Area artist honored at Franco-American party

by Cathy Stanley
Staff Writer

The second annual Franco-American Soiree held Saturday night at Wells Commons honored Bernard Langlais, a well-known artist from Old Town.

Helen Langlais, wife of the deceased painter and sculptor, attended the evening party and said she was pleased her husband was chosen to be honored.

Six wood reliefs from the Langlais home were exhibited in the Wells Commons lounge, along with two paintings from his earlier days which his wife said show a great difference in his style.

Once he started working with wood in 1957, Langlais stopped painting on canvas and strictly used paper to paint on or wood for his sculptures, she said.

Langlais sold works all over the country and collectors including Vincent Price and the Rockefellers own some of his pieces, said Pat Crowley, York Commons cafeteria supervisor and Franco-American Society member.

Crowley said Langlais was a perfect person to honor for the soiree because it was a chance to honor a Franco-American from the Old Town area.

Crowley said the Franco-American group is looking into the possibility of getting one of Langlais' sculptures put in the lobby of the Maine Center for the Arts.

There is the possibility of the sculpture being donated, but if not they will try to raise the money to purchase the piece, Crowley said.

Langlais said there was a great deal of enthusiasm for the idea of putting one of her husband's sculptures in the building but that she had not been formally contacted by members of the university.

"It's a wonderful idea and I'm all for it, but nothing has been decided yet," Langlais said.

Although Langlais said there had been no definite action concerning the sculpture, the piece she would like to see in the lobby is a 23-foot sculpture of a standing bear on a cement base.

The sculpture is valued at $90,000 and arrangements would have to be made to transport it to campus she said.

Langlais said she feels this piece would be appropriate for UMO because the bear theme is the university mascot.

Her husband also had UMO in mind when he made the sculpture, she said, but the sculpture in front of the Memorial Gymnasium was donated and his was not needed at the time.

There are currently 50 Langlais sculptures situated outside of the Langlais home which will eventually deteriorate, she said.

Yearly maintenance including a coating of clear preservative is done to prolong the life of the outdoor sculptures, she said, and she is trying to get them under cover for protection.

One other sculpture which is being considered is a piece which includes five bears, Crowley said.

Langlais estimated the worth of that piece at $150,000.

Orono Research Park Issues New Study

by Rebecca Smith
Staff Writer

Cost estimates of completing the Maine Research and Development Park were the topic of the annual park corporation meeting Tuesday.

Rainer Suletzki, executive director of the park, said the completion of the park will take about five to seven years. The total investment to build the park by the town of Orono is estimated at $473,884, he said. This estimate includes the principal investment plus the interest over a 10-year period.

The park, located between the Interstate 95 Stillwater Avenue exit and Bennoch Road, consists of 33 acres and is subdivided into eight units.

Since the defeat of a bond issue in November, the park has had to reconsider how it is going to fund construction of facilities, Rainer said.

When the park is completed it will have 27.55 sellable acres and the town's investment is estimated at $17,200 per acre.

The facilities to be constructed include: a forest production research center, a food research center for Maine, a high-technology telecommunication and teleconference network and a federal research laboratory.

"The park has been looking into getting both public and private funds.

One idea is to hire a master developer who would have the capital to finance building facilities. Suletzki said the park is currently interviewing possible master developers.

In the park board of directors meeting directly following the corporation meeting, new officers were elected.

Study shows increase in professors' salaries

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS) — Professors' salaries — after more than a decade of freezes and declines — rose for the second year in a row this school year.

College teachers got average raises of 6.1 percent over last year, a real gain after inflation of 2.5 percent, a nationwide study by the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) released last week found.

Raises last year also amounted to 2.5 percent after inflation, but budget cuts and the hyperinflation of the seventies had actually left the average college professor able to buy less than he or she could in 1971.

Even after this year's raises, professors' earning power is only 86 percent of what it was in 1971, says Maryse Eymonerie, a consultant to the AAUP, which is the nation's third-largest college faculty union.

"We still have catching up to do, but we are certainly pleased with the last two years," adds the AAUP's Iris Molotsky.

Full professors now make an average of $42,500 a year, the survey found.

Many administrators earlier in the school year predicted they'll need to keep raising tuition an average of seven percent a year through the rest of the decade in order to raise money to help pay faculty members more.

The AAUP and others in the academic community thank the school reform movement, a growing shortage of certain kinds of professors and the general improvement in the American economy for the raises.

"I would say the decrease of inflation is the most significant factor behind reversing the decline of buying power," says Perry Robinson of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT), another major professors' union.

"6.1 percent is no big deal," he says. "If the figure were nine or 10 percent, I would say you could conclude there was a conscious effort to reverse the decline in faculty salaries."

And still the raises aren't enough to draw top-quality people to college teaching, others add.

"We are not getting as many of the best and the brightest we used to," maintains Terry Madonna, president of the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties.

Madonna says Pennsylvania's legislature agreed to raise salaries by nine percent because they realized state schools were losing talented people and, perhaps more forcefully, because "we threatened to go on strike."

The AFT's Robinson believes the school reform movement — often expressed as a nebulous concern for course "excellence" — may have helped inspire the raises in California, if not everywhere.

Teachers on the 19 campuses of California State University received a 10 percent raise last year, followed by a nine percent hike this year.

"The California Legislature has been generous the last few years," observes Paul Worthman of the California Faculty Association.

Study

But Worthman warns the increases are being used as bait by trustees, who are trying to wrest more control from faculty members over how campuses are run.

As part of their proposal to raise salaries by 6.8 percent next year, for example, Cal State's trustees suggested procedural changes in the way they could award bonuses and make promotions without consulting faculty members as rigorously as they do now.

In Colorado, legislators are offering higher salaries in return for closer control over the kinds of courses and graduate programs certain state campuses offer.

Nevertheless, "I don't see 'quid pro quo' (the practice, in this case, of trading campus influence for higher salaries) as a national trend," Robinson says.

Moreover, professors in some states, particularly those dependent on the depressed energy economy, won't be getting raises at all.

Louisiana professors, for example, have had only one raise in four years, and the higher education budget could be cut by another 20 percent next year, reports Horace Fairlamb of the Louisiana Federation of Teachers.

The new president of the board is George Gonyar, who won by a four to three vote. Gonyar is filling the spot previously occupied by James F. Horan.

David Trefethen was elected for another year as treasurer, while Madeline R. Freeman was elected to another term as secretary. Trefethen is also chairman of the Orono Town Council and associate director for engineering services at UMO.

Lebanon rocked by two car bombs, killing 11

JOUNIEH, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb exploded in the main square of this Christian port while it was packed with lunch-hour crowds Tuesday, killing at least 10 people and wounding 110.

The blue BMW sedan blew up only 50 yards from offices of President Amin Gemayel's Phalange Party, set 25 cars ablaze and damaged buildings 500 yards away. It was the latest in a series of bombings in Christian areas since mid-January.

In south Lebanon, a suicide bomber drove an explosive-laden car into a checkpoint manned by Israeli-backed militiamen, killing himself and wounding six people, Lebanon's state radio reported. It was the first suicide bombing reported this year in what Israel calls its security zone.

Radios reported 16 people were killed in the Chouf Mountain village of Bsaba, southeast of Beirut, in a clan feud between Sunni Moslems and Druse warriors from rival villages.

Prime Minister Rashid Karami, a Sunni Moslem opposed to the Maronite Catholic president, called the Jounieh bombing "treacherous" and declared: "It's always the innocent people who are the victims."

Youssef Bitar, a top police explosives expert, said about 165 pounds of explosives were packed inside the sedan. It blew up at 1:05 p.m., the height of the lunch break.

Police said 10 charred bodies were pulled from the rubble of two high-rise office buildings that took the brunt of the blast. They house banks, beauty parlors, clinics and shopping precincts.

Water pipes were ripped open, flooding the glass-strewn square where rescuers dug through the rubble looking for survivors.

Jumpy Christian militiamen, fearing more bombs, fired bursts from automatic rifles and several rocket-propelled grenades into the air to clear paths for ambulances.

Christian radio stations broadcast lists of the casualties. Police say about 1,190 people have been killed and more than 2,500 wounded this year in Lebanon's political and sectarian warfare. Jounieh, 13 miles north of Beirut, is the main Christian outlet to the Mediterranean and generally has been spared during 11 years of civil war. Most bombings of Christian targets have been aimed at offices of Gemayel's party in Christian east Beirut.

No one claimed responsibility for the Jounieh blast, as usual in bombings in Christian areas. The Phalange has blamed loyalists of Elie Hobeika, Gemayel's main Christian rival, for earlier bomb attacks.

Waldheim revises past: biography includes war

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Former U.N. chief Kurt Waldheim, accused by Jewish groups of hiding a Nazi past, has revised his official biography to include his years as a German officer in the Balkans during World War II, his campaign office said Tuesday.

Waldheim is a candidate in Austria's May 4 presidential election.

In his biography and in interviews, Waldheim had not mentioned serving in the Balkans and only confirmed it this year when allegations against him surfaced. Like thousands of other Austrians, Waldheim was drafted into the German army at the start of World War II.

Peter Marboe, Waldheim's spokesman, said the added information was phoned last week to the Federal Press Service, a non-partisan agency that issues government material and keeps official records.

Reached by telephone, Marboe read the added information to The Associated Press.

It said: "In December 1941 he (Waldheim) was wounded on the East Front and was no longer fit for combat service on the front thereafter.

"In April 1942 he was transferred to the Balkans and came to Arsakli in Greece as interpreter in summer 1942. Later, in April 1943, he became active as Ordonnanzoffizier (Assistant Adjutant) with Army Group E.

"In between Dr. Waldheim had, on study leaves, a chance to continue his law studies. In 1944 he graduated as doctor of law. He subsequently returned to Army Group E and came back to the homeland (Austria) in May 1945."

The World Jewish Congress has accused Waldheim of hiding his past membership in a German army unit implicated in war atrocities and the deportation of 12,000 Greek Jews to Nazi death camps. The congress has also accused him of being a former member of Hitler's storm troopers, which Waldheim has denied.

Waldheim has repeatedly denied hiding anything about his service with the German army and has said he had never heard about or seen deportations of Greek Jews.

Nevada nuclear test delayed by problems

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A nuclear weapons test scheduled for today at the vast Nevada Test Site was delayed, federal officials said.

The delay was disclosed by an Energy Department official who insisted on anonymity.

An administration official in Washington, also speaking on condition of anonymity, said the test had been postponed for technical reasons. The official refused to characterize the nature of the problem or say whether a new date had been selected for the test.

The source said a protest at the site by members of the Greenpeace organization had not affected the decision, nor had there been any weather problems.

Challenge dismissed in UPI agency sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal bankruptcy judge on Tuesday dismissed a challenge to United Press International's reorganization plan, moving the sale of the news agency to a Mexican newspaper publisher one step closer to fruition.

Judge George Francis Bason Jr. denied an objection filed by UPI's chief stockholders, Douglas Ruhe and William Geissler.

Emil Hirsch, a lawyer for Ruhe and Geissler's Media News Corp., argued that UPI management did not have the authority, without their approval, to file a plan of reorganization. Bason ruled to the contrary.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes refused to discuss reasons for the test postponement except to say it was unrelated to U.S.-Soviet relations or planning for a summit.

The test had been scheduled the same day President Reagan met with departing Soviet ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

The Soviet Union has maintained a unilateral test moratorium, and the U.S. decision to continue nuclear testing has become a major issue between the two nations. The Reagan administration says the Soviets imposed the moratorium because they had completed their own tests; Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev has said the Soviets would resume testing if the United States did not join the ban.

Ruhe and Geissler, along with a consortium headed by an unsuccessful bidder for UPI — Financial News Network — have tried repeatedly to block the sale of the news service to a partnership headed by Mario Vazquez Rana, a Mexican newspaper publisher.

Hirsch said he did not know whether his clients would appeal Bason's ruling or whether Media News Corp. would file its own reorganization plan for UPI.

The reorganization plan filed jointly by UPI management, the Wire Service Guild and a committee of UPI's creditors calls for Vazquez Rana's partnership to buy the news agency for an estimated $41 million.

NEWS BRIEFS

Maine Yankee bill suffers huge defeat.

AUGUSTA (AP) — By a lopsided margin Tuesday, Maine's House of Representatives killed a bill calling for another referendum on whether to shut down the Maine Yankee nuclear power plant, although proponents said anti-nuclear groups will launch a petition drive to force one anyway.

"There is no doubt in my mind that we're going to have a referendum on this," said Rep. James Reed Coles, D-Harpswell, one of three members of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee who had supported the bill.

But the House, following the lead of the Senate a day earlier, decided someone besides the Legislature would have to put the question on the ballot.

The vote to kill the bill was 109 to 28.

Miami policeman found with cocaine

MIAMI (AP) — A Metro-Dade policeman who recruits new officers at high schools was arrested with about $100,000 worth of cocaine in his gym bag and charged with dealing the drug, authorities said.

Robert Quintero, 23, and three men with whom police say he made a transaction Monday night, were charged with trafficking cocaine, possession with intent to distribute and conspiracy to traffic cocaine.

Metro-Dade Police Cmdr. Bill Johnson said Quintero had been relieved of duty two weeks ago for reasons the department refused to reveal.

U.S. blames Arafat for terrorist acts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese said Tuesday that the United States will hold Palestine Liberation Organization Chief Yasser Arafat accountable for acts of international terrorism.

In a speech to the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, a pro-Israel lobbying group, Meese said that "we know that various elements of the PLO and its allies and affiliates are in the thick of international terror."

Later, Justice Department spokesman Patrick Korten said that Meese was not suggesting that the United States would necessarily pursue Arafat through legal channels.

In his speech, Meese said that members of certain foreign governments that support terrorism are involved in drug trafficking.

Summer orientation

The elimination of UMO's freshman summer orientation program is just another example of a hasty administrative decision.

The decision was made to eliminate the summer program in favor of a fall orientation program. In the fall, freshman must come to campus four or five days before the arrival of the upper-classmen. The target date for the expanded fall orientation program would be Aug. 28 or 29.

UMO's summer orientation program has been recognized nationally as one of the top programs for introducing freshman to college life.

It seems the people most involved in the functions of the orientation program were not contacted for input on whether or not to change the program.

Lillian Stone, resident director of York Village, in charge of the orientation program for the last five years, said in a The Daily Maine Campus article she was notified the program was being dropped only after she had informed people they had summer orientation jobs.

Switching the program from the summer to the fall will cause many problems for incoming students, faculty and Residential Life staff.

One of the reasons for the change was that incoming freshman would have a chance to meet with faculty advisors. However, faculty are contracted to begin work on Sept. 1.

The administration is taking for granted the faculty will return before the date specified in their contracts. Also overlooked is whether faculty will feel obligated to comply without compensation.

A problem that has plagued UMO students is the conflict of starting classes shortly after Labor Day and the end of summer jobs. Many employers, especially those on the Maine coast, count on having student employees for the busy tourist weekend. Some employers even make a Labor Day obligation criteria for hiring. This problem may be amplified if students have to report to campus on Aug. 28.

Residential Life staff will also have to arrive early to prepare for the new students. Joyce Hedlund in a Campus article said academics will be stressed in the fall program. How much time can be allotted for academics? Remaining programs will become the burden of Residential Life, namely resident assistants and directors, who will be responsible for keeping freshman busy five days before classes start.

To have a successful fall orientation there must be cooperation among the people involved with students on a one-to-one basis. It seems these people have been overlooked in this decision to drop a successful program and to develop a new one in four months. Maybe the 1987-88 academic year would be a better time to implement this program.

JERRY TOURIGNY

A night at the library

A night in the library. One of those infrequent, but every now and then, mandatory outings to the academic palace that one pursuing an advanced education must endure in order to enhance one's intelligence. If nothing else, the excursions tend to improve one's skill at Trivial Pursuit.

But such visits do not always, for one reason or another, prove as fruitful as planned. Sometimes, the trips can become nightmares of frustration, driving one across the way to the Bears' Den. Sometimes everything can go wrong.

Armed with a two-day deadline for a research paper that had long been put off, I began the evening ambitiously filing through the index catalogue.

With a list of nine books and their corresponding Dewey Decimals, I began my quest for knowledge in the book stacks.

One and a half hours later, six were nowhere to be found and the remaining three were located on the second floor Spacemaster Systems stacks. These are the new modernized stacks which conserve space. Press a button, and the stacks separate allowing a student to get to the middle stacks. The wonder of technology.

On this night, technology failed the human race.

Unable to obtain any of the books needed for the research paper, I turned my thoughts to an upcoming preliminary exam, for which there were eight unread chapters.

Pressed for time and hoping to achieve deep thought, I located myself in the farthest corner of the third floor and dove into the text.

Just a few however, I was flustered concentration clattering coming lounge chair.

Commentary

Reagan's budget u

President Ronald Reagan's FY 1987 budget reaffirms the Administration's lack of support for students across the country. The President's State of the Union address presented a theme of "Back to the Future" with the solution for improving education as vouchers, prayers and back to basics.

The United States Students Association, representing students attending post-secondary institutions across the country, thinks the basic ingredient for ensuring access, choice and opportunity for millions of current and future students is a commitment to prioritize and fund education programs.

The budget calls for a $3.2 billion cut from the FY 1986 approved appropriation's bill — a combination of Gramm-Rudman sequesters, shortfalls, program cuts, new guidelines and projections.

The cuts are justified by the Department of Education as "minimal," since federal funds "only provide seven percent of the total expenditures for education." It is that seven percent that has represented the federal commitment to providing the opportunity of students to b secondary education.

USSA asks what future generations priority of the Administration the FY 1987 budget balance with mass defense budget and the education budget.

ERRY TOURIGNY

A night at the library

Just a few brief moments later, however, I was flustered out of my intense concentration by a thunderous clattering coming from an adjacent lounge chair.

There, with a 3-pound bag of peanut M&M's, was a gargantuan young lady shoveling the round little bits of sweets down her throat. With the bag just recently opened, and her jaws working in overdrive, I thought it best to relocate.

But even that didn't improve the worsening academic evening. Two changes of cubicles did not stem the emerging reality that most of those at the library did not have any work to do. Rather it was a social affair, without the wine and cheese of course. There are rules against eating and drinking.

With the evening a total bust, I decided to amuse myself and glance through Sport's Illustrated's swimsuit issue from a few years back which featured Christie Brinkley in a fishnet bathing suit.

After rummaging through the old issues of SI for a considerable amount of time, I finally found the issue. To my utter disappointment, some vermin had ripped the swimsuit pages out.

It was only with deep anger and frustration that I decided to get some satisfaction and feeling of revenge on the evening.

With a 2-pound bag of ripple potato chips I returned to the third floor. I returned to the corner where the M&M's girl sat. I returned and made as much noise as possible. The racket drove everyone out, including the plump one. Yes, revenge is sweet. Especially when you get it after a night at the library.

New Hampshire group to fight dump sites

To the editor:

We come before you today in the form of this letter to discuss the very controversial issue of the storing of high level nuclear waste material in our state by the Department of Energy.

The proposal is totally insane. We as concerned citizens of New Hampshire cannot allow this criminal act to be perpetrated against New England. There are, in New England, groups and committees being organized to fight this very serious problem.

While people in these organizations are working diligently, we feel they do not grasp the complete magnitude of the situation, letting monetary and material values lead their priorities.

The beautiful state of New Hampshire is also known as the "Granite State." Granite is the symbol of our great state and of our motto. It is the very foundation of New Hampshire.

It is now being considered as a coffin for the horror man has conceived and does not yet fully understand. Making a nuclear graveyard out of New Hampshire and of New England is indeed an insane proposal. It will be a graveyard that will haunt coming generations for 100,000 years.

A 100,000-year nightmare is what the DOE wants us to bestow on our future children. We in HAVOC say those children do not deserve that. To allow the DOE to sink its "Death Hole" in the bosom of our state would indeed be a great injustice to it and to the generations that will follow.

It is to these generations that we have our obligations. Placed on our shoulders is a great burden, a burden we cannot allow our children, our grandchildren and our grandchildren's children to bear.

We cannot afford to worry what this nuclear dump proposal is costing us today. We must concentrate all our efforts on what the effect will be on our future generations and the price it will cost them in their future as it becomes reality. Before we allow the DOE to condemn New Hampshire to hell, which in turn will condemn New England to hell, we have to organize all of New England.

The formation of a singular organization made up of all these task forces is what is needed. HAVOC was formed to bring about that ideal.

Unite all groups and organizations into one powerful negotiating unit. We ask that the student body of your school help in its formation and development, so it will be able to grow strong enough to support you when you will need it, as it now needs you and to see that it grows strong enough to support New Hampshire, indeed strong enough to support all of New England.

HAVOC is the name we have chosen for this organization, standing for "Have a Voice Organized Citizens," with the emphasis being on "organized budget undercuts students

providing the opportunity for millions of students to benefit from a post-secondary education.

USSA asks why the investment in future generations of students is not a priority of the Administration. Under the guise of "balancing the budget," the FY 1987 budget appears very out of balance with massive increases in the defense budget and devastating cuts in the education budget.

Students and the funding for domestic programs has not caused this massive deficit, yet student aid programs are being disproportionately hit through both the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings FY 1986 sequester and the FY 1987 budget proposals.

Beneath the rhetoric of "shared risk" and "new initiatives" are proposals which drastically reduce the opportunities for millions of current and future students. The deficit reduction process is further increasing the debt of every potential Guaranteed Student Loan borrower by a combination of measures that will have a major impact on future decisions of every student.

Secretary Bennett is concerned about the teacher shortage yet proposes a budget that will force students to forego certain professions, majors and careers to re-pay their loan commitments.

This budget proposal has the potential to totally disrupt decisions of millions of current and future students — those students filling out student aid applications and admissions applications this month. The confusion, chaos, and real cuts under consideration send a clear message to students across the country that their future is not a top national priority.

Cutting 290,000 students out of the Pell Grant program through a 10 percent cut for academic year 1986-87 and altering the definition for independent students to 23 or over unless an orphan or ward of the court effective in July 1986 is just the tip of the iceberg.

Railroad strike looms for six major carriers

DETROIT (AP) — A railroad workers union said Tuesday it would strike six major rail carriers Thursday, alleging they provided secret financial help to a strikebound small railroad.

The Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees, which represents 90,000 railroad workers in the United States, also said it had filed a lawsuit in a federal court against the Association of American Railroads and the American Short Line Railroad Association.

The lawsuit alleges railroads belonging to the Washington D.C.-based associations participated in a "covert mutual-aid arrangement to provide help to the Maine Central Railroad and the Portland Terminal Co.," the union said.

The organizations said there is no basis for the charge.

The railroad and yard are owned by Guilford Transportation Industries Inc., a North Billerica, Mass., company that provides rail service over a 4,000-mile system, mainly in New England.

The railroads targeted by the strike are the Norfolk and Southern, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Chesapeake and Ohio, Baltimore and Ohio, and Pittsburgh and Lake Erie rail lines, the union said.

BMW President Ole M. Berge said the strike would last until other railroads stopped helping Guilford. The strike by the BMW, whose workers maintain rights of way, would affect rail operations nationally, he said.

Inaccurate urine tests cause false drug charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Pigments in dark-skinned people are chemically similar to marijuana and may lead to wrongful accusations of marijuana use based on inaccurate urine tests, according to a chemist who testifies frequently in court cases concerning drug abuse.

James Woodford of Atlanta said the pigment, melanin, breaks down into fragments in the urine that are chemically similar to the active ingredient in marijuana.

In very sensitive urine tests, melanin can produce positive results in people who have not used marijuana, Woodford said in a telephone interview Tuesday.

Melanin is present in everyone, but it is present in higher levels in blacks and Hispanics, for example, than in whites, Woodford said. Dark-skinned people are therefore more likely than others to be wrongly accused of marijuana use, he said.

Last month Woodford testified in Cleveland in the case of a group of police cadets who tested positive for marijuana use a month before their graduation from the police academy.

Ten of 20 black and Hispanic cadets tested positive for marijuana use and 3 of 23 white cadets were positive, Woodford said. He filed an affidavit suggesting that melanin was responsible for the larger percentage of positives among the blacks and Hispanics. He said the case has not yet been resolved.

Weinberger's Thailand trip: cheers, jeers and a bomb

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger drew cheers on a border tour and protest in the capital Tuesday, then had his dinner plans changed by a bomb explosion in a hotel parking lot.

The bomb, which wounded three people, went off about 15 feet from where Weinberger was to have passed 90 minutes later on his way to a state dinner at the government-owned Erawan Hotel given by Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanonda.

Officials moved the reception and dinner to the Hilton Hotel, where the defense secretary was staying.

The U.S. Embassy said Weinberger's delegation had no comment on the explosion. Foreign Minister Siddhi Savetsila told reporters that the secretary shrugged it off with this comment at the private dinner: "Thailand is one of the safest places in the world. It's safer than New York."

Earlier Tuesday, Weinberger toured the tense Thai-Cambodian border and got a rousing welcome from villagers who have suffered from border battles between Cambodian rebels and Vietnamese forces that occupy the neighboring country.

His trip to the frontier province of Surin was regarded as a demonstration of U.S. support for Thailand against hostile, Soviet-backed neighbors in Indochina.

Optimistic Clint Eastwood waits for election results

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, Calif. (AP) — Hollywood tough-guy Clint Eastwood voted in a church and went to tea Tuesday, optimistic that residents of this tourist village would make his day by electing him mayor.

Eastwood, veteran of more than 40 movies and one of the world's top box-office draws, voted early at the All Saints Episcopal Church, surrounded by dozens of reporters and photographers from around the world.

Business was reported brisk at all four polling places in the one-square-mile community.

"It's a very high turnout," among the 4,124 registered voters, city clerk Jeanne Brehmer said late in the morning. "I was predicting 60 percent yesterday but now it looks like it might be 65 to 70 percent with nice weather and all the people coming out early."

Ms. Brehmer said that in her five years as clerk, voter turnout has not exceeded 30 percent.

Eastwood, best known for his spaghetti westerns and detective films like "Dirty Harry," attended a private tea with residents after he voted, while supporters scurried to get voters to the polls.

The star made plans for a victory party, but did not issue any predictions.

Eastwood, 55, was making his first try for office against two-time incumbent Mayor Charlotte Townsend, a 61-year-old retired librarian, and Timothy Grady, a 27-year-old dishwasher who said he wanted to tear up some streets in favor of horse trails.

Dean shooting suspect goes to trial in Auburn

AUBURN (AP) — The lawyer for Cain Rollins, the former Bates College student charged with attempted murder, argued Tuesday that evidence will suggest someone else could have shot the school's dean last October.

Lewiston attorney Jack Simmons told the Superior Court jury that Rollins possessed neither a weapon nor a motive, and could not have known that Dean James W. Carignan would be sitting at the kitchen table at the time he was shot.

But in her opening arguments, District Attorney Janet Mills said Rollins had "intended to kill" Dean James W. Carignan because he had told the student he should withdraw from school because of misconduct.

Carignan was shot in the back around 7:30 p.m. last Oct. 21 as he sat at the kitchen table of his Lewiston home and pored over paper work. The assailant crept up on the porch and fired a .22-caliber handgun through the window in the door.

The bullet narrowly missed Carignan's heart, but he returned to work in January.

Rollins, 20, the captain of the Bates swim team last year, was a former high school honor student who once won a writing award for an essay in support of gun control, Simmons said.

Last fall, he was caught forging checks, and the matter went to Carignan, who handles disciplinary cases, the lawyer explained. Rollins and the dean agreed to discuss the student's future at Bates when the students returned from vacation.

But Mills said Rollins' motive was that the dean had told him "it was no longer appropriate for him to be at the college."

Islanders can't be counted out in NHL's Stanley Cup chase

by the Associated Press
Billy Smith is taking off his beard and putting on his game face this week.

"I'm not superstitious anymore, the beard's coming off," the New York Islanders' goaltender said as he prepared for the opening round of the Stanley Cup playoffs Wednesday night.

In past years, the Islander veteran wouldn't shave during the playoffs as a superstition. He sported a beard in the final weeks of the National Hockey League season, but apparently doesn't think the Islanders will need any extra luck in their first-round Patrick Division playoff game with the Washington Capitals.

"We're playing pretty strong hockey," said Smith, whose Islanders secured third place in the Patrick Division with a couple of weeks left in the season. "Almost everybody's healthy. I'm pretty confident. There's a good feeling going this year."

The Islanders, of course, were the last team to win the Stanley Cup before the Edmonton Oilers, this year's overwhelming favorites.

"The Islanders are always going to be there," said veteran Bernie Federko of the St. Louis Blues. "I think both the Philadelphia Flyers and Washington Capitals have to be a little leary to play the Islanders because of their experience, because of all the know-how."

New Jersey Coach Doug Carpenter agrees.

"You have to take a long look at the Islanders," Carpenter said. "A lot depends on the shape that Philadelphia and Washington are in," after their down-to-the-wire battle for the Patrick

Division championship. "The Islanders are one of the best teams I've seen or scouted all year."

The Capitals should be leery for another reason: For the last three years, the Islanders have knocked them out of the playoffs with first-round defeats.

As good as the Oilers are, they have yet to accomplish what the Islanders did with four straight Stanley Cups (1980-83) and five straight Stanley Cup final appearances. The Oilers have won the Cup the last two years.

"I think the Oilers can be beaten," says Islanders defenseman Steve Konroyd, who was acquired this season from the Calgary Flames.

"They haven't really proved that they can dominate like the Islanders did. With all the talent around, it's going to be a tough year for them. If they can repeat, you have to look at them as one of the great hockey dynasties. But until they do, they're just a very talented hockey team. They can be beaten, they lost to Calgary 9-3 (last Friday night), so they have weaknesses, too."

Islanders captain Denis Potvin thinks the Oilers will have a tough time in their own Smythe Division, especially with runner-up Calgary.

"The Oilers are not going to walk through out west," Potvin said. "I feel much more optimistic about our chances. I just hope the team plays together."

With 88 points, the Islanders surpassed their regular-season performance of last year when they also finished third in the Patrick Division. Their performance improved noticeably this season

High school's best players making college choices

The Associated Press
Most of the nation's top high school basketball seniors already are committed to the colleges of their choice, and those that haven't can sign their national letters of intent starting Wednesday.

The signing period will extend through May 15. The early signing period was November.

J.R. Reid, 6-foot-10 from Virginia Beach, Va., who tops all the scouting reports, recently decided on North Carolina.

Rumeal Robinson, 6-2, of Patrick Ewing's alma mater, Rindge-Latin High School in Cambridge, Mass., verbally committed to Michigan.

Among the leading players not yet set are 6-6 Chris Brooks of Oak Hill Academy in Mouth of Wilson, Va., 6-6 Lionel Simmons of Southern HS, Philadelphia, and 6-1 Mark Tillmon of Gonzaga HS, Washington D.C.

Villanova and West Virginia are considered Brooks' top choices. Simmons could stay home at either St. Joseph's, La Salle or Villanova, although Wake Forest was reported still in the running. Georgetown is favored to win Tillmon's signature.

Kirk Manns, 6-1, of North Judson HS, the leading scorer in Indiana the past two years, who verbally opted for Michigan State on Monday, will make it formal Wednesday. Already he is being compared to Michigan State star Scott Skiles, a product of Plymouth, Ind.

Manns scored 1,932 points in his career, averaging 33.1 points as a junior and 34.2 as a senior.

"He's a good shooter, he does things like Skiles," said Dave McCollough, Manns' high school coach. "He's a Skiles-type player."

Eddie Bird, 6-7, brother of the Boston Celtics' Larry Bird, is expected to decide among Evansville, Indiana State, where Larry starred, and Boston College.

NCAA champion Louisville has verbal commitments from two other top Indiana players — 6-4 Mark Lenoir of Indianapolis Broad Ripple and 6-5 Craig Hawley of Noblesville.

Rod Grosse, 6-11, of Irondale, Minn., the top player in his state, is expected to decide between Marquette and Minnesota.

Arkansas Coach Nolan Richardson, whose first year in the Southwest Conference proved to be tough one, is hoping to turn things around with Tennessee athletes. He already has landed 6-6 Ron Huery of Memphis Whitehaven HS and 6-0 Cannon Whitby of Obion County Central in Troy, who has been hailed as "the best shot to come out of Tennessee since Davy Crockett." Larry Marks, 6-7, of Columbia HS, would give Richardson his third Tennessean.

Memphis State, which signed Sylvester Gray, 6-6 of Bolton HS in Arlington, Tenn., appears to have the inside track on 6-2 Cheyenne Gibson of Memphis Westwood HS.

Karl James, 6-4, of Dunbar HS, one of the best players in Baltimore, could wind up at Nevada-Las Vegas, where his brother Frank played. Quinton Burton, 6-5, of Columbia HS, Columbia, Md., is expected to follow through on his verbal commitment to Providence.

Rodney Taylor, 6-7 of A.C. Flora HS in Columbia, S.C. verbally committed to Villanova.

Wynegar, Guidry lead Yanks to 4-2 win over K.C.

NEW YORK (AP) — Butch Wynegar hit a three-run homer to lead Ron Guidry and the New York Yankees to a 4-2 opening-day victory Tuesday over the World Series champion Kansas City Royals.

Guidry, 22-6 last year and making his seventh opening-day start for the Yankees, left after five innings with a strained calf muscle in his right leg. He allowed two runs, both on Hal McRae's fourth-inning homer, and two hits while striking out five and walking one. It was good enough to earn the left-hander Guidry his first victory in a season opener against two losses and four no-decisions.

Wynegar, who had only five homers last season, hit his three-run shot in the second inning off Bud Black, 10-15 last year.

Gooden picks up where he left off, 4-2 victory

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dwight Gooden survived R.J. Reynolds' lead-off homer in the first inning to pitch a six-hitter and Keith Hernandez drove in two runs as the New York Mets beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 Tuesday night in a mutual baseball opener.

Gooden, the major leagues' youngest Cy Young Award winner last year when he was 24-4, wasn't overpowering, striking out six while walking one. But he checked the Pirates on just one run after Reynolds' homer as the Mets took advantage of unusual wildness by Pittsburgh right-hander Rick Reuschel.

Reuschel, last year's comeback player of the year when he was 14-8 after beginning the year in the minors, walked six and struck out five in 6 1/2 innings until being lifted after Hernandez's RBI single.

"I think it's easy to see that this team is ready for the playoffs," Islanders goaltender Kelly Hurdy said. "For the first 40 games we were very inconsistent and didn't do anything right. We just sort of coasted through."

"But the last 40 games or so, we've been quite good. (In their last 35 games, the Islanders were 20-12-3). The last month and a half, we've been strong in every area. The trade (Tonelli for Konroyd and Kromm) only shored up our defense and we are without a doubt one of the strongest teams defensively now and our goals-against average has dropped a lot, too."

In other first-round action in the Patrick, the Philadelphia Flyers will take on the New York Rangers. The two-time champion Oilers will face Vancouver in a first-round Smythe meeting, while Calgary will play Winnipeg.
