The Sasquatch Club: Looking for a few oddballs and ideas

by Christina Koliander
Staff Writer

There is a new club in town and every student at the University of Maine is invited to join. Eric Ewing, president of the Sasquatch Club, said the purpose of the club is to get "nihilists, anarchists, futurists, egoists, situationalists, libertarians, and subgenius and stupid people together."

"Our goals are to fight boredom for our members and link the university to the underground," he said.

Ewing said the name for the club came from a member "who had the word in his head that week. It's a silly word."

He said the club has nothing to do with the creature known as Sasquatch, or Bigfoot.

Ewing said the club is looking for people who have ideas that are out of the mainstream.

"We'd like to see Sasquatch as a meeting place with alternative viewpoints," he said. "We'd like to spring these ideas on a public of machines and animals."

Ewing said there are people on campus who have views they want to express but don't know where to express them.

He said for people who don't want their real names used, pseudonyms are encouraged. He cited such members as Dan the Kiss Boy, Philip Tommaso Marinetti and Lemon Pants.

UMaine firefighter slightly injured in Orono house fire

by Steve Miliano
and Doug Kesseli
Staff Writers

A University of Maine firefighter was slightly injured early Saturday morning in an Orono house fire when part of a roof support struck him on the head.

Joe Cowherd, a student lieutenant, was released from Eastern Maine Medical Center Saturday morning after observation. Doctors found no injuries, said David Fielder, director of Environmental Safety.

The fire department responded to the fire on Elm Street at approximately 3 a.m. It was the second fire at that address in five days, and fire officials have called it suspicious. On Tuesday the house, owned by Dennis Cross, was damaged by an electrical fire.

After getting Saturday's fire under control, Cowherd and two other firefighters were sent to the second floor to relieve water pressure on the structure by cutting a hole in the floor.

"He was working on what we call overhaul on the second floor of the structure when some of the roof and ceiling came down and struck him on the head," said Henry Vaughan, an Orono firefighter.

According to Orono Fire Chief Duane Brasslett, a State Fire Marshall's investigation determined that the 6-foot-long, 4-by-4 inch beam which struck Cowherd was not nailed in properly and had been weakened by the fire.

Cowherd said he felt water and debris coming from above his head but continued cutting the hole in the floor.

"It happened again with a lot more water and debris," he said. "(Then) a roof support member struck me in the head."

Cowherd said he fell to the floor and felt his "hands get numb for half a second" and a soreness at the base of his neck.

Cowherd, who is trained as an emergency medical technician, remained calm. He left the building and Orono rescue squad members transported him to EMMC.

Abortion rights march draws 65,000 to Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP). — With cries of "choice" and symbolic coat hangers hung from their clothing, tens of thousands of abortion rights activists marched Sunday on the nations Capitol hoping to avert a return to the days of back-alley abortions.

"We're scared," said Ellen Davidson, a Yale University junior from Hewlett, N.Y. Scared, she said, because "we're coming to the realization that the thing we've taken for granted can be taken away."

The Supreme Court will hear arguments April 26 in a Missouri case that pro-choice and anti-abortion forces agree could significantly alter the 1973 Roe v. Wade decision that gave women the right to an abortion.

"I'm thrilled to have my baby," said Kristin McNamara of College Park, Md., as she wheeled 4-week-old Kathryn in a stroller during the march from the Washington Monument to the Capitol. "But I think a woman must have a choice to decide whether and when to have a child. She has to have the right to."

"The message is: Don't let this right go," actress Whoopie Goldberg told celebrities and members of Congress on Capitol Hill as the marchers gathered in a brisk wind in intermittent sunshine.

The women's rights advocates — men and women, Democrats and Republicans, dozens of members of Congress and a host of celebrities — assembled on the Mall at the Monu-

Soviets say 42 died in submarine accident

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union said Sunday that 42 sailors were killed when a nuclear-powered submarine caught fire and exploded in the Norwegian Sea, and it disclosed that two torpedoes on board were armed with nuclear warheads.

The official Tass news agency said the design of the warheads "completely rules out radiation threat during largedepth submergence. To endure radiation safety, the nuclear-powered engine was stopped and the power unit was effectively blanked off."

It said the submarine carried 69 men and that only 27 of them survived.

The vessel went down in international waters 120 miles southwest of Norway's Bear Island and about 310 miles west of Tromsø on Norway's northern coast.

Scientists were gathering deepwater samples Sunday, and they placed equipment near the sunken ship that would monitor radiation levels for years.

The Soviets officially informed Norway of the accident nearly nine hours after the vessel went down. The Norwegian news agency NTB claimed Norwegian rescue helicopters could have reached the ship several hours before Soviet fishing vessels if the Soviets had promptly asked for help.

Motel explosion injures 31 in Montana

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — An explosion apparently caused by natural gas ripped a 40-foot section from a motel Sunday, injuring 31 people, and firefighters searched cautiously through the rubble for the one man believed missing.

The blast occurred four minutes after someone phoned Montana-Dakota Utilities at 1:07 a.m. and reported a strong smell of natural gas, said Dick Blee, the acting Billings fire chief. Firefighters controlled the blaze by 4 a.m.

Blee said a truck belonging to an unidentified man was in the parking lot of the three story Super 8 Motel. All others among about 60 people registered were unaccounted for, officials said.

Two people were hospitalized and 29 others were treated and released at the city's two major hospitals, authorities said.

Authorities expressed relief after learning that neither hospitalized person was critically injured and that no more than one person was missing.

"It'll be a miracle if we have only one dead in this," said Fire Department Capt. Marvin Jochems.

Lewiston official vanishes; police baffled

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — A Navy helicopter was used Sunday as the search continued for a 23-year-old city official who vanished without a trace on his way to work last week.

Walter McGuire Jr., who works in Lewiston's code enforcement division, was last seen shortly after 8 a.m. Thursday by his boss, development director Robert J. Thompson.

"It was raining so I pulled over and asked him if he wanted a ride," Thompson recalled. "He said he was just going around the corner."

Police and family members remained baffled Sunday about McGuire's whereabouts. Lt. Ron Lessard said foul play was not suspected, but police have characterized the disappearance as suspicious.

Lessard said a helicopter from Brunswick Naval Air Station was being used as officials searched the Androscoggin County area for signs of McGuire or his car.

A check of his Jefferson Street apartment found nothing missing, no evidence of foul play and nothing that would indicate McGuire had been planning to leave town. Lt. Herbert L. Saucier said.

"He's the type of person who if he's five minutes late to work, he'd probably apologize for it the rest of the day," Saucier said. "There's nothing in his behavior to indicate he'd just take off. Right now, we're looking at it as suspicious."

Detective Richard Cloutier said police contacted McGuire's neighbors, landlord and relatives and checked with area hospitals but turned up nothing.

Scientists duplicate fusion experiment

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas A&M University researchers have duplicated a controversial University of Utah experiment that reportedly achieved nuclear fusion using a relatively simple process, a college spokesman said Sunday.

Officials at the school in College Station said they would hold a news conference Monday to announce that their researchers had achieved the same kind of cold fusion, one of the most sought-after scientific breakthroughs.

"Other labs around the country have been trying to duplicate this, but nobody else had been able to get satisfactory results," said Ed Walraven, a spokesman for Texas A&M. "Our people are convinced that they've got it, so as a gesture to the researchers at Utah we wanted to announce it as soon as possible."

Scientists have long sought the secrets of nuclear fusion, considered a possible replacement for conventional energy sources because it would be clean, inexpensive and virtually inexhaustible.

Researchers in Utah announced March 23 that they had achieved nuclear fusion at room temperature. Their claim has been met with widespread skepticism among colleagues.

But Cowherd questioned the safety of spraying water on a fire-weakened roof while firefighters were still inside the building.

"I don't think it was a good idea to do that while (we) were still in there," he said.

"It is very seldom (that a UMaine firefighter is injured)," Fielder said. "In 10 years, I think there have only been about three injuries that I can remember."

Fire officials said they had been pumping 120 gallons per minute through a 1 1/4-inch line onto the roof to extinguish burning shingles but that had nothing to do with the collapsing beam.

"It would have come down regardless of the water being applied," Brasslett said. "The water really didn't have anything to do with it."

Ewing said that at the last Sasquatch Club meeting the members discussed cheese.

Ewing said the idea for Sasquatch began "in spirit" two years ago but didn't get started until this year.

There are 12 members of the Sasquatch Club on campus, as well as members in other countries, including Mexico and Scotland, Ewing said.

"We want to surprise people into thinking," Ewing said. "It's good to offend people. It makes them think."

Ewing said the club believes the so-called "normal person" is not normal.

"The typical dweller is either a toaster or a typewriter," he said. "And the man with too many hats is an onion."

This summer the Sasquatch Club will be sponsoring the "Dead Goat Theater," which will perform "avant-garde" plays.

"We'll be saying offensive things to stupid people," he said.

State's largest blood drive is highlight of Greek Week

380 pints collected for Red Cross

by Lisa Cline
Staff-Writer

The largest blood drive in the state highlighted this year's Greek Week activities at the University of Maine.

Four hundred greek volunteers collected 380 pints of blood for the Red Cross during Thursday's drive, according to Kathy Sypek, Panhellenic Council President.

Although the total fell short of the initial 400-pint goal, Sypek said she was pleased with the effort.

"(The UMaine greek system) has always been known to have successful blood drives. This year we came even closer to our goal," she said.

During last year's drive, 370 pints of blood were donated, she said.

The annual Greek Week celebration kicked off Monday with a Gong Show and concluded Sunday with the greek games, which featured a water-balloon toss, a pie-eating contest and a tug-of-war.

Other activities included a lecture by anti-hazing activist Eileen Stevens, whose son died as a result of a hazing incident in 1978, and a Friday night Pub Crawl.

On Saturday, Sypek said, 220 fraternity and sorority members worked on service projects for the United Way.

The fraternities and sororities were awarded points for their participation in the activities held throughout the week.

Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity and Phi Mu sorority won first place with 1185 and 782 points respectively.

Kappa Sigma fraternity came in second with 582 points, and Delta Tau Delta took third place with 569 points.

For sororities, Alpha Omicron Pi was second with 758 points and Alpha Phi was third with 568 points.

These organizations will be awarded trophies for their efforts, said to Carla Mowatt, second vice president of the Panhellenic Council.

Although Sypek and Mowatt said they were generally pleased with the way things went during the week, both said they would have liked to have seen more participation from some of the fraternities and sororities.

Sypek said bad weather may have been the reason for the low turnout at some of the events.

Greek Week is an opportunity for the greek organizations to "unite" and "just have fun," Sypek said.

Mowatt agreed that the activities bring the greeks closer together.

Also, Mowatt added, it gives the fraternities and sororities a chance to overcome some of the problems and bad publicity that have plagued the UMaine greek system this year.

"It gives us a chance to show people what we can do," she said.

'Every time they find a body, it starts all over again'

New Bedford women slip through the cracks and into a serial killer's hands

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — The bodies of eight young women have turned up in recent months along wooded highways near this port city. And David Amaral's sister is missing.

Family members and investigators fear that she and another missing woman are the ninth and 10th victims of an apparent serial killer.

"She had her problems, but she wouldn't just walk off," Amaral said of his 25-year-old sister, Sandra Botelho. "I'm sure she's dead. And every time they find a body, it starts all over again."

The most recent body was found March 31 and identified last week as that of Mary Rose Santos, 26.

Botelho, the mother of two young children, has been missing since August. Like the eight women whose remains have been found within a few miles of each other since the summer, she was a drug user who spend time in the city's less savory quarters.

The district attorney says evidence indicated the slayings are the work of the same person or persons, but he declined to reveal further details.

Until recently the investigation seemed at a standstill, but an anonymous tipster alerted officials to the killer's eighth victim. Last week, after Santos' body was found, the tipster responded to a plea to contact police again, but officers wouldn't say what information he or she provided.

New Bedford police heard from a string of families with missing wives or daughters from May to September 1988, and the first body was found in July. But it was not until the first victim was identified in December as a New Bedford Woman that the investigation really kicked into gear.

Amaral recalled that when his sister disappeared last summer, police told him "she was over 21 and there was nothing they could do."

Police defended the delay in beginning the investigation in earnest.

"We're a police department for everyone, wherever you stand on the social level," Capt. Carl Moniz said. "But when you're talking about drug addicts or prostitutes, there's always the possibility that they've just wandered off."

State trooper Jose Gonsalves said his special investigation unit, which is attached to the district attorney's office, was not initially assigned to the case because of the women's background and because there was little concrete evidence to go on.

"The topic of missing 'girls' would come up. In the back of our minds we were very aware that these people were gone," he said. "The thought was that maybe something had happened to them, but we can't commit four people to doing a lot of work when they may have just left for California or Florida."

"HOW I MADE $18,000 FOR COLLEGE BY WORKING WEEKENDS."

When my friends and I graduated from high school, we all took part-time jobs to pay for college.

They ended up in car washes and hamburger joints, putting in long hours for little pay.

Not me. My job takes just one weekend a month and two weeks a year. Yet, I'm earning $18,000 for college.

Because I joined my local Army National Guard.

They're the people who help our state during emergencies like hurricanes and floods. They're also an important part of our country's military defense.

So, since I'm helping them do such an important job, they're helping me make it through school.

As soon as I finished Advanced Training, the Guard gave me a cash bonus of $2,000. I'm also getting another $5,000 for tuition and books, thanks to the New GI Bill.

Not to mention my monthly Army Guard paychecks. They'll add up to more than $11,000 over the six years I'm in the Guard.

And if I take out a college loan, the Guard will help me pay it back—up to $1,500 a year, plus interest.

It all adds up to $18,000—or more—for college for just a little of my time. And that's a heck of a better deal than any car wash will give you.

THE GUARD CAN HELP PUT YOU THROUGH COLLEGE, TOO. SEE YOUR LOCAL RECRUITER FOR DETAILS, CALL TOLL-FREE 800-638-7600,* OR MAIL THIS COUPON.

Walking for a cause

Steve LeVassuer, Holly Haynes and Shari Rapoza don't seem to mind the snow as they march in a five-kilometer walk around campus Saturday. About 30 people participated in the walk, sponsored by Circle-K. They raised about $1,000 for Project Concern International, an organization that benefits malnourished and diseased children in the United States and developing countries. Part of the money also benefitted Bangor area homeless shelters.

16 Killed, 100 hurt in Soviet demonstration

MOSCOW (AP) — Soldiers wielding shovels and clubs charged thousands of nationalist demonstrators in the capital of Soviet Georgia on Sunday, activists said. The clash killed 16 people and injured 100, official sources said.

"They threw themselves on our people, like beasts, and our people couldn't do anything," said Leda Archvadze in a telephone interview from Tbilisi, the southern republic's capital.

Tension has been building since Tuesday, when thousands of hunger strikers and protesters began pressing demands for Georgian independence from the Soviet Union. The Georgian nationalists also accuse the Kremlin of fomenting unrest among Georgia's ethnic Abkhazians, who are demanding more autonomy.

An official announcement on Georgian television said 16 civilians and soldiers had been killed and at least 100 people were injured, said a duty officer at the city executive committee.

The announcement included an appeal from the Georgian Communist Party for calm, said the duty officer, who refused to identify himself.

A man answering the telephone at Gruzinform, the official news agency of the southern Soviet republic, gave the same casualty count.

Official reports did not specify how many of the casualties were soldiers.

Archvadze said her information came from her brother-in-law, Svyas G. Sachurdia, a member of the Helsinki Watch Committee in Tbilisi, who had witnessed the clash. He was arrested at his home several hours later, she said.

Archvadze said the troops attacked about 10,000 unarmed demonstrators on Tbilisi's central Lenin Square with clubs and tear gas at about 3 a.m.

She said protesters claimed they were outnumbered at least 4-to-1.

A woman at the information desk of the Central Republic Hospital said her facility treated 57 people injured in the clash, most of them young people. She refused to identify herself.

Oil slowly breaking up as military begins operations

VALDEZ, Alaska (AP) — Military jets flew skimmers, booms, and beach landing craft into Alaska on Sunday, and commanders issued a Pacific-wide call for more equipment to fight the nation's worst oil spill.

Kodiak, that nation's richest fishing port, prepared for the onslaught of oil by putting out log booms, but the Coast Guard said the leading edge of the spill, 60 miles away, retreated a bit and began breaking up into tar balls and sinking.

"That's good news," said Bill Lamoreaux, the state's on-scene coordinator.

The tanker Exxon Valdez ran aground on a reef near here March 24, spilling 10.1 million gallons of crude oil into pristine Prince William Sound. The oil has spread into the Gulf of Alaska and fouled some of the many islands in the region.

On Friday, President Bush said he would send the military to help with the cleanup. Exxon Corp., which has been accused of moving too slowly to contain the spill, will continue to provide materials, manpower and money.

Also Sunday:

• A 40-foot gray whale was found dead in an oil-fouled area. Wildlife experts said they hadn't determined whether it was the first whale to succumb to the spill that has already killed thousands of other animals.

• Exxon said it was beginning to reimburse fishermen for losses from the cancellation of the herring season and had paid $250,000 to cover expenses for fishing boats attacking the spill on their own.

Coast Guard spokesman Rick Meidt said an Air Force general made a tour of the area and sent a call to the bases around the Pacific to find out what was available and what the estimated time of arrival in Valdez would be.

The Coast Guard's Pacific commander, Vice Adm. Clyde Robbins, was joining the federal effort. Other experts dispatched by the Pentagon surveyed the cleanup, and with the help of the military, cleanup gear poured into Valdez.

"C5-A after C5-A is bringing in equipment," including skimmers, more booms and beach landing craft to move people to the oily shoreline. Meidt said.

The Navy sent barges outfitted as hotels so that when coasting cleanup gets under way, workers will be housed near where they are working.

Former second mate charges Hazelwood with drunkenness

MEREDITH, N.H. (AP) — A New Hampshire man is quoted as saying the fired Exxon captain implicated in the nation's worst oil spill frequently was drunk aboard the ship when the two worked together.

Bruce Amero, formerly of Amherst and now living Meredith, N.H., worked for Exxon for eight years. He has a $2.075 million lawsuit pending against Exxon in New York state charging that Capt. Joseph Hazelwood and other superiors harassed him.

In a lengthy pretrial deposition given 18 months ago, Amero said Hazelwood "constantly ... appeared to be intoxicated" when in command of the vessel, the Boston Globe reported Sunday.

Amero said Hazelwood held regular drinking parties in his cabin and he once saw Hazelwood toss overboard four empty quart bottles of Jack Daniels whiskey.

Thomas College wins soccer tournament

by Andy Bean
Staff Writer

The snow made it impossible to play baseball this weekend, but the weather went unnoticed by five soccer teams.

The 11th annual University of Maine Indoor Soccer Tournament was held in the Field House Saturday.

Two UMaine teams, the Maine Alumni team, Thomas College and the University of Moncton competed in the all-day affair.

Jim Dyer, UMaine head coach and director of the tournament, said he was pleased with the competition.

"It may have been the most competitive tournament we've had in terms of the strength of the teams," Dyer said.

In the championship game, Thomas College defeated the UMaine-Blue team 4-2. It was the first time the Black Bears did not win the tournament during Dyer's seven years as coach.

The first 11 minutes of the game were scoreless, but Thomas College scored two quick goals with a minute remaining in the first half to go on top 2-0.

Winston Burrows broke down the left wing and scored the first goal off a pass from Mark Lewicki.

That was the first of two goals for Burrows in the championship game, who was named most valuable player of the tournament, scoring eight goals and two assists in six games.

Thomas College Coach Jim Evans said, "Winston was the difference. He really came through for us. He went out and played better than anyone else today."

The next score came less than 30 seconds later. UMaine-Blue goalie Todd Brennan turned away four quick shots by Thomas College before Scott Plowman finally slid one by.

Early in the second half, UMaine had a chance to get on the board and back in the game. Mike McGuire intercepted a pass, and drilled a shot just outside the penalty area, but it was straight at Thomas College goalie Scott Caron, who made the save.

"We had a lot of opportunities, especially at the beginning of the second half, but unfortunately they were right at the goalkeeper," Dyer said.

"We created things, but we just couldn't finish them."

Thomas College went up 3-0 two minutes into the second half. Mike Trott beat one defender on a breakaway and shot the ball across from the right wing just to the left of Brennan, who was coming out to challenge him.

Evans said, "I think what was really in our favor is that (UMaine) had to play that overtime game and we were well rested."

The UMaine-Blue team went 0-1-3 during the afternoon round robin tournament, giving it the last seed in the evening playoffs. UMaine-Blue defeated the fourth seed, UMaine Alum-

Thomas College had the third seed in the playoffs and advanced to the finals by defeating second-seeded Moncton 4-2 in the semi-finals.

UMaine closed to within 3-2 with two minutes left in the game when David Kelly took a direct kick 25 yards to left of the goal and placed it in the upper right corner of the net.

But Thomas College's Burrows finished off the scoring with a breakaway goal, using his speed while taking advantage of a tired UMaine team to end the Black Bears' comeback hopes.

Walhstrom may play soccer as well as hockey next year

by Andy Bean
Staff Writer

University of Maine hockey player Joakim Wahlstrom scored three goals and had an assist this weekend.

But he wasn't using skates or a stick. Wahlstrom was playing indoor soccer for the UMaine-White team in the 11th Annual University of Maine Indoor Soccer Tournament.

Wahlstrom, a student from Sweden, is considering playing soccer for the Black Bears in the fall. He is practicing with the team in the spring and said that he will "see how things go."

"It's good for my hockey skills, for working on my speed and keeping in shape," Wahlstrom said.

UMaine soccer coach Jim Dyer said he is considering putting Wahlstrom on the fall roster, "depending on spring practice and how things go. And if it looks like it will be a positive experience for Joakim, we can work things out with coach Walsh."

Saturday was the first time Wahlstrom had played soccer since 1983. Dyer said Wahlstrom didn't start practicing with the team until Thursday.

Hello?

Where is everybody?

There I was, 12 noon Sunday, standing at Mahaney Diamond. I am alone.

It is an eerie feeling. Not quite similar to watching the University of Maine-Siena College basketball game where no fans were allowed, but something along those lines.

For you see, Mother Nature is at it again.

As I awoke Saturday morning, I could see through the blinds that dreaded last snow of April, a common occurrence in Maine that happens at only one time:

When you really don't want it to. And I do mean don't want it to, as this was my chance to get back into the swing of covering UMaine sports again.

The snows came, taking away my chance to finally see a baseball game, which I have been waiting for since spring break.

I know that our team may not be the strongest in recent memory, and it is only April 8, so there will be many more opportunities for me.

But that is not a consoling fact at this point, standing alone around an empty field waiting for something that has no chance of happening.

I haven't seen a game of any sorts live in over a month, and it is taking its toll.

I guess it could be similar to cabin fever, when one sits around during winter waiting for something to do and the time passes slowly by.

Well, for sports journalists, they have an itch to go out and do a story, trying to beat that deadline pressure and still produce good copy.

I fear losing my edge. I fear losing my touch. I fear losing my mind.

All reporters would rather be writing a story than trying to think of one or something else to do.

But Mother Nature would have none of that, putting a definite damper upon any hopes of completing the scheduled doubleheader with Northeastern.

Not that the rains of the previous week did anything to help, but the winds Friday gave a slight glimmer of hope.

With spring baseball becoming the usual makeup-filled foolishness where pitchers' arms become nothing more than noodles and the quick bats of the early going can slow down mighty fast.

Oh well, I guess I can go home now. The pigeons are starting to land on my head and I don't think I should wait around to see what happens next.

Dan Bustard is a junior journalism major from Presque Isle who is still waiting to get outside and sit and watch a baseball game in 35 degree weather.

Faldo edges Hoch on second sudden-death hole for Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Nick Faldo won the Masters with a 25-foot putt on the second extra hole Sunday after Scott Hoch missed a two-footer for the title on the previous hole.

Faldo, a former British Open champion and eight times a runner-up in tournaments around the world last year, lifted both arms high in the air and howled in triumph when the winning putt found the cup.

The Englishman, who lost the 1988 U.S. Open in a playoff, secured the victory in the gathering gloom of early evening at Augusta National.

Twice, however, he benefitted when Hoch blew short putts that would have won it.

The first came on the 17th hole of regulation play when he made a great recovery shot to the green, then missed a three-foot par putt, dropping him out of sole control of the lead and, eventually, led to the playoff.

The other was even more telling and will be one of the memorable misses in golf history.

With daylight running out, Hoch had an even shorter putt for par, which would have won it outright on the first playoff hole.

After stalking it from every possible vantage point, he pulled it, the ball lipping out. It matched Faldo's earlier bogey and they went to the next playoff hole, where Faldo rolled in the long one.

Both drove the fairway in the drizzling rain. Faldo went for the pin, ignoring the pond on the left on the 11th green. He got it about 25 feet below the hole.

Hoch put his approach to the right, with the ball skipping off the sodden putting surface and running down an embankment.

He chipped up to about six feet and had that left for par when Faldo ran in the birdie that secured the green jacket that goes to the winner of the first of the year's four major tests of golfing greatness.

Faldo, playing about an hour in front of the other contenders, put together a spectacular 65 in difficult conditions, completed regulation play in 283 and then sat back and watched while five others gave it their best shot down the stretch.

There was Seve Ballesteros of Spain, who had a share of the top at one time or another.

But he got a 6-iron shot in the water on the 16th and ceased to be a factor.

Mike Reid, the soft-spoken guy called "Radar" by his fellow pros, had the lead alone, but he three-putted the 14th and then he, too, hit into the water. This one was on the 15th and he was out of it.

Greg Norman, the flamboyant Australian who has played so well here so often, also was there behind the strength of three consecutive birdies on the back nine.

Ben Crenshaw, "Gentle Ben," was also there, trying to win the Masters for the second time.

All made their bids.

All came up short.

Only Hoch, with a closing 69, could match Faldo's 5-under-par total for 72 holes over the rain-slick hills of the Augusta National Gold Club course.

Both chopped up the first playoff hole, the 10th.

Faldo drove the fairway but had an awkward stance and put his approach in a greenside bunker.

"I'm proud of myself. I have nothing to be ashamed of. I played well this week," said Hoch.

Men's track team starts slowly in first meet of outdoor season at Dartmouth

by Dan Bustard
Staff Writer

The University of Maine men's track team began its spring schedule by sending 12 members to Hanover, N.H. for a non-scoring meet with three of the top teams in New England.

Dartmouth University hosted Cornell University and the University of New Hampshire as well as UMaine, and Head Coach Jim Ballinger feels that some of these teams have a chance to make some noise later on in the season.

"Dartmouth was the best team there," Ballinger said, "and they are potential outdoor New England champions." Dartmouth does not compete in the New England indoors.

That is not to say UNH or Cornell are exactly chopped meat, either.

"New Hampshire has their best team in 10 or 12 years, and Cornell is a good team, too," Ballinger said.

UMaine will face UNH this weekend in Durham, N.H., along with the University of Rhode Island, the University of Vermont and the University of Massachusetts.

Rhode Island won the indoor track championships, and Ballinger said his team will have to perform strong in order to compete in this meet.

"We will have our full team next weekend," Ballinger said, "and it should be a good meet. Our chief concern will be to get qualifying times for the championship meets later in the year."

The top finishes for the Black Bears were Pat O'Malley (sixth in the 5,000 meters) and Marc Snow (sixth in the steeplechase).

"We mostly took the kids who needed work, and people who didn't compete indoors," Ballinger said. "No one really did do that well overall."

Freshman Jeff Young, who was one of the top runners last fall for the cross country team, competed again for the first time in two months after suffering a foot injury.

Even though this meet is the first of the season and was of a non-scoring nature, Ballinger did see one performance he was not happy with.

"Thayer Redman did not have a good showing in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles, and I was a bit disappointed."

Any hopes of a new outdoor track being built over the summer are history, according to Ballinger.

"We will not have a new track until next year (1990)," Ballinger said.

Newspaper says Rose allegations false

CINCINNATI (AP) — Investigations have been unable to substantiate claims by a former associate of Pete Rose that he placed bets for himself and the Cincinnati Reds manager on baseball games, including Reds' games, a newspaper reported Sunday.

The latest development in the Rose saga surfaced in a story in the Cleveland Plain Dealer saying that investigators are still looking at telephone records and other material trying to determine the truth of the allegations by Paul Janszen, a body builder now serving time for income tax evasion.

But the newspaper quoted an unidentified investigator as saying, "Does Janszen have an ax to grind? You bet." And gambling associates of Rose maintain that while Rose bet on horses, they can't believe he bet on baseball.

Major League Baseball is investigating

Rose for "serious allegations" reportedly involving gambling. If he is found to have bet on baseball games, Rose would be suspended. Betting on Reds' games could bring a lifetime ban from baseball.

Joe Kaiser, who manages a restaurant near Riverfront Stadium, told The Cincinnati Enquirer he's placed bets for Rose at race tracks.

"Pete Rose is no altar boy, but he'd never do anything sacrilegious. He'd never break the sanctuary of baseball. He's never bet on baseball," Kaiser said. "I'd go before a firing squad and say he didn't bet on baseball and if Pete admitted it, I'd say, 'Go ahead and shoot me.'"

Rose said last week that long-time acquaintance Arnie Metz, a former stadium operations employee, places bets for him at area race tracks. Metz said Rose likes the challenge of betting.

"He likes to win, and he likes to win big," Metz said. "You can do that at the race track, but not with basketball. And certainly not with baseball."

"I've never seen him bet on baseball. It's the hardest to beat. And it just wouldn't make sense for Pete. He's already competitive in baseball trying to win a pennant. He wants that more than anything. He doesn't need to bet on baseball."

The Plain Dealer, quoting unidentified sources, said Janszen made his allegations to baseball investigators during a meeting last week in Cincinnati.

The newspaper quoted the sources as saying Janszen wasn't able to substantiate that Rose himself made a bet. The newspaper's sources said some documents were provided in support of the allegations, including copies of canceled checks from Rose to Janszen.

Captain Hazelwood and his chief mate, Jack Daniels, that run the ship," he said in the deposition.

Hazelwood was captain of the Exxon Valdez on March 24 when it crashed into a reef and spilled more than 10 million gallons of oil into Prince William Sound in the nation's worst oil spill.

Hazelwood, 42, faces three misdemeanor charges in Alaska of operating a ship while intoxicated, reckless endangerment and negligent discharge of oil. He is free on $25,000 bail after surrendering last week on Long Island, where he lives.

Amero also claimed that Hazelwood "falsified the deck logbook about fire and boat drills" aboard his ships, the New York Daily News reported Saturday.

He told the New York newspaper in a telephone interview that "I smelled liquor on him on a number of occasions."

The lawsuit seeks $2.075 million in personal injury damages from Exxon, charging that he was "subjected to abuse and harassment by his superior officers and other supervisory employees, and in particular Capt. Joseph Hazelwood."

Amero was not home Saturday, Michael Chalos, Hazelwood's attorney, declined to comment on the lawsuit.

Amero's mother, Mrs. James Amero, said her son would not give further interviews at least until Monday and not until he has spoken to his lawyer.

On March 24, Hazelwood allegedly turned control of the Valdez over to a third mate uncertified to pilot the vessel in the waters off Alaska. He was fired by Exxon on March 30 after the National Transportation Safety Board said tests taken about nine hours after the disaster showed he was under the influence of alcohol.

Amero said his problems with Hazelwood began a week after he began working under his command.

"I was asleep and he was jumping up and down on his floor one evening screaming at me to come up and drink with him," he said in the deposition quoted in The Boston Globe. He said he refused and Hazelwood began harassing him, and that a female seaman told him that she was sexually harassed by Hazelwood.

ment for the march to the Capitol.

Marchers traded taunts with about 200 to 300 anti-abortion protestors who stood along Constitution Avenue. Police, some on horseback, kept the opposing forces apart.

U.S. Park Police estimated the early crowd at 65,000, but said 20,000 other pro-abortion demonstrators were en route from nearby Robert F. Kennedy Stadium. Some 90,000 people gathered for a March 1986 pro-abortion rally in Washington.

Many of Sunday's demonstrators wore white, the color of the suffragettes who fought for women's right to vote. Some brought their young children.

Boston finally gets first win, 8-6 over KC

(AP) — Ellis Burks tripled in three runs in a six-run seventh inning and Wade Boggs had four hits as the Boston Red Sox rallied to beat the Kansas City Royals 8-6 Sunday for their first victory of the season after four straight losses.

John Dopson, 1-0, got the victory with 5½ innings of relief, as Boston avoided an 0-5 start that would have been its worst since 1966.

Bob Stanley pitched two innings and Rob Murphy and Mike Smithson finished the game after the Royals scored in the ninth on Kevin Seitzer's RBI single.

Reliever Jeff Montgomery, 2-1, took the loss as Kansas City had its fourgame winning streak snapped.

With Kansas City leading 5-2, Nick Esasky doubled to open the seventh and Boston loaded the bases one out later on a walk to Rick Cerone and a single by Boggs, chasing starter Charlie Leibrandt.

Mets 2, Expos 1

Kevin Elster doubled home the tie-breaking run with one out in the ninth inning and Dwight Gooden allowed three hits over eight innings as the New York Mets beat the Montreal Expos 2-1 to avert a three-game sweep.

Andy McGaffigan, 1-1, who had just entered the game in relief of starter Dennis Martinez, walked leadoff batter Gary Carter to open the ninth. Len Dykstra, pinch running for Carter, advanced to second on a sacrifice by Dave Magadan. Elster then scored Dykstra with a drive to center field.

Gooden, 2-0, walked one and struck out seven. He has a 15-2 record in 21 career starts in April. Randy Myers struck out the side in the ninth for his first save.

The Expos had been held to two singles by Gooden when Hubie Brooks homered to tie the score 1-1 with two out in the seventh. Brooks, who played for the Mets from 1981-1984, has eight career homers against the Mets.

Cardinals 15, Phillies 3

Pedro Guerrero and Jose Oquendo drove in four runs each to lead a 19-hit attack as the St. Louis Cardinals scored their most runs in two years in routing the Philadelphia Phillies 15-3.

St. Louis had not scored that many runs since a 15-5 victory over Montreal on June 27, 1987. It was the most runs against the Phillies since a 15-6 loss to

Los Angeles on Aug. 21, 1985.

Guerrero hit a three-run homer to lead St. Louis and has 10 RBIs in the Cardinals' first four games.

St. Louis batters had eight extra-base hits, including seven doubles. Oquendo, Terry Pendleton and Vince Coleman had three hits each.

Joe Magrane, 1-1, allowed seven hits in 6½ innings, striking out six.

Bruce Ruffin, 0-1, gave eight hits and five runs in three innings. Mike Maddux followed and gave up eight runs and eight hits in 3½ innings.

Rangers 3, Blue Jays 2

Reuben Sierra hit a two-run homer off Tom Henke with one out in the ninth inning, giving the Texas Rangers a 3-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Rafael Palmeiro doubled with one out off rookie Tony Castillo, who had relieved John Cerutti in the eighth. Henke, 0-1, came in and Sierra hit his 1-2 pitch in the right-field seats.

Kenny Rogers, 1-0, pitched one inning of one-hit relief in his first major-league appearance.

Toronto had taken a 2-1 lead in the seventh. Pat Borders reached on a two-out dropped third strike and snapped a 1-1 tie when Kevin Brown walked Kelly Gruber with the bases loaded.

Dodgers 4, Braves 2

Pinch-hitter Mickey Hatcher and Willie Randolph each hit a sacrifice fly in the 12th inning to give the Los Angeles Dodgers a 4-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

John Shelby and Jeff Hamilton hit consecutive singles to open the 12th off reliever Mark Eichhorn, 0-1. Shelby took third on Hamilton's hit and scored on Hatcher's fly to right.

Mike Scioscia followed with a single, sending Hamilton to third before Randolph hit his sacrifice fly to right.

Alejandro Peña, 1-0, picked up the victory with three scoreless innings of relief. Tim Crews got the Braves out in the 12th for his first save.

The Dodgers tied the score 2-2 in the eighth with an unearned run off reliever Joe Boever.

Giants 9, Reds 1

Matt Williams hit a grand slam for his first hit of the season, leading the San Francisco Giants past the Cincinnati Reds 9-1.

Williams had gone 0-for-14 in his first four games when he lined a pitch from Danny Jackson, 1-1, over the left-field wall to give the Giants a 5-0 lead in the first inning.

The uprising started when Will Clark singled with two outs. Kevin Mitchell hit an apparent inning-ending fly to left-center field, but outfielders Eric Davis and Kal Daniels let the ball fall between them. It bounced over the wall for a ground-rule double, with Clark stopping at third base.

Candy Maldonado was intentionally walked and Kirt Manwaring walked to force in a run before Williams' slam.

Rick Reuschel, 2-0, did not give up a hit until Paul O'Neill's fifth-inning double. The Reds scored in the sixth when Daniels doubled and Todd Benzinger singled him home.

Orioles 8, Twins 1

Frank Viola lost his second straight start, allowing a three-run homer to Randy Milligan and a two-run homer to Cal Ripken as the Baltimore Orioles beat the Minnesota Twins 8-1.

Viola, last year's American League Cy Young Award winner, earlier this week rejected a three-year $7.9 million contract extension, asking for $8.1 million and threatening to become a free agent after the season. He was greeted warmly when introduced before the game but was booed after allowing the home runs.

Viola allowed five hits, struck out seven and walked one in six innings. He lost to the Yankees on opening day and is 0-2 in the Metrodome, where he was 14-2 last season.

Jeff Ballard pitched a seven-hitter for Baltimore in his first appearance of the season, striking out one and walking none. Bob Melvin had three of the Orioles' 12 hits.

Padres 5, Astros 4

Tony Gwynn drove in two runs, including the game-winner, and Jack Clark added a two-run single as San Diego rallied to beat Houston 5-4 in a game which featured a triple play by the Padres.

The Padres accomplished the sixth triple play in club history and their first since July 31, 1983 in the eighth inning.

With Kevin Bass on second and Greg Gross on first, Ken Caminiti hit a ground

Abbott hit hard in first professional start

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Jim Abbott lost because he had just one pitch, not one hand.

Abbott's professional debut fizzled Saturday night, undone by trouble that could stop any 21-year-old rookie.

His control was off, his nerves acted up and he had some bad luck. Two errors hurt him and so did a broken-bat single with the bases loaded.

When it was over, he had allowed six runs on six hits in a 4½ innings, although three runs were unearned. The Seattle Mariners, who began the night as the worst-hitting team in the major leagues, beat Abbott and the California

Angels 7-0.

"I'm a little disappointed that things didn't go a little better," Abbott said. "There were some things to build on. But overall, I didn't do as many things as I'd like to."

Mainly, Abbott didn't get the ball over the plate.

He threw 83 pitches, just 47 for strikes. He walked three, one intentionally, and struck out no one. He also threw a wild pitch that set up two first-inning runs.

"Today, maybe my mind wasn't as clearly focused as I would've wanted," Abbott said. "There was definitely some nervousness."

Abbott has always had control difficulty, but in college and the Olympics, a 90-mph fastball and a hard slider are enough to win. But he is still learning the curve and changeup he needs to win in the majors.

And against Seattle, Abbott had difficulty throwing his slider for strikes. That left him with only a fastball that is good, but not great, and big-league hitters can hit anything if they know what is coming.

"We got to him early and got him to throw the kind of pitches we wanted," said Harold Reynolds, who took a called strike to open the game and then singled. "He throws hard and has good stuff, but he has to stay ahead in the count."

Abbott got two strikes on just five of the 24 batters he faced. The Mariners seemed onto him, swinging and missing on just two pitches.

"I think he uncharacteristically was more nervous than he's ever been before," Angels manager Doug Rader said. "That's understandable. He got the ball up early and was overthrowing a bit."

Abbott became the 15th player, 10 of them pitchers, since 1965 to begin his pro career in the majors, although all except Dave Winfield, Bob Horner and Pete In-caviglia spent some time in the minors.

A crowd of 46,847 that included his parents from Flint, Mich., turned out to get Abbott's answers to how-does-he-do-it and can-he-do-it.

ball to third baseman Luis Salazar, who threw to Roberto Alomar at second, forcing Gross.

Alomar threw to Clark at first to get Caminiti for the second out. Clark then threw to catcher Mark Parent who tagged out Bass, attempting to score from second on the play.

With the score tied 4-4, Alomar led off the fifth inning with a single off Mike Scott, 1-1, stole second and moved to third on a fly ball before Gwynn hit a double in to the gap in right-center field.

Eric Show, 1-1, went seven-plus innings and allowed four runs and eight hits for the victory. Mark Davis finished for his third save.

Indians 4, Yankees 3

Tom Candiotti allowed four hits in seven innings and Pete O'Brien hit his first homer of the season as the Cleveland Indians defeated the New York Yankees 4-3 to complete a three-game sweep.

For the Indians, it was their first three-game sweep over New York at Yankee Stadium since May 1966. The Yankees have now lost five straight after beating Minnesota on opening day and have scored a total of only 13 runs in their six games this season.

Candiotti, 1-0, struck out four and walked two to win his eighth straight decision. He allowed a run in the third when Rickey Henderson walked with two outs, stole second and then scored on Steve Sax's single.

Last season, the right-handed knuckleballer was 4-0 in five April starts with a 2.13 earned run average.

The Indians took the lead with a three-run fourth inning off Tommy John, 1-1. John, 45, was going for his 288th victory.

Cubs 8, Pirates 3

Rick Sutcliffe pitched a seven-hitter and struck out 11, leading the Chicago Cubs past the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-3 in frozen Wrigley Field for a sweep of the three-game series.

The game was played in a 33-degree temperature and the wind-chill made it feel as if it were eight degrees. It snowed two hours before the game and the stadium ramps had to be salted down to accommodate the crowd of 11,387.

Domingo Ramos, Ryne Sandberg and Mark Grace drove in two runs each for the Cubs.

Sutcliffe, 2-0, allowed a run in the first on Andy Van Slyke's sacrifice fly but the Cubs came back with four in the bottom of the inning on an RBI single by Sandberg, a two-run single by Grace and an RBI double by Ramos.

Bob Walk, 3-0 last year against the Cubs, gave up eight hits and five runs in four innings.
