Attendance more than doubles at Maine Center for the Arts

by Tim Tezier
Staff Writer

The percentage of students attending Maine Center for the Arts productions has more than doubled this year, according to statistics from Rolf Olsen, director of Marketing and Public Relations.

"In its short two-year history there has been a substantial increase in student participation at the arts center this year over last year," Olsen said. "This 15 percent to 32 percent increase can be partially attributed to the mandatory student life fee and the distribution of arts cards."

Olsen said, "The arts center receives $45,000 per year from the student life fee fund. This money gets put into our program and helps pay for our events."

"This is not a very large percentage considering that costs of a single event range from $3,000 at the lowest to $45,000 at the highest," he said. "Most of our revenues are from ticket sales and corporate sponsorship."

The arts center has 29 scheduled events on its regular season calendar that are split between the two semesters. These events are the only ones that students can gain admission to by using their arts cards.

"Students who are enrolled at UMaine and are taking six or more credit hours are eligible for the arts card," Olsen said. "Students with more than six credit hours but less than 12 are entitled to one ticket per semester at no additional cost, as long as it is one of the 29 scheduled performances."

Students with 12 or more credit hours are allowed two tickets per semester, Olsen said.

In addition to this, students may use their arts card for free entry into any Maine-Masque Theatre, Department of Music or Department of Dance event. Student identification cards also may be used for free entry to these events.

Joel Katz, Executive Director of the Maine Center for the Arts, said approximately 326 of the 1,600 available seats are reserved for students. These seats are distributed throughout the orchestra and balcony sections so that students have the opportunity for the best seats in the house.

In addition to the 14 remaining regularly scheduled events, the arts center also rents out its facility to promoters.

"When a private promoter rents out our facility they have to pay a set rental fee and we sell the tickets for them," Olsen said. "Students have to realize that we don't have control over these tickets and promoters are not obligated to give student discounts."

"Although most promoters agree to some student discount for tickets, students are not able to use their arts card to obtain tickets."

Katz said that with the mandatory student life fee put into effect this year, 3,515 tickets were distributed for the 15 different productions last semester.

An additional 2,550 were sold to students and 1,700 complementary tickets were given to

Canadian scholarships available

by Mike Bourque
Staff writer

Three full-tuition scholarships are available to University of Maine students who would like to attend the University of New Brunswick for a year.

The program is open to students who are interested in spending their junior year away from the UMaine, said Mary Jo Sanger of the Canadian-American Center.

"Canada offers really wonderful opportunities and it's less expensive than going abroad," Sanger said.

The program is two-way in that UNB students have the opportunity to come to UMaine.

"It makes you appreciate the other country," she said.

Although UNB is in Fredericton which is just 3 1/2 hours from UMaine, it is not like going to Portland for the year, Sanger said.

"You feel really removed from the U.S.," she said. "There are cultural differences."

"It (the adjustment) was hard at first. I had to learn the system here," Gillies said. "I've learned a lot about the little subtleties in the states."

In addition to the three selected to receive the full-tuition scholarships, any other students who are accepted can go on the exchange by paying UMaine in-state tuition.

Sanger said the applications should be turned in to the Canadian-American Center by the beginning of March.

The program began when the president of each university signed a formal agreement in 1986.

The program allows all credits to be transferred between the two schools.

Sanger said that all students who make the exchange are required to take one or two classes in Canadian content.

UNB has courses in certain programs like civil engineering and forestry that UMaine does not offer, she said.

"They have a very good classics department," she added.

New Brunswick students visit UMaine

by Mike Bourque
Staff writer

Seven students from the University of New Brunswick visited the University of Maine last week as part of an exchange with the International Affairs Club.

"They talked about this being a great university," said Tanya Wilson, a social work major from UNB. "I am really amazed because I went to a large university last year. Compared to that the reception here was different. Here everyone is so friendly," she said.

James Warhola, a professor of political science and adviser to the International Affairs Club, said, "This exchange is to encourage American students to study in Canada and Canadian students here."

The programs and the courses UMaine has to offer the Canadian students looked appealing when the UNB students browsed through them, Wilson said.

"I think it's a really good program and you hear a lot about it up there," said John Mahoney, a forestry wild life major at UNB.

students of the music department, the Off Campus Board and several other University based groups. Approximately 4,000 arts cards have been distributed to students as of now.

"Last semester nearly 600 students were able to use their arts cards in order to obtain tickets to the Second City Comedy Tour," Olsen said. "Since the general public did not purchase all available seats, we were able to increase our number of tickets available to students."

Although the Mark Russell program and the Peking Acrobats sold out, there are still plenty of tickets available for all remaining regularly scheduled events.

"The primary goal of our participation in the student life fee program is to have as many people experience as many different productions as possible in order to promote cultural diversity," Olsen said.

Students who have not picked up their arts cards, can pick them up at the arts center.

Canada

Mahoney wants to spend next year at UMaine now that he has looked at the classes and the campus.

"Coming here helped me make a decision," he said.

The programs scheduled for the Canadians, who were at UMaine Thursday, Friday and Saturday, included a variety of political discussions about Canadian-American issues and the 1988 presidential election. They also included UMaine social events like hockey games and parties.

Supported by the Canadian-American Center, the program was started last semester when UMaine students visited Fredericton.

"It's a great opportunity for an educational and social exchange between two great universities," said Paula Minoty, a member of the International Affairs Club who went on the UNB exchange last semester.

After seeing UNB, Minoty said, she too decided she wants to spend the next year there.

The program between UNB and UMaine has a special status at the Canadian-American Center, which has been organizing exchange programs with Canada for the last 20 years. The special status consists of tuition waivers for three students a year, said Victor Konrad, director of the Canadian-American Center.

"The exchange is a great idea but it's too bad that we didn't have more students from Canada," said International Affairs Club member Aaron Henderson.

Political satirist butchers every 'sacred cow' Friday

by Keith Brann
Staff writer

There are no sacred cows in the Washington/politics scene, only sacrificial ones. Mark Russell sees to that.

For 90 minutes Friday night, Russell ribbed, poked fun at, and made fun of everyone from George Bush to Judge Bork before an enthusiastic packed house at the Hutchins Concert Hall.

Opening with "Believe me when I tell you that it's been a life long dream of mine to appear at the Hutchins Concert Hall in Orono, Maine...on a Friday night," Russell went through 10 minutes of Maine material, including "I have been to Orono, therefore I am."

Wearing a "Maine" hat with a lobster on it, he spoke of the state's patron saint, L.L. Bean, and how, with our governor, two senators, and two representatives to congress now single, we should change Maine's motto to "Maine, good government through celibacy."

On the campaign scene, Russell said, "Robert Dole has been sneaking up behind George Bush lately and humming the Iranian national anthem," and "Michael Dukakis has been campaigning hard out in Iowa, mastering agricultural terms like 'barn' and 'silo,' and boning up on farming strategies, such 'best not to milk beef cattle'."

Much of Russell's humor finds its way into songs like "Albert Gore's Not From Dixie" sung to the tune of "Dixie," and a half dozen other pieces covering today's news makers.

Of the supreme court nominations, he finds it ironic that Judge Bork was questioned on the law by Ted Kennedy and Joseph Biden. As for Ginsberg, "He either sowed his wild oats, or smoked his wild oats."

"The only polls I believe in," Russell said, "are the ones I take myself." With that, he announced the candidates one at a time and used the audience's response to elicit a winner.

For the Democrats, Paul Simon, Mike Dukakis, and Richard Gephardt got roughly the same amount of applause. When only one person applauded for Gary Hart, Russell said: "This means one of two things: Either you don't like Gary Hart, or you don't know he's back in the race."

For the Republicans, George Bush received the most applause, while Alexander Haig got none.

A second poll demonstrated that an overwhelming majority of Mainers, or at least those at the show, were strongly against any aid to the Contras.

"These polls are important," he said, "because as Maine goes, so goes Vermont."

Arabs battle Jews in occupied lands

JERUSALEM (AP) — Dozens of Arabs were hurt in clashes and a Jewish settler was badly burned in a car firebombing in the occupied territories Sunday. In Jerusalem, riot police fought Arabs near one of Christianity's holiest shrines.

The army clamped a curfew on Nablus, the West Bank's largest city with 100,000 people, after lengthy street battles Sunday with masked youths, authorities said. They said four Palestinians were wounded by gunfire.

Scores more were injured after being beaten or inhaling tear gas throughout the West Bank and Gaza Strip, according to officials at several hospitals.

The army said a firebomb tossed at a car in the West Bank city of Ramallah critically injured a Jewish settler.

In Jerusalem, near the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, where tradition says Jesus was buried, police fired tear gas to disperse about 200 protesters. Most of the demonstrators were women, who shouted anti-Israel slogans after attending a memorial service for Palestinians killed in seven weeks of rioting.

According to United Nations figures, 39 Arabs have been killed by Israeli gunfire since protests began Dec. 8. The Palestinians are demonstrating against the Israeli occupation of lands seized during the 1967 Middle East war.

Later Sunday, about 50 stone-throwing youths clashed with riot police firing tear gas near the church. Arab witnesses said police did not enter the church.

Police arrested five Arab youths after the second protest. About 30 officers marched the handcuffed detainees through the narrow alleys of the walled Old City, past shuttered stores and a few dozen tourists.

At the Greek Orthodox St. George's Church in Ramallah, soldiers fired tear gas to disperse about 200 worshippers who left the church to march toward the city's nearby central square, said Ibrahim Duaybis, son of the minister at the city's Anglican Church.

Palestinian Christians, who tend to have more moderate political views than their Moslem brethren, up to now have played a minor role in the rioting led by Islamic fundamentalists and Palestinian nationalists.

But in a first show of organized involvement, leaders of various Christian denominations last Friday called for a daylong fast to express solidarity with the rioters.

In Nablus, clashes continued for a second day. Of four protesters hit by army gunfire, a 25-year-old man was in serious condition after being shot in the back, the army said. Stones littered the city's deserted streets, and columns of thick smoke from burning tires rose from from several sites as masked youths fought protracted street battles with soldiers.

Black Bears split weekend games

by Kevin Sjöberg
Sports Writer

Sophomores Todd Hanson and Dean Smith were the unlikely heroes Saturday, coming off the bench to spark the University of Maine men's basketball team to a 78-63 decision over Colgate. The game, played before a seasonhigh crowd of 1200 in the Memorial Gymnasium, was definitely not one to save for the scrapbook.

It featured a total of 54 fouls, 81 foul shots, and one fight—which ultimately led to the ejection of Maine's Reggie Banks and Colgate's Craig Gorczyca early in the second half.

"It was ugly, but a win is a win," Head Coach Skip Chappelle said.

Maine looked as if they were going to run away with it early. Two Coco Barry buckets and a Banks fast break jam off a feed from Matt Rossignol gave the Bears a 6-0 lead, and a stiff pressure defense did not allow the Red Raiders to enter the scoring column until four minutes into the contest.

Jeff Holmes netted his first of two three-pointers in the contest to cap another 10-2 spurt, and Maine held a comfortable 16-4 advantage with 13:20 remaining in the first half.

But Colgate slowly clawed back, capitalizing on some Maine turnovers and also perfect shooting by Carver Glezen (4-for-4 in the first half) and David Crittenden (5-for-5). They cut the lead to six before Banks tallied eight of Maine's final 10 points in the first half, and at intermission it was Maine by 10; 41-31.

In the second half, it appeared that Colgate was going to give the Black Bears all they wanted. After Banks was ejected 2:41 into the second half, and Barry fouled out with 11:13 left in the game, the Maine frontcourt seemed too thin to be able to hold on to their lead, which was at eight points after Barry exited.

Enter Hanson and Smith. As part of Maine's jumbled lineup that included four guards for much of the remainder of the game, the two combined for 17-for-19 from the free throw stripe in the final 12:26 of the game as Maine held on for their sixth victory of the year, and are now 3-5 in North Atlantic Conference play.

Hanson connected on all ten of his attempts and Smith was seven-for-nine down the stretch. As a team, Maine shot 81/38-for-47 from the foul line, while Colgate struggled at 50/17-for-34.

Chappelle praised the play of his reserves, who combined to score 30 of the team's 78 points.

"The bench has come through at times, and at times it hasn't," he said. "Hanson has been solid at point guard, and Dean Smith has been playing hard. He is starting to get back to where he was last year."

Banks led Maine with 19 points in just 22 minutes of action. Hanson and Smith had 12 and 11 respectively.

by Dan Bostard
Sports Writer

Once again, the University of Maine men's basketball team played host to a tough opponent, and once again they could not keep up, dropping a 94-76 decision to Dartmouth College Sunday.

Led by Jim Barton, one of the top scorers in the nation with a 25.3 average, the Big Green showed why they are tops in the Ivy League in upping their record to 10-4 while Maine fell to 6-11 heading into a four-game road trip.

After leading by nine at the half, Dartmouth slowly pulled away as they handled the Bear's man-to-man defense.

Barton was not the only tough matchup, as point guard and secondleading scorer Bryan Randall proved too much for Todd Hanson and others, often simply blowing by the Waterville native.

The first half was a tough one, as UMaine stayed close despite shooting only 39 percent from the field to Dartmouth's 52 percent. Barton and Randall scored 16 and eight points, respectively.

Reggie Banks continued to play well and helped keep UMaine in the game with 11 first-half points. Coco Barry added nine and Matt Rossignol seven, but the Bears would need more than that if they were to keep up.

Barry tallied four points inside to keep the hosts to within 11, 53-42, but they could get no closer.

Looking for a spark, Coach Skip Chappelle inserted freshman guard Don Bradley, who ran the offense and kept Maine within 11 until another drought, similar to the one in the Siena game last weekend, put the game out of reach.

Banks warmed up with two hoops to actually cut the lead to single numbers, 61-52, with 12:25 left, but that would be all for a stretch of 3:45.

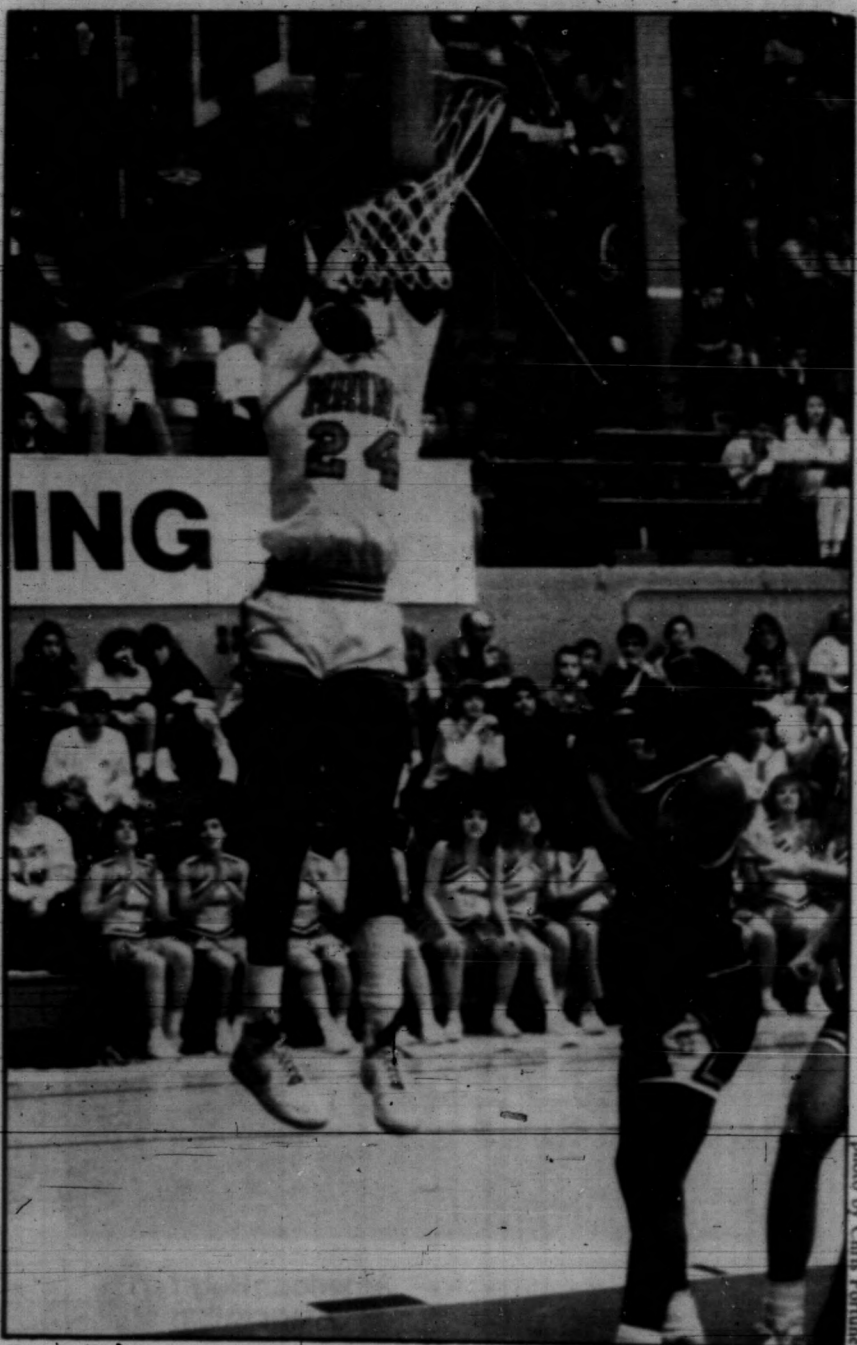

Barton and Brendan O'Sullivan teamed up to score seven points before Rossignol broke the dry spell. Two more Barton hoops and two Randall free throws upped the lead to 20, 74-54, and it was all over but the shouting.

Bradley played well for UMaine, scoring seven points in the second half. Barry continued his good play of late, tallying 17 points inside against the duo of 6-11 Jason Lobo and 7-0 Walter Palmer.

Banks ended up with 25 points while having the unenviable task of chasing Barton around on defense. Rossignol finished with 12.

Barton led all scorers with 28 points, with Randall and Len Bazelek adding 16.

UMaine visits New York this weekend to take on Canisius and Niagara. The next home game is Feb. 20 against the University of Vermont.

Reggie Banks slams one home against Colgate Saturday. Banks scored 19 points in the first half but was ejected early in the second half.

Coffin is second to score 2,000

2000-point-scorer Liz Coffin

by John Holyoke
Staff writer

As far as Liz Coffin performances go, the senior forward's foul-plagued 16-point, 12-rebound, 2-steal, 1-block effort against the University of Vermont Saturday wasn't particularly memorable.

But the thing the 1,180 fans in attendance will remember isn't the fact that Coffin was limited to only 23 minutes as the University of Maine women's basketball team beat the Catamounts 84-73.

The thing everyone will remember is what they saw at the 16:53 mark of the second half. At that juncture Coffin propelled herself into the record book as the first UMaine woman to score 2,000 career points with the left-handed layup of a Rachel Bouchard miss.

The hoop put Coffin in the company of former UMaine men's hoop great Rufus Harris as the only Black Bear players to ever reach the 2,000 point plateau. Harris notched 2,206 points from 1976 to 1980.

Coffin said she realized that the milestone was close, but was so concerned with team goals that she wasn't really aware of her own scoring.

"It caught me by surprise," Coffin said.

The 6-foot senior from Portage Lake entered Saturday's game with 1,990 points, but a poster on the wall behind the Bear bench must have taken the element of surprise away.

HOW SHE DID IT

In a 86-50 win over UVM Friday, Coffin scored 20 points in 21 minutes of action. The hoop that put her at 1,990 was a left-handed layup at the 14:13 mark of the second half. Shortly after that she and the rest of the Bear regulars were taken out of the game.

1,992 At the 13:10 mark of the first half, Coffin converts a power layup to put her just eight points shy. The score of the game is 17-8.

1,994 After being fouled by UVM's Allison Mahan at 8:44 of the first, Coffin shows the form that has put her among the best in the nation in free throw percentage. She cans both ends of the one-and-one, making the Bears' lead 23-17.

1,996 Just 45 seconds later Coffin is fouled again, this time in the act of shooting by Kristen Shaeffer. She hits both shots to make the lead 26-17.

1,998 Not wasting time, Coffin takes the ball to the hoop, drawing another foul on Mahan at the 7:26 mark. Again, she hits both shots to put her just two away from the magic barrier. The score is 30-19.

Time to wait. The anxious fans are put on hold, as Coffin picks up her third personal foul and comes out of the game with 4:48 left in the first half.

2,000 Bouchard misses from 17 feet, but Coffin gobbles up the rebound on the right side of the lane, takes a power step, and lays the ball into the hoop with her left hand. The score goes to 49-41. Play is stopped for a quick ceremony.

Cathy Iaconeta goes to the hoop in Maine's win over Vermont Saturday.

by John Holyoke
Staff writer

In a classic case of Jekyll and Hyde basketball, the University of Maine women's hoop squad blew the University of Vermont out of Memorial Gym Friday, then battled to an 84-73 win over the same Catamount team Saturday.

On Friday night the Black Bears attacked UVM with a 1-3-1 zone that stymied the Cats, and outrebounded their Seaboard Conference foes 63-36 en route to a 86-50 win.

But on Saturday UVM turned the trick, outrebounding the Bears 62-42 and hanging close for most of the way.

UMaine coach Peter Gavett pointed at the rebounding statistics as one of the key differences between the games.

After Friday's contest Gavett said he had stressed the importance of rebounding during practices, and was pleased with his team's performance on the boards against the Catamounts.

But after Saturday's game Gavett was quick to point out the swing in rebounding. "We didn't rebound today at all," he said. "Last night in the first half we outrebounded them 30-10. Tonight they outrebounded us 32-20."

In Friday's contest the Bears jumped out to an early lead and coasted to the victory, spurred by a defense that held UVM scoreless for spans of 3:53, 3:22, and 3:00 in the first half.

In the meantime UMaine was going to town on the offensive end, with Liz Coffin, Rachel Bouchard and Debbie Duff combining for 36 points before intermission.

The Bears led 45-21 at the half, and ran that advantage up to 57-21 over the first 3:06 of the second stanza before the Cats were able to counter.

Coffin led the way with 20 points and 14 rebounds in a 21-minute stint. Bouchard chipped in with 18 points and 16 boards, while Duff had 14 points and seven caroms to her credit.

Vermont standout Joann McKay scored 11 points, but had only two to go with three personal fouls in the first half.

Longrange whiz Rachel Cummings led UVM with 12 points, while Deb Lewis had 11.

On Saturday McKay redeemed herself, scoring 29 points and pulling down 20 rebounds as the Cats hung close.

Coffin had said before the series that if McKay scored 20, the game would be close, but if she didn't, a blowout would take place.

Coffin was right, as the pesky UVM squad dropped to 5-12 on the year and 25 in the Maine swimmers rout New Hampshire

by Dan Bustard
Sports Writer

The women's swim team went about their business Saturday afternoon at home, dominating from the opening gun and winning big over the University of New Hampshire, 183-78.

It was about as close as it sounds. The 200 yard medley relay team of Nancy Connely, Deforest Smith, Robin Ottman and Kim Dunn started it off with a first place in a time of 1:59.27, and UMaine would go on to win all but three events.

Meg Briselden captured first in the 1000 yard freestyle(11:15.13), Natalie Zdenek the 200 yard freestyle(2:01.23), and with a second through fourth sweep in the 100 yard backstroke, the hosts led 44-18 and never looked back.

Anne Cruz performed very well in both of the diving events, winning the 1 meter while finishing behind teammate Bryn Fenton in the 3 meter.

Smith came back to win the 100 yard breaststroke(1:14.21) as well as relay teammate Dunn in the 200 yard individual relay(2:20.46) and the 50 yard freestyle(25.48).

Mary Wakeman swam a solid race to win the 200 yard butterfly in 2:15.21. Noreen Solakoff led a sweep in the 200 yard backstroke(2:23.89) with Patti Seiders second and Connolly third.

Susan Ahlers captured the 200 yard breaststroke(2:39.3), Dana Billington the 500 yard freestyle(5:25.88) and Laura Negri the 100 yard butterfly(1:02.81).

The women's swim team hits the road next weekend as they travel to Boston University before defending their New England Championship at Holy Cross Feb. 19-21.

UMaine's Laura Negri competes in the butterfly Saturday against UNH.

Redskins 42, Broncos 10

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Doug Williams, Timmy Smith and Ricky Sanders ripped apart the Denver defense with a record 35-point, 356-yard second quarter as the Washington Redskins won the Super Bowl by routing the Denver Broncos 42-10 and shutting down John Elway.

Washington spotted Denver a 10-0 lead, then came from behind for the seventh time in 14 wins this year to give the NFC its fourth straight lopsided victory in the NFL's championship game.

It was the Redskins' second Super Bowl victory in five years. And it was an eerie reprise for the Broncos, whose coach, Dan Reeves, said they were haunted by their 39-20 loss to the New York Giants in last year's game, a contest in which they led at halftime then were outgained 200-2 over the next 20 minutes.

If that was a haunting, this one was a possession.

Williams, the MVP, was playing less than 24 hours after root canal on a molar, and set a Super Bowl record with 340 yards on 18-of-29 passing, 306 in the first half. Only six other quarterbacks have passed for 300 yards in a full Super Bowl. The four TD passes by the first black quarterback to play in the ultimate game tied the record for a Super Bowl.

The 35 second-quarter points — on just 18 plays — were 14 more than the Super Bowl record for a quarter and the most in a single period in NFL playoff history. They used just 5:47 to score them and scored on five straight possessions, failing only when Williams' downed the ball on the last play of the half.

Smith, a surprise starter for George Rogers, rushed for 131 yards in the first half, five more than he had in the entire regular season. He finished with 204 yards in 22 carries, including his first two pro touchdowns. That broke Marcus Allen's record of 191 set in the Raiders' 38-9 rout of the Redskins in 1984.

Sanders, who caught two of the four TD passes, had 131 yards on receptions in the first half and finished with a record 193 yards and nine receptions.

The 356 yards gained by Washington in the second quarter was just 17 less than its season-long average for a full game and its six touchdowns set a Super Bowl record. It didn't start that way.

The Broncos scored on their first offensive play, a 56-yard pass from Elway to Ricky Nattiel, and added three more points on their second possession on Rich Karlis' 24-yard field goal.

But then came the boom, an offensive noise louder than the noise from the formation that flew over Jack Murphy Stadium at the close of the national anthem. It was equaled by a defense that limited Elway to two completions in 15 attempts during that period, sacked him four times and picked off three of his passes.

Fifty-three seconds into the second quarter, Williams threw an 80-yard touchdown pass to Sanders. Less than four minutes later, it was a 27-yarder to Gary Clark, followed by a 58-yard TD run by Smith, his first pro touchdown; a 50-yarder to Sanders and an 8-yarder to Clint Didier.

Hockey team extends streak

by Mike Bourque
Staff writer

Senior captain Mike McHugh scored five goals in two games to lead the University of Maine hockey team to a sweep of the University of New Hampshire.

"It's fitting for him. Nobody works any harder," UMaine Coach Shawn Walsh said of McHugh.

After UMaine had beaten UNH 5-2 on Friday night, McHugh exploded for four goals to lead the Black Bears to 9-2 blowout of the Wildcats.

Saturday's victory gives UMaine a seven game winning streak dating back to a Jan. 8 win at Denver. Maine's sweep should keep them in the number one spot in the country in all the major college hockey polls.

UMaine's magic number is now four points. The Black Bears can clinch their first regular season Hockey East title with two wins over Providence College next weekend.

On Saturday, UMaine's Bob Corkum, who sat out on Friday to witness the birth of his baby daughter, scored just 24 seconds into the game. The Black Bears never looked back and charged out to a 6-0 first period lead.

We weren't really happy with last night's game, McHugh said.

"We were intent on having a good first period. Our last two games we didn't have good first periods," Walsh said.

After Corkum's goal, McHugh got his first of four goals on the night on a rebound of a Jack Capuano shot.

About two minutes later, Capuano got his eighth goal of the year off a beautiful pass from his brother Dave.

Jack Capuano finished the night with two goals and four assists while Dave had a goal and three assists.

UMaine wound up the period with goals from Christian Lalonde, Dave Capuano, and McHugh.

In the second period McHugh sandwiched goals around UNH's first goal of the night. The Wildcats got their goal when Adrien Plavsic scored on the power play against UMaine goaltender Al Loring.

In the third period Maine's Jack Capuano and UNH's Mike Rosetti traded goals to make the final 9-2.

On Friday the Wildcats held the high powered Black Bears down and the game was scoreless through the first period.

But UMaine's Lalonde staked the Black Bears the lead when he took a pass from Guy Perron and knocked it by goaltender Pat Szturm.

UNH came right back and tied the score when winger Tim Hanley scored at the midpoint of the game.

But the Black Bears came on to score the next three goals to take a 4-1 lead.

The first of the goals was scored by John Massara who was filling in for Bob Corkum when he broke inside of the blue line and blasted a shot by Szturm.

Mike Golden added his 26th goal of the year and McHugh scored on a power play.

UNH pulled within two goals early in the third period when Jeff Lazaro scored on the power play.

About a minute later, UMaine's Dave Wensley got open in the slot and scored.

UMaine's record now stands at 22-4-2 while the Wildcats drop to 6-16-1.

The Black Bears will travel to Portland on Tuesday to take on Plattsburgh State in a non-conference contest.

Intro. to The Short Story

When Carla told me that my date was a little short, I thought she was talking dollars and cents, not feet and inches. So there I was at the door, in my spiked heels, staring at the top of my date's head.

All I could think was, how do I get myself out of this? I could imagine how my legs would ache if I had to walk around with my knees bent all evening. So to stall for time, while figuring out how to fake malaria, I made us some Double Dutch Chocolate.

When I brought it into the living room, I discovered that Gary was a chocolate lover too. Ahh, a man after my own heart. Okay, I decided I'd give him a chance. So we sat down and saw each other face-to-face for the first time. He had a nice smile.

After some small talk—I mean conversation—I discovered that we both love Updike, hate the winter weather, and both have miniature schnauzers. So, we made a date to introduce Shadow and Schatzi next week.

WLBZ chooses contestants for 'For Kids Sake' project

by Tammy Hartford
Staff Writer

WLBZ has chosen ten young students from its viewing area to represent Channel 2 in the second year of its For Kids Sake project.

Bill Mason, promotion director for WLBZ, said the station contacted elementary and junior high school principals from Waterville to Presque Isle.

Each principal was asked to recommend two students for WLBZ's "Two Team." Mason said an important factor for the principals to consider was the children's writing skills. As members of the "Two Team" they will be writing and producing on-air promotions, public service announcements and news reports for NewsCenter2.

"Basically, they're 'spokeskids' for WLBZ," Mason said. "We thought it would be a nice idea to have some sort of tangible representation...people can get a better grasp that we're dealing with kids' issues. We want to deal with lots of things from kids' perspectives."

By having children aiming messages at other children, Mason said the station hoped to get through to more people.

"I think more kids would listen to other kids, but lots of things are geared towards parents," Mason said.

Public Service announcements throughout the winter will deal with issues such as reading, developing self-esteem, childhood development, and winter fun for families.

WLBZ representatives contacted the parents of the children recommended for the program to explain the guidelines and to set audition times.

The auditions consisted of on-air work and writing samples, Mason said.

From these auditions, the field of candidates was narrowed to forty. After a little more work, the final ten were chosen.

The members of the WLBZ "Two Team" are: Andrew Cyr, 14 (Orono High School); Daniel Echer, 13 (Waterville Junior High School); Meaghan Hannon, 10 (Fairmount School, Bangor); Eric Jackson, 10 (Katahdin Avenue School, Millinocket); Thomas Jamo, 9 (Opal Myrick School, East Millinocket); Meredith Plourde, 13 (Hermon Junior High School); Robert Pottle, 16 (Shead High School, Eastport); Ula Solomon, 15 (Bangor High School); Elizabeth Thompson, 11 (Asa Adams School, Orono); and Erin Williams, 16 (Lee Academy).

Mason said geography played a part in deciding the final ten children. The station wanted children from all over its viewing area, but it needed children who wouldn't have to travel far to its event.

"Half of them are from the Bangor/Orono area," Mason said. "We did this in case we had something come up at the last minute and needed kids we could get quickly."

He said Cyr, Hannon, and Solomon had just completed work on an Olympics special to be aired January 28.

"Going for the Winter Gold" is a special look at teen Olympians. It will air on WLBZ at 7:00 Thursday evening.

SC in two vastly different games.

Maine raised its record to 16-4, 61 in the SC with the wins.

After jumping out to an early 10-point lead, the Bears just couldn't put UVM away, as the Catamounts kept mounting drives which ended up short. The Bears lengthened their lead to 13 several times, but a couple of quick hoops brought it back to single digits on numerous occasions.

Still, the Cats could get no closer than six in the second half, with freshman Rachel Bouchard hitting for a total of 31 points in her most dominating game as a Black Bear.

Bouchard also added 11 rebounds, while Coffin pitched in with 16 points, including her 2,000th career marker, and 12 boards. Duff submitted another quietly spectacular performance, as she hit six of seven shots from the floor for 12 points in her 28 minutes.

Jen Smart pitched in with 10 points and six rebounds.

Rachael Cummings again provided much of UVM's perimeter game, as she bombed for 16 points and grabbed eight rebounds.
