Bears defeated in quarter-finals

by Kevin Sjoberg
Staff Writer

At the outset, it appeared the Black Bears were going to give Boston University all they wanted.

But the Terriers talent, depth, and home court advantage eventually prevailed, leading BU to an easy 76-57 win over Maine Tuesday night to eliminate the Bears in the quarter-final round of the ECAC North Atlantic playoffs and to put an end to a rough season for Coach Skip Chappelle's troops.

Sophomore guard Matt Rossignol got Maine going early, nailing two three-pointers on the Black Bears' first two possessions to give the visitors an early 6-0 advantage.

Approximately five minutes later, the Bears saw a six-point lead turn into an eleven point deficit, as BU reeled off 17 unanswered points to grab a 17-6 lead that would never be challenged.

Much of the credit to the Terriers' success belongs to sophomore point guard Tony DaCosta, who followed Coach Mike Jarvis's plan to perfection in shutting down high-scoring senior guard Jim Boylen, who was held to just four first-half points.

As a result, Boston University was able to take a comfortable 36-24 cushion into halftime.

No real serious threats were made by the Black Bears in the second half. The closest they would come was on a Boylen bucket early on which brought Maine to within 10, 39-29.

But BU was able to stretch the margin to 69-46 before settling with a 19-point win.

Maine, which had split the two regular season games with BU, proved no match for the Terriers, who were able to put five players in double figures for the contest.

Drederick Irving's 20 points led the way, while former Rockland High School star Paul Hendricks and Larry Jones had 16 apiece. Reserve guard Jeff Timberlake threw in 12 while DaCosta added 10 more.

Boylen came on to score 16 points in the second half to finish as Maine's top scorer with 20 points. Rossignol chipped in with 17, including five three-pointers, and freshman Dean Smith came off the bench to score nine more for the Black Bears, who finished the campaign with a 10-17 overall record, and 6-13 in conference play.

The Terriers will now advance to semi-final action, as they take on second ranked Niagara University Thursday night in New York.

In the other semi-final contest, top-ranked Northeastern will host Siena, who upset Canisius Tuesday night 67-65.

University Singers prepare for concerts

University Singers prepare for a week-long tour from Maine to New York they will take during break to interest high school students in the UMaine program. (Baer photo)

by Mike Laberge
Staff Writer

The fruits of nearly a year's preparation are finally coming into view for the University Singers.

Director Dennis Cox said the group is almost ready for its annual week-long tour, which will take members through Maine, New Hampshire, and Connecticut before climaxing with a performance in Long Island, NY.

"The kids are wonderful to work with," he said. "They have a wonderful sense of teamwork."

The tour will begin Monday, March 16, when 64 members of the group board a bus destined for Hampden Academy in Hampden. This will kick off a week of workshops, assemblies, and concerts at high schools along the route.

Singers President Bonny Thibau, going on her fourth tour, said the tour is a lot of work for those involved but is well worth the effort.

"The group becomes a lot closer during the tour," she said.

For James Behme, a sophomore voice major, this will be his second year on the tour.

"We'll be doing 13 concerts in five days," he said.

This year, as in the past, planning for the tour began last March, Thibau said.

"Right after our spring tour, we start planning for the next year," she said.

Cox said in the spring the University Singers usually plan the route for the next year, and contact schools along the proposed route.

"People will ask us to perform," he said. "It becomes really easy to set up an itinerary in New England because we're pretty well known."

The major preparation for the tour began in September, when Cox sent out letters asking for financial support for the tour.

Cox said most of the $5,800 needed for transportation costs came from the university community — the president, vice president, dean of Arts and Sciences, and Patrons of the Arts.

Behme said the group also holds fundraisers. He said that during Parents and Friends Weekend last fall the group held a 50/50 raffle, and the year before sold popcorn.

Group members pay $17 per year in dues as well, which helps pay for the tour.

This year the group will be staying in the Roosevelt Hotel in New York City its last night. Cox said the dues will help cover costs of this stay.

Musical preparation for each tour really starts in September, when the members receive their basic repertoire, Thibau said.

Once this music is learned, the group then begins to build on that repertoire in preparation for the tour.

"Second semester, we add pieces to it," she said.

Cox said the tour each year is good both for the singers and the university.

Theatre students to tour schools

by Christina Baldwin
Staff Writer

During spring break, many students will be sunning themselves somewhere along the Florida coast. But to six theatre students, Florida will be only in their dreams.

The students — comprising the entire Theatre/Dance department, will tour eight Maine high schools in hopes of recruiting students.

"The purpose of the tour is to show students what we do up here and hopefully recruit some students in the process," said James Savoie, the tour manager and actor.

The group will perform two one-act plays written by Edward Albee. The American Dream and The Zoo Story are both satirical plays about the society in which we live, Edgar Cyrus, chairperson of the Theatre/Dance department said.

"They are caustic, ironic comedies," he said. "They are not sentimental, but an attack on the materialistic values and lack of compassion in people and for people like the old."

In American Dream, the actors will wear masks depicting famous leaders in American society.

"We'll have masks that look like Ronald Reagan and Nancy, Margaret Thatcher, and Sylvester Stallone," Savoie said. "Stallone is the American dream to some people."

Savoie said the use of the masks is to draw attention to the meaning of the play.

"They are difficult plays to get a hold on because of their complexity," he said.

After the performances, which last up to two hours, Savoie said a workshop is introduced. Questions about the play and the Theatre Department will be answered.

The tour consists of Sumner High School in Sullivan, Dexter Regional High School, Hallowell, Rockland High School, Ellsworth High School, Caribou High School, the Maine Central Institute, and Deering High School in Portland.

The costs for the tour, approximately $2,000, will be paid for by Cultural Affairs and the Patrons for the Arts, Savoie said.

The performances will also be repeated for students at the university at the end of March.

Deadline for fee recommendation too soon

by Mark Kellis
Staff Writer

A two and a half hour Mandatory Student Life Fee Committee meeting resulted in little progress toward a recommendation for University of Maine President Dale Lick, said Chris Boothby, president of student government.

John Gallant, Corbett Hall senator and committee member, said the Friday deadline for the recommendation is out of the question.

"We are here to represent the student body," he said. "We need a lot more time to draft an appropriate budget that benefits all students."

"It's really a rush job."

Boothby said the committee will reconvene Thursday to work on the recommendation.

He added that the committee must decide how much of the administration's proposed $100-per-semester student life fee will go to each of the four areas: health, physical recreation, performing arts, and the Memorial Union.

A poll of the student body about the proposed fee is being conducted Wednesday.

Gallant said the results of the poll will have some influence in the recommendation.

"If the students feel they don't want the fee, it can be thrown out the window," he said.

Gallant said he couldn't predict the outcome of the poll, but he said he "wouldn't be surprised" if students showed their disapproval of the fee.

Gallant said that Lick will take the recommendations of the committee, along with the results of the poll, to present to the board of trustees.

Boothby said he couldn't predict how closely the BOT would stay with the recommendations of the committee.

There are still many details to be worked out before a recommendation is made by the committee, Gallant said.

Among these details is where the money, once raised by fee (if passed) would go, he said.

Perkins lives up to reputation in concert

by Matt Mullin
Staff Writer

Hutchins Concert Hall came down with a good case of the blues Saturday night.

The performances by Louisiana Lightnin', Bill Dickey, and Pine-Top Perkins drew a large crowd of appreciative fans.

Problems with the Hutchins sound equipment delayed the start of the show for 20 minutes, and a hasty intermission was called halfway through to fix the band's monitors, which had not been producing sound.

The crowd was warmed up by song performed by Lightnin's three piece band, which was joined afterward by Bill Dickey.

Dickey is a professional guitarist, harmonica player, and composer.

He combined his abundant guitar and harmonica talent with hearty vocals as he headlined a few numbers with Lightnin's band.

Louisiana Lightnin' was the next to appear on stage, adding his guitar and taking over the job on vocals.

The band performed songs from Lightnin's new album, including a song, "Just Say No," about the problems of drug and alcohol abuse.

Lightnin' then introduced the undisputed star of the show — Pine-Top Perkins.

Perkins, 73, is a "world famous boogie-woogie blues piano man" from Mississippi who has played with such musical greats as Muddy Waters, Eric Clapton, and the Rolling Stones.

Perkins played with an energy that belied his age. It is the boogie-woogie style and raspy vocals he displayed Saturday night that make him one of the most sought after bluesmen today.

Some of the more popular numbers that Pine-Top performed were "Teenie-Weenie Bit of Your Love," "You've Got To Go," and "Drinking My Blues Away."

After performing his numbers Perkins left, and the combination of Dickey and Lightnin' continued to entertain the crowd.

More trouble with the sound system stopped the show for 25 minutes, but when the problem was fixed the band played on, sounding much better.

To finish the show Perkins came back, to the delight of the audience.

His encore included a medley of tunes from his earlier appearance, and others, including "Pine-Top's Boogie Woogie."

An added twist to the concert was the fact that a portion of the proceeds is being donated to the Black Bear Fund, the fund-raising arm of the University of Maine athletics.

All in all the concert was very entertaining. It is good to see the Maine Center for the Arts being used to promote more than one art.

• Singers

"We always generate a lot of enthusiasm for the university," he said. "There are a number of people in the group right now we've recruited from past tours."

Each day on the tour is a mixture of workshops, concerts, and long bus rides.

Members usually get up at 7 a.m. in order to be at the school where they will perform that morning.

Upon arrival, they hold a workshop and perform a 45-minute concert at the school.

At the concert's conclusion, the singers board the bus and travel to the next school, which could be anywhere from 15 minutes to three hours away.

After lunch in the cafeteria of the next school, the group holds an afternoon workshop and performs another short concert.

During the workshops, Cox works with the high school chorus and is later joined by the Singers.

"We'll warm up with the choir," Thibreau said.

She said the group performs lighter works for the high school assemblies.

"We'll do the lighter portion of our concert during the day," she said.

Cox said the group will send one piece of music to each of the high schools for the school chorus to practice ahead of time.

During the school concerts the Singers will perform the piece with that group.

Following the afternoon concert, group members board the bus once more to travel to the location of their evening concert.

"We'll usually eat dinner at our last destination. They'll have a buffet for us," Thibreau said.

After changing into tuxedos and formal gowns, the University Singers perform their evening concert, which lasts about two hours.

The first half of the concert entails more serious works, and the second, the lighter works they performed earlier in the day.

"During the evening, we'll do the full concert," Thibreau said.

After the concert, members will stay the night at host homes — usually the homes of some of the high school students.

"For a week, we're like guests," Cox said.

By staying in student host homes, rather than in hotels the group saves major costs.

Performing three shows per day, combined with the constant travel, eventually takes its toll on members, and Cox said he sets aside one afternoon late in the week for a group retreat.

"We'll have kind of an encounter group during retreat," he said. "It sets them up for the evening concert and it's a great way to end the week."

Cox has been at UMaine for nine years and has taken the group on tour each year.

"We usually take a week-long tour the second week of March break," he said.

This year, the tour will start with workshops and day concerts at Hampden Academy and Lawrence High School. The group will then travel to Yarmouth High school for its evening concert.

The Singers will spend the following morning, Tuesday, in Yarmouth before traveling to Lake Region and Oxford Hills high schools.

Following a morning concert at Oxford Hills, the group will travel to Hopkinton High School in Contoocook, N.H. and will perform in Nashua later that evening.

The fourth day will begin with an assembly in Nashua, followed by a trip to Killingly High School in Connecticut.

The singers will perform at Killingly later that evening and will conduct a workshop there the following morning.

Friday evening, the group will perform at Friends Academy, a Quaker school in Locust Valley, Long Island.

With no performances scheduled, group members will spend the day enjoying New York City, where they will lodge at the Roosevelt Hotel.

They will fly back to Bangor courtesy of Eastern Airlines Sunday morning for an evening concert with the Bangor Symphony Orchestra which will be televised statewide.

The University Singers will perform their last concert Sunday, March 29, at 8 p.m. in the Maine Center for the Arts.

"We consider that our last concert," Thibreau said.

England wins Shrove Tuesday pancake race

LIBERAL, Kan. (AP) — England kept up its winning streak in the annual Trans-Atlantic Shrove Tuesday pancake race this year, and it wasn't even close.

The British won for the fifth consecutive year as Elizabeth Bartlett ran the 415-yard course in Olney, England, in 64.7 seconds, more than five seconds faster than the winner of a similar race here.

Racers have to run a 415-yard course, frying pan in hand, and successfully flip a pancake twice. It was the second straight victory for Mrs. Bartlett, a 30-year-old mother of two who was timed in 65 seconds flat a year ago.

Said Mrs. Bartlett after her prize-winning dash, "The secret of my success is simple: I just make sure I'm in front."

In the American leg of the race at Liberal, Marcia Streiff had the best time in a field of twelve, running the course in 70.1 seconds. Mrs. Streiff, mother of three, also won the Liberal leg in 1985.

Race organizer John Hanson in Olney said tradition holds the race started in 1445, died out and was revived in 1948. Folks in Liberal joined the race in 1950.

"Legend has it that a local woman was caught cooking a pancake on Shrove Tuesday when the church bell rang for a service," Hanson said. "She had to run along with her frying pan to the church to make it on time."

Shrove Tuesday is the day English cooks traditionally make pancakes to use up cooking fat before the start of 40 days of fasting for Lent.

Children punished with stun guns

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — A day-care operator accused of punishing 10 children with a battery-operated stun gun has pleaded no contest to a felony charge of inflicting inhuman punishment.

Maxie Santiago, 70, entered the plea Monday. He faces a maximum year of one year in jail when sentenced April 14.

Santiago and his wife, Frances, 39, were arrested last September after children complained of being shocked. The day-care facility the couple had operated for 16 years in Daly City was subsequently shut down.

Mrs. Santiago pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor complaint of operating a day-care center without a license and is also awaiting sentencing.

In exchange for Santiago's no contest plea to one felony charge, 10 felony counts of corporal punishment and 10 counts of use of a stun gun in an assault, a misdemeanor, were dismissed.

Movie filming stalled by too much snow

CONCORD, N.Y. (AP) — After waiting days for snow, crews filming a new Steve Martin-John Candy movie received much more than they wanted.

On Monday, wind-whipped snow covered an expressway 20 miles south of Buffalo, just as the producers of "Airplanes, Trains and Automobiles" wanted. The snow even came just in time for the first scene involving newly-arrived stars Martin and Candy.

But the squalls were so intense they caused a whiteout, near-zero visibility in blowing snow.

Shooting of a sequence in which Martin and Candy, riding in a burned-out car, are pulled over by a state trooper was delayed while the crew waited for the weather to quiet down and the camera lenses to clear.

The conditions were an abrupt turnabout from the mild weather of the past month, which forced the movie company to move to Chicago, St. Louis, Batavia, N.Y. and finally Buffalo in search of snowy backdrops.

It was a rude introduction to moviemaking Buffalo-style for Martin and Candy, who play two characters trying to reach Chicago for Thanksgiving. Their plane is forced to land in bad weather, and they must resort to a variety of vehicles to reach their destination.

Guides' manager gets look at Ballpark

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Maine (AP) — With the start of the baseball season little more than a month away, the new manager of the Maine Guides got his first look at The Ballpark on Tuesday and predicted that the team would be competitive in the International League.

Bill Dancy, manager in the Philadelphia Phillies system for the past eight years, met with reporters on what was his first visit to Maine.

A Florida native, Dancy spent the past two years as manager of the Portland (Ore.) Beavers, the Phillies' AAA farm team whose 1987 home base remained in doubt until a judge's ruling ended a legal battle between Guide's owner Jordan Kobritz and a rival group in Scranton, Pa.

Handicapped parking

Much has been said about the parking problem on this campus.

There just isn't enough "convenient" parking for students and faculty.

While this lack of parking can be a nuisance, a more serious parking problem exists, and not only on this campus.

The problem: handicapped parking.

There isn't a lack of handicapped spaces, until students/faculty who aren't handicapped take the spaces, that is.

It's really a shame that this happens, because these spaces are reserved to give the handicapped the more convenient access to buildings.

Handicapped spaces are designated by a blue and white sign with an illustration of person in a wheelchair.

Of all parking spaces, handicapped spaces are usually closest to the buildings, so that the handicapped have the shortest distance to travel.

People who have handicapped licenses are given license plates with the handicapped symbol.

Someone with a temporary affliction, such as a broken leg, may apply for a temporary handicapped tag to display on the car windshield.

Parking in a space reserved for the handicapped is as good as condemning all handicapped people.

What about that woman you know who is confined to a wheelchair? How would you feel knowing that you took a space intended for her, leaving her a 1/4 of a mile to travel to her classes.

Or how about the handicapped man who must trudge through the snow, while on crutches, because all of the handicapped spaces have been taken by others unhampered by handicaps.

The fine at the University of Maine for parking in a handicapped space is $10 — a very small deterrent for the offense.

Most of the time offenders get out of a fine because they stay no longer than 15 or 20 minutes in the space.

Their rationale for parking in the space is that they are in hurry, they will only be parked there for a little while, and who is going to need the space while they are using it?

Little do they know is that while they are inside doing their precious errands, a handicapped person had to look elsewhere for parking.

Whatever the cause for parking in a space for the handicapped, there is no excuse for it.

If fines aren't the answer, then what is?

A concerned public.

If you see any undeserved person parking in a handicapped space, go talk to them.

If they don't appear handicapped, check to make sure they don't have a tag allowing them to park in handicapped parking (some people won't appear handicapped, but they could be recovering from something like heart surgery).

If they aren't handicapped, explain why it is important to keep the spaces open for the handicapped.

If they put up a fight and refuse to move, perhaps you should break their leg. Then, they would be eligible to park in handicapped parking.

Michael DiCicco

I was over at the White House this weekend watching "Friday Night Videos" with President Reagan as usual.

Things went fine for the first half hour or so, but something just didn't seem quite right.

At first I couldn't figure out what was amiss.

We both had our glasses of grape juice and our cherry Pop Tarts.

Ron had his Care Bears bathrobe on and I had on my dead puppy slippers (you know the slippers that make it look like you went and stepped on two poor unsuspecting puppies and just forgot to peel them off your feet).

Still something just wasn't right.

I guess the first time I noticed that something was really wrong was when the Red Sovine video came on.

Now Red Sovine is the president's favorite country singer, and most of the time when one of Red's videos come on Ron will sing along.

Sometimes if the president really gets going he'll get up and start doing the two-step around the room.

But when Red's video came on that night, Ron just stared into the television screen.

Then he started mumbling something about Red Sovine being a communist plot and if you played his records backwards you would hear Gorbachev singing "Add It Up" by the Violent Femmes.

Now I told the president that this was impossible since Gorbachev was a big Sinatra fan and hated punk rock music all together.

Then Reagan gave me this really strange look.

"Hey what are you doing here," he asked.

"It's Friday night. We always watch videos together on Friday nights. Besides you invited me," I said.

"I don't remember inviting you and if I did I don't remember when," Reagan said.

"You called me at around 4:00 p.m. yesterday and invited me," I said.

"Oh I see and I'm supposed to remember exactly what I doing at 4:00 p.m. yesterday. Do you...jeeppers! Does anybody remember what they were doing at 4:00 p.m. yesterday?" he asked.

Then Ron started pouting and nothing that I could say would cheer him up.

Finally Reagan opened up and told me what was bothering him.

"Nothing has been the same since Don left," he said.

"I mean sure Howard's a real swell guy and all, but frankly, well, he's just not as good a ping-pong player as Don is and it's important to be a good ping-pong player if you're going to be Chief of Staff."

I told the president that I understood and gave him what was left of my cherry Pop Tart.

What else could I do?

When writing...

The Daily Maine Campus welcomes letters to the editor and commentaries from people who care enough to want their opinions voiced. Letters should be 300 or less, and commentaries should be about 450. In order to verify the validity of letters, we must have a name, address and telephone number.

Although the newspaper welcomes anonymous letters, it will not print them unless a special arrangement for withholding the name has been made with the editor.

The Maine Campus reserves the right to edit letters and commentaries for length, taste and libel.

Invention article praised

To the editor:

Kudos to your staff writer Dave Greely for his February 24 article regarding the work of mechanical engineering students, Brian Briggs, Rich Fortier, David Godbout and Keith Hodgins, in developing a standing frame for Audra Gile. As a co-host of the Cerebral Palsy Telethon, Jan. 19, I was privileged to interview these students regarding their project. I was able to see first hand, the extraordinary human relationship which has developed between this child and her four benefactors.

If students ever wonder if they can truly "make a difference," they need only talk to these talented engineers and the Gile family members whose lives have been changed by this project.

In the interest of furthering the understanding that has been promoted by this project and your coverage of it, I would note that Audra Gile is not a "victim," as your headline implied, but rather a disabled child who is now much more able to pursue a meaningful lifestyle.

I would hope that other students, whose studies encourage the extension of self into significant areas of research, service and development, will contact your office so that we may "share the Maine pride" with the Campus "family."

Again, congratulations and much appreciation to everyone connected with this story.

Community spirit

To the editor:

This letter is in response to R. Kevin Dietrich's Feb. 25 attack on the popularity of the Maine high school basketball tournament. I am the last person who should be writing this since I've never dribbled a basketball and I couldn't tell you what a zone is. However, I am from northern Maine and I do know something about community spirit, togetherness, and pride.

I believe that the goals of high school athletics are to promote teamwork and to give kids an outlet and a challenge. Maybe, as Mr. Dietrich says, "the quality of high school basketball in Maine is lousy," but is that so important? Isn't it more important that an entire town can put aside their differences and come together in support of "their" team.

I know from experience that life in northern Maine is hard. People often cannot afford to bounce around the Caribbean as Mr. Dietrich suggests. A drive to Bangor is a luxury for many.

I don't understand how Mr. Dietrich can so viciously insult people who are displaying interest, loyalty, and spirit in their children and their community.

These people deserve to forget their isolation, their bills, their unemployment, and should be commended for their sportsmanship, not ridiculed.

Have a heart, Mr. Dietrich. Next time you see tournament tape on the news, don't complain. Try to find the audience and look at the loyal fans, the smiles, and the tears.

Thief thanked

To the editor:

Without accusing any UMaine students, I would like to issue a public thank-you to the individual who found it necessary to steal the stereo from my car in the Stillwater Village visitor parking lot the night of Feb. 23.

If the value of a $30 underdash cassette player and a $35 equalizer/booster, which only works out of the right channel, outweighs the risk of being caught, then more power to you.

Good luck in your future endeavors.

Daytona Beach PD

You better watch out

Over the years Daytona Beach has become a haven for college students during Spring Break. Due to their enthusiasm and energies a lot of them become a court statistic without realizing that their actions have caused a violation of the law.

To assist our young people and give them an insight into the laws of Daytona Beach and the State of Florida, the Daytona Beach Police Department has compiled a list of the most frequent violations.

The Daytona Beach Area has become one of the largest resort centers in the nation. Each year we are host to thousands of fun and sun-seeking vacationers, race fans and conventioners. They are designed primarily for your safety and the safety of others. Please obey them.

"CAUTION" — Over the past years injury and death has occurred to some of visitors by climbing the balconies at the motels, and falling. This practice should be discouraged. ALSO this practice is considered to be Disorderly Conduct and is an arrestable offense. State Statue - 509.143

Balls or frisbees should not be thrown across traffic lanes. Pedestrians always have the right of way on the beach, but you are urged to cross with caution.

MOTORCYCLE SAFETY

Motorcycle riders must obey all general traffic rules and regulations. Motorcycles must be equipped with stock-mufflers. # Women have lower economic status

WASHINGTON (AP) — There have been striking changes in the economic lives of women in recent decades as they improved their education and work prospects, yet historical patterns placing them in lower-paying jobs persist, Census Bureau analysts said Tuesday.

"Women remain in a secondary economic status despite unprecedented change," Cynthia M. Taeuber and Victor Valdiser wrote in their report, "Women in the American Economy."

And they said the future for women is uncertain and remains a challenge to the American economic, political and social system and to women themselves.

"Making it in today's world is not the same for all women," the report observed.

It noted that the reasons for the continuing economic problems of women are complex and not easily measured. Among these are the pressures of family responsibility, social conditioning, educations that differ from those of men and discrimination by men, who do most of the hiring and promoting.

For example, the median income of women working full time in 1984 was $15,600, compared with $24,004 for men.

But that ratio of women earning 64 percent of men's income—up from 59 percent in 1970—is a statistic often misinterpreted, the report said.

The median is affected by the fact that many women are concentrated in relatively low-paying jobs, not that they are paid only 64 percent of what men earn for the same jobs, it said.

And things are changing. For people age 18 to 24, the ratio of female to male income was 88 percent in 1984, up from 76 percent in 1980, "an indication of significant improvements in the wage gap among younger workers over a short time period," the study found.

This has improved as more women have pursued educations, which tend to increase pay, the report noted.

It said the overall wage gap between the sexes may be explained in part by "differences in the productive capacities of men and women, differences in the distribution of men and women among different jobs, and discrimination in the labor market."

Some women choose lower-paying jobs for other benefits, such as flexible hours to give them more time with their families. This may be a rational decision in a family, because men can earn more working full time, in general, the analysts said.

U.S.-Soviet arms talks continue

GENEVA (AP) — U.S. and Soviet teams continued talks on medium-range nuclear missiles and President Reagan said the Americans would present new proposals Wednesday, when this round of talks originally had been scheduled to end.

Maynard Glitman and Lem Masterkov led the U.S. and Soviet negotiators in Tuesday's meeting. Soviet spokesperson Alexander Monakov said they talked for about 90 minutes at the Soviet Mission, but he gave no details.

Max Kampelman and Yuli Vorontsov, chiefs of the two delegations, had a luncheon meeting Tuesday to discuss procedure.

During an appearance in the White House briefing room in Washington, Reagan said: "I welcome the statement by Soviet Secretary-General Gorbachev on Saturday that the Soviet Union will no longer insist on linking agreements on reduction in INF (Intermediary Nuclear Force) to agreements in other negotiations."

Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the Soviet leader, proposed that the superpowers reach an agreement apart from other arms negotiations on eliminating medium-range missiles from Europe in five years.

Reagan said he would bring U.S. negotiators home for consultations at the end of this week and, "following these discussions in Washington and I will send a team back to Geneva to take up once again the detailed negotiations for an INF reduction agreement."

He said he had told the American team to begin presenting the U.S. proposals Wednesday and added: "I hope that the Soviet Union will then proceed with us to serious discussion of details which are essential to translate areas of agreement in principle to a concrete agreement."

Among issues to be resolved, he said, "none is more important than verification. We will continue to insist that any agreement will be effectively verifiable."

U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms negotiations in Geneva are in three areas: medium-range missiles; longrange, or strategic weapons; and the fields of defense and space.

Gorbachev's offer reversed the Soviet position, taken after his Iceland summit with Reagan last October, that agreement on medium-range nuclear forces must be tied to the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative.

Ricci-bank trial begins

PORTLAND (AP) — Opening arguments are scheduled for Wednesday morning in Joseph J. Ricci's long-delayed $41 million damage suit against Key Bank.

Two full days were devoted to jury selection in U.S. District Court. Twelve persons were selected, and after testimony is presented six of them will be asked to decide whether the bank illegally cut off Ricci's $1 million credit line because of false information linking him to organized crime.

Judge James L. Watson had asked members of a pool of about 80 potential jurors about their feelings toward Americans of Italian descent, about whether they had read anything on the trial, and about whether they had seen a segment on Ricci that was televised last fall on CBS-TV's "60 Minutes."

Ricci, accompanied by five of his lawyers, said Monday he was pleased that the suit, filed 4½ years ago, was finally going to trial.

Ricci, co-owner of Scarborough Downs racetrack and the Elan adolescent treatment centers, has accused the bank, then known as Depositors Trust Co., of breach of contract, defamation, discrimination on the basis of national origin and violation of federal banking laws.

The trial is expected to continue for four to six weeks.

The bank says the erroneous reports of Ricci's mob connections came from two FBI agents and an investigator in the Maine attorney general's office. Claims filed by the bank against those officials were later dismissed in the courts.

Ricci's co-plaintiff in the suit is Dr. Gerald E. Davidson, a Brookline, Mass., psychiatrist and his long-time partner in Elan and Scarborough Downs.

Dandridge selected for Hall

By the Associated Press — Ray Dandridge, left behind when major league baseball began admitting black players 40 years ago, caught up with some of his peers Tuesday when he was elected to the Hall of Fame by the Veterans Committee.

"It is a touching thing after all these years," Dandridge said from his home in Palm Bay, Fla. "I never thought it would come, after so many others went in and I kept missing."

"I'm out here in the country living with my little dog and my wife and I thought they had forgotten about me."

Dandridge, an infielder, played in the black leagues with Satchel Paige, Roy Campanella, Jackie Robinson and saw them advance to the majors while he remained behind. "I was supposed to try out with Cleveland when Jackie went up," he said.

"But I was playing in Mexico and they wouldn't match what I was making there."

So Dandridge stayed behind.

He finally reached organized baseball in 1949 and was Willie Mays's roommate in Minneapolis in 1951 when the New York Giants called the 20-year-old center fielder to the majors.

The then-37-year-old Dandridge, who had been the American Association's most valuable player the year before, was left behind.

"We were in the movies in Sioux City, Iowa," Dandridge recalled. "The usher came down and called Willie."

"He left so quick I had to go back to the room and ship his clothes to him."

Dandridge, who is 73, said he heard that two of the Giants he had played with in the Mexican Negro Leagues, Sal Maglie and Monte Irvin, had urged New York Manager Leo Durocher to recall Dandridge with Mays. "There were quotas on black players then, though," he said. "That's why they didn't call me."

Durocher, who had been a candidate for the oldtimers committee again, did not remember Dandridge.

Speaking from his home in Palm Springs, Calif., he said he was not bitter at missing election.

"That's all right," he said. "If I had control over it myself then I'd have something to say. This has nothing to do with me. They do what they want. They vote for who they want."

Durocher said he was disappointed for some of the other candidates who had been considered but did not gain the necessary 14 votes from the 18-man committee.

Off the trodden path

As spring break approaches, so does the end of this year's ice fishing season. Luckily, my fishing partners and I managed to bring home a modest catch and reports from other fishermen and women indicated that they were successful as well.

One fisherman, Jason Barker, managed to take quite a few pickerel and perch from area lakes and ponds. In fact, this past weekend, Jason and his girlfriend Julie were fishing a nearby lake when Julie hooked into and landed a four-and-one-half pound chain pickerel.

A fish like that will certainly take the chill out of any winter day.

Now I'm sure some fishermen out there don't know why anyone would fish for pickerel or perch when Maine has such a stock of salmon and trout in its lakes, but cooked properly, any fish tastes good, especially when you catch it yourself.

If you enjoy sampling these sometimes "shunned" species of fish, and perhaps other game animals, read on.

Once again, the Student Chapter of the Wildlife Society here at UMaine is holding its annual game banquet. This event, featuring both unique and common fish and game dishes, as well as door prizes and entertainment, will be held Saturday, April 11, at the Penobscot County Conservation Association Clubhouse on Route 9 in Brewer.

Those attending, as in the past, will have the opportunity to sample some truly unique fare.

Several dishes I can fondly recall are: barbecued raccoon, bear balls (meatballs, of course), muskrat pie, woodcock fricassee, and others too odd to list.

Now I realize some of you out there wouldn't think raccoon or muskrat was that good, but remember Mother's saying, "You don't know if you like it until you try it."

With those words, I invite all of you to attend this year's game banquet with a hearty appetite for the unusual.

Tickets and information can be obtained by calling myself or Jeff Davis at 581-4665. See you there!

The road to the Joe Louis Arena has already begun, and I'll now take this opportunity to enlighten all of you on how the current college hockey season will wind down.

The journey to the NCAA finals is a long and winding one. After each of the four conferences — Hockey East, ECAC, WCHA, and CCHA — determine their top two teams, the eight survivors are seeded from one to eight.

Once the final eight are chosen, east and west are paired off, with the No. 1 squad in the east playing the No. 4 team in the west, No. 2 east against No. 3 west, etc., etc.

Each matchup is a two-game, most-goals series which will determine the four teams who will venture to the Joe Louis Arena in Detroit for the NCAA finals.

Starting at home, the Hockey East playoffs will begin March 11, and after the preliminaries are settled, it'll be a four-team race between Boston College, Lowell University, Boston University, and Maine, with battle lines being drawn in the Boston Garden.

Look for BC's potent scoring attack (featuring Craig Janney, David Shea, and Kevin Stevens) and the Black Bears' sharp defense and talented goaltending to lead their respective squads to wins.

In the ECAC, Harvard is, without a doubt, the cream of the crop. Yale or Colgate could slip into the other slot, with St. Lawrence a longshot. Look for Harvard and Colgate to move on.

Out west, the CCHA and WCHA playoffs are already underway with Bowling Green, Western Michigan, Michigan State, and Ohio State having survived the first CCHA round and North Dakota, Colorado College, Minnesota, and Wisconsin likewise in the WCHA.

Defending NCAA champion Michigan State is a sure bet to make the final eight as Mitch Messier, Bill Shibicky, and Kevin Miller have propelled the Spartans to a 26-9-2 regular season mark. Bowling Green, which finished 30-6-2, will grab the other CCHA slot.

In the WCHA, North Dakota, on the strength of All-American candidates Tony Hrkac and Bob Joyce, has emerged as the team to beat, finishing as the top squad in the nation. Look for Minnesota to grab the final berth.

In the early going, look for the highly seeded teams to live up to their potential. North Dakota should have little trouble rolling over Colgate and Boston College will trip up Minnesota.

Michigan State will again advance to the final four, as the Spartans will romp over Harvard and, in a bit of an upset, Maine Coach Shawn Walsh will watch his squad mop up against his alma mater, Bowling Green.

In the opening round of the finals, Michigan State's dream of back-to-back titles is ended abruptly by the Fighting Sioux as Hrkac and crew shut down MSU.

In the other semi-final matchup, Maine is finally able to turn it around against Boston College, shutting the Eagles out 3-0.

But in the finals the Black Bears' magic runs out as the University of North Dakota puts together hard-nosed 7-5 victory before a crowd of 20,000 in the Joe Louis Arena.

Intramural Beat

The annual intramural basketball season came to a close last week, with champions decided in four divisions.

In women's "B," Althea's Renegades from Androscoggin Hall posted a 39-36 overtime victory over the Knockouts for the title. The Renegades finished the season with a 5-1 record, while the Knockouts were runners-up for the second consecutive year.

Fourth-seeded Diablo's was a victor over third-seeded Golden Gloves 44-35 to win the women's "A" crown. The Diablo's members came mostly from the varsity field hockey team while the Golden Gloves squad consisted of varsity softball players.

The men's "B" championship went to the Bleeding Lizards, who nipped the Bumblebees 73-71 in the finals to gain the win.

Sigma Phi Epsilon took top honors in the fraternity division with a win over Delta Tau Delta, while the Mau's from Dunn Hall captured the dormitory championship.

In the "A" division for the men, the Quiche Eaters defended their campus title with a win over Sigma Phi Epsilon.

The Quiche Eaters, consisting of football players, got past the Pine Trees for the independent championship, while Sig Ep beat Alpha Tau Omega for the fraternity title.

The Pit Idiots, from Oak Hall, upset the Wire Wing of York to win the dormitory division for the second straight year.

The Wire Wing had defeated the Idiots twice during regular season action.

Co-ed One Bounce Volleyball finished up its tournament Monday evening, with the Hancock Kinky Kids defeating the York-Airs 8-15, 15-10, and 15-11 to finish on top.

Adam Thibeau, Randy Davis, Pat Daley, Shawn Seeley, Ellen Whitten, Jen Pulsifer, Cindy Lee, and Chris Gamage formed the winning squad.

And finally, men's racketball doubles leagues finished up recently, with Phi Gamma Delta winning in fraternity "A," Sigma Phi Epsilon in fraternity "B," the Hancock Aces in dormitory "A" and the Kennebec E-Men in dormitory "B."
