Third UMO student seeks seat in House

by Jon Rummler
Staff Writer

A third UMO student has announced his campaign for a seat in the Maine House of Representatives.

Bob Trippe, a junior business major, will run on the Republican ticket against District 131 second-term incumbent John Cashman, D-Old Town. UMO students Paula Ashton and Gary Higgins previously unveiled campaign plans against Reps. John Bott, R-Orono, and Stephen Bost, D-Orono.

Trippe, a presidential candidate in this semester's General Student Senate election, said Sunday he will pursue a platform which will focus mainly on the concerns of UMO, local residents and area businesses.

"I think ... as a student, I can address the University of Maine System's issues," Trippe said. "As someone who's worked with the administration and students, I feel qualified as that type of spokesman."

"It's very important that there is someone who can work well between District 131 and the University of Maine. I've built a business foundation in Old Town and that has kept me in touch with business issues," he said.

Cashman, who graduated from UMO in 1973 with a degree in public administration, has since served Old Town as a city councilor and mayor. He said he plans to let his past accomplishments — as a member of the state's taxation committee — aid his campaign.

Six convicted of trespassing at June rally

by M.C. Davis and Ken Brack
Staff Writers

A Superior Court jury Friday found three UMO students and three others guilty of criminal trespass in connection with a protest rally held last summer against U.S. aid to Central America.

The defendants participated in the June 12 sit-in at the lobby of the Margaret Chase Smith Federal Building in Bangor following a five-hour outdoor rally.

The defendants said they tried to communicate their disapproval of U.S. aid to the contras of Nicaragua to Rep. Olympia Snowe before the protest. They said Snowe was unavailable by mail or telephone and called the protest a final attempt to influence Snowe on the issue.

The rally coincided with the congressional vote to give $27 million to the contras.

The defendants were UMO students Steve Gray, Marc Goulet, and Elizabeth Robbins, all of Orono, David Demere and Peter D. Beckford of Frankfort and James Freeman of Penobscot.

During testimony Goulet said if Snowe voted against contra aid, the protesters would have left the federal building as requested by a security guard and Bangor police.

Justice Martin A. Brody presided over the trial held at Penobscot Superior Court.

Criminal Trespass is a Class E misdemeanor carrying a maximum penalty of $500, or six months in jail.

Brody fined each defendant $100, which must be paid within 30 days.

According to state law, criminal trespass is defined as the act of remaining in any place in defiance of an order to leave by the owner, or by an authorized person.

Representing themselves, the defendants argued the defense of competing harms, claiming they disobeyed existing laws to prevent immediate physical harm from occurring to Nicaraguans as a result of the proposed U.S. aid to the contras.

The jury listened to closing arguments from the defendants and from Ann Murray, an assistant district attorney who prosecuted the case.

In her closing argument, Murray said the state proved the defendants "knew they were not licensed or privileged to be (in the inner lobby) after 5 p.m.," when the building is closed to the public.

In their closing arguments, the defendants said their evidence and testimony were intended to prove that the threat of "imminent harm" to Nicaraguans, the effort to correspond with Snowe was sincere and the illegality of the sit-in was outweighed by the effort to save lives in that country.

In her rebuttal to the defense's closing arguments, Murray said laws must be applied equally so people can be treated equally.

"If someone was intoxicated and decided that he wanted to be in the federal building, can he be in there?" Murray asked.

Goulet said, "At 5 p.m. we were not aware if the (congressional) vote had taken place yet; it wasn't a time for us to step down."

Child Development Center to get new playground

by Cathy Stanley
Staff Writer

The Child Development Learning Center will have a new playground by next fall with the help of parents, students and alumni.

The Learning Center, located in Merrill Hall, offers a nursery school and kindergarten for about 45 area children.

Shirley Oliver, principal of the Learning Center, said efforts are under way to raise the $5,000 to $6,000 needed for renovations.

The current playground is not as safe as it should be because it has a high, narrow slide and old equipment, Oliver said.

The new playground will consist of a wooden structure with swings, wide slides, a platform for creative dramatics and balance beams, she said.

To improve the playground's safety, wood chips will be placed around the new structure to soften falls and decrease children's chances of being injured. A fund-raising committee composed of parents is working on the project and has taken on the job of raising $2,000 themselves.

"The response to the center was great," said Diane Erb, a committee member. "Very few people said no."

The parents will hold a bake sale April 25 in the Memorial Union in an effort to fulfill their goal, she said.

Parents will also help out by donating their time to construct the playground.

Bruce Morrison, a mechanical engineer and parent of a child currently at the center, is designing the playground and will help build it.

The wire fence around the playground will also be replaced at an estimated cost of $3,800, said Jeanne Soule, head teacher of the kindergarten and nursery school.

Soule said wire sticks out at the children's eye level and she is afraid someone will get hurt.

"The biggest part now is trying to involve the students and faculty," she said.

Soule also said that in the past, organizations such as Alpha Phi Omega fraternity and the Maine Agricultural and Forest Engineering Association have donated both money and labor for playground renovations.

President search committee narrows list of candidates

by Dawn Daigle
Staff Writer

The Search Committee formed to nominate a new UMO president has narrowed its list of 85 candidates to 21, according to the committee's chairman.

Francis Brown said although the committee is still checking applicants' references, it has completed "80 percent" of the work at this stage of the search process.

"This is the slow part of the process," Brown said. "We have to contact a great number of people by telephone, which is sometimes difficult because they may be out of town for a few days."

Brown said the committee must obtain a candidate's permission before contacting references. He said he has already contacted most of the 21 candidates by telephone.

"Our (present) goal is to narrow the list (of candidates) to between a dozen and 15 candidates within the next 10 days," he said.

Brown said the committee will meet this week to continue this part of the search process.

The next part of the search entails setting up interviews with potential nominees. This may prove difficult,

Brown said, because "May is a very busy time for some of these people."

By the end of May the committee will nominate three candidates to the new chancellor and the UMaine board of trustees.

Brown said the new chancellor — expected to be selected next month — will suggest one of the three candidates to the BOT, at which time the board will either accept or reject that choice.

It is customary, he said, to appoint a new college president before the start of a new fiscal year, in this case before July 1.

Brown said the committee has seen some "very excellent candidates" and that it is very likely that one of these candidates will be UMO's next president.

He said some of the candidates "are people with experience (and) who have worked in high administrative positions, some for land grant universities."

"Practically all have teaching experience; some have done some impressive research and have taken part in a great many activities outside (academics)."

Current UMO President Arthur Johnson said in a recent interview he would be willing to help the new president make the transition.

"My record speaks for itself," Cashman said. "I've tried real hard to implement taxes to enhance pro-industrial expansion and development within the state."

As chairman of the committee, Cashman was a key supporter of the $15 million supplemental budget for the UMaine system.

He also sponsored a bill, now a law, which will by 1991 phase out a sales tax on energy used in manufacturing.

If re-elected, Cashman said he will continue working on a local property tax relief program.

According to Cashman, cuts in federal aid by the Reagan administration continue to harm taxpayers. In Maine, property taxes, which are twice the amount of any other state tax, would have to be raised to deal with the deficit.

Cashman said a better solution needs to be devised because it is unfair to expect towns to handle a large tax burden. He also said he would like to see the state play a bigger role.

With the Legislature's recent appropriation of $15 million to the UMaine system, of which nearly $8.5 million will be allocated to UMO, Brown said the committee is "more apt to get a greater number of (qualified) candidates because of the big jump in its funding."

In his instructions to the jury, Brody said constitutional issues such as the right to free speech and petition "have no applicability based on the facts of this case."

Reporters tour shelled Libyan naval station

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — U.S. warplanes heavily damaged a naval installation that U.S. officials said was a commando training base during the American raid last week on reputed terrorist targets in Libya.

Libyan officials Sunday allowed Western reporters to see parts of Sidi Bilal naval installation, which includes Libya's naval academy, in the first tour by journalists of damage to purely military targets during the raid.

A West German teacher at Sidi Bilal described the bombing as "very accurate."

Reporters were not allowed inside a walled area which Libyan naval instructors indicated was an underwater training facility, and which Pentagon officials said was the main target of the attack against the seaside base, 10 miles west of Tripoli.

Reporters could see holes in the roofs of two buildings as well as many shattered windows within the walled area as their bus passed.

A half-dozen unshaven men, dressed in a mix of uniforms and civilian clothes, stood guard with automatic rifles at the gate.

Inside the base, reporters saw the remains of at least four buildings which had been flattened by direct hits Tuesday.

Libyan officials escorting reporters claimed the American fighter-bombers zeroed in on naval academy dormitories, the infirmary, a mess hall and several offices. They said the air raid killed two naval cadets and injured 15, but that most of the estimated 300 cadets had been evacuated because a strike was expected.

"We had no air defense here," said an officer who identified himself as the academy's commander for the past seven years. The officer, who refused to give his name or rank, said he had no idea of the damage inflicted on the walled area, where Libyans are believed to receive training in underwater demolition and commando operations. He would not say what kind of activity went on in the walled area.

In academy classrooms, cadets aged 15-17 posed for photographers and television crews as they read their lessons.

One student said all the cadets were Arabs. One of the Libyan information department escorts quickly added, "They are all Libyans."

Several cadets declined to answer questions, saying they spoke only Arabic. Technical books clearly visible in the classroom were written in English.

Five days after Tuesday's raid, bulldozers were still scooping up rubble, forming huge mounds of shattered concrete, twisted metal and burned wood. Notebooks and textbooks littered the compound's roads along with broken glass and shrapnel.

Reporters also saw heavy damage to the academy's indoor swimming pool. There was no visible evidence of any permanent artillery or anti-aircraft defenses around the academy, which covered an area the size of about three football fields near the beach.

Castro condemns Reagan, comparing him to Hitler

HAVANA (AP) — President Fidel Castro marked the 25th anniversary of Cuba's Bay of Pigs victory with a bitter personal attack this weekend on President Reagan and a pledge to combat laziness and corruption in Cuban society.

Castro told a gathering at a local theater Saturday night that the U.S. air attack on Libya last week was comparable to the bombings of European capitals by Adolph Hitler during World War II.

In what appeared to be Castro's harshest attack to date on Reagan, he called the U.S. attack "brutal, shameful, criminal and terrorist," and said Reagan "is as unscrupulous, opportunistic and irresponsible as Hitler."

The statement drew sustained applause from the invitation-only audience, which included families of victims of the U.S.-backed invasion by Cuban exiles at the Bay of Pigs on April 17, 1961.

Castro spent the first hour and 45 minutes of his speech recounting the Bay of Pigs invasion, but his principal message came during the final hour of his appearance when he spoke about the U.S. attack on Libya and shortcomings in Cuban society.

He called Reagan the "legitimate heir of Hitler" and said Reagan is potentially more dangerous than the Nazi leader because Washington has nuclear weapons.

Castro also said he attached significance to published reports in the United States that Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy was a target of the attack. "What had never taken place until now was that the president (of) one of the most powerful countries on Earth has used his armed forces, his sophisticated bombers, to try to assassinate the leader of a country with which it is not at war," he said.

Reagan has denied any such intention. He said the attack was warranted by what he termed repeated acts of Libyan-sponsored terrorism.

Castro said the predawn attack on Libya Tuesday occurred 25 years to the day after exile pilots launched air strikes against Cuban air force targets in an effort to allow the invasion force to land uncontested. The tactic failed.

Castro said the memory of those who died at the Bay of Pigs is not served well by the many Cubans who are corrupt or shirk their responsibility.

He cited the case of a Cuban who earned $240,000 in one year selling to state agencies and other purchasers paintings which were not the works of "Picasso or Michelangelo."

"We have lazy people, negligent people, people who don't want to struggle, irresponsible people, people who are not sufficiently demanding within their areas of responsibility, people who want privileges, people who seek easy money ... through speculation and illicit transaction," he said.

One Khadafy son released; other son still hospitalized

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Col. Moammar Khadafy's 4-year-old son has left the hospital where he was treated for injuries suffered in the U.S. air raid, but his 3-year-old brother remains hospitalized, the boys' doctors said Sunday.

Khadafy escaped injury when U.S. warplanes struck his Bab al-Aziziya Barracks at 2 a.m. Tuesday, but his 15-month-old adopted daughter Hana died of injuries, Libyan officials say.

The Libyan leader has been seen in public several times since the raid, but has not held a news conference.

Dr. Ali Mugadimi took journalists to see Khadafy's son Kamis in a Tripoli children's hospital on Sunday. The boy's head was completely bandaged, and only his eyes were visible. He was hooked up to several monitors, a throat tube and an intravenous tube, and did not speak during the brief visit by journalists.

Mugadimi, a British-trained physician, declined to give the boy's medical condition. But the 3-year-old looked around and appeared alert.

The doctor said Kamis' brother, 4-year-old Sefh al-Arab, has been discharged, but did not say when. Khadafy and his wife Safia have four other sons and one daughter.

Libyan officials also took reporters to the Al-Jalah Hospital, a separate facility, to see other patients wounded in the American attack.

Many patients' eyes were swollen almost shut.

Doctors said all the patients were civilians, including a boy who appeared to be about 10 years old. They gave no estimate of how many victims were still hospitalized.

As about 120 journalists crowded into the halls and patients' rooms, Sudan's defense minister, Osman Abdullah, also visited the bombing victims.

"What I have seen this morning is just disgusting," Abdullah told reporters. "Attacking a peaceful country on the grounds it is a center of terrorism is a deception."

Kidnap victim's corpse flown home for ID tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The corpse of Peter Kilburn, the American kidnap victim reportedly killed last week in retaliation for the U.S. air raid on Libya, was flown to Andrews Air Force Base near Washington on Sunday and taken for forensic tests, a State Department spokesman said.

Kilburn's body was discovered Thursday with those of two Britons in Lebanon's central mountains, along with a note saying they had been executed by the Arab Revolutionary Cells to avenge the U.S. attack against Libya the night before.

State Department spokesman Bruce Ammerman said Kilburn's body "has arrived and is being sent for a forensic exam, but I don't know where. When and if a forensic ID is made, a statement will be issued."

Kilburn's nephew, Tim Kilburn, of Aptos, Calif., 75 miles south of San Francisco said he "was told they were going to ... do an autopsy on the body at Arlington, Va., I don't know exactly where." The nephew said he believed the test was intended to provide positive identification.

Kilburn's body was due on the West coast Monday or Tuesday, Tim Kilburn said, adding that the family was making funeral arrangements.

Kilburn, of San Francisco, was a librarian at the American University of Beirut for 20 years until he disappeared on Dec. 3, 1984.

Libyans free bishop, nun, assure foreigners of safety

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Authorities have freed the head of the Roman Catholic church in Libya, and the government has assured foreigners in the wake of the U.S. air raids that they will be safe, Western diplomats said Sunday.

Catholic sources confirmed that Bishop Giovanni Martinelli and a nun had been released in Benghazi, Libya's second city. They were detained by the Benghazi Peoples' Committee two weeks ago without explanation.

Diplomatic sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Martinelli and the nun were released Saturday night in Benghazi and were expected to arrive in Tripoli Monday.

A government official, who also demanded anonymity, said three priests detained with Martinelli also had been freed, but that could not be independently confirmed.

The diplomats, reporting on meetings with the Foreign Ministry on Saturday, said they were satisfied with the government's assurance that foreigners would be safe and could leave if they wanted to.

More than 18,000 Westerners work in the oil and construction industries in Libya, including about 8,000 Italians and 5,000 Britons. An estimated 800 Americans remain in Libya despite U.S. government orders for them to leave.

Two tornadoes hit Texas; damage set at $20 million

SWEETWATER, Texas (AP) — Damage was estimated at up to $20 million Sunday in the wake of a pair of tornadoes that slashed through homes, killing one person and injuring 100, and Gov. Mark White toured the city to see what state aid was needed.

White said he probably would announce Monday whether the city should be declared a disaster area. He said he would contact the Texas Housing Authority to see if aid could be arranged for the homeless.

As many as 1,500 people were homeless and property damage was estimated at $15 million to $20 million, Mayor Rick Rhodes said Sunday. An overnight curfew was posted to prevent looting.

Two twisters dipped from the clouds in succession early Saturday, then came together to cut a swath of destruction a half-mile wide and two miles long through a mobile home park, a senior citizens' housing project and a subdivision, Rhodes said.

More than 2,000 of the city's 12,000 residents were affected by the damage to about 800 houses, and three-quarters of those houses were destroyed, Rhodes said.

Sri Lankan reservoir bursts leaving 20,000 homeless

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — A huge reservoir hundreds of years old burst its earthen embankment early Sunday, and police said they feared 100 people were killed. The state radio said up to 20,000 families were left homeless.

K.D.P. Perera, Irrigation Department director, told a reporter for the English-language newspaper Daily News that a crack in the embankment had been reported two months ago and was being investigated.

The embankment burst at 4 a.m., sending a wall of water rushing through the nearby town of Kantalai, 130 miles northeast of Colombo, the capital. The Daily News reporter, K.D.D. Jayasekera, said that hours later, water still was tearing through the predominantly Moslem farming community.

Jayasekera said the water was sweeping away animal carcasses, buildings and uprooting trees.

The state radio estimated that 18,000 to 20,000 families were left homeless but gave no death toll. Jayasekera said police told him they feared 100 people were dead, but no bodies had been recovered.

State radio reported some people climbed trees to escape the onrushing water.

D.M. Ariyaratne, chief provincial administrator of Trincomalee district, said four refugee camps have been set up and he estimated they were already caring for some 8,000 people.

The reservoir, one of the largest in this island nation off the tip of India, was filled to capacity with 4.79 billion cubic feet of water for irrigating rice and sugar cane crops, said government officials in Trincomalee, 19 miles northeast of Kantalai.

Gorbachev agrees to meet if U.S. changes policies

POTSDAM, East Germany (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said Sunday that he was willing to meet President Reagan this year if the United States changed policies he charged were poisoning relations between the superpowers.

Gorbachev did not elaborate, but he appeared to be referring to last week's U.S. bombing raids on Libya and recent U.S. underground tests of nuclear weapons. On Friday, Gorbachev told the East German Communist Party congress those actions and the "increased (U.S.) threats" against Nicaragua demonstrated that the United States was following a "militarist and aggressive" policy that could damage U.S.-Soviet relations.

White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Reagan said Sunday the United States expected Gorbachev to "live up to his word" and meet with Reagan this year.

The two men agreed at their Geneva summit in November to meet this year in the United States. No date has been set.

Gorbachev made his remarks in Potsdam in response to a reporter's question. He spoke in Russian, and his comments were translated by reporters fluent in the language.

The Soviet leader addressed reporters in the courtyard at Cecilienhof, a manor house where Soviet leader Joseph Stalin, President Harry Truman and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Britain met in the summer of 1945 to decide the fate of postwar Germany.

Gorbachev was the first Soviet leader to visit the site since Stalin was there, East German officials said. They said other Soviets had not come for "political reasons" after Nikita Khrushchev denounced Stalin.

House to challenge Reagan on $1.7 billion money bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House challenges President Reagan this week with a $1.7 billion money bill that would take away the president's authority to defer spending approved by Congress.

The bill would add about $1 billion to the public's tab this year with new spending on a variety of programs, including disaster relief for California and other flood-stricken areas. The bill would require $700 million for embassy security improvements to be paid from the Defense Department and foreign aid budgets.

James C. Miller III, the president's budget director, has called the fiscal 1986 supplemental appropriations bill too "larded up" with new spending. But the administration's threat of a veto appears to be spurred mostly by the bill's attempt to eliminate deferrals — the president's authority to postpone spending, sometimes indefinitely.

A 1983 Supreme Court decision outlawed the one-house veto, the mechanism Congress formerly used to dispose of deferrals it opposed. As a result, the president has nearly the equivalent of line-item veto power over certain types of spending programs.

House action on the spending bill was scheduled last week, but was cut short when House Republicans rebelled against Democratic attempts to attach to the measure aid to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua. House leaders decided to move ahead with the spending bill this week without any Contra aid.

Baseball team sweeps UNH in weekend series

by Kevin Dietrich
Staff Writer

The University of Maine baseball team's weekend sweep of the University of New Hampshire appears to be proof positive that the Black Bears are finally back on the track to another successful season.

"We did the things that had to be done," said Maine Coach John Winkin. "We did the things a good ball team had to do."

The Black Bears put it all together Sunday afternoon in completing a weekend thrashing of the Wildcats by pounding out 22 hits en route to 17-6 victory. Maine took the two Saturday contests by scores of 2-0 and 8-7.

The three wins improve the Black Bears' season record to 21-18, including an impressive 7-1 mark in the ECAC North. UNH falls to 10-12 overall and 3-6 in the conference.

While the final score doesn't show it, the rubber game of the weekend series was actually close for quite awhile. In fact, as the two squads entered the bottom of the fifth inning the contest was tied 1-1. It was there that Maine put the game out of reach by erupting for 11 runs, highlighted by a Billy Reynolds' three-run homer, his seventh of the season and school-record 25th of his career.

"I was expecting a curve ball because I was down in the count and I usually don't see a fastball in that situation," said Reynolds. "It was (a fastball) high and outside and I hit it well."

The 11-run outburst, Maine's largest of the season, started rather inauspiciously when Dave Gonyar opened the inning by grounding out to the shortstop. Mike Dutil got the rally going when he beat out a bunt down the third base line.

"I think the whole key (to the inning) was when Mike got on on the bunt," said Winkin.

Don Hutchinson moved Dutil into scoring position with a single to center field and Maine broke the tie when Mike Bordick slapped the ball to the shortstop and Dutil scored on the fielder's choice. Hutchinson was safe at second base when UNH's Pete Cornelli dropped the throw from Brad Grande.

Rick Bernardo loaded the bases when he knocked Wildcat Rick Staba's last offering of the day into right field for one of his four base hits on the day.

UNH brought in Joe Teixeira to try to douse the Maine uprising but Black Bear designated hitter Dan Kane greeted him with a two-run single. Following hits by Dan Etzweiler and Gary LaPierre, Teixeira was relieved by Kevin Mello proceeded to give up Reynolds' blast over the right field fence, which put Maine up 9-1.

The Black Bears tacked on four more runs in the fifth and added two more in the sixth and seventh innings to seal the Wildcat's fate.

Steve Loubier had little problems with New Hampshire, yielding just four hits and three earned runs to the Wildcats in seven innings of work in gaining his third victory of the year against one defeat.

"Steve pitched well, very well," said Winkin.

In the Saturday double-header the Black Bears combined sharp hitting in the opener and a little bit of luck in the nightcap to squeeze past their conference rivals.

Scott Morse fashioned a two-hitter and pitched his first shutout of the year in game one. He struck out five and

Bears sweep opening weekend

by Jon Rummler
Staff Writer

Opening day at Mahaney Diamond was never in question.

With the usual standards taken care of, such as a picture-perfect sunny afternoon — the occasional chilly breeze floating in from right field being the only reminder to actual time of year — the aroma of hot dogs lofting about the stands and the festive 1,000 in attendance warming up to the occasion, nobody gave a second thought to the possibility that the University of Maine baseball team could actually lose.

Especially with the Black Bears' resident fire-baller, Scott Morse, on the mound.

"He's starting to regain confidence in himself; his experience is bearing up."

— Coach John Winkin

Even in the top of the seventh, when the University of New Hampshire's Scott Chilson drove a deep shot to center field with no outs and a man on first to threaten Maine's 2-0 lead, everyone knew some force would rectify the situation. Subsequently, the UNH runners were caught too far from base, Mike Levin flew out to right and Morse had notched his first shutout of the season.

The two-hit, five-strikeout performance was the junior's third victory in a row. His season record is 4-3.

After going 1-3 with two losses to the University of Miami and a loss to the University of South Carolina, the Bellows Falls, Vt. native hurled four-hit and three-hit wins against Hartford and Northeastern. The victories against UNH and Georgetown (Florida trip) round out his record.

This is Morse's slowest start in his three-year history as a Black Bear. After piling up such impressive statistics as 10-1 with a 3.53 ERA as a freshman and 8-2 with a 4.34 ERA as a sophomore, losing three of his first four decisions in 1986 seems to pale in comparison.

However, while the win/loss record might lag, his ERA has quickly dropped to its current 2.57, a fact that marks a successful comeback after arm surgery last fall.

"Things are going pretty well," Morse said after Saturday's effort. "I'm spotting the ball well, though I'm not throwing it as hard as I can."

"I had trouble keeping it down. I was lucky it didn't hurt us," he said.

Keeping the ball down and gaining control of his slider were the two hardest things to nail down early on, according to Morse. But as the season has worn on, things have slowly fallen into place.

Against UNH, Morse had only two walks. On the season, Morse has 13 walks, while leading the team with 47 strikeouts.

Coach John Winkin said Saturday, "Morse pitched a very strong game. He's starting to regain confidence in himself; his experience is bearing up."

Celtics win in double overtime; Jordan shines

BOSTON (AP) — Jerry Sichting's decisive jumper from the top of the key with 51 seconds remaining in double-overtime highlighted Boston's outside shooting and gave the Celtics a 135-131 victory over the Chicago Bulls on Sunday.

Boston's victory overshadowed a spectacular performance by Michael Jordan, who set a single-game NBA playoff record of 63 points.

It also gave the Celtics a 2-0 lead in their best-of-five series. Boston can win it in Chicago Tuesday night.

Jordan, who had 49 points in Thursday night's opening loss, broke the record of 61 points set by Elgin Baylor of the Los Angeles Lakers in Boston on April 14, 1962. The overtime record was 50 points by Boston's Bob Cousy in a four-overtime game on March 21, 1953.

Jordan, who missed 64 regular-season games with a broken bone in his left foot, sent the game into overtime by hitting two free throws with no time remaining in regulation to make the score 116-116. With three seconds left in the first overtime, his 15-foot shot from the left was too far, leaving the score tied 125-125 going into the second extra session.

With Chicago trailing 133-131, Jordan had a chance to tie the game, but he missed a jumper from the foul line with 30 seconds to play.

Larry Bird led Boston with 36 points.

With the win, Boston tied an NBA record of 33 consecutive home victories in a single season, including the playoffs. It was set by the Minneapolis Lakers in 1949-50.

walked only two in gaining his fourth win of the season. Morse was sharp throughout the entire contest getting in trouble only once, that being in the seventh inning.

Morse led the seventh off by walking UNH catcher Rich Wilkins, who was replaced by pinch-runner Mello. Scott Chilson then lined a 2-2 pitch off the fence just beyond the reach of Hutchinson. The Black Bear center fielder whipped the ball into Etzweiler who relayed it Bernardo at second base. Chilson, who was caught off second base, was tagged out by Bernardo. Bernardo fired the ball to Reynolds at the plate and Mello, who was trying to score during the rundown, was nailed at the plate.

With the wind out of the Wildcat sails, UNH's Mike Levin ended the game with a weak pop fly to Gonyar in right field.

To New Hampshire's credit they made a strong effort in the second contest. Jon Gilbert, the hardluck loser in the opener, cracked a pair of home runs and knocked in five runs for UNH while playing first base.

Gilbert gave UNH an initial 2-0 lead in the first stanza when he smacked a

Jeff Plympton pitch just to the left of the scoreboard beyond the fence in left field.

Maine retaliated for six runs of their own in the bottom of the first on a pair of walks and singles by Bordick, Bernardo, Kane and LaPierre. The Black Bears added another run in the second to make it 7-1 and it looked as if the rout was on.

The Wildcats had different plans, though, pushing across four runs in the fifth and another in the sixth to keep it close.

Maine scored its eighth and deciding run in the bottom of the fifth inning when Reynolds walked, advanced on a walk to Dutil and a single by Hutchinson and scored on a sacrifice fly by Bordick.

Although Plympton wasn't spectacular in his outing, he did pitch well enough to gain his third win of the year. Marc Powers earned his fourth save by shutting down the final four Wildcat batters.

The Black Bears travel to Husson College Thursday for a double-header before returning home for an important weekend series with Siena College beginning Saturday.

Brown, Barrett key Red Sox to 6-2 victory over Chicago

BOSTON (AP) — Mike Brown scattered five hits in seven innings and earned his first major-league victory in nearly two years Sunday as the Boston Red Sox completed a three-game series sweep with a 6-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Marty Barrett led a 13-hit Boston attack by going 3-for-3, scoring twice and driving in another run. The Red Sox roughed up Floyd Bannister, 1-2, and three relievers.

Brown, recalled from the minor leagues Wednesday, struck out three and walked one in his first victory since May 2, 1984. He threw 99 pitches before giving way to reliever Bob Stanley at the start of the eighth.

Harold Baines spoiled Brown's shutout bid with his first homer of the season in the fourth. Ron Kittle led off the Chicago seventh with his second home run.

Boston Marathon: cash prizes bring back intrigue

BOSTON (AP) — The consistency of Rob de Castella, the mystique of first-time marathoner Arturo Barrios and a bid by Ingrid Kristiansen to become the first woman to break the 2-hour, 20-minute barrier have combined to make Monday's money-enriched Boston Marathon an intriguing race.

De Castella, the mustachioed, 29-year-old strength runner, is favored to become the first Australian and the 46th foreigner to capture the storied race since its inception in 1897.

Since beginning his marathon career in 1979, de Castella has been a model of consistency.

Between December 1981 and August 1983, he was undefeated in four prestigious marathons — the Fukuoka International in Japan, the British Commonwealth Games at Brisbane, Australia, the Rotterdam Marathon and the World Track and Field Championships.

He's the only marathoner in the field with three clockings under 2:09, including a best of 2:08:18 in the Fukuoka race. In 1983, he was ranked the world's No. 1 marathoner, and since 1981, he has not been ranked lower than seventh.

For the first time, the race offers prize money. The men's and women's winners will each receive $30,000 plus a new car, with second place worth $20,000, third $15,000, fourth $12,000 and fifth $10,000.

Spinks, Holmes show both sides of the fight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Michael Spinks sought to legitimize his claim to the heavyweight title, and did. Larry Holmes tried to fight both Spinks and the effects of age and 18 years in the ring and couldn't.

Spinks left the ring Saturday night still holding his share of the heavyweight crown he took from Holmes last September, while a tearful Holmes said good-bye to an often brilliant boxing career that left him a rich but somewhat bitter man.

"It hurts. It hurts because I worked so hard," said an emotional Holmes. "I sacrificed so much."

It was a tough, entertaining fight, a fight that had a sold-out crowd of nearly 9,000 people standing and screaming for their favorite as they traded blows in the 15th round. The narrow split decision was as satisfying for Spinks as it was anguishing for Holmes.

"I knew I had won the fight, I just didn't know how it would be scored," Spinks said. "The winner usually finishes the fight and I finished very strong."

Spinks had no choice but to finish strong.

After giving away the first four rounds while running from a determined Holmes and his powerful right hand, Spinks had dug a hole he almost couldn't crawl out of.

"I had to let Larry calm down," Spinks said of his strategy, which worked almost to perfection.
