Senior escape trip to Samoset draws smaller number than hoped

by Jon Rummeler
Staff Writer

Despite the smaller than planned turnout at the senior formal, the trip to the Samoset Resort Inn in Rockland was "considered a good time" Senior Council representatives said Sunday.

"It was the best time I've ever had at the university," said Senior Council President Jon Sorenson. "Everyone I talked to said they had a great time," he said.

Mark Perry, convention service manager at the Samoset, also said last weekend's formal went "really well." The only drawback however, was the lower than expected turnout.

Perry said the Samoset had been guaranteed a full house of 500 students. The event drew between 108 and 120.

"That was one of the reasons why we took the group," Perry said, referring to the 500-student promise. "That was a small problem. We had all the kitchen crew and people to serve the food scheduled to work for 500 which changed when the lower figures came in.

"Other than that there was no problem. They left a security deposit of $2,500, but I think the only damage was a small hole in a wall. When I was here everyone was nicely dressed and real polite," Perry said.

Brent Larlee, co-vice president of Senior Council, said the $43-per-person expense might have been the reason for the smaller turnout.

"I think a lot had to do with the cost," Larlee said. "Getting toward the end of the semester a lot of people are running low on money. I know a lot of kids who had to call their parents for money."

Sorenson said failure to advertise the three-course buffet and overnight affair was probably the reason for the low turnout. If UMO is to hold another formal at the Samoset it will have to be advertised at least four or five months earlier than usual, thus giving people sufficient time to save money for it, he said.

The Samoset was chosen after expected trips on the ship Prince of Fundy out of Portland and the cruise boat Katahdin were cancelled. Last spring over 300 UMO students, at $20-25 per person, rode the Katahdin. That was the first time senior formals were held at a place other than the Damn Yankee or the Pit.

"We kind of wanted to do something like that again," Larlee said of the Katahdin trip. "But we wanted to have a little more room. Some people complained when it sold out."

Sorenson said it is possible trips to the Samoset escape will become an annual event.

Other Senior Week events, including the Faculty Wine & Cheese Party and Pub Crawling night, were successful, Sorenson said. Saturday's Happy Hour at the Bounty took a beating, according to Sorenson, who said it had to compete with the UM baseball game, Bumstock and the day's warm weather.

House candidate will pursue write-in option

by Dawn Daigle
Staff Writer

Although she will be a write-in candidate in the June primary, Paula Ashton said she still intends to seek election to the Maine House of Representatives District 31 against incumbent Rep. John Bott, R-Orono.

Ashton, a junior public management major from North Vassalboro, must run as a write-in candidate in the June primary because her petition was disallowed because eight of the required 25 signatures on her petition were "illegal," she said.

Four days after she filed her petition on the deadline day of April 1, Ashton received a letter from the secretary of state notifying her that some of the signatures on her petition were being challenged by Paul Camp and Dennis McConnell, "Republicans from Orono," she said.

The eight signatures called into question were obtained from residents of District 129, currently represented by Rep. Stephen Bost, D-Orono, she said.

A hearing was scheduled by Deputy Secretary of State James Henderson for April 10, at which Ashton was represented by House Majority Leader John Diamond, D-Bangor and attorney Harold Pachios, she said.

Ashton said it was decided that she would be required to be a write-in during the June primary.

Ashton said the signatures error resulted from the recent redistricting of the area. "Some of the people who signed (the petition) weren't sure which district they lived in because they were right on the line," she said.

Bott said redistricting is a common practice that takes place shortly after each census. Districts are redefined based on population data. The last redistricting occurred in 1984.

He said although districts "can get a little confusing" at times, "the people who signed the petition shouldn't be blamed."

"When circulating a petition, the trick is to know who lives in your district," Bott said.

He said it is also advisable to "get your petition in early (and to collect more than the minimum 25 signatures). This give you some leeway in case there are problems with some your signatures."

Bott said the secretary of state's office provides a manual containing information covering "everything a candidate needs to do when running for office, including state laws and requirements."

"The candidate or the people circulating the petition are responsible for knowing not only the issues, but the state laws (pertaining to seeking a political office)," Bott said.

In order to be on the ballot in November, Ashton must obtain a minimum of 50 write-in votes, she said.

If elected, Ashton said she would remain in school, taking time off during legislative sessions.

College women's expectations may be too high

(CPS)— Though college women know sexist barriers to their success after college exist, they still tend to harbor career expectations that don't take those into account, several new studies indicate.

In a survey of women who have been in the workforce for at least 10 years, Kansas State Prof. Evelyn Hausmann found "most women initially think they will be rewarded mainly on the basis of merit, but many of them realize later on that this is not true."

Moreover, Hausmann observed, about two-thirds of the women surveyed felt that women were as prejudiced as—or more prejudiced—than men.

And in a separate study, Cal-Berkeley work-and-family researcher Anne Machung discovered that 40 percent of the college women surveyed expected to earn as much as their partners, and 13 percent said they would earn more. Machung, citing current labor market statistics, contends rupting careers for full-time motherhood will be more difficult than today's students believe.

"The crunch will come when many women now start can put women at a distinct disadvantage upon returning to work, she adds.

Fifty-seven percent of the women Hausmann surveyed cited family obligations as obstacles to greater career success.

Even the Berkeley women who expected to avoid such troubles weren't sure how they would do it, Machung notes. "Women are confused about how to have kids and continue jobs."

In a separate study in which men and women were interviewed for up to three hours, Machung found all the men assumed women will quit jobs to tend children, and both sexes expect women to do more of the domestic chores and most of the childrearing.

"... most women initially think they will be rewarded mainly on the basis of merit, but many of them realize later on that this is not true."

You can help us raise the colorectal cancer cure rate.

"If everyone over 50 had checkups for colorectal cancer, the cure rate could be as high as 75%," says Dr. LaSalle D. Leffall, Jr., past president, American Cancer Society. "You can't cure it if you don't know you have it." But if it's detected early, the cure rate for colorectal cancer is very high. Your doctor can perform the digital and proctoscopic exams, and you take care of the simple stool blood test at home.

Since men and women are equally affected by this disease, we urge everyone over 50 to get regular checkups.

The warning signs for colorectal cancer are a change in bowel habits and blood in the stool.

People with a family history of colon or rectal cancer or ulcerative colitis are at higher risk and are urged to be doubly cautious.

Checkup Guidelines for men and women over 50 without symptoms:

- digital exam annually
- stool blood test annually
- procto exam every 3 to 5 years after 2 negative tests 1 year apart.

No one faces cancer alone.

Marcos says he wants return to power

HONOLULU (AP) — Deposed President Ferdinand Marcos indicated in a telephone conversation with President Reagan that he would like to return to power in the Philippines, but Reagan "said nothing to encourage him," a senior U.S. official said Sunday.

The official, speaking on condition he not be identified, described what he called an emotional conversation between the two on Saturday after Reagan arrived in Hawaii, where Marcos has been in exile since he was ousted by Corazon Aquino in February.

Marcos, the source said, got "a lot off his chest" in the 10-minute talk initiated by Reagan. The former Philippine President knew Reagan would be calling and prepared what he wanted to say, the official said.

The source said Reagan was sympathetic and listened quietly as Marcos spoke. But the president told the 20-year ruler of the Philippines, whom he regards as an old friend and ally, that "the Philippine people have made their decision and ultimately it is their decision" to make, the official recounted.

The source added, "Reagan said nothing to encourage him" to think a return to power was possible.

A source in Manila, who called Marcos on Saturday, quoted Marcos as saying the talk with Reagan was "friendly, congenial, productive, and fruitful." The two men discussed Marcos' situation "realistically," but Marcos did not elaborate, according to the source.

On Sunday, Marcos spoke by telephone to a cheering crowd of about 12,000 followers in Manila, telling them he was the legitimate president of the Philippines. He urged them to demonstrate peacefully against the Aquino government, and said, "I am healthy... I am ready to fight."

Marcos was toppled after a disputed national election in which both he and Mrs. Aquino claimed victory. With widespread evidence of fraud, key military leaders deserted Marcos, who after a tense two days, averted possible civil war by accepting a U.S. offer of safe haven.

After Reagan and Marcos spoke, the men's wives came to the phone and spoke privately for several minutes. A local television crew recording the Marcos' end of the conversation showed Imelda Marcos weeping, as she often has in public since the ouster.

The U.S. official said White House

staff members were "disturbed and surprised" to learn Marcos had permitted a television crew to witness the conversation, which the source said was arranged as a private talk between friends.

Reagan, staying here at a private beachfront residence a short distance from where Marcos has been living in exile, has no plans of meeting face-to-face with the ousted leader, aids said.

However, he has invited Mrs. Aquino to visit the United States. That visit will probably take place next fall, said presidential spokesman Larry Speakes.

Group files suit over DOE's Sebago Lake dump proposal

by The Associated Press

A Maine environmental group has filed a lawsuit in federal court challenging the U.S. Department of Energy's methods in choosing an area north of Sebago Lake as a candidate site for the nation's second high-level radioactive waste dump.

Peter L. Koff, who represents the Lakes Environmental Association, said the Bridgton-based group filed its suit in the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston on Friday. The suit asks the court to set aside the DOE's guidelines to pick potentially acceptable sites.

At the same time, Koff said he filed a petition with the DOE demanding an independent agency, the National Academy of Sciences, be allowed to review the controversial siting process.

Many Maine residents and elected officials, outraged by the selections of two sites in the state as candidates for the nation's second high-level radioactive waste dump, say the selection procedure is flawed.

DOE spokesman Brian Quirk said the agency had not seen the environmental group's case "and we therefore don't really have much of a comment."

The Sebago Lake area is a popular tourist destination and serves as the water source for Maine's largest city.

Maine's second candidate site is a virtually unpopulated area east of Lincoln. Much of the land is held in trust by the government for the Penobscot and Passamaquaddy Indians.

The list of candidate sites for the second dump is to be trimmed to three in 1991 and a final choice is to be made in 1998.

Reagan considering Dukakis' emergency board request

BOSTON (AP) — President Reagan is reviewing a request by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis to create an emergency board that could intervene in the rail strike that has hit commuter rail service in the Boston area, a White House aide said.

White House spokesman Dale Petroskey told the Sunday Boston Herald that Reagan was "concerned about the situation and he's taking a look at it." Petroskey said the governor's request was being studied by the president.

An emergency board could order a 30-day halt to the strike. The governor's plea came Friday, the day the strike widened from a limited action crippling several northern commuter lines to a full-blown walkout shutting down all commuter rail service in and out of the city.

On Saturday, the expanded strike was halted by U.S. District Judge Robert Keeton.

Keeton's order was expected to restore service halted Friday on the lines operated by the Boston & Maine Railroad for the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority.

Keeton's ruling also requires Guilford Transportation Industries, owner of the B&M and other railroads, not to hire permanent replacements for the striking workers for 10 days.

Brennan indicates support of future scholarship increases

ROCKPORT (AP) — A day after signing a bill providing a special University of Maine appropriation, Gov. Joseph E. Brennan told Maine college executives he is willing to work toward setting aside more public money for student scholarships.

Brennan, who is serving the last of eight years as governor, told the Maine Higher Education Council that upgrading Maine's appropriation to the state university was a priority during the legislative session that ended April 16.

On Friday, he signed a bill providing a $15-million "downpayment" to improve the university. However, Brennan noted that his budget contains $350,000 for scholarships to students in private and public colleges. While the scholarships were not a priority this year, Brennan said he would like to see as much as $2 million set aside for the student "incentives."

He added that because of the recent attention given to educational reforms, the political climate may be right to upgrade scholarship funding.

The Legislature put off until a special session in May consideration of a $12-million bond issue for University of Maine capital projects.

The Higher Education Council's members include presidents of Maine's public and private colleges and university, the state university chancellor and the state education commissioner.

The theme of the meeting was cooperation between the private and public sectors in providing quality education.

Third World missile buildup seen as growing problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proliferation of ballistic missiles is a growing threat as more Third World nations develop the capability to build the weapons, according to a congressional study.

The report by the Congressional Research Service predicted that "substantial numbers (of the missiles) could be deployed in most regions of the world in the not-too-distant future."

Many of the nations with the potential to build the weapons are doing so as an offshoot of space programs and often the technology has been provided by the United States or the Soviet Union.

Many of the countries also have nuclear research programs, raising the specter of Third World nations armed with nuclear-tipped missiles.

The nations involved include Israel, Syria, Egypt, Iraq, Libya, India, Pakistan, Taiwan, South Korea, North Korea, Brazil and Argentina, the study said.

For purposes of the study, ballistic missiles are defined as self-propelled, guided weapons that have a range "of many kilometers." That separates them from shorter-range missiles such as shoulder-fired anti-aircraft weapons or plane-launched air-to-air missiles, which are widely available on the global arms market. The study predicted that "U.S. armed forces and those of our allies will, in the future, be confronted by hostile military forces increasingly armed with ballistic missiles."

NEWS BRIEFS

Tax refunds held from college-loan defaulters

AUGUSTA (AP) — State officials are withholding Maine income tax refunds of more than 300 people who defaulted on their student loans, the state Education Department announced Monday.

The money is to be applied to their debts, said Associate Commissioner William F. Pagnano.

"So far, 325 student borrowers have had their tax refunds withheld. This represents a total of $32,000. We expected these figures to show an increase when all returns have been audited," said Pagnano.

The action is part of the state tax "offset" program to collect defaulted Guaranteed Student Loans. Maine's tax offset program complements an Internal Revenue Service program, which had collected $47,000 as of the end of March from students who borrowed under the Maine Guaranteed Student Loan Program.

For Americans living in Libya, future is uncertain

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — For hundreds of Americans working in Libya, life has become a shadow existence. They are shielded by nervous businesses and a host government that needs their services while issuing daily threats against the United States. Now, after the U.S. air attack on Libya on April 15, Washington is raising the stakes with a threat of indictment once the U.S. citizens return home. Americans remaining here could be imprisoned for up to 10 years and fined on their return.

Despite the air strikes — made, Washington says, because of purported Libyan support of terrorist attacks against Americans — Libya still officially welcomes Americans who work in businesses and the vital oil industry.

An estimated 800 Americans live in Libya. About 100 of them, women married to Libyans, are in the country legally.

Businesses believed to be employing Americans told reporters no such workers were there. A Western diplomat, who insisted on anonymity, complained that he couldn't reach old friends because of protective policies.

Mrs. Marcos was ripped off in art purchase

NEW YORK (AP) — Imelda Marcos paid $3.5 million to an Italian art dealer for a painting she believed was by Michelangelo but was actually the work of a lesser artist, worth at most "several hundred thousand dollars," art experts said in a report published Sunday.

Most of the works in the collection of the wife of the ousted president of the Philippines, including the purported Michelangelo, are inconsequential paintings by unimportant artists, the experts told The New York Times.

Everett Fahy, director of the Frick Collection, said only one Michelangelo painting is known to exist — the "Tondo Doni" that hangs in the Uffizi Gallery in Florence, Italy.

Fahy said 75 paintings acquired by Mrs. Marcos reportedly from the same dealer, Mario Bellini, and hanging in a Manila museum were not the works of Tintoretto, Canaletto, and others of that rank, as many are purported to be.

Magistrates in Florence, where Bellini's business is based, announced two weeks ago that they were investigating him for the reported sale.

Combination of jazz, modern and ballet ends season

by Kelly Mullins
Staff Writer

The UMO Dance Company will end its ninth season with a combination performance of jazz, modern dance and Spanish ballets at UMO's Hauck Auditorium May 1-3 at 8 p.m.

Teresa Torkanowsky said this year's final performance will include 64 dancers and a stage crew of 24. She said there will be a premiere performance in Maine of Manuel De Falla's full-length Spanish ballet which is one of the few recognized Spanish ballets performed by major companies.

For this performance, Torkanowsky said she asked Ralph Robinson of the Ralph Robinson Ballet Company to act as guest director.

"So few people know the ballet and he performed the part of the miller in the Ballet Russ de Monte Carlo. He knew the flavor of it," Torkanowsky said.

"El Sombrero de Tres Picos or the Three Cornered Hat," will involve 40 dancers and is set in a small village in which the plot revolves around a magistrate who is in pursuit of a beautiful and mischievous wife of a miller.

Torkanowsky said the two modern dance segments will be under the direction of UMO instructor Ann Ross. "Osprey's Flight," will show what a bird has to go through in life. "In the Back of a Taxi," will present in dance the sights and sounds and things that one can encounter in a big city.

Other numbers of the program are a version of "Sleeping Beauty," a Bach Suite by Jeanne-Marie Oubert, ballet faculty member, "Andaluza" by De Falla, modern dance production by UMO Instructor of Dance Ann Ross and a jazz production number choreographed by Alex Cooke, instructor of ballet.

The UMO Dance Company will perform in Hauck Auditorium May 1-3 at 8 p.m.

Black Bears take three from Siena

by Kevin Dietrich
Staff Writer

If the University of Maine baseball team was to have one wish it would probably be to start the ECAC North playoffs as soon as possible. That's how well they've been playing of late.

The Black Bears thoroughly trounced conference foe Siena College over the weekend and proved to just about all concerned that Maine is playing at top form as the regular season winds down.

Sunday, in the final matchup of the three-game weekend series, the Black Bears pounded out 15 hits, including three home runs, en route to a 14-7 victory and a series sweep of the Indians.

The victories over Siena, in addition to the 21-2 triumph over Husson College Friday, give Maine a 25-18 record, including a 10-1 conference mark.

The potent offensive charge was led by second baseman Dan Etzweiler who went 3-for-4, including a pair of homers, knocked in five runs and scored two.

It was Etzweiler's first blast that got the Maine attack rolling. Mike Bordick opened the bottom of the third with a sharp single. First baseman Rick Bernardo followed by cracking a double to center field and the Black Bears had runners on second and third with none out.

It looked as if Siena pitcher Paul Laux would escape the inning unscathed when he induced both Dan Kane and Billy Reynolds to strike out. But Laux wasn't as fortunate with Etzweiler who promptly gave Maine a 4-0 lead when he blasted a fastball well over the left field fence for his fifth home run of the season.

"It was a fastball up and over the plate," said Etzweiler. "I hit it well."

His second four-bagger of the day wasn't quite as forceful, but still counted the same. It occurred midway through the sixth stanza with the Black Bears in the midst of six-run rally.

Following singles by Don Hutchinson and Gary LaPierre, RBI doubles by Bordick and Bernardo and Reynolds reaching base safely on an Indian error, Etzweiler lofted what appeared to be a routine fly ball into left field. The wind got a hold of it, however, and carried the ball over the fence for his sixth home run of the year.

Kane cracked the other Black Bear home run, a solo shot in the fifth inning.

While Etzweiler, Kane and the rest of the Black Bears were supplying the offensive heroics, starting pitcher Steve Loubier was holding his own on the mound, pitching perfectly into the seventh inning.

He was outstanding for most of the day, striking out six and walking none before giving way to relief pitcher Marc Powers in the ninth inning. Siena was unable to get as much as a base runner until the seventh inning when George Bannell singled to right field just beyond Bernardo's outstretched glove.

Although Loubier did have some trouble in the latter stages of the game, giving up nine hits and seven runs (only two of which were earned), the outcome was never really in doubt.

"In the first seven innings I felt really strong and confident," said Loubier whose improved his record to 4-1. "I felt a little tired in the eighth and they stuck their bats out and got a few hits."

Excellent pitching was also the story in Saturday's double-header, which Maine captured by scores of 3-0 and 8-1.

Neither game was as routine as the scores might suggest. Black Bear Scott Morse started the opener and appeared invincible through the first two innings, setting Siena down in order each time and striking out four.

Morse was unable to continue his sharp outing, though, due to an error in the official scorecard. Apparently when Maine Coach John Winkin filled out the scorecard prior to the game he omitted Mike Dutil from the ninth spot in the batting order.

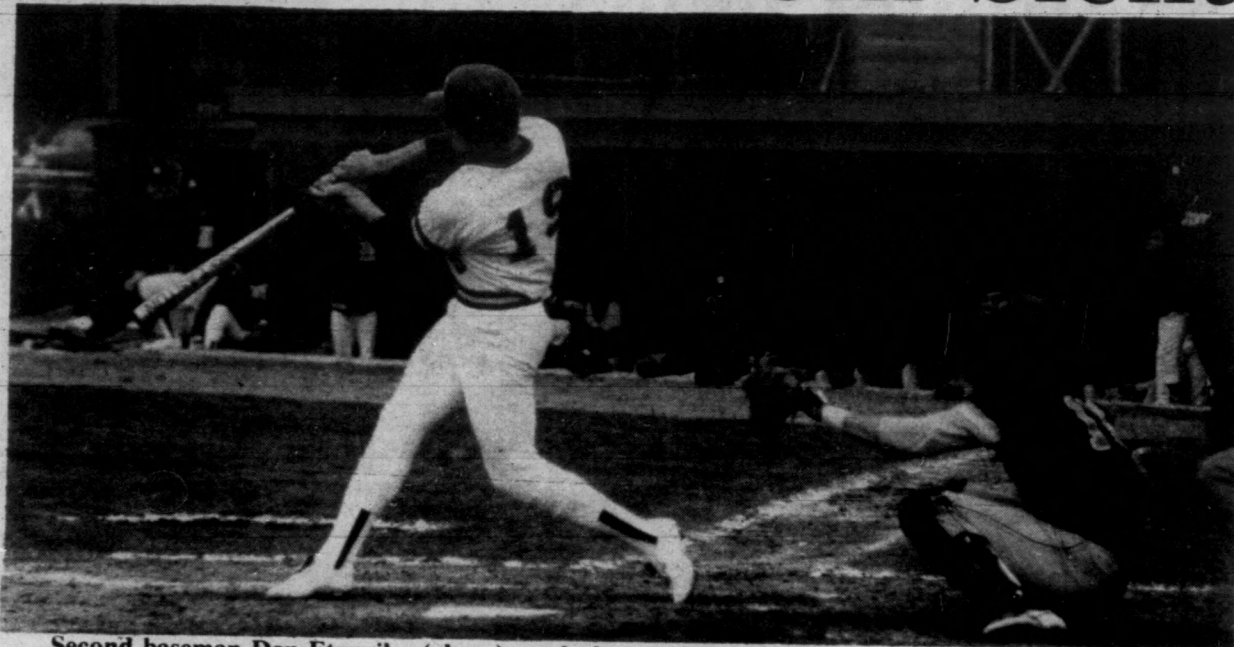

"That's never happened before and it's my fault," said Winkin.

Siena Coach Tony Rossi noticed the error immediately.

"I waited (for Dutil to bat). You're smart if you wait and see if he does any damage," said Rossi.

Once Dutil finished his at bat, Rossi approached the home plate umpire and presented his case. Following a lengthy Softball team edges E. Conn in three game weekend series

by Donna Trask
Staff Writer

After 42 straight games on the road the University of Maine Black Bear women's softball team opened its home season Friday with a 2-0 victory over Eastern Connecticut State University, the defending national Division III champions.

Maine pitcher Lynn Hearty threw a seven-hit shutout and struck out three to lead the Bears to victory. Sue Goulet tripled and scored the winning run on a groundball by Michelle Duprey.

A second game that was to be played on Friday was rained out and Saturday the wet ground conditions at Lengyel Field forced the Black Bears to play a doubleheader with Eastern Connecticut at Brewer High School.

The Bear's split Saturday's doubleheader losing the first game 3-2. Kim Thibeau was the losing pitcher for Maine, which improved its season record to 19-22 overall.

Goulet had two hits, walked once, was hit by a pitch and scored one run.

Thibeau and Kerrie Higgins had one double each, while Hearty went 2-for-4 with two singles and one run.

"Eastern Connecticut got a home run in the first inning. The (Maine) girls played very well, but we got our bats going in the sixth and we came up a little short," said Black Bear coach Janet Anderson.

In the second game, Hearty pitched a four-hitter and led Maine to a 3-1 victory. Maine scored all three runs in the first inning off the bats of Denise Boutin, Duprey and Hearty.

"We played very well the entire weekend," Anderson said, "When you can win two of three games from the defending Division III champions, it is very indicative of the way we've been playing all year."

The team will play a doubleheader with Colby Monday, April 28, at Lengyel Field if conditions permit, Anderson said, "but we may have to go elsewhere if the field is still too wet. 'Last year we split with them. From the way we've been playing this year we should be able to take two (games),' Anderson said.

Sixers rout Washington to advance in NBA playoffs, face Bucks next PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rookie Terry Catledge scored 27 points and veteran point guard Maurice Cheeks added 24 points and 11 assists as the Philadelphia 76ers routed the Washington Bullets 134-109 Sunday to win their first-round playoff series 3-2.

Philadelphia, runnerup in the Atlantic Division, goes to Milwaukee on Tuesday to open a best-of-seven series with the Bucks, the Central Division champions. Milwaukee advanced with a three-game sweep of the New Jersey Nets.

The 76ers shot 68 percent from the field in racing to a 38-19 lead and ended the first period in front 40-22.

They built their lead to 61-38 with 5:10 remaining in the second period.

The Bullets could get no closer than 16 and trailed 70-52 at halftime.

McHale keys 3rd period surge, Celtics power past Hawks, 103-91

BOSTON (AP) — Kevin McHale and Larry Bird sparked a 14-point run to help the Boston Celtics pull away in the third quarter and beat the Atlanta Hawks 103-91 in the opener of their NBA Eastern Conference semifinal playoff series Sunday.

The Celtics set a single-season league record of 34 consecutive home victories, including the playoffs. They broke the Minneapolis Lakers' mark that stood since 1949-50.

Boston, which won all six of its regular-season games against the Hawks, can extend the record Tuesday night in the second game of the best-of-seven second-round series.

The Celtics, who never trailed, led 52-46 at halftime and 68-59 before Bird ignited the 14-0 surge with a reverse layup with 4:50 left in the third quarter. McHale got the next five points on a goaltending call and a three-point play on a layup and free throw.

A layup by Danny Ainge after his own steal and a 20-foot jumper by Dennis Johnson preceded a free throw by McHale.

Bird capped the spurt when he finished a fast break with a stuff with 2:13 left in the third period.

Kevin Willis' tip-in finally stopped the streak with 1:50 remaining but merely cut Boston's advantage to 82-61.

The Hawks scored 10 consecutive points late in the fourth quarter but still trailed by at least 10 points throughout the period.

The Celtics, who are 4-0 in the playoffs and 21-2 in their last 23 games, were led by McHale with 24 points, Ainge with 17, and Bird, Robert Parish and Johnson with 16 each.

The Hawks were paced by Willis with 18 points.

delay Dutil was declared, due to the error, to have pinch-hit for Morse. Morse was forced to leave the game and Maine had to bring in a new pitcher, Jeff Plympton, to begin the third inning.

The Siena play failed, though, as Plympton, who was originally scheduled to start the second game, pitched superbly, giving up just a fourth-inning single to Steve Brennan and chalking up his fifth victory of the season.

"I made sure Jeff was ready (to go in). He did an outstanding job," said Winkin.

The Black Bears received their offensive support in the first game from both Etzweiler and Dave Gonyar. Etzweiler got on base twice and scored a pair of runs while Gonyar blasted a towering home run to left field. In the nightcap Winkin went back to Morse and righthander responded by tossing a three-hitter.

"I felt really well," said Morse. "If I had had any stiffness, I would have pitched Sunday."

Morse's performance lowered his ERA to 2.32 on the season and ties him with Plympton for most victories on the squad with five.

Maine scored quickly in game two pushing across three runs in the first stanza and added three more in the fifth and another pair in the sixth.

Etzweiler hit the big blow in the first inning, crushing a Mike Venditti pitch for a three-run homer and giving Maine a lead it would never relinquish.

All told, the Black Bears rapped out 16 hits on the day, while Morse and Plympton held Siena to a grand total of four.

Lakers go one up on Dallas, take first game, 130-116

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Kareem-Abdul-Jabbar scored 28 points Sunday and the Los Angeles Lakers continued their NBA playoff roll with a 130-116 victory over the Dallas Mavericks in the opening game of their Western Division semifinal series.

The second game of the best-of-seven series will be played here Wednesday night.

Byron Scott scored 24 points and James Worthy added 23 for Los Angeles. Earvin "Magic" Johnson added 16 points and 14 assists for the Reserve Jay Vincent scored 18 points to lead Dallas, while James Donaldson added 17 points.

The Lakers connected on 29 of 45 shots from the field (64.4 percent) in the first half. Dallas, unable to find its rhythm, hit on just 17 of 48 shots from the floor (35.4 percent) in the opening half.

After falling behind by 25 points in the third quarter, Dallas rallied within 91-78 on a layin by Vincent.

Rangers oust Capitals 2-1; Whalers stave off elimination

by the Associated Press

Pierre Larouche, who spent most of the season in the minors, scored two goals on setups from Mike Ridley, and John Vanbiesbrouck sparkled as the underdog New York Rangers beat the Washington Capitals 2-1 Sunday night to move into the Stanley Cup semifinal round.

Meanwhile in Hartford, the Mike Liut, back in goal after missing two games because of an injury, stopped 32 shots and Kevin Dineen scored his sixth goal of the playoffs Sunday night to lead the Hartford Whalers to a 1-0 victory over the Montreal Canadiens and force a deciding seventh game in their Adams Division final series.

The Capitals, who had finished 29 points in front of New York in the regular season, faltered after taking a 2-1 lead in the series.

The Rangers, who haven't won the Stanley Cup since 1940, last played in a division final in 1983, when they lost in six games to the eventual champion New York Islanders.

The Canadiens, as they have in four games of the series, outshot the Whalers 32-17 but Liut proved equal, making up for several defensive lapses by teammates.
