Silver Saber To Top Cadet At Review

Annual Inspection Set For May 10

BY DAVE GETCHELL

The color and ceremony of the annual federal inspection and military review will be climaxed this year with the presentation for the first time of a silver sabre to the outstanding graduating R.O.T.C. student.

The review will take place on the athletic field, Thursday, May 10, at 9:25 a.m., and will be followed by special awards, demonstrations, and class exercises. The visiting inspecting officers from First Army headquarters and the New England Sub-Area, accompanied by Lt. Col. William M. Summers, head of the military department, and Dr. Arthur A. Hauck, president of the university, will preside at the ceremonies.

Medals To Be Awarded

Gold, silver, and bronze medals will be awarded respectively to the outstanding senior, junior, and sophomore students in the three military units, Signal, Infantry, and Artillery.

Medal awards will also be made to the outstanding freshman cadet and the neatest cadet. A gold medal will be presented to the highest scoring basic R.O.T.C. student, and a silver medal will go to the highest scoring advanced R.O.T.C. student.

It is expected that Mr. Alfred Lingley, president of the Maine Alumni, will be present to make the award of the silver sabre to the outstanding graduating R.O.T.C. student.

The following cadet officers make up the R.O.T.C. battalion staffs:

First Graduation For Aggie Unit

Students in the two-year agricultural program will have their first formal graduation exercises since the inauguration of that program in 1903. The graduation ceremonies will be held on Friday, May 4, at 4:30 p.m. in the Little Theatre.

Guest speaker for the event will be Mr. Harold J. Shaw, an alumni trustee of the university, and a graduate from the two-year agricultural program in 1914.

President Arthur A. Hauck will preside at the ceremonies. Associate Dean Winthrop C. Libby, of the College of Agriculture, will award the graduation certificates to the 23 two-year students.

Following the formal exercises there will be a dinner for graduates, their families and guests, and alumni in Balentine Hall at 6:45 p.m. John Sealey, alumni secretary, will be the speaker at the banquet.

Skit Will Feature WSGA Assembly Tomorrow Morning

The Women's Student Government Association assembly will be held tomorrow morning at 9:45.

The annual report of this year's officers will be given. Announcement of new WSGA officers and the WAA officers will be made at this time.

A feature of the assembly will be a skit written by Marilyn Vaughn depicting Women's Student Government as it was in the past and as it is today. This skit is the highlight of the assembly which brings to women students the procedures of the association which directly affect their campus life.

Those in the skit are Dottie McCann, Beverly Chadeayne, Frances Smart, Lenore Dinsmore, Sarah Bouchard, and Marguerite Floyd.

Mary Dean Yates will summarize the events of the New England conference for women student leaders which was held at Bates College over the past week end.

Students from the entire New England area met at Bates and discussed problems pertinent to college life such as the honor system, orientation, and the place of college women in a changing world.

Automatic excuses from classes will be given all women students because the assembly is compulsory for them.

Mary Jean McIntire is in charge of arrangements for the assembly.

Lewisohn Appeals To Individual

"The dreadful error of trying to redeem man from within society has produced modern totalitarianism," Dr. Ludwig Lewisohn told a general assembly last Monday morning. Dr. Lewisohn's address, "What Does God Require Of Us?" opened U. of M.'s annual Embassy Week.

Appealing to the individual conscience, Lewisohn expressed the opinion that man needs redemption and that the redemption of man was planned to come not from within society but from "within the individual."

"The improvement of man has been sought within society and not from God for the past 100 years." It is this that has brought forth the Communistic concept of the pre-eminence of society, the educator said.

"When man ceases to worship God, he worships idols," the Brandeis University professor continued. Communism is the current idol, the speaker told the assemblage of students and faculty.

A full schedule of seminars, panels, dinners, and church services was held through Wednesday.

Stag Dance Dates Open

Organizations wishing to secure dates for stag dances next year should apply in writing to the Social Affairs Committee, 207 Library, as soon as possible. Dates will be assigned in the order of the receipt of application.

Deadline For Entrants In Mayoralty Campaign Is Extended To Friday

Committee Chairman Robertson Says Similar Situation Occurred In 1949

At this time the mayoralty campaign looks like the primary stages of the 1949 campaign, Bill Robertson, mayoralty committee chairman, said last Monday.

With Monday, April 30, the original deadline for registration of candidates, only one man had registered on that date.

Robertson added that the campaign stands in danger of being a walk-away for the lone candidate. "It reminds me of the campaign two years ago," he said. "At that time I was the only candidate for the office. Then, after the scheduled registration deadline, Al Harrington tossed his hat into the race. Finally, as many remember, an even later registrant entered and won the title of campus mayor."

Deadline Extended

On Tuesday morning the mayoralty committee met and decided to extend the deadline for candidates until 6 p.m. Friday, May 4. All interested candidates are urged to either contact Robertson or leave their names at the Assistant Dean of Men's office, top floor, Library.

Robertson summed up the additional benefits for the mayor-elect as the same as those received last year, plus a blanket pass to all public campus activities, and a special insignia of office. He added that representatives from Bangor and Old Town are expected to present the winner with the keys to their communities, while Orono was still pending.

Harold C. Harmon Wins Music Award

Harold C. Harmon, a senior majoring in general agriculture, received the Mu Alpha Epsilon music award Friday night at the seventh annual Music Night in Memorial Gym. Prof. Lewis Niven, head of the music department, made the presentation.

Harmon was voted the award as "the student contributing the most to the advancement of music on the Maine campus during his or her college career." He has been president of Mu Alpha Epsilon, drum major and student leader of the band, and president of the orchestra.

He is the leader of the 1951 Maine Day band and Graduation Band and instructs a class in band leadership.

Visiting Faculty Aids In Teaching Summer Session

Fifty-three visiting faculty members will join the resident faculty at the U. of M. summer session this year, according to a catalog just off the University presses.

The summer session, July 2 to Aug. 10, will offer nearly 175 courses over a wide range to topics.

In addition to the regular program, there will be 16 special three-week courses ranging in subject matter from "Techniques of Supervisory Home Economics" to "The Mature Mind."

There will also be several elementary college courses designed to meet the needs of full-semester freshmen who want to start their education this summer.

Conferences Scheduled

Conferences on Reading, Business Education, and Parent-Teacher leadership will be highlights of the session, as will a series of three evening lectures by noted American writers. A program of four musical events has also been planned, which will include the L'Ecole Montoux Chamber Music Group from Hancock, where Pierre Montoux, conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, directs a summer school for conductors.

The summer session, which annually brings a large number of teachers to Orono for advanced work, is also designed "to meet the needs of regularly enrolled college students and those who seek cultural and professional growth in specific fields," according to Dean Mark R. Shibles.

"When The Bough Breaks" Will Be Presented By Masque

Associate professor Walter R. Whitney of the English department will see his three act comedy, "When the Bough Breaks," produced by the Maine Masque Theatre group at the University of Maine's Little Theatre, May 16 through 19.

Professor Whitney was born in Richmond, Maine, but grew up in Bangor. He was graduated from Bowdoin in 1923, and received his master's degree in Arts from Harvard in 1935. He worked five years with a magazine staff for the Butterick Publishing Co. in New York. "When the Bough Breaks," which was produced earlier this spring by the Bowdoin faculty group as "One on the House," was written while Professor Whitney was on leave in California last spring. Since then the play has undergone extensive revision. The finished product, which will be produced by the Masque, is currently in the hands of a New York agent awaiting production.

Professor Whitney has published many short stories and articles, but this is his first serious attempt as a playwright.

Education Conference Will Be Held May 4-5

Faculty representatives from 29 New England colleges and universities will meet here May 4-5 for the eighth annual New England Conference on Graduate Education.

Principal speakers for the two-day event will be Dr. Arthur A. Hauck, Dr. Francis E. Rogers, dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Science at Harvard University; Dr. Donald F. Hornig, director of chemical research at Brown University, and David B. Widlinger, director of the Fulbright Program for the Institute of International Education.

If You Have Lost It Registrar's Office May Still Have It

If you've lost it, the Registrar's office has it! That busy office in the Administration Building could outfit everything from a threadbare student to a stripped office desk. It is rapidly acquiring the appearance of a second-hand clothing store and pawn shop.

Some of the merchandise up for claim is well worth the trouble of an afternoon walk over for identification. There are multi-colored gloves to fit the hands of either sex; a pen and pencil collection which could rival that of the Bookstore's; glasses and glass cases; handkerchiefs and hats; scarves and key chains; jewelry and pipes; slide rules and padlocks.

The only things which haven't been found are the hours of sleep and classroom instruction which so many students are so sadly missing.

Naval Reserve Unit Program Outlined By Lt. Comdr. Dekin

By TOM JOHNSTON

Albert A. Dekin, in a Campus interview, this week outlined the program of the Bangor naval reserve unit which he commands. A lieutenant commander in the reserves, Dekin is superintendent of schools in East Corinth.

Dekin's unit, known officially as Organized Surface Division 1-16, will accept applications for membership from anyone who has not received notice from his draft board to report for a physical examination. Term of enlistment is four years.

Once accepted, the reservist is expected to maintain satisfactory (90 per cent) attendance at the weekly 2-hour drill.

The unit periodically files, with the draft board, a form showing the attendance record of the reservist. In practice, Dekin said, it has worked like this: The draft board has called a reservist only when his drill attendance has been unsatisfactory.

Reservist Term—21 Months

Further, membership in the naval reserve does not prevent the member from enlisting, at any time, in any service.

Of course, the member would be subject to call by the Navy. If called on an involuntary basis, the term of service would usually be 21 months—longer or shorter according to the needs of the service. This contrasts with the straight 4-year period which one serves if enlisting in the regular Navy.

Currently, the new reservist would receive full equipment but no drill pay. Under pay status, which is expected to resume shortly, the reservist would draw $2.50 per drill period as a seaman recruit. This figure increases with time and with increased rating.

Cruises In Summer

The reservist may move according to ability up through the enlisted ratings. He may not qualify for a commission in such a unit.

An annual 2-week cruise (tour of duty) is expected of each reserve member. Normally, he would take this cruise during the summer months.

The first cruise requires attendance at an indoctrination school. Further cruises are afloat.

Need 200 Members

The Bangor unit meets every Wednesday night. Although the drill periods nominally last two hours, according to Dekin the actual meeting extends from 7:30 p.m. to about 10:15 p.m.

Current strength of this unit is 81 members. Its authorized strength is 200. Further information on membership can be obtained from the Naval Reserve Training Center, 402 Essex Street, Bangor (Tel. 6070).

Maine Graduate Will Deliver 92nd Commencement Address

Dr. Robert F. Chandler, Jr., a graduate of the U. of M. in the class of 1929, will be the speaker at Maine's 92nd commencement exercises on Sunday, June 17.

Approximately 800 seniors and 50 graduate students will hear the newly inaugurated president of the University of New Hampshire before taking their degrees.

For the third consecutive year graduation exercises will be divided into morning and afternoon sessions.

Dr. Chandler, who has been acting head of the University of New Hampshire since last November, was officially inaugurated as that institution's 12th president on April 25.

Following his graduation from the U. of M., Dr. Chandler was State Horticulturist for the Maine Department of Agriculture for two years. He then accepted a graduate assistant's position at the University of Maryland, where he received his Ph.D. in 1934. He has since done graduate work at the University of California.

For 12 years Dr. Chandler was professor of forest soils at Cornell University. From 1947 until his appointment as acting head of UNH last fall, he was dean of New Hampshire's College of Agriculture and director of the agricultural experiment station.

Extra Date Set For Draft Test

Students wishing to take the Selective Service College Qualification Tests and whose religious affiliations prevent them from doing so on a Saturday, as scheduled, have been granted an alternative by the Director of Selective Service.

Previously, the tests were scheduled to be held on May 26, June 16, and June 30. Another date has been designated, Thursday, July 12, and is arranged only for those registrants whose religious affiliations prevent their taking the test on Saturday.

Procedure Listed

When such a registrant indicates his desire to apply for the test to be given on the special date, SSS Form No. 106 and SSS Form No. 107 shall be used, except that SSS Form No. 106 shall be altered by drawing lines through the dates "May 26" and "June 16" and the boxes appearing opposite those dates. Also the date "June 30" shall be crossed out and "July 12" written in at the left of the space now occupied by the date "June 30." The registrant should then complete the two boxes opposite "July 12."

Students taking the Qualification Tests are to report to 6 Stevens Hall at 8:30 a.m. on the date of their examination. The tests will begin at 9:00 a.m. and will last until 12:30 with a half hour break.

Seating Space

Information from Dr. Crawford, the faculty member who is supervising the examinations, states that facilities are available for 500 students to take the tests on May 26. Students taking the tests on that date will be assigned to the various classrooms in Aubert, Wingate, Coburn, and Stevens Hall.

A slight change in procedure has been posted for students submitting an application to take the tests. Instead of sending to a Selective Service Board to obtain an application form, students may now obtain this necessary form at 1 North Stevens.

May 12 Is Deadline Set For Cabin Bids

The deadline for applications for housing in the University Cabins next year has been extended to May 12, according to an announcement this week from the office of Housing Director Raymond P. Thomas. May 1 was the original deadline for applications for the $50-per-semester accommodations.

The colony, which consists of 10 cabins and a central building, has been used since the war by married students only. It is now being reconverted for use by 34 upperclassmen and eight freshmen.

Each of the 10 cabins provides a study-room, kitchen, two bunkrooms, toilet, and storeroom. Showers are in the central building. Four students will reside in each cabin.

In addition to the usual dormitory facilities, oil, water, electricity, and gas will be provided. Students will furnish cooking utensils, tableware, and bedding.

Applications should be addressed to the Student Aid and Placement office, 76 Library.

The cabins are located at the southeast corner of the campus near the trailer colony.

Thomas added that he hopes the relatively low rent figure can be permanent, but it may have to be adjusted according to operating costs after the fall semester.

Sluggard's-Eye Look At Ants

This seems to be Local-Boy-Who-Made-Good>Returns-To-The-Scene-Of-His-Youth semester.

At the February graduation Harland A. Ladd, state commissioner of education, delivered the commencement address. He graduated in 1925.

Tomorrow afternoon Harold Shaw, an alumni trustee, will deliver the commencement address to the graduates of the two-year agriculture course. He is a two-year Aggie graduate himself.

On May 14, Dr. Alvin C. Eurich, president of the State University of New York, will be the speaker at the 24th annual Scholarship Recognition Day assembly. He was an instructor here for two years and received his M.A. from the U. of M. in 1926.

At the ninety-second commencement, June 17, Dr. Robert F. Chandler, Jr., president of the University of New Hampshire, will deliver the principal address. He graduated in 1929.

There must be a good deal of personal satisfaction in being called upon to address the student body of one's alma mater. It would seem to indicate in a personal way that one has attained a certain level of riches, position, or scholarship.

Scholarship is a word of many meanings. Webster's Collegiate Dictionary defines it as (1) character or qualities of a scholar and (2) a foundation for the aid or support of a scholar or student, as in college. But there is another meaning, much harder to define, which transcends the dictionary definitions.

This third definition is well-known to the four men mentioned above. It might be called the spirit of learning, the possession of which distinguishes scholars from students. It can be obtained from books, but it is more than words and ideas. All the Aristotles, Lockes, Jeffersons, and Paines had it. Adam Smith had it, as did Karl Marx, Immanuel Kant, Shakespeare, and Shaw.

It is probably unnecessary to say that every matriculant will not become a scholar, or a possessor of scholarship of the third variety. Many have not the ability to acquire it; others have not the incentive. It is of that small group who have the ability and incentive, and therefore a chance of attaining that third type of scholarship, that we wish to speak here.

By stating our hypothesis mathematically we find that this is a case where one (character or qualities of a scholar) plus two (aid from a foundation) sometimes equals three (third type of scholarship). Not always, but sometimes.

Scholarship, then, is something not easily acquired. It deserves recognition. It is for this reason that U. of M. has for 23 years held an annual Scholarship Recognition Day.

The main business of Scholarship Recognition Day is to award foundation aid; its main purpose is to recognize academic achievement.

We do not wish to imply that all who receive scholarship aid at the Scholarship Recognition Day assembly on May 14 are, or will ever be, scholars. Academic achievement is not synonymous with scholarship of the third type. Only a few of them will achieve scholarship. We students who have no hope of attaining it can promote it by recognizing its existence and encouraging those who are potential scholars.

Between The Lines

BY BILL MATSON

Dear Mom and Dad,

You know, it's a funny thing, I was thinking today how two years ago, when I was a junior at the University of Maine, I took a million and one mental and physical exams to get myself a "deal" in the armed services.

Do you remember how I first became enthused with an officer training program that was designed by the air force? However, both of you thought that four years was too long a time for me to spend in the service.

The next thing I thought of was the NROTC, but as you know, my math isn't too good, and I failed the exam. I then tried to get into the advanced ROTC at Maine, but it entailed Saturday classes, so I changed my mind rapidly.

I figured that my next best bet was to attend the Marine Officers Platoon Leaders School, but that meant spending some of the summer in training, and I couldn't see giving up my valuable freedom away from college for such folly.

That exhausted all my chances to become an officer, and before I knew it, I was called to take my pre-induction physical exam for the army. After I had been classified as physically fit for military service, the President came out with a scheme to defer college students on the basis of academic standing in one's respective class and the results of a special college deferment test. And remember how happy I was when my local draft board informed me that I had done extremely well on the test?

Not too much else to say except that as soon as my promotion to corporal goes through, I should be in line for a furlough. I hope to see you soon.

As ever,
Your Son

MARK WELL

BY TOM JOHNSTON

Brotherhood Week passed through here two months ago. Its good effects are reflected, undoubtedly, in many phases of campus life. I wish that some of this good could percolate into the dark recesses of our drafting department.

I am led to this sad reflection by an incident connecting that department with its blueprint dryer. A b.d. works something like the toaster in the bookstore, where you see an endless belt carrying your toast around the heating unit.

Just so with the b.d. A wide canvas belt carries the print over several heated drums. There is one difference, though. If you forget to take your toast off the belt first trip 'round, all is not lost. True, it may be badly burned but at least you get something back, if only token ashes.

Not so with the b.d. Your print should be taken off first time it hoves into sight. Failing this, you have, as legal men would say, "one last chance." It makes one fleeting second appearance and then disappears for good. Let your attention wander for a split second and you've had it—or rather you haven't it.

This matter of distraction is not academic. It is a practical problem, especially when there passes before the open door of the print room an attractive bit of Wildlife, which department maintains an office right across the hall.

Not long ago, the drafting department took the b.d. apart to remove the periodic accumulation such attention-wandering begets. What do you think they found? A book. What do you think they did with it? They removed it!

Now just suppose some hapless draftsman winds up in the innards of the b.d. Don't you suppose he'd enjoy the solace a good book would provide while he's awaiting redemption?

I maintain the drafting department should replace the book. The really brotherly thing would be to accompany it with a ham sandwich.

Listen Here, George...

To the Editor: And to George Karalekas I want to say that congratulations go to the editors and contributors of Scare for a fine publication.

Mr. Karalekas' criticism may be valid if he does not appreciate honest opinion and light nonsense for a change from the highly dramatic stories he may be used to reading in the "slicks"—maybe Mr. Karalekas is a New Yorker reader. Anyway, everyone to his own taste. Scare makes an attempt to present something for the whole campus and not for just the "upper uppers" who maybe have had their noses too much in Shakespeare and Wordsworth.

By the way, Scare is always looking for more copy. Why don't you, Mr. Karalekas, and anybody that has a desire to put something down on paper and see his stuff in print, turn your stuff over to the editors of Scare. They will be glad to see it.

Special congratulations go to Ted Gross for his two excellent works. It is good to see such honesty, sincerity and good taste.

Aw, Quit Your Gripin'

To the editor: Just about every issue of the Campus now contains a gripe letter, not about something like the roads or General Senate, but about the efforts of some individual. I, for one, am getting rather sick and tired of those people who sit on their thinking ends all the time and write belittling letters about the efforts of others. This campus is not exactly noted for the amount of extracurricular efforts of its student body, but those who do work should get credit for their efforts.

Want A Afghan?

The date is Saturday
 The fourth day of May;
 The place is Balentine sun parlor
 —Not far away.
 It begins at two 'clock
 And lasts close to five;
 So you see it doesn't matter
 Exactly when you arrive.

Inexpensive articles
 We plan to have on hand
 From dishes, gloves, and potholders,
 To a knitted afghan.
 Other treats are in store
 Of one sort or another;
 Perhaps you'll find there
 The ideal gift for Mother.

Refreshments will be served
 In the form of a tea;
 You all are welcome to come,
 And the admission is free.
 To keep you in suspense
 Is what we've tried to do—
 The occasion is the annual Bazaar of Phi Mu.

1000 Cards Turned In For Projects

Persons Not Listed Will Be Given Jobs

Nearly a third of the university's population is signed up for Maine Day projects, it was revealed early this week. Jo Cunningham and John Skillin, co-chairmen of the projects committee, announced that more than 1000 students and faculty turned in their projects cards before the April 20 deadline.

The deadline was earlier this year than usual, the chairmen explained, in order that arrangements might be made for the exchange breakfast among the men's and women's dining halls.

"We realize that many students may have missed the early deadline," Skillin said. "They are still welcome to join the projects groups."

"It will not be necessary for them to turn in assignments cards," he pointed out. "Those interested have only to show up at one of the exchange breakfasts, and afterwards to join a project group on the mall."

With the exchange breakfast expected to end about 8 a.m., all projects workers are asked to gather on the mall by 8:15. There they will be assembled in projects groups, receive equipment, and start out on their morning's work.

Transportation from the mall to the more distant project areas will be provided.

A list of work projects, project leaders, and assigned workers follows:

Second Float Parade To Be Colorful Show; 25 Entries To Date

Dr. Hauck Will Award 'Dakin Banners' In Both Women's And Men's Groups

The second annual Maine Day Parade is planned to include even more novelty and color than the initial exposition held last spring, according to Russ Meade, chairman. About twenty-five floats are expected to represent dormitories, fraternities, and other organizations.

Included in the parade but not entering into competition, will be a haphazard vehicle entered by members of the faculty and administration, Meade added. Competition will be divided to supply a contest for both men and women, with entrants in each division seeking to win "The Dakin Banner." These banners, one for each group, are presented by Dakin's Sporting Goods of Bangor and will remain in competitive circulation until one organization wins it for the second time.

Beside the winners two honorable mention floats in each division will be chosen.

The judges committee is composed of Miss Nancy Libby, Miss Marguerite Musgrave, Mr. Vincent Hartgen, Mr. Frank Dalton, and Mr. Philip Brockway. President Hauck will serve as chief judge and chairman of the group. The winning float will be the most original and the most fitting to the combination theme of University History, College Life, and The Maine Stein Song.

Of interest along the line of the parade will be the special conveyances of the Mayoralty candidates and a special float presenting The University of Maine's three queens: Calico Queen, Gladys Armstrong; Carnival Queen, Nancy Kelley; and Honorary Lt. Colonel, Ruth Ellingwood.

The float parade committee, Ginny Norton, Elwood Beach, Claire Levasseur, Wendy Hodgkins, Jo Josslyn, and Russ Meade, plan to hold the parade rain or shine and ask all participants not to alter their plans even if weather is poor.

Last year, Lambda Chi Alpha took first place with a large paper stein, while Beta Theta Pi and Austin's Trailer Court received Honorable Mention.

Maine Day Tradition Originated In 1935

1935 saw the beginning of another fine campus tradition—Maine Day. On May first of that year, under Carl Witham's chairmanship, the students at Maine worked on thirty assorted projects. That morning the lawns were raked, trees planted, chemistry equipment overhauled, a hammer and discus throw constructed, and other cleanup tasks accomplished.

In the afternoon of that first Maine Day, competitive teams ran relay races which the Campus stressed as not "too strenuous." The evening, as is still the custom, was taken over for entertainment. President Hauck starred in a burlesque opera, "The Lamentable Tragedy of Julius Caesar." The students presented skits by classes.

This first Maine Day also saw the first campus mayor elected from a slate of nine candidates.

The success of the first Maine Day entrenched the tradition which is still followed. In 1937 the evening entertainment was increased by a skit presented by the janitors.

Sunday was chosen to be Maine Day in 1938. A special edition of the Campus listed the projects and mayor platforms of what was termed as the "cleanest Maine Day and dirtiest mayor campaign." The afternoon featured a mock olympics with the student body divided into 20 teams representing different countries.

Maine Day, 1940, was limited to a treeplanting ceremony and sports events. A Clean Work Clothes dance was the order of the day in 1941 when four mayoralty candidates clamored for attention. In 1943, 600 workers turned out for an entire day of cleaning the campus.

The tenth anniversary of Maine Day was unique in history since the work teams were kept from their projects by a heavy snowfall. Ice floes were used that evening in the faculty production of Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Two years ago, outdoor projects were cancelled when a downpour was inaugurated along with the mayor. At that time President Arthur A. Hauck was presented with a student scholarship in honor of his 15th year as President of the University.

Last year, Maine Day was highlighted by the planting of an Alaskan birch tree. The tree was the gift of the students of the University of Alaska as a token of friendship. The tree was planted between the Administration building and Holmes Hall.

John Stimpson, last year's chairman, reported that 1950 Maine Day attendance was the biggest since the founding of the event sixteen years ago.

Maine Day Set For Wednesday

Maine Day is less than a week away. Next Wednesday, May 9, is the date which has been set for the University's gala springtime frolic.

But the fun won't wait for Maine Day this year. Activity begins on Monday, May 7, with the daytime opening of the mayor campaign. Monday night will witness the Interfraternity Sing, set for 8 p.m. in Memorial Gym. A trophy donated by the Ohio Alumni Association will go to the winning fraternity.

Tuesday will see more mayor campaigning, with the finale set for 8 p.m. in Memorial Gym. There candidates will make their final stands and present their biggest shows. Voting will take place in the gym immediately after the rally, and a free stag dance there will complete the evening.

Maine Day itself, Wednesday, will open at 7:30 a.m. with the exchange breakfast. Projects are scheduled for most of the morning, beginning at 8:15 a.m. Through the courtesy of the Bookstore, refreshments will be served to all workers.

The float parade will lead off the afternoon at 1:30, with the parade route planned to encircle the mall. Prizes will be awarded to the best floats.

The inauguration of the new mayor is scheduled for 2:15 p.m. in front of the Library.

A baseball game with Colby, set for 3:30 p.m., will wind up the afternoon.

The Maine Day Skit, planned for 8 p.m. in Memorial Gym, will bring Maine Day to its official close. The student and faculty cast has a one-and-one-half-hour show on tap, and the welcome mat is out.

Maine Day Skit Will Tell Story Of 'Show Biz'

Plans and preparations for the Maine Day skit are near completion. Both the student-faculty cast and the planning committee have expressed feelings that the homespun extravaganza will be ready for the critics at curtain time Wednesday.

The skit will climax the activities of Maine Day, and is scheduled for 8 p.m. in Memorial Gym. The show is to have one performance only.

Earlier announcements have revealed that the skit will bear the title "Three Thousand S.B.," and will tell in touching manner the history of show business down through the years.

In an exclusive interview early this week, Nancy Knowles, chairman of the skit committee, announced that the rest of the story can now be told. "Now it can be told," she said.

The entire skit, according to the chairman, is expected to be an hour and a half long, and will be in eight parts. Each part will portray a phase of theatrical history.

Snort Skits Will Open Program

The first three parts will be short, and will tell of the earliest beginnings of show business. In order, they will be the Cave Scene, the Egyptian Scene, and the Aztec Dancers.

Part four will be a Greek tragedy, enacted by members of the faculty. Based on the Greek play "Alceus," it is written and directed by Russell Woolley of the speech department.

Principals in this story of royal life and strife in ancient Greece will be Dr. Arthur A. Hauck, as the King, and Miss Eileen Cassidy, of the physical education department, as the Queen.

After the Greek play, three more short scenes will be staged. They will be the Minstrels, the Shakespearean Era, and the Victorian Melodrama.

Last on the program will be the presentation of the "North Atlantic," a modern-day musical show. Written, directed, and performed by students, it has—at least to the casual observer—marked similarities to a well-known musical show now pulling 'em in on Broadway.

According to Miss Knowles, the music for "North Atlantic" was composed by two off-campus people, Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein III. Lyrics and script were written by Richard Rodgers, U. of M. student, and Mrs. Martha E. Tate, house director at West Hall.

"North Atlantic," directed by Bill White, is a tale of life and love in the Special Projects List Issued

In addition to the 35 regular Maine Day projects to which students have been assigned, the chairmen of the projects committee have issued a list of eight special projects. These are mostly departmental and organizational in nature.

Assignment of students to the special projects is being handled through the heads of the various departments and organizations which are concerned. Workers on these projects are not expected to take part in any of the regular projects for the day.

The special projects are: 1. Crosby Laboratory; 2. Coburn Hall; 3. Department of Physics; 4. Maine Masque Theatre; 5. Radio Guild; 6. Department of Art; 7. Department of Horticulture; 8. Visual Aid and Curriculum Laboratory.

Special Menu Planned For Exchange Breakfast

It's "up in the mornin' and out on the job" for projects workers on Maine Day—but first they'll take time out for an exchange breakfast.

The meal is scheduled for 7:30 a.m., and men and women students will eat coeducationally in one of four dining halls, according to their project assignments.

The breakfast will be served in Balentine and Estabrooke halls, the Commons, and New Cafeteria. After eating, students are asked to report to their projects groups, on the mall, no later than 8:15 a.m.

According to Jim Elliot, chairman of the breakfast committee, a special menu has been planned for the breakfast. He also pointed out that arrangements have been made for refreshments to be served to projects workers during the morning.

Projects groups are assigned to dining halls as follows.

geographical region of the same name. Principals in this musical are Dick Dennison, Dick Ayotte, Flutler Floyd, Lynn Hatch, and Dot McCann.

Narrator of the entire Maine Day skit will be Russell Woolley, adviser to the skit committee.

Other members of the skit committee are Dwight Frye, Hal Harmon, Sid Folsom, Chet Campbell, Herb Merrill, Peg Given, Jan Pratt, Flutler Floyd, and Dave Haskell.

Balentine: Projects No. 1, 3, 7, 11, 14, 17, and 18.

Estabrooke: Projects No. 4, 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 12, 13, 15, 16, and 19.

Commons: Projects No. 2, 20, 21, 22, and 23.

New Cafeteria: Projects No. 24, 25, 26, 29, 30, 31, 32, 34, and 35.

Before the meal, Elliot said, students will gather with their project leaders at each dining hall. Both men and women students will be asked to show their meal tickets before being served.

The dining halls will be open from 7:30 to 8 a.m. Dormitory authorities have announced that no pick-up or second breakfast will be served afterward.

The menu planned for the exchange breakfast includes ham and eggs, muffins, cereal, doughnuts, orange juice, coffee and milk.

Chow Down!

All Maine Day projects volunteers will be treated to refreshments sometime during their morning of work.

Manning the delivery trucks and passing out the refreshments will be Heidi Ward, Mary Jane Crockett, Jackie MacFarlan, Barb Grover, Nancy Whiting, Nat Tarr, Winnie Ramsdell, Dean Edith Wilson, John Longley, Jim Lumsden, Dwight Demeritt, and Jim Elliott.

Home Ec Club Has Open House

Approximately 250 guests attended the annual open house given by members of the Home Economics Club at Merrill Hall last Saturday afternoon.

Highlights of the affair were fashion shows given for the visitors, home economics exhibitions, and an institutional tea room where cake and punch were served by girls majoring in foods.

The displays that were set up dealt with education, designs, home furnishings, home management, food, and extension work. All work connected with the exhibitions was done by home economics majors.

A nursery school was in session throughout most of the afternoon. Children of faculty members were taught by child development majors.

General chairman for the open house committee was Marilyn Cockburn. Other member-chairmen of the committee were Janice Cogswell, Helen Canty, Beth Chick, Mary-Ellen Michaud, Ann Preble, Mary Helen Oak, Carolyn Harmon, and Jeanne Frye.

Forestry And Wildlife Students Organizing Forest Fire Crew

A "hot-shot" forest fire crew is being organized by students in forestry and wildlife conservation.

This crew is being trained in the functions of various parts of the fire control organization, as set up by the Northeastern States Forest Fire Compact.

Objectives for the crew are: to be prepared to render assistance to the State Forest Service in case of emergencies like the Bar Harbor Fire of 1947 and the Greenfield Fire of last May; to reduce the likelihood of injuries on the fire line through proper training; and to provide the benefits of actual experience for those who will be called upon to suppress fires as part of their jobs after graduation.

The contemplated organization will include a crew of four 10-man squads, each with a straw boss. They will move progressively around the fire edge, building the control line with maximum efficiency. In addition there will be power pumper operators, radio men, first aid men, service men, and time keepers.

The Maine crew will be identified by Maine Forester shoulder patches and red hats.

Outdoor practice scheduled for last Saturday afternoon was cancelled because of rain. However, nearly 40 students volunteered an hour of their time to attend an indoor demonstration, and to see a motion picture loaned by the State Forest Service.

University Society

By FRANCES DION

'Twas a comparatively quiet week end but there were several bang-up parties so here 'tis. On Friday evening it was "go to hell with TEP" as 75 couples congregated at the second annual "Hades Hop." The interior of the house was decorated according to the theme with smudge pots outdoors adding to the atmosphere. Bob Litman was in charge of the elaborate refreshments. Dancing was to the music of a vic. Mike Posner, the new social chairman, was in charge of the arrangements for the dance. Chaperoning were Sgt. and Mrs. William Klein and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Rubin.

It was "Sound off—1, 2" at Beta which held its Military Brawl. Over 100 people came dressed in military costume dancing to vic music. The latter part of the evening was devoted to a jam session, the musicians being Jim Murtha, Ced Joyce, Vaughn Twaddell, and John Jewett. Chaperons for the dance were Mr. and Mrs. George Ellis and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Webber.

Approximately 150 Daisy Mae and L'il Abner couples jammed into the ATO house for the annual Daisy Mae Party. The house was decorated in a cabin motif with characters from Dogpatch. Don Lord and his Dixieland Band provided the music. At intermission Doc Brannan, Dick Leclair, and Vern Tozer entertained with a skit. Bill Cummings and his date won the prize for the best costume. Chaperoning were Mr. and Mrs. Kern Jackson and Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Jordan.

Lambda Chi was turned into a showboat which had a minstrel show on deck. Jokes, songs, and stunts were all combined to make wonderful entertainment. John Brewer acted as interlocutor. About 45 couples attended the affair which was in charge of Dunc Carson. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Sezak and "Ma" Sprague served as chaperons.

Saturday night saw no organized fraternity parties although there were several informal dances.

The girls, however, combined their energy and put on a stag dance in Estabrooke Hall which was very well attended. Wonderful way to spend an evening. Plenty of fellas and girls, too.

Athletic Funds Derived From Activities Fees

By SID FOLSOM

Student fees annually provide between two-thirds and three-fourths of the Athletic Department income according to figures released by the Treasurer's Office.

The University Treasurer's report for the year ending June 30, 1950, listed the total Athletic Department income as $94,717.67. Of this amount, $73,008 was paid by students through activities fees.

Of the $9.50 activities fee paid each semester by most students, $9.00 is earmarked for athletics.

It was revealed earlier this year that $31,293 was the Athletic Department's share of last fall's activities fees. Following the February drop in enrollment, a slightly smaller figure is expected to go to the department this semester. Thus student fee allocations to athletics for the present school year will be about $12,000 less than last year.

Other income to the Athletic Department, according to Frederick S. Youngs, University Treasurer, is derived from guarantees on away games and meets, ticket sales for home games, sale of programs and old equipment, concessions, and a certain sum appropriated by the Trustees.

Last year, according to the Treasurer's report, guarantees were worth $2970, ticket sales netted $14,186.50, while the remaining items totalled $4,553.17.

Athletic Department Expenditures for last year, given in the Treasurer's report, totalled $94,505.73. This left a balance close to $200, which was carried forward to this year's budget.

Last year's expenditures, listed by sports, showed the following figures: baseball, $10,066.77; basketball, $9,095.23; football, $32,955.20; golf, $1,771.25; track, $16,182.68; inter-scholastics, $726.42; tennis, $1,794.04; winter sports, $2,215.90; and administration, $19,658.24.

It was pointed out by Ted Curtis, Faculty Manager of Athletics, as well as by Youngs, that the figures for a given sport represent the expenditures in all phases of it. For example, they explained that the track figure was divided among freshman and varsity indoor and outdoor track, and freshman and varsity cross-country.

It was also pointed out that the list of athletic department expenditures did not provide for maintenance of the athletic plant, including heat, water, lights, and upkeep of the Memorial gym, Field House, and outdoor fields. These items come under the jurisdiction of other administrative departments, and provisions for them are made from those departments' separate budgets.

Youngs said it was well to keep in mind, in considering these figures, that the Athletic Department receives benefits from the Physical Education Department, and vice versa. As both center their activities about the athletic plant, they make certain use of interlocking programs and shared services.

The trustee appropriation to athletics, Youngs added, constitutes a small portion of the Athletic Department's income. It is based, he pointed out, on the rental paid for Fernald hall by the University Store company.

He explained that the Bookstore pays its rent to the University as a whole. Then, each year, the Trustees appropriate an equivalent amount to athletics, the sum moving within the sphere of the overall University budget.

Bear Facts

BY BEN TUCKER

Baseball got up off its knees here last Saturday, despite wind and over-cast skies, to give the fans a double shot of runs, hits, and errors. Track was also among the events that came under the crowd's critical eye at Alumni Field. Let's drift back into the past and see how these two sports fared in the days of chewin' tobacco and flyin' spikes.

How did the Maine baseball teams of the early 1900's stack up with the present nines? That is a tough question to answer, but we do know they also made errors and traveled on the road. Their equipment was poor as compared with that of the present squad. The catcher wore no shin guards. The players had woolen sweaters underneath their jerseys; the jerseys laced up the front and were tied at the neck in a bow.

In 1902 the Maine baseball team won the state championship. The squad played such teams as Harvard, Wesleyan, Manhattan, and the New York Giants that year. The N. Y. National League team defeated the Maine unit 7-2.

An account of a baseball roadtrip ran thus: "Owing to the inclemency of the weather, but one out of a series of four scheduled games was played. In this game, the team took on a batting streak, even the tail-enders fattening their averages with two hits, and Willie Towse made it necessary to recover the ball with a beautiful home run."

This same year Maine opened a state series by defeating Bowdoin. That evening the town woke up. The faculty also woke up and sputtered about using "moderation in celebrations." Bates was the next victim on the schedule, going down to defeat 9-4. In this game "Polly" Russell of Bates fell asleep in deep center field and a fly ball came near proving fatal to him.

Maine's defending state champion track team did a fine job in edging powerful New Hampshire last Saturday. Milbank, Pale Blue weight ace, set a new University shotput record with a heave of 47 feet 11½ inches. Bear two-miler Dow ran the fast time of 9:58.6 while Johnson tossed the hammer 170 feet 10½ inches, both setting new field records. At Brunswick on the same day, Bowdoin's Bill Seffens tossed the javelin 208 feet 10½ inches for a new state record. This latter feat exceeds the New England Intercollegiate mark by nine feet.

At the Maine Intercollegiate track meet in 1902, Lawrence of Maine won the two-mile run with the time of 11:7.8. Denning of Bowdoin threw the hammer 129 feet 11 inches which was a state record at the time, and he also copped a first in the shotput with a toss of 38 feet 6½ inches. In those days the javelin throw was not one of the events. There was, however, a two-mile bicycle race listed. Pratt of Colby held the state record with a time of 5 minutes 4 seconds.

Although track was an important college sport in the early 1900's, the times and distances recorded in the various events weren't too impressive as compared with today's.

Baseball, too, has taken long strides to save its shoes. No more do we see the player filing his spikes on an emery wheel, no longer do we see the sliding baserunner spitting tobacco juice into the opposing catcher's eyes, and no longer do we see the tipsy starting pitcher coming into the park just before game time. Why?

Education. We've gone blue-blood.

Trackmen To Defend State Title Saturday

Net Crew Bids For YC Crown On Home Courts

The Yankee Conference championship title for the Maine tennis squad hinges about tomorrow's match here at 1:30 p.m. with Rhode Island, and after the last showing against the Rams, Maine coach Doc Small feels confident of taking the cup. The Pale Blue previously defeated Rhody 8-1 at Storrs.

The best that Rhode Island can do now is tie for the Yankee Conference lid, providing it annexes wins over the other contenders which Maine already has beaten.

Last Saturday's match against Vermont was forfeited to the Pale Blue by the Catamounts thus giving the Bears a clean sweep so far.

Ready to go for the big one will be Ben Blanchard, Pale Blue captain and number one man on the squad, who is looking for the individual Yankee Conference cup, himself. He has won every single and doubles match so far. According to Small, Blanchard has a better-than-average chance of being individual YC titleholder.

Besides Blanchard the team includes Paul Peterson, number two; Bill Bird, number three; John Domenico, number four; Dick True, number five; and Bob LePage, number six.

Maine Adds Opponent

Maine has recently added the University of New Hampshire to its list of opponents, and the match is scheduled for May 15.

In last week's tryouts for the Frosh, Coach Small announced that the team has been cut to eight men. They are: Ken Bernard, Bill Feyler, Skip Hall, Bob Irish, Mark Lieberman, Nelson Luce, Art Traub, and Marshall Weeman.

A tentative schedule for the Freshmen will include matches with Portland Junior College, Ricker Classical Institute, Portland high, Bangor high, Houlton, and possibly Hebron.

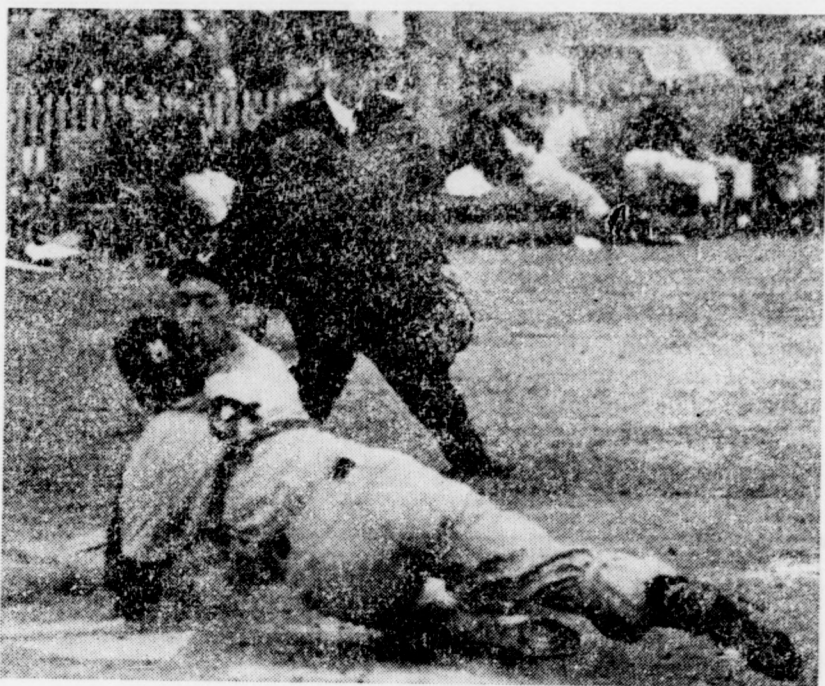

Football Ends With Note Of Optimism

Forty-six candidates for next fall's varsity football squad, including 13 varsity men, brought spring practice to a close here last Saturday with a 90-minute scrimmage game.

Coach Hal Westerman had a word of praise for the squad as a whole and is optimistic about the prospects for next fall. "I was very pleased with the overall enthusiasm and intensity with which the boys played," he said. "The polish of teamwork was not at its peak, but that's because we have concentrated mainly on individual training."

The hard fought battle brought forth a number of fine prospects from among the underclassmen and newcomers. In addition to varsity men who participated, those who showed well for the newcomers were linemen Ted Sparrow, Ed Cianchette, Lew Clark, Mark Lieberman, and Clay Beal and backs Ed Bogdanovich, Steve Novick, Tom Thomas, Bob Wallace, Joe Garneau, and John McCann.

Two of Maine's all-time greats were Harry Richardson and Bud Lindsay who, in 1929, broke the national cross country record and tied for the individual first place.

He didn't make it. Dom Cote, slugging expert for the University of Vermont, is put out at the plate by Maine catcher Red Wilson. Cote belted the ball to deep center field, ignored the third base coach's holdup signal and attempted to stretch the wallop into a home run but was cut off. He collected five hits for six times at bat in the seven-inning double header. Maine split with Vermont.

Rhody Tests Maine In YC Tilt; Crucial Games To Start Soon

BY CURT BURRELL

Maine's slim chances of remaining in contention for the Yankee Conference baseball title may well be decided here tomorrow afternoon when the Bears face powerful Rhode Island in a game set for 3:30 p.m.

The Blue forces, defending Yankee Conference champions, already have suffered two losses in YC competition, and this same Rhody Ram nine holds an earlier victory over Maine.

Coach Mike Lude will lead with hurler Blaine Trafton against Rhode Island tomorrow and will counter with veteran Marty Dow in Saturday's tussle. Both pitchers worked in the twin bill with Vermont last week end, and although Trafton was handled roughly, it is expected that he will be all set for the Rams. Dow's record for the season is 2-2 while Trafton has won two of three contests.

In addition to the Yankee Conference loss from Rhode Island, Maine dropped its second circuit tilt to Vermont when the Bears split a double-header with the Catamounts.

Dow Stars

Right hander Marty Dow hurled and batted Maine to a 4-2 win in the first game. Dow slammed a double in the fourth stanza, sending two mates across the plate. Maine collected three hits, while Vermont pounded out seven safeties, one of which was a home run by Dom Cote in the second inning with the sacks empty. Dow, however, was effective in shutting off Catamount threats and struck out six.

In the nightcap, the Green Mountain boys had it all their own way as Don McCuin, a effective southpaw, shut out the Bears 6-0.

While McCuin was handcuffing Maine batters with only four hits, Blaine Trafton was being belted for a total of eleven safeties.

Woodbury revealed that the Frosh should have a good team defensively, and that the infielders will be fast.

Bowdoin Looms As Major Threat To Jenkinsmen

If the Maine track team had a stiff assignment in edging past New Hampshire here this week end 70½ to 64½, the task this week end will be even tougher when the Bears attempt to retain their state crown in the annual state meet at Waterville.

And when Maine fans think of the state competition they automatically refer, by tradition perhaps, to Bowdoin's Polar Bears. Down through the years, Maine and Bowdoin have dominated the track show in the state with the "Brunswick Boys" holding a slight edge. Bowdoin has won the crown 29 times while Maine has annexed the title on 21 occasions. Bates finished first a single time.

Bowdoin Strong

Again this year, Bowdoin will be powerful, and the Polar Bears have a well-balanced squad. Probably one of the best phases of competition this year will be in the weight events where both Maine and Bowdoin are strong.

Indications from Bowdoin's times this year in the dashes make it appear that the Polar Bears have an edge in this department. But Coach Chester Jenkins has been pleased with the improvement of several of his own dash men, and with a break in weather for practice, his speed merchants may be able to improve sufficiently for the big test Saturday.

Battle For Points

Experts predict it will again be a race for points by the two teams, although the points picked up by Bates and Colby will be a determining factor in the final results. Bowdoin is the current New England champion while Maine holds the state crown. Last year the Bears beat out Bowdoin in the state encounter only to finish behind the Polar Bears in the New England.

Those who Jenkins will be counting on Saturday include Floyd Milbank, Dick Dow, Prescott Johnson, Dick Gordon, Jack Wathen, Ray Cox, George Weatherbee, Al Leighton, Harry Easton, Barney McAulan, and Mac Osborn.

Connecticut Given Edge In Race For YC Golfing Honors

Defending champion Connecticut again will be strong in the Yankee Conference Golf Tournament which will be held here at the Penobscot Valley Golf Course Monday, May 7, starting at 9 a.m.

The Nutmeggers already have defeated Maine this season, but the Bears were playing without benefit of any intensive outdoor practice. Last season Coach Charley Emery's golfers finished second in the Yankee Conference meet, but they annexed the state title for the second straight year.

According to Ted Curtis, faculty manager of athletics, four schools definitely had entered by Tuesday afternoon. They are Maine, Connecticut, Vermont, and Massachusetts. Rhode Island will not participate while no official reply had been received from New Hampshire.

Captain Don Brown, Connie Bosworth, and Walt Hewins, forming the nucleus of lettermen for this year's team, will lead the Bears on the links.

Lewiston High Leads Field In Annual Speech Tournament

Lewiston high school led the field at the Maine Speech Contest held here last Saturday. A first-prize medal and two second-prize medals were won by Lewiston speakers during the day's competition.

Nearly 200 high school students were on hand for the contest, which drew participants from 55 of the state's high schools and academies.

The speech contest was sponsored by U. of M., with arrangements handled by members of the Department of Speech. Students and faculty-members acted as judges. The competition has been sponsored by the university since 1903.

Contestants were judged on eight types of speaking ability, and first, second, third, and fourth prizes were awarded in each class.

In addition to Lewiston, five other schools collected three medals each during the contest. They were Stephens high of Rumford, Brewer, Waterville, Caribou, and Mt. Meric academy of Waterville.

Embassy Leader Quits Platform After Dispute

By ROLAND MANN

The walk-out of one of the principal speakers from a panel discussion last night in the Louis Oakes Room brought the 1951 Embassy Week program to a close.

With the words, "I'm an American!" Father Francis X. Ryan, C.S.P., left the crowded lecture room where he had been occupying the platform with Rabbi Milton Elefant, Hillel director here, and Dr. Cecil Hinshaw of the American Friends Service Committee.

A statement by Dr. Hinshaw, during the question period, to the effect that the "Iron Curtain" was not wholly Russian but at least partly American brought the Paulist to his feet.

"I can't sit here on the same platform while this man gives out to this audience with what sounds remarkably like the party line," he declared. "I'm going to leave. Call it ungentlemanly, call it bad manners, call it what you will, but I cannot sit here in silence while these things are being said."

Dr. Hinshaw had asked Father Ryan to say specifically what points he disagreed with.

Charles Lewis, a U. of M. senior, had told Father Ryan from the floor that American authorities in Germany, where he was studying last year, had made more difficulties than the Russians when he attempted to visit the Soviet Zone.

Father Ryan replied that the Iron Curtain in Russia was the subject under discussion, whereupon Lewis accused him of evading the issue.

Then Father Ryan repeated a previous remark about Dr. Hinshaw's sounding "like the Daily Worker." Dr. Hinshaw replied that he resented the implication and declared, "I am not a Communist and I do not ever intend to become one."

Comments by Father Ryan were interrupted when Lewis again rose and said, "Remember, sir, this is Embassy Week. We must be tolerant." Applause greeted his words.

Father Ryan then left the room.

The topic for the evening discussion had been, "Can Religion Take the Place of War in Solving the Conflict Among World Ideologies?"

Graduates Subject To Induction Entitled To Additional 30 Days

All seniors who are eligible for the draft and have received postponements of induction to finish this semester are entitled to an additional 30-days postponement. John F. Lee, chairman of the Faculty Committee on Military Service, said this week. The additional postponement is being granted in order that those graduates who wish to may secure employment "essential to the national health or defense effort."

Upon securing such employment graduates are eligible to make application for deferment as essential workers.

To get the additional 30-day postponement graduates must make application to their local draft boards. Lee recommended that such applications be made at once.

Chemists To Hear Manon

THE DU PONT DIGEST

Research Takes the Long View

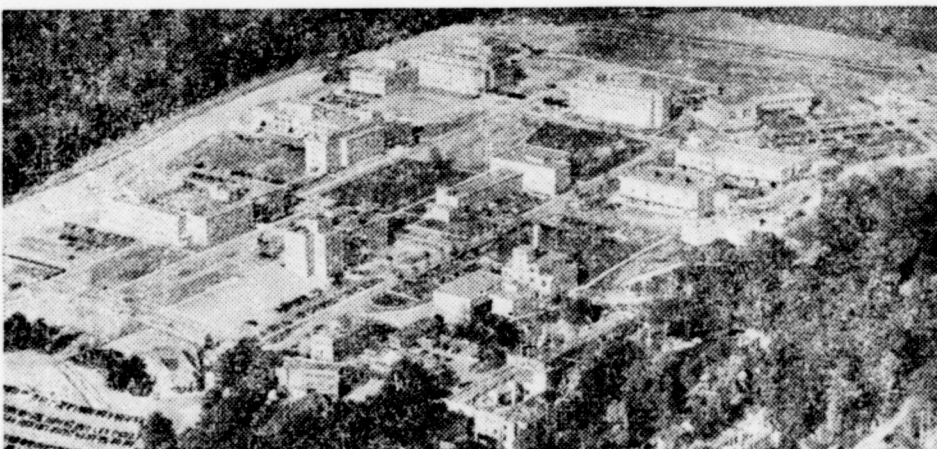

Fundamental studies are one of the most important phases of Du Pont research

Fundamental research is designed to discover new scientific facts without regard to specific commercial use. Yet from it have come many products of commercial significance.

At Du Pont, for instance, fundamental research has pointed the way

"products of tomorrow" will come from the test tubes, flasks and stills of the research laboratory, the Du Pont Company recently expanded its Experimental Station near Wilmington. In this thirty-million-dollar addition, major emphasis is being given to long-range and fundamental research.

sents one of the largest and best-equipped research establishments in the world. Even so, less than half of the Company's total research personnel is situated here. Du Pont laboratories in more than 25 other locations also carry on both fundamental and applied research.

There are now about 800 technical people engaged exclusively in research work at the Experimental Station. Assisting them are 1,500 others, in technical and non-technical capacities. The research people represent a wide range of training. Among them are organic, inorganic, physical, colloidal, analytical chemists and biochemists; physicists and biophysicists; chemical, mechanical, metallurgical, electrical and electronics engineers; plant pathologists, plant

Free for Research

At the Du Pont Experimental Station every effort is made to permit the research man to concentrate on research. He is provided with the most modern laboratory tools and for the construction of special equipment he can call on a wide variety of services. These include machine shops, carpentry, electrical, welding, instrument-making, and glass-blowing shops. When the research worker needs any service or equipment within the scope of these shops, it is provided for him.

At this industrial research laboratory, Du Pont scientists are devoting themselves to extending the frontiers of science and creating "Better Things for Better Living . . . through Chemistry."

DID YOU KNOW THAT . . .

Nylon came out of a fundamental research program begun in 1927. However, it took 13 years and $27 million in research and operative investment to get into satisfactory commercial production.
