like adults and allows them to make their own decisions.

Pornography

The iron door slid down, another quarter bought a few more moments of her time, and the iron door again slid up. She sat naked in the booth, shielded from her onlooker by thick glass, and she talked, as he did, into a telephone. Her chest heaved; her hand moved closer to her crotch.

"I'm disgusted by it," she later said, "but it's easier than doing tricks on the street, and I get a percentage."

A movie about pornography, quietly screened at UMO yesterday, might be shown here soon. It should be. "Not a Love Story" is offensive, graphic, and controversial. But it's got to be because it's dealing with about the most perverse subject going. Pornography.

Before I go any further, though, I've got to admit that it's not easy writing about pornography. I've been, after all, weaned on it. I remember standing in front of the magazine rack at 12, glancing furtively at the soft-core porn on the top shelf, my body humming with the excitement of what might lie beneath those high-gloss covers. What I found, eventually, was exciting, but I didn't realize until many years later what it was doing to me. And I'm still not quite sure.

Though some might quarrel with whether or not I was, at 12, looking at pornography, there's no doubt that I was learning to look at women as things, as pretty objects on display for my pleasure. This might sound rather harmless, in fact, but what's grown from this is far from harmless, it's frightening.

And this is why "Not a Love Story" must be shown, time and time again. I, like most every man, must be slapped in the face, woken to the reality of pornography, an enterprise that turns people into objects. Self-objectification by women—a result of pornography—is a kind of living death. Pornography legitimizes this kind of death by displaying it with the obvious consent of the adult world. Wrapping it in plastic, or rating it triple "X", only makes it that much more attractive.

I never thought I'd be writing this. The journalist, more than any, is supposed to be the great defender of the First Amendment, at almost any cost. But the cost of allowing pornographers the liberty of putting muzzles on women, stringing them up, hanging them from ceilings, and gang raping them, is more than this journalist, and this man, can bear. If there is such a thing as manhood, let the real men step forth and help women stop this perversity, this mutilation of the human spirit, and denegation of the human body.

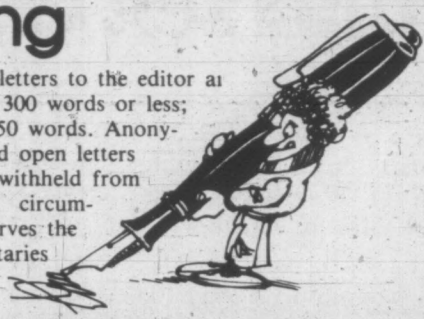

Wait for "Not a Love Story" to be shown next fall. If it isn't, ask why. If it is, bring a friend and brace yourselves for a stinging slap of reality. The pornography industry is growing as pornographers instill in those too young to judge and too receptive to repel a thirst for something sick.

Bumstock: bad timing and poor locale

To the editor:

This letter is to vote my disapproval with the timing and the location of this year's Bumstock.

I am not against the idea behind Bumstock. Under different circumstances I would openly look forward to the music, the gatherings with friends and a good time. But with education being a top priority for me and the semester coming to a close, I am concerned with the completion of term papers, projects, and preparation for final exams.

I fail to see the reasoning behind the decision to hold Bumstock right next door to the library! The library will lose its "quiet" atmosphere and the dorms will become quite noisy due to students coming in and out, room parties, stereos and the added feature of BYOB in one's own room.

With all the mail usually received by this column dealing with such important subjects such as the play by play daily actions of dogs on campus, I fail to understand why there haven't been many objections to the timing and location of Bumstock.

With better timing and a different locale, Bumstock could be a success. Unfortunately, education will once again take a back seat to "partying at all cost."

Sacrifice is the moral base of civilization

To the editor:

I find it difficult to believe that Stephen Macklin really subscribes to the "morality of self-interest" he writes about in his Campus column (4/18/84). I trust then, then, if he were drowning or caught in a fire or being mugged, that he would yell to onlookers, "please, don't save me! I'm not worth the sacrifice!" And no doubt, if he were one of the onlookers, he would walk away and say, "Forget it. You're not worth it!"

On a less imposing level, sacrifice is the moral base of civilized society. It provides less fortunate people with food and shelter they could otherwise not afford. It enables severely ill persons to be treated beyond their financial means. It provides much needed services for the elderly. And it even enables many students to attend UMO (via their parent's sacrifice or the generous donations of others to scholarship funds). I could go on and on, but need I?

I assume Mr. Macklin is an atheist—otherwise, he would recognize that the need to make sacrifices is at the core of the human spirit. For example, in the Old Testament, the Hebrews were required to sacrifice the best of their flocks and crops along with 10 percent of everything. They were also required to make a sacrifice of prayer and righteous living. In the New Testament we read that Jesus made the "ultimate sacrifice" on behalf of mankind. (Thanks, Don Linscott, for your wonderful parable in Tuesday's Campus!) The good news is that even if one does sacrifice one's life, it is a small price to pay for the eternal life that is available to the righteous. As Jesus himself said: "Whoever finds his life will lose it, and whoever loses his life for my sake will find it." Those who cling to their lives at the loss of righteousness, ultimately lose what they are trying so desperately to keep. Jesus also said: "When you give a luncheon or dinner...invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, the blind, and you will be blessed. Although they cannot repay you, you will be repaid at the resurrection of the righteous." (Luke 14:12-14)

Mr. Macklin's problem is that he believes there is none more worthy than he, so he lives for himself. How arrogant! Even ants know that the survival of life depends not on their preserving their own individual lives, but on preserving the species through self-sacrifice. And I believe that when we are born, we are given more than life—we are given a soul with a conscience. Frankly, I think Mr. Macklin's "morality of self-interest" is his way of placating his conscience so he can live selfishly and turn his back on those who suffer and are in need.

Myself, I aspire to be Christ-like, for the example of Jesus inspires me to help others in need. My self-esteem comes not from taking pride in living another day (any lower level animal can accomplish that) but from living my life true to the conscience God has given me. Though I often fall short of my ideal, I know I am forgiven by God for my shortcomings, and I continue trying.

I have not been required to forfeit my life for the sake of another, but should it come to that I pray I will have the courage and the faith to make the ultimate sacrifice. I encourage Mr. Macklin to rethink his philosophy, read the teachings of Jesus, and reconsider the meaning of life.

Commentary

Ben Alexander

In defense of sacrifice

"The truly moral man is a selfish one," said Stephen R. Macklin in a recent Maine Campus issue. He then hastened to add that he was not suggesting we should be "evil and contemptible," but simply that the focus of a truly wise and moral man should be his own self-interest. Otherwise, one is wasting his life. "A human being should not hold anything other than himself, and particularly no person other than himself, as his highest value." Thus, Mr. Macklin rejects the doctrine of the virtue of sacrifice.

As a practicing Christian I feel called upon to answer this editorial with a few words in defense of sacrifice. It is my thesis here that the truly moral man is the one who is willing to say no to his own needs and desires in order to help others. The ability to share the beauty of the gift of life by demonstrating one's devotion to the well-being and fulfillment of other people is a virtue far outweighing the careful preservation of one's own goals and desires. Life, the one thing a man is given when he is born (according to Macklin's words), is a gift from God; and so, too, is the ability to be in a state of harmony and togetherness with one's fellow man (and, of course, woman) in the day-to-day fulfillment of needs and goals.

In making such a point as this, it is necessary to stress the definition of the term we are discussing. When I speak for sacrifice, let none reading these words think that I mean masochism. Sacrifice, the concept of unselfish giving and undemanding love for fellow human being, is very frequently confused by critics with masochism, the abnormal desire to subject oneself to physical pain. This confusion is reinforced, tragically, when we read of the ancient ascetics who used to honor God by rolling naked in mosquito-ridden swamps, or modern faithful who nail themselves to modified crosses once a year. Sacrifice is also erroneously confused with denial of self-respect and self-worth, making religious faith appear to be a last hope for the weak and the desperate, and the doctrine of humbleness a cop-out for the coward.

If we can get beyond the ceremonial rituals of self-mutilation to the glory of God, and consider a more pragmatic definition of sacrifice, then the Christian doctrine of "Love thy neighbor as thyself" can appear a bit more tolerable and plausible. We live in a complex world, a world of war, hunger, hatred, fear, and spiritual confusion. "Please, I know this sounds absurd, please tell me who I am," pleads one popular rock artist, echoing the distress of the human race. And the individual, whether living on a peaceful university campus or in the heart of Beirut, is faced from minute-to-minute with the maddening elements of life. He is also faced with decisions and dilemmas which, whatever the intensity, will at least occasionally cause a bit of despair. The uncertainty and precariousness of living is part of the life which we are given when we are born. And on this premise, I pose one question: shall we work separately on our own fears and crises, or shall we help one another, and let the world become a tiny bit more livable with the presence of some love and compassion?

"For some strange reason," says Macklin,

"we live in a society that honors sacrifice." Really? I would say that for reasons not strange at all, we live in a society that does nothing of the sort. If anything, it is Mr. Macklin's philosophy of life, in even more ugly extremes than even he would want, that dominates society. The proverb that "No good deed goes unpunished" is widely quoted, and stories in the papers seem to prove it. Last year, in a restaurant in August, a counter girl administered first aid to a woman who had ingested poison. The manager promptly fired her for not covering up the fact that ammonia had spilled into the salad dressing. On the streets of the big cities, there are hundreds of criminals taking advantage of that little bit of compassionate instinct still around, giving credence to the dictum that it's foolish to give to beggars. All around are reasons against giving and caring. Mr. Macklin therefore cannot claim to be in any persecuted minority with his espoused philosophy.

What is needed, therefore, is a reconsideration of priorities and goals. Where there are people dying or starving, do we really want to say that the most important thing to us is the protection of our own profits and aspirations? Can we live in a vacuum, apart from the needs of other people, content to cry out our own "gimmies" with no acknowledgement of what we can give? Selfishness, Mr. Macklin, is already the law of the land. What we need is a little more willingness to sacrifice.

1 woman, 4 men convicted of child sex crimes

WATERVILLE (AP)—A Waterville woman accused of running a child sex ring, and four men who took part, have been convicted in Kennebec County Superior Court.

Lee Pooler, 42, was accused of performing sex with children age 4, 5, 12, 13, 14, 15 and allowing adult men to do the same.

She was convicted of one count of gross sexual misconduct, two counts of endangering the welfare of a child, and two counts of unlawful sexual conduct. Pooler was sentenced to five years at the Maine Correctional Center, with all but 2 1/2 years suspended.

"What we have is someone with an unusual preoccupation with sex with children, normally under the age of 10," said District Attorney David Crook.

He said the woman had sexually abused the children and had made the children "available for the sexual favors of other men. It was not a prostitution ring, per se. But there was money and favors exchanged—food, candy, that sort of thing."

The incidents took place in Waterville apartments and houses, Crook said.

The four men convicted of a variety of sex charges were William Wood, 33, Richard Dumais, 30, and John Hubner, 36, all of Waterville; and Bradley Ramsdell, 41, of Winslow.

Ramsdell is to be sentenced May 10. Wood and Dumais were convicted last year and ordered to serve two years in the Maine Correctional Center.

Crook was not pleased with what he considered light sentences. He said Pooler could have been sentenced to 32 years, and Dumais to up to five years.

Hubner, who has served his time, was the only person given the maximum sentence, which for his crime was 364 days.

"The sentencing was left to the discretion of the court," said Crook. He praised Human Services Department case worker Kathy Laidlaw, Waterville policeman Richard Tompkins, and victim-witness advocacy workers, for their role in the investigation.

"Kennebec County has the highest incidence of sex abuse in the state," said Crook, who handled 69 cases last year.

Syrian and Lebanese leaders meet to end civil war

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—Presidents Hafez Assad of Syria and Amin Gemayel of Lebanon met Thursday to reform Lebanon's political system and try to weld warring factions into a united national government after nine years of civil war.

Across the border in Lebanon, a truce took faltering hold as 200 unarmed observers, some dodging sniper fire, took up positions in the first phase of a disengagement agreed to 10 days ago.

Police said one person was killed and 37 were wounded in truce violations after the cease-fire was declared Wednesday night.

Gemayel, with an entourage that included Foreign Minister Elie Salem and top aides, arrived at Damascus airport Thursday morning for his second meeting with Assad in as many months.

There was no official comment on the ensuing talks at the presidential palace, but sources said the two leaders met for seven hours, in private and with aides, before taking a three-hour break and beginning an evening meeting.

The Syrian and Lebanese leaders were to discuss a blueprint for reforms laid out by the Christian Gemayel to give Lebanon's Moslems a greater share of power in the country, sources said. Lebanon has been dominated by Christians for more than 40 years.

A national unity government representing all factions would then be formed to implement the arrangements, the officials said, asking not to be identified.

Syria backs Lebanon's Druse and Shiite Moslem opposition groups, but Assad took a mediator's stance last month after Gemayel abandoned a U.S.-sponsored Lebanon-Israeli withdrawal agreement, which Syria had denounced.

Libyan leader blames British for embassy killing

(AP)—Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy said Thursday that British police, not Libyans, killed a British policewoman, and that British security forces must withdraw from around his embassy in London before the standoff can end.

Ending the two-day-old siege in London "is the responsibility of the British government. We did nothing," Khadafy said from Tripoli in a live broadcast of an interview with NBC television.

The Libyan leader repeated his country's version of the events Tuesday, a version contradicted by witnesses, videotape and British officials, who all said a gunman in an embassy window fired on demonstrators outside the mission Tuesday, killing the policewoman and wounding 11 protestors.

Khadafy, speaking in English, said there was "an armed British attack by air and ground" against his embassy in which a policewoman was killed and 11 anti-Khadafy Libyan demonstrators were injured.

"I heard that the British police force used arms and shot at the bureau..." Khadafy said, adding later that his information came "from many sources."

The Libyan Embassy, which Libya calls a people's bureau, "is part of our sovereign territory. They have the right to defend themselves if attacked. The British government committed this attack...and the British government is responsible for any accident that takes place there," Khadafy said.

"I think the British policemen killed themselves. Because they shot our bureau during the attack. They are responsible for killing this woman," he said when asked if he knew the identity of the gunman.

As Khadafy spoke, British marksmen continued to point their weapons at the Libyan Embassy and prepared for a long siege. Khadafy was reported to have told the Libyan diplomats and student radicals in the embassy to wait out the police "even if it takes a year."

In London, police sharpshooters continued to ring the five story Libyan Embassy on St. James' Square, which has been cordoned off since Tuesday. Trucks carrying heaters, office equipment and hatstands arrived on the scene this morning.

"We'll wait as long as necessary," said Richard Wells, the deputy assistant commissioner at Scotland Yard. "We want to choose the way...to bring this matter to an end without any further bloodshed."

UMO concrete canoeists getting ready for race

From PICS

Civil engineering students are putting the finishing touches on the concrete canoe they will enter in the 10th annual Whitewater Concrete Canoe Race, held in conjunction with the Kenduskeag Canoe Race Saturday.

Concrete is the engineer's material, and a concrete canoe proves anything can float, the UMO engineers say as they prepare to repeat their first place finish of last year. The only whitewater race in the country for concrete canoes, the race is expected to draw about 60 contestants from at least 20 schools throughout the Northeast. Steve Girardin of Dixfield and William Scott and Stu Hodgkins of Winthrop, are working on the newest entry from UMO, but four other canoes, including last year's winning River Bear, will also be entered.

Walsh named to head hockey post

Shawn Walsh, 29, the man primarily responsible for recruiting the players who took Michigan State University to the NCAA hockey playoffs three straight years, was named as the second head coach of the UMO hockey program Thursday.

The announcement was made by UMO Athletic Director Stuart Haskell after he returned from the home communities of the three final candidates for the position. Walsh was selected from a list of about 35 candidates who applied for the job. He replaces Jack Semler, who resigned the position during the past season and is the only coach UMO has had since hockey was revived as an intercollegiate sport at Orono in 1977.

"I am looking forward to the challenge of leading the Maine hockey program as I was very impressed throughout the entire interview process with not only the university's commitment in continuing to develop a national caliber hockey program but also with their academic and athletic administrative personnel," Walsh said.

Walsh was appointed an assistant coach at Michigan State May 5, 1979, coming to that institution along with head coach Ron Mason from Bowling Green State University. The two men are credited with turning around the Spartans' hockey program which in the three seasons prior to their arrival had failed to even qualify for the Western Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs.

The Spartans advanced to the final four in the NCAA this past season. In the past three years MSU won 90 hockey games and this past year won the Central Collegiate Hockey Association championship.

With the move into the Hockey East next year, we have a project ahead of us at the University of Maine. I feel very confident that the tremendous administrative support and the excellent academic and athletic facilities available to student athletes now insures that the University of Maine will take a back seat to no one in attracting first class individuals to represent their hockey program," said Walsh.

Haskell was enthusiastic about the choice. "We feel at Maine that we are very fortunate to obtain the services of a man with the kind of proven ability that Shawn Walsh possesses. I have been very impressed with his credentials, not only in the coaching and recruiting areas but also in the demonstrated academic ability of those he has secured for Michigan State's excellent hockey program. I feel he is a quality individual who is very well suited to the task of providing a successful hockey program at Maine," he added.

Walsh became a full-time assistant at Bowling Green in 1978 after serving as a graduate assistant there. During his tenure at Bowling Green he headed the Falcons team and guided it to the Midwest Collegiate Hockey Association title in its first season.

In the 1981 National Sports Festival Walsh directed the Great Lakes hockey squad to an undefeated and gold-winning performance.

Besides the primary duties of helping run practice sessions and working with the goaltenders, Walsh coached the MSU junior varsity squad to the Midwest Central Collegiate Hockey Association title in 1979-80.

The appointment is effective as of Monday, April 23, according to Haskell.

Softball team on road for four games

by Kevin Foster
Staff Writer

The women's softball team traveled again Thursday to play two games against both Connecticut's Sacred Heart University Friday and the University of New Hampshire Saturday.

The Bears are currently 10-11 overall and 4-4 in ECAC Division I play.

The games against Sacred Heart should prove to be a real challenge for the Bears as Sacred Heart is ranked seventh in the nation in ECAC Division 2 softball.

"Sacred Heart will be a very hard test," said Maine Coach Janet Anderson Thursday. "We're going to have to play very well."

Anderson said the Bears will be facing freshman Debbie Tidy, one of the best pitchers in the country.

"She's one of the fastest pitchers we'll have ever seen in terms of our organization," she said. "She's one of the premiere pitchers in the country in all divisions."

Anderson said the team has been working hard all week on batting, quickness and reflex drills and she said she thinks the team is ready.

The team will be in New Hampshire Saturday for two games against UHN. The two teams met last Friday in the Catamount Softball Tournament in Vermont and Maine won 7-1.

Anderson said she expects the team to do well against UNH.

"I see no reason why we shouldn't sweep two," she said.

Co-captain Nancy Szostak said UNH doesn't have a strong pitching staff.

Anderson said she has given the team the OK to use whatever batting stance it feels comfortable with. Anderson had previously insisted the players use the flat bat type stance where the bat is held almost horizontal to the ground. The team responded by pounding out 18 hits against UNH last Friday.

Szostak was pleased with the change in coaching policy.

"It's pretty evident that it helped. It allows us to play more as individuals rather than all playing the same," she said.

Anderson said many players have continued to use the flat bat style.

"I changed primarily because some of the younger players were having trouble adjusting. It can take a couple years to get used to," she said.

The leading hitters for Maine after the first 21 games included junior catcher Jane Hamel (.364), junior Claire Betze (.317) and junior Deb Buswell (.310). Maine's team batting average is .220.

In the pitching department, freshman Lynn Hearty is 3-2 with a 1.62 ERA, Betze is 4-4 with a 1.72 ERA and Szostak is 3-5 with a 3.13 ERA. Maine's team ERA is 2.08.

Maine's opponents are batting .240 and their ERA is 1.26.

Ball team home this weekend

by Bob McPhee
Staff Writer

The UMO baseball team will host the Providence College Friars and the University of Vermont in double-headers Friday and Saturday afternoon, respectively, at Mahaney Diamond.

The Black Bears beat the Friars two times in 1983 with 5-4 wins. The final win came in the ECAC playoffs at McCoy Stadium in Pawtucket, Rhode Island in an 18-inning game that lasted until 3:05 a.m.

Friday's game is scheduled for 1 p.m., Saturday's at noon.

UMO will throw its ace pitchers against the Friars, senior Billy Swift (1-2, 0.71 ERA) and freshman Scott Morse (5-0, 3.41 ERA).

The Black Bears have beaten the Friars five times in their last six meetings dating back to 1981.

Against the Catamounts Saturday, UMO seniors Stu Lacognata (3-2) and John Kowalski (1-4), will pitch.

The Catamounts were 8-13-2 overall and 5-8-1 in New England in 1983, but did not play UMO due to a snowstorm in Vermont that caused postponement of the games.

The Black Bears have beaten UV 12 times in a row since 1978.

Patriots may sign James, Van Eeghan quits team

The New England Patriots of the National Football League have reportedly agreed to sign a three-year contract with runningback Craig James. James currently is under contract with the Washington Redskins of the United States Football League.

Veteran fullback Mark Van Eeghan reported that he will quit the team after failing to get a contract guarantee stating he would still have a job if he underwent surgery for a neck injury.

These Black Bear baseball fans proved their team loyalty Saturday as they braved brisk winds, cold temperatures and light snow flurries. The Bears lost to the University of Vermont, 12-4, in what was to be the first and only game of a scheduled double-header. (McMahon photo)

Bears defeat Friars, lose to Vermont

by Bob McPhee
Staff Writer

The UMO baseball team pounded out 30 hits in a double-header against Providence College on Friday to sweep a double-header 4-0 and 20-2 but lost on Saturday to the University of Vermont 12-4 in a game played with near arctic conditions.

The two wins and a loss raised the Black Bears above .500 at 18-17 and 8-3 in the ECAC-North. The Friars are 12-10-2 overall and 7-3 in the ECAC while the Catamounts raised their record to 12-8 overall.

In Friday's opening game, UMO senior pitcher Billy Swift allowed just three hits while striking out 11 Friars and the offense pounded out 12 hits in a 4-0 shutout.

Swift struck out seven of the first nine batters he faced while his slider was working to perfection all day.

UMO scored what proved to be the winning run in the first inning when first baseman Rick Bernard grounded out to score Lashua who had lead off with a single. Designated hitter Billy Reynolds single scored Jeff Paul one batter later for a 2-0 lead.

The Black Bears added two more off Providence starter Steve Taylor in the third inning when McInnis and Paul led off with back to back singles and Bernardo and Reynolds responded with RBIs, with a single and a sacrifice fly.

UMO had a potential big threat in the fifth inning shutdown, after one-out Paul and Bernardo singled but Friar leftfielder Jim Pachece caught Reynold's fly ball at the 375-foot sign. UMO leftfielder Rob Roy singled to load the bases but Taylor forced Tim Layman to ground into a force out to end the inning.

The Friar's only threat came in the fourth inning when Joe DeAngelis and Pachece singled but Swift got the final two batters to ground out and pop out.

UMO was led by Paul, three-for-three, Bernardo and Roy had two hits apiece, and Reynolds and Bernardo who had two RBIs apiece.

In the nightcap, the Black Bears lead off with nine consecutive hits in the bottom of the first inning to take a commanding 8-0 lead.

The nine hits may be an NCAA record but the UMO Sports Information Department is uncertain because no such records are kept by the NCAA.

San Jose State had 10 consecutive hits in a game against Nevada-Reno in 1980 but the hits came the first and second outs.

Lashua lead off the barrage with his sixth homerun of the year, Layman and Paul singled, Reynolds lined and RBI double to leftfield, leftfielder Dan (see BEARS page 2)

● Bears

Kane hit a two-run double to the warning track in left-center, McInnis beat out a bunt for a single, catcher Ed Hackett hit an RBI single, Bernardo reached firstbase on a drag bunt and shortstop Mike Bordick ripped a two-run single to centerfield.

Lashua struckout to end the string of hits but, two outs later, Paul hit his second single of the inning, to score Bernardo.

The runs were all freshman pitcher Scott Morse needed as he limited the Friars to two runs on six hits. Morse, a freshman, raised his record to 6-0.

UMO scored one run in the second inning on a walk to Kane, a stolen base, a throwing error by PC catcher Roger Ferreria and Hackett's sacrifice fly.

PC scored two runs in the top of the third inning on consecutive singles by DeAngelis, Tim Cavanaugh and Pacheco but Lashua made a running catch on Roger Haggerty's long drive to centerfield to end the threat.

The Black Bears put the game away in the bottom of the third with nine runs.

Paul and Lashua had three hits apiece, Layman had a three-run homer and McInnis and Bordick also had three RBIs.

On Saturday, after a 40-minute delay, the game started but for the Black Bears it turned out to be a game that never should have been played.

The day started out with temperatures in the 40's and by 11 a.m. the wind had picked-up and the snow was blowing. Athletic Director Stu Haskell phoned the UMO acting Vice-President for external affairs Ken Allen, who contacted acting president Arthur Johnson to see if the games, the teams were scheduled to play a double-header, could be postponed until Easter Sunday. Johnson said he did not feel it would be appropriate to play on Easter Sunday so the coaches decided to play ball.

UV pitcher Rick JaBlonsin benefited from six Black Bear errors in the first inning for a 6-0 lead and only allowed four runs and nine hits despite throwing 146 pitches on the bitter cold day.

Leftfielder Rick Silva, a native of Topsham, led off the game with a single and continued to second base on the first of four errors by Bordick in the inning. Following a fielders choice and two Black Bear errors, rightfielder Mike Stama singled and two-outs later, a walk, two more errors and another single by Silva produced the final runs of the inning.

UMO managed runs in the third, fourth and fifth innings but UV's Brian Sanderson, the number nine hitter, belted a three-run homer in the fifth inning.

UMO pitcher Stu Lacognata took the loss to even his record at 3-3 despite only allowing six-hits and three earned runs in six innings on the windy day.

Freshman Rob Wilkens pitched the final inning in relief.

The Catamounts were led by Silva with three hits, Stama with two but the big blow of the game was Sanderson's homer.

UMO was led by Layman who had two doubles and a single.

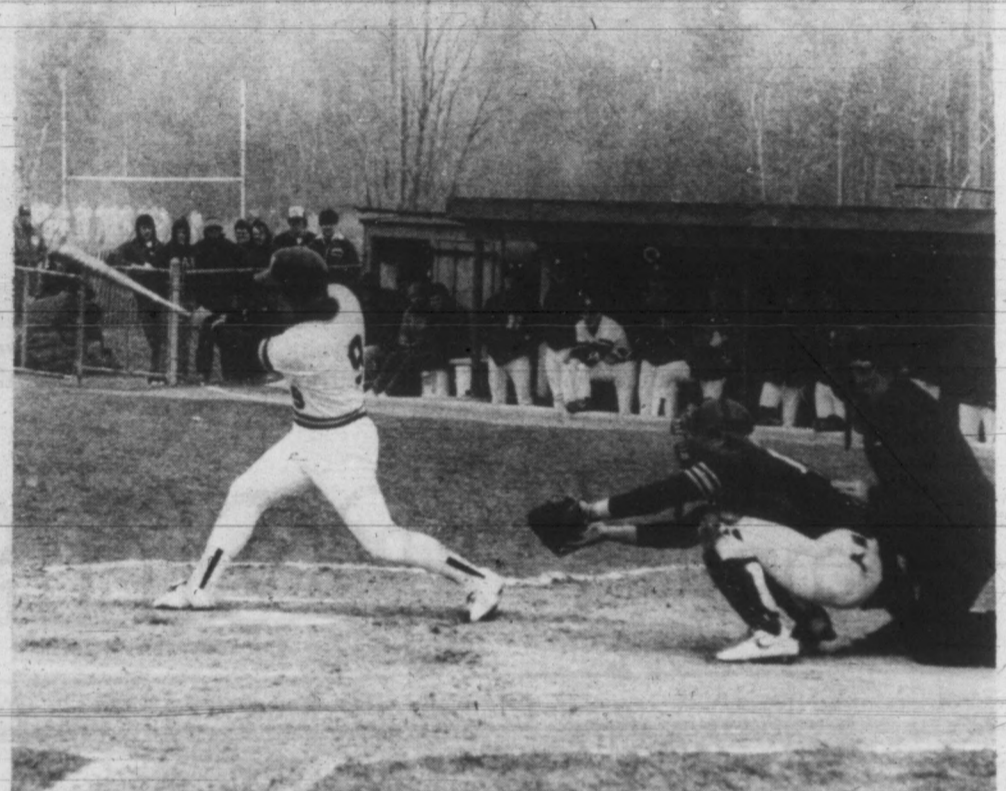

The second game was called off after UMO coach John Winkin and UV coach Mike Stone were advised by the umpires that the weather was too cold and windy to play.

BLACK BEAR NOTES—Swift's win on Friday lowered his earned run average to 0.34 and was the All-American's third consecutive three-hitter. Swift has a career mark of 24-7 at UMO with a 2.63 ERA.

Lashua is UMO's leader in runs scored with 148 having passed former teammate Kevin Bernier who had 131 from 1980-1983.

The Black Bears are 10-4 since returning from Texas and in 1983 were 22-13 after 35 games.

The Black Bears need just two more victories to give the team its 10th straight 20-plus win season under Winkin.

Congress participates in 'Sign Up America' campaign

WASHINGTON (AP)—Getting members of congress to agree on anything is never easy but a former member of the House, Bob Mathias, did earlier this year.

Mathias hosted a clinic at which members of Congress participated to help launch "Sign Up America," a nation-wide signature-gathering campaign to show support for the U.S. Olympic team at the Summer games beginning in July.

A special giant scroll bearing the signatures of millions of Americans will be presented to the U.S. team in Los Angeles. The novel idea is being sponsored by M & M's Chocolate Candies and the U.S. Jaycees. President and Mrs. Reagan were the first two to sign.

Mathias is a two-time winner in the Olympic decathlon, taking the gold in 1948 and 1952.

Olympic basketball team cut to 32 survivors

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Terry Porter and John Stockton, two of the longest shots to make the U.S. Olympic basketball team when tryouts began, were among the 32 survivors Saturday when cuts were announced.

Porter, a guard from Wisconsin-Stevens Point, an NAIA school, made it despite coming down with the chicken pox during the trials. Stockton, a guard from Gonzaga, also made the first cut.

But six members of the 1983 gold medal Pan American Games team were dropped from the original 72 invitees.

"Before we start playing here the coaches told us to not be surprised if some All-Americans and first-rounds draft choices don't make it," said guard Leon Wood of Fullerton State, who survived.

Pan Am players who didn't stick were Michael Cage of San Diego State, Ed Pinckney of Villanova, Charlie Sitton of Oregon State, Greg Stokes of Iowa, Mark Price of Georgia Tech and Fred Reynolds of Texas-El Paso.

"I was happy to hear my name called," said Michael Jordan of North Carolina, Player of the Year in college basketball this year.

Jordan was one of four first-team All-Americans to survive, joining Tar Heel teammate Sam Perkins, Patrick Ewing of Georgetown and Wayman Tisdale of Oklahoma.

The survivors played exhibition games Saturday night and play again Sunday night in the windup of the trials, which began Tuesday at Indiana University.

The next cuts will be made Monday, reducing the squad to 16-18.

Since Porter is ill and unable to play in the weekend games, he will be invited back for the May 10 Olympic camp along with the rest of Monday's survivors.

"We'll give him his two days then," said Coach Bobby Knight.

Porter, 6-foot-3, was an NAIA All-American and the most valuable player in the NAIA tournament, where he was the leading scorer with a 25.6-point average.

In making the choices, Knight and his staff and the selection committee gave strong consideration to players who can play two positions, guard and forward or forward and center.

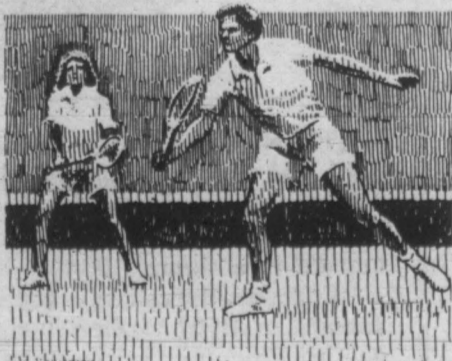

Sunday's sunshine and warm temperature made a perfect day for playing Frisbee. (McMahon photo)

Kodak to donate $250,000 to Olympic track team

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Hardly a week goes by that additional corporate funds are not poured into the United States Olympic effort for the Summer Games in Los Angeles.

The latest is from Eastman Kodak which will donate $250,000 toward expenses for the American track and field team. The money will come from a national promotion campaign in which the company will donate $1 for each for the first 250,000 customers who buy three rolls of amateur color still film, 12-exposure rolls not included. Each customer will also get a bonus roll.

Wilkins leads Hawks to 103-94 win over Milwaukee Bucks

ATLANTA (AP) — Dominique Wilkins scored 11 points in a third-quarter surge as the Atlanta Hawks downed the Milwaukee Bucks 103-94 in a National Basketball Association first-round playoff game Saturday.

The victory cut Milwaukee's lead to 2-1 in the best-of-five series that resumes in Atlanta Tuesday night.

Wilkins erased a 50-47 deficit 14 seconds into the second half with a three-point play to tie the score at 50-50. Midway through the third quarter, the Hawks built a 67-61 lead which they never relinquished.

The Hawks led 78-69 after three quarters. Eddie Johnson scored 10 of his 13 points in the fourth to keep the Bucks at bay.

The Hawks took their largest lead at 92-78 on a driving layup by Johnson with 7:39 remaining, then withstood a late Milwaukee charge that trimmed the lead to six points with 30 seconds remaining.

Dan Roundfield led Atlanta with 25 points, including 12 in the first seven minutes of play. Wilkins added 22 for the Hawks.

Marques Johnson had 28 and Sidney Moncrief 21 for the Bucks.

Seattle Supersonic pass Dallas Mavericks, 2-1, in best-of-five playoff series

SEATTLE (AP) — Jack Sikma scored 23 points and Gus Williams added 19 Saturday to lead the Seattle Supersonics to a 104-94 National Basketball Association playoff victory over Dallas for a 2-1 lead in their best-of-five series with the Mavericks.

Game No. 4 will be played in Seattle's Kingdome Tuesday night with a fifth game, if necessary, set for Dallas Thursday.

The Sonics, who gained a split of the first two games of the series in Dallas, trailed 57-52 at halftime. But Seattle came out fast in the second half, outscoring the Mavericks 11-2 in the first 2:50 of the third quarter for a 63-59 advantage.

A key in Seattle's victory was its defensive job on Mark Aguirre, Dallas' high-scoring forward, who had only five points in the second half before fouling out with 2:28 left in the game. Aguirre had 15 of his points in the first quarter.

Aguirre was shut out in a pivotal third quarter when Seattle went from a five-point intermission deficit to an 83-73 lead after three quarters.

The Sonics, who posted a glossy 32-9 home record during the regular season, got 17 rebounds from the 6-foot-11 Sikma and also got 18 points from Al Wood.

Rolando Blackman paced the Mavericks with 27.

Seattle went ahead to stay on Wood's three-point play, on a jump shot and a free throw, after a foul by Pat Cummings.

The Sonics stretched their lead to 77-65 with 3:10 remaining in the third quarter on a 10-foot shot by Sikma.

The Mavericks, who were 1-4 in regular season play against Seattle, made only nine field goal attempts in 40 tries in the second half after hitting 21 of 42 tries in the first half.

Tom Chambers added 16 points for the Sonics. Jay Vincent scored 16 and Cummings tallied 11 for Dallas.

The Sonics outrebounded Dallas 42-39. Vincent was the Mavericks' top rebounder with 10.

Bullets hold off Celtics fourth quarter surge with 111-108 victory

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — After frittering away a 15-point lead in the fourth quarter, the Washington Bullets kept their poise and stayed alive in the National Basketball Association playoffs Saturday.

Jeff Ruland and Frank Johnson sank two free throws apiece in the final nine seconds of overtime, clinching a 111-108 victory in the best-of-five series, which resumes on Washington's home court Tuesday night with Boston ahead 2-1.

"We should have had the game under control, but the Celtics played very good defense and came back," said Washington Coach Gene Shue. "We turned the ball over too many times and committed too many fouls."

Shue said he was concerned, "because anytime you lose a lead like that against a strong team, you don't know if you can regroup. But our guys hung in there."

Coach K.C. Jones of the Celtics said he was impressed by his team's staying power in the extended comeback.

"Normally, when you expend that much energy," Jones said, "you break down when you get within two or four points, and the other team busts loose. But it takes a lot to come back like we did, and we were tired going into overtime."

Rick Mahorn put the Bullets ahead 107-105 on a field goal with 37 seconds remaining, but Robert Parish of the Celtics missed the chance to forge another tie when he missed two foul shots with 22 seconds left.

Ruland, who tied his career playoff high of 33 points, converted his two free throws with nine seconds to play after a Boston turnover Johnson made his two shots before Dennis Johnson sank a three-pointer for Boston as time expired.

A 17-5 spurt at the start of the third quarter gave the Bullets a 65-64 lead and they led 81-66 early in the final period before the Celtics rallied behind Larry Bird and Parish.

A jumper by Parish with 21 seconds remaining in regulation tied the score 98-98, as Ruland was unable to get off a shot in the final five seconds, sending the game into overtime.

Bird scored 27 points for the Celtics, Johnson had 18 and McHale 15. Greg Ballard scored 18 for Washington, Johnson 16 and Mahorn 14 along with 15 rebounds.

Erving gets hot hand, Sixers stop Nets 108-100

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP)—Julius Erving scored 11 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter as the defending champion Philadelphia 76ers defeated the New Jersey Nets 108-100 Sunday to remain alive in the first round of the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Maurice Cheeks added 19 points as the 76ers cut the Nets lead in the best-of-five series, to 2-1. Moses Malone scored 15 of his 21 points in the last half. Andrew Toney added 17 points and Bobby Jones 14.

Erving sank a driving basket with one minute left and hit one of two free throws seconds later to lift the 76ers past the Nets. Cheeks intercepted a pass and converted it into a layup with 25 seconds left to give Philadelphia a 104-100 advantage.

Clint Richardson added a layup with 12 seconds to play after Erving made a steal. Erving closed out the scoring with two free throws with five seconds to play.

Buck Williams led New Jersey with 21 points and 17 rebounds, while Michael Ray Richardson added 16 points and 11 assists. Darryl Dawkins also had 16 points for the Nets, who will face the 76ers in Game Four Tuesday night.

The 76ers racked up their biggest lead in the third quarter, 76-69. But the Nets trimmed the deficit to 78-76 to start the fourth. The Nets led at halftime, 53-51 and 29-25 at the first quarter.

Guidesoff to an impressive start Maine 9 Syracuse 7

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Maine (AP)—Maine catcher Juan Espino knocked in the game winning runs as the Maine Guides downed the Syracuse Chiefs 9-7 Saturday in International League play.

Syracuse led 2-1 after two innings and drove Maine starting pitcher Roy Smith off the mound with a four-run uprising in the fifth.

With Maine leading 5-1 after a two-run homer by designated hitter Wil Culner in the fourth, the Chiefs put together four hits and a walk to tie the score.

Toby Hernandez popped a fly ball down the right field line for a double, A.J. Johnson grounded an infield hit to knock in a run and Manny Castillo looped a liner to right to tie the game.

Rich Barnes then came on for Maine and struck out Tim Thompson. But Al Woods grounded into a fielder's choice to put the Chiefs ahead 6-5. Syracuse tied the game in the eighth inning off reliever Bud Anderson.

Maine's Anderson was the winning pitcher. He now is 2-0. The Chiefs' Matt Williams was the losing pitcher. He now is 0-1.

Maine now is 7-2 overall, Syracuse 3-7. The Guides meet the Chiefs again Sunday in Old Orchard Beach.

Maine 11 Syracuse 0

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Maine (AP)—Centerfielder Dave Gallagher's bases-loaded triple highlighted a seven-run first inning as the Maine Guides pounded Syracuse 11-0 in International League baseball Sunday.

The Guides also scored one in the seventh and three in the eighth to back the pitching of starter Jerry Reed, who went all the way for his second win of the young season.

Luis Quinones started the Guides' rally with one out when he lined a double into right centerfield. Dwight Taylor followed with a walk, and Jim Wilson smashed a grounder through the legs of Syracuse third baseman Manny Castillo, scoring Quinones.

Later, after two straight walks made it 3-0, Gallagher tripled to push the margin to 6-0 and force Syracuse starter Bombardieri from the mound.

Bombardieri yielded seven unearned runs in two-thirds of an inning before giving way to reliever John Cerutti, who allowed an infield hit that scored the seventh Maine run.

Rodney Craig's sacrifice fly made it 8-0 in the seventh inning. And Maine pushed across three more in the eighth, with Karl Pagel's double, a key hit in that inning.

Reed gave up eight hits, while walking three and striking out six to gain the win.

Maine is now 8-2, while the Chiefs fall to 3-7.

The A's also scored an unearned run in the fourth on an error by Boston shortstop Glenn Hoffman, a single by Hill and a wild pitch by Brown, 0-2.

The 26-year-old Palmer, who has spent only two full seasons in the majors because of elbow surgery in 1980 and 1982, retired all 15 St. Louis batters — 11 grounders, one fly ball, two strikeouts and one line drive to the second baseman — in just his second appearance of the season. The game was halted with Montreal batting in the top of the sixth and called after a wait of an hour and 17 minutes.

New Jersey 14 Pittsburgh 10

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Herschel Walker and Maurice Carthon ran for fourth-quarter touchdowns in driving rain and the New Jersey Generals held off a last-minute Pittsburgh threat for a 14-10 victory over the Maulers on Sunday in the United States Football League.

Carthon ran 16 yards for the winning TD with 5:21 left after the Maulers opened up a 10-0 halftime lead with the help of three key Generals' turnovers.

The Maulers, with Glenn Carano throwing for two first downs, marched to a third-and-one at the Generals' two yard line with 45 seconds to go when Amos Lawrence was thrown for a 4-yard loss by cornerback Terry Daniels and linebacker Jim LeClair.

Carano's fourth down pass intended for Greg Anderson batted down by Greg Johnson in the end zone and the Generals ran out the clock.

Walker ran for 42 yards on seven carries and caught a 23-yard pass from Brian Sipe on a 73-yard Generals' scoring drive midway through the fourth quarter that cut the Maulers' lead to 10-7.

Walker, ending with 152 yards on 25 carries, ran 4 yards for the score with eight minutes left after grabbing Sipe's wobbly pass.

New Orleans 20 Denver 18

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Buffy Jordan ran for 182 yards and two touchdowns Sunday to lead the New Orleans Breakers to a 20-18 victory over the Denver Gold in a USFL game.

The Breakers narrowly avoided overtime and a possible loss when backup Gold quarterback Fred Mortenson hit Kevin Williams just out of the end zone on an abortive two-point conversion try that would have tied the game with 31 seconds left.

Jordan, in his third 100-yard game of the season, gained the most single-game yardage ever by a Breaker running back. The outcome left both teams with 7-2 records.

Jordan's touchdowns came on a nine-yard burst in the first quarter, and a 13-yard sprint in the third quarter.

Tim Mazzetti added field goals of 29 and 22 yards, getting his first one with 1:51 left in the first half and his second midway through the fourth quarter.

Most of Denver's points came off the toe of kicker Brian Speelman. Speelman kicked field goals of 39, 31, 26 and 34 yards.

Birmingham 41 Oklahoma 17

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Cliff Stoudt tied a United States Football League record with five touchdown passes as the Birmingham Stallions defeated the Oklahoma Outlaws 41-17 Saturday night for their eighth victory in a row.

The Outlaws, 6-3, fell out of a first place tie with Michigan in the Central Division.

Oklahoma's Doug Williams threw for two touchdowns and Efren Herrera kicked a field goal to give the Outlaws a 17-14 halftime lead, but the Stallions roped in the game with a pair of one-two punches in the second half.

With 34 seconds left in the third period, Stoudt passed 41 yards to Smith in the end zone. One minute later, after a Chuck Clanton interception, he combined with Jones on a 37-yard scoring play.

Stoudt completed 13 of 23 for 234 yards with no interceptions.

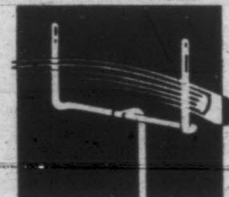

Houston 37 Arizona 24

HOUSTON (AP)—Houston quarterback Jim Kelly hit Richard Johnson with an 11-yard touchdown pass, and defensive end Pete Catan followed with a 58-yard return of a blocked field goal for a touchdown as the Gamblers downed the Arizona Wranglers 37-24 in a United States Football League game Saturday night.

The Gamblers, 6-3, had built a 24-3 lead early in the second quarter, but the Wranglers, 4-5, cut that to 24-10 on Tim Spencer's 25-yard run before halftime.

After Greg Landry connected with Trumaine Johnson on a 13-yard TD pass, Spencer's 2-yard scoring run with 30 seconds left in the third period tied the game 24-24.

Kelly completed three passes for 57 yards on the 80-yard scoring drive that put Houston on its way to its sixth win in nine games.
