Masque To Present 'Comedy Of Errors'; Will Run Four Nights

The Maine Masque's third play of the season, Comedy of Errors, will be presented next Wednesday evening for a four-night run. The evening performances will begin at 8:15.

Comedy of Errors marks the first Shakespearean production by the Masque since The Tempest and Prof. Herschel Bricker, director of the Maine Masque, has constantly informed his actors that Comedy, one of Shakespeare's finest comedies, involving twenty actors, is a farce and should be done in the lightest, most easy-going fashion possible.

Typical Part

Jack Hardy, who plays the role of one of the Dromio twins, has a part which is perhaps typical of the easy going attitude of the play. Like his twin, played by Bob Fairweather, he at times has some not too serious conversations with the audience, and at least once during the play comes off stage into the audience for protection.

Maine Masque audiences will remember Jack for his tub scene in Stalag 17 and for his fine acting in Night Must Fall, in which he had the lead.

Pilon System

The method of staging for Comedy of Errors is something which the Masque has not used too often. It is known as the pilon system, in which scenes will be rapidly changed before the audience's eyes by students of the modern dance club. This scenery was designed by Ray Storey and constructed by members of the Masque tech crew. Comedy has five acts in which six different scenes are used.

Reviewing some of the actors in the play: Don McAllister appears as Aegeon, an old man in search of two sons and a wife. McAllister, persistent to the end, eventually succeeds.

Howard Danner makes his first appearance on the Masque stage appearing as the Duke of Ephesus, a politician of earlier days, who finds it his job to hang McAllister, give a courtesan back a ring, calm the ravings of the confused wife of one of two twins, and in general bring law and order to a city that is beginning to see double.

Butler Twins

Bill and Paul Butler have the lead roles of Antipholus of Ephesus and of Syracuse. Both newcomers to the Masque, they have shown ability in the technique of acting. Claire Lewis portrays a shrewish wife. One sees her perhaps with an invisible rolling pin clutched in her fist.

Several freshmen appear in Comedy of Errors. Caroline Perkins acts as a courtesan who has her eye on almost every male in the play. Eda Hayward, who plays the sister of the shrewish wife, is involved in the play's confusion when her sister's husband is trying to make love to her. John Eustis and Peter Pierson, also freshmen, portray merchants.

Angelo, The Goldsmith

In the role of Angelo, a goldsmith, is Roger Bowman, a junior and a veteran of the Maine Masque. As a very timid goldsmith, Bowman has shown an excellent conception of the character he is playing. Audiences will find his role and acting adding much to the humor of the play.

Norm Andrews, in the role of Dr. Pinch, one of Shakespeare's most fabulous characters, also excellently acts a good role. Norm appeared in Stalag 17 as Schultz, the German guard, and in Night Must Fall, in the opening scene, as the judge.

Joan Reynolds appears as a servant to the wife of Antipholus of Syracuse, and Nick Carter acts as a merchant in search of payment of a debt.

The display window in the Library for Comedy of Errors is in charge of Betsy Parker.

Tri-Delt Show To Give Latest Spring Fashions

The Alpha Kappa Chapter of Delta Delta Delta announces its annual Fashion Show to be held Monday, March 22, at 8 p.m. in the Main Lounge of the Memorial Union.

The opening number on the program will be Virgil Thomson's music from the documentary film, "The Plow that Broke the Plains." The text comes directly from that of the film.

The major piece by orchestra will be Haydn's "Farewell Symphony." Soloist for the evening will be Patricia Gill, soprano, who will sing arias by Mozart, Puccini and Strauss.

The concert is open to the public and there is no admission fee.

Residents Receive Pet Questionnaire

South Apartments residents received questionnaires Monday concerning the problem of pets in the area, according to Mrs. Lewis King, a neutral member of the committee studying the matter.

The questionnaires contained five alternatives: 1) get rid of pets right away, 2) leave things just the way they are, 3) get rid of all pets by Sept. 1, 1954, 4) allow all pets to stay under certain rules for owner responsibility, and 5) allow no more pets into the area after Sept. 1, 1954, letting the ones already here remain as long as owners remain here.

The sheets are to be filled out and sent to the Housing Office by March 25, Mrs. King said. The final decision will be made by the college administration.

Alma L. Merrill, above, has been chosen by fellow students in the School of Education to represent them at the spring conference of the Eastern State Association of Professional Schools for Teachers. Miss Merrill has been selected by a conference committee to be a leader in a panel discussion on student guidance on the collegiate level. The conference will be held at the Hotel New Yorker in New York City March 25-27.

Keep trying to get WORO. That new transmitter will now reach most of the campus.

General Student Senate Ratifies Interscholastic Vandalism Plan

The General Student Senate has ratified a four-point interscholastic vandalism plan proposed at a recent Bates Conference. The plan as accepted by the Senate reads as follows:

1) If any students are caught damaging property of a school, they will be obliged to pay for such damage themselves.

2) If individual students are not apprehended but school affiliation can be proved, then that student body will be held responsible for the damages.

3) If there is no definite proof as to who did the damage or from what school the student came, then the institution to whom the damage was done must bear the expense.

4) The student governments of the respective colleges shall pledge themselves to cooperate in preventing vandalism and in working out satisfactory agreements following vandalism.

The positive action on the plan came at the March 9 meeting of the Senate. The proposal had been tabled at the Feb. 23 meeting and a committee appointed to investigate the administration's interpretation as to whether the Senate or the University would pay if the problem were ever presented here.

Decision To Wait

Charles Hussey of the committee reported that the administration said it felt that it should not render a decision on the matter while President Hauck was away. However, it felt that if the bill were a large one the University would pay. In general, though, the student body would be held financially responsible and the Senate would have to pay.

The plan will go into effect as soon as it is approved by all four colleges in the state.

Social Affairs

In other business, the Senate heard a report from the Social Affairs Committee. Jurisdiction of the committee was clarified in relation to the recent action by the Committee on Administration in placing three fraternities on social probation.

The Social Affairs Committee has powers concerning only co-ed social affairs. Since the fraternities had not violated the regulations with a mixed group, the Social Affairs Committee had no jurisdiction over the infractions.

The Committee is also making a survey of the faculty concerning chaperoning.

The Winter Carnival week end showed a profit of $42.28, according to Alice Rinehart, chairman. Miss Rinehart also included a list of recommendations in her report to the Senate.

Union News

The Union movie this week is the academy award winning picture All About Eve, starring Bette Davis and George Sanders. Showings will be at 7, 8, and 9 p.m. on Friday, and at 7 and 9 p.m. on Saturday.

Penny Carnival This Saturday

"Holidaze" will be the theme this Saturday night when the Women's Athletic Association presents its 31st annual Penny Carnival in the Women's Gym.

The Gym will be decorated according to the theme. Al Halliday will supply music for dancing from 8-11:30.

The Carnival committee headed by Muriel Verrill, has announced that costumes depicting the various holidays of the year should be worn.

Prizes will be awarded for the most appropriate costumes. Sears Roebuck, Grant's, Olympic Sporting Goods Store and the University Bookstore have donated the prizes to be given to both students and faculty.

The Grand March will begin at 9:45. Following the Grand March the winners of the costume contest will be announced.

Concessions, costing a cent a try, will include a bean-bag toss, pitch the penny, dart throwing, and horseshoes. Refreshments will be on sale.

The Modern Dance Club, the Square Dance Club and the Tumbling Club will give demonstrations during intermission to represent the theme.

Established in 1923 to raise money for WAA functions, the yearly event has in the past few years given its proceeds to the WAA Helen A. Lengyel scholarship.

Proctor Applications

Sophomores and juniors wishing to apply for proctor's positions for next year should have their applications turned in at the Dean of Men's office, 205 Library, before the start of spring vacation, Friday, April 2, Dean John E. Stewart has announced.

Application forms may be picked up at that office.

Bangor Orchestra Plans Concert Here Thursday, March 25

The Bangor Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of A. Stanley Cayting, will play at an assembly at the University on Thursday, March 25, Charles E. Crossland, chairman of the University Assembly Committee, announced today. The assembly will be held in Memorial Gymnasium at 9:30 a.m.

For many years the Bangor Symphony has given a concert at a University assembly. This practice was first established when Prof. Adelbert W. Sprague was head of the department of music at the University and also conductor of the Symphony. The concert is a popular one with students and faculty at the University.

Founded in 1896, the Bangor Symphony has headquarters in the Symphony House. A. Stanley Cayting, who is director of the Northern Conservatory of Music, has been conductor for several years since Prof. Sprague retired from that position.

IT'S ALL A MATTER OF TASTE

No guessing games with cigarettes
When Luckies are your brand—
A cleaner, fresher, smoother smoke,
A taste that's really grand!

Phil W. Elder
Oklahoma University

When you come right down to it, you smoke for one simple reason . . . enjoyment. And smoking enjoyment is all a matter of taste. Yes, taste is what counts in a cigarette. And Luckies taste better.

Two facts explain why Luckies taste better. First, L.S. M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco . . . light, mild, good-tasting tobacco. Second, Luckies are actually made better to taste better . . . always round, firm, fully packed to draw freely and smoke evenly.

So, for the enjoyment you get from better taste, and only from better taste, Be Happy—Go Lucky. Get a pack or a carton of better-tasting Luckies today.

I've often been class president—
I'm called a real go-getter!
My brand is always Lucky Strike—

A Change In The System

Following is a broad outline of a plan used in many colleges and universities throughout the country with a high degree of success.

We do not feel it is something the University desperately needs. Neither is it something that would merit nationwide attention followed by numerous magazine articles and learned treatises.

We do feel it is something that would benefit the University academically to a fairly high degree.

It is an annual rating or ranking of the teachers by the students who have taken their courses.

In this plan, students in all colleges of the University would fill out rating sheets on the faculty considering such things as lecturing ability, general teaching ability, value of a course as taught by a particular person, fairness of outside assignments, textbook rating, and more.

The student would also give a general overall evaluation of the course and make suggestions for possible improvement.

The tabulated results would have no direct force. They would only indicate student opinion, give credit where students think credit is due and point out areas of improvement with the hope that over a period of years repeated criticism on the same thing would lead to its improvement.

This criticism is little more than is done in campus bull sessions anyway. This system would only bring private comments out in the open where they can be studied and possibly be acted on.

At other places where this system is in effect (such as the University of Connecticut and Rutgers) it has generated an actual spirit of competition among the faculty. Studies of results show teachers compete for ratings, not by making classes especially any more entertaining, but by giving the student more value for his time and money.

It is realized that some students would jump at such a means of getting revenge for a flunked course while others would rank a person high and make sure news of that high ranking got back to the teacher.

However, the overall average of all the ratings taken together almost invariably has shown the plan is taken seriously and because of that has the desired results.

No professor, of course, would be expected to make any sweeping reorganization of his course based on one year's results alone. Yet, a continued deficiency reported year after year would be almost certain to be acted on.

This is the only force the ratings should have, nothing mandatory—only recommendations.

The system gives constructive criticism with the hope of improvement in bad areas and deserved recognition of good areas.

It could be administered by some student-faculty group, entirely by students or entirely by faculty.

However, we feel the ratings should be anonymous and the results made public.

That's the plan. Granted, it has drawbacks, but we like it and would like to hear more about it, from both students and faculty.

Correspondence

A New View And Assemblies

To the Editor:

The correspondence "New Thoughts On An Old Story" was read with a great interest from a sympathetic angle. It is obviously a hard task for those living in an ivory tower over a long period to realize without too much understanding what's going on outside of their own world.

Chinese people were very religious for three thousand years until the middle of the 19th century when they were awoken by British cannons and found themselves forced to buy opiums from the British government.

Opinionettes

BY MARTHA BOUSFIELD
AND WAYNE JOHNSON

Question: What do you think the Good Will Chest quota per person should be?

Nancy Witham, '56—I think it should be $1.50. It's the only drive and the students should go all out for it.

Ganiel Flanagan, '55—It should be $1.00, for that's all most people can afford.

Then followed a flood of missionaries from different European countries who were not supposed to represent their governments, but who enjoyed all kinds of extraterritorial rights with their fellow businessmen—"Old China Hands" under their occupation forces for the reason of "security."

The missionary works in China are certainly worth noting and deserve appreciation in some respects. But the whole idea still leads to confusion to both Chinese intellectuals and non-intellectuals; and probably needs further explanation for this old puzzle.

If anyone who regards security as his primary importance is a Communist or an atheistic materialist, as Miss Taylor quoted, why are so many noble God-loving people investing billions of dollars on the Korean front?

There is certainly a difference between a Communist and an atheist. There are a considerable number of Christian Communists in the world, and there are also a large number of atheists who cannot be convinced by any principle until it is fully proved and whose moral standard is usually higher than some of our "Sunday Christians."

In my knowledge there are more atheists fighting against Communism in China than those easy-going religious people because these atheists believe that any principle or religion should be accepted by one's own will, not by force. They are really true crusaders for the freedom of religion and faith. May God bless them.

To the Editor:

Rumor has it that forthcoming assemblies will take place in the Bear's Den. Monday morning's attendance was approximately two hundred students, twenty faculty members, and several English sparrows. This situation is extremely perplexing especially in an institution which last semester designated over six hundred students as Dean's List material.

For this reason, one can not surmise the lack of attendance is due to incompetence on the student's part to comprehend the material presented. I certainly doubt the above is the case with the faculty. The sparrows live in the gym anyway. Thus their presence is neither a credit nor a discredit to the lecturer.

In all fairness to those who do not see fit to attend, should I conclude

Some Questions On Headlines

BY ASHER KNEELAND

For two years as a journalism student I have been hearing and reading about newspaper ethics, fairness, truth, fear of libel and the responsibility of being completely honest both in stories and headlines.

After last Friday I think Maine is the wrong state for this to be taught.

Last Friday three big Maine papers headlined the McCarthy charges against Edward R. Murrow by saying McCarthy had "linked" Murrow with a "red school."

Now headlines have only so much room—it would have been impossible to say McCarthy had said he had a 1935 Pittsburg paper naming Murrow as an American advisor to the Institute of International Education and calling the Institute a "Communist propaganda school."

But would it have been too much to ask for the papers to at least have fooled around long enough with that headline to get it to read that McCarthy said Murrow was linked to a Red school?

Maybe the people who wrote those headlines were all youngsters who didn't know what the Institute was.

Maybe they believe it is shading a story with opinion to say that McCarthy would not even say on his own that Murrow had been mixed up with a Red school but quoted a 1935 newspaper.

Maybe they thought it would be unfair to even mention that McCarthy was not noted for backing up charges such as the one against Murrow.

I'm not asking why they didn't do that.

But were they fair to Murrow? Their headlines gave the impression that Murrow had been linked to a Red school even before Murrow refuted that asinine charge. They must have known it was false.

Those heads should have read "McCarthy charges such and so."

It was known by those headline writers—it must have been—that McCarthy has made the same sort of innuendoes about everyone who criticizes him—the Washington Post, The New York Post, the Milwaukee Journal, the Christian Science Monitor, Time magazine.

And surely they must have known how false those charges were. There are such things as the matter of "two flat falsehoods" made by McCarthy in his early investigation of the Voice of America as named on page 49 of Elmer Davis's "But We Were Born Free."

I should think, according to what I have been taught, that newspapers would not quote anybody's charges as the truth until they are proven.

And McCarthy's charges—considering his past batting average—should be watched even more carefully.

that attendance at such gatherings is inversely proportional to the number of intelligent students on campus. As I see it, the solution lies in one of three alternatives.

First, induce the students to display their intellectual interest (which is obviously the reason an individual attends college) and attend assemblies. My second solution which is definitely a middle of the road policy would be to replace the erudite and sometimes eminent speakers, who in many cases are sacrificing valuable time to be with us, with a group of can-can dancers imported from Paris.

And finally as a last resort which appears inevitable, I would suggest transferring the assembly funds to the Union building so that the management might hire more help to provide for the overflow of students and faculty during assembly periods.

"They called me 'Rabbit' at West Point. I really don't know why except that it rhymed with my last name. I had a fairly good amount of speed in my younger days—I could do the 100 yard dash in 10 seconds.

"That was then," he chuckled.

Born in Providence, R. I., on March 17, 1923, Capt. Chabot, in his early days, has lived in Danvers, Salem, and Lovell, Mass. He began school in Manchester, N. H.

"I was always interested in sports—started baseball in the sixth grade," he said. "In high school I played football, basketball, and baseball, and before I graduated from high school in 1941, I was co-captain of the all-state football team."

From high school, Capt. Chabot went to the New York Military Academy on an athletic scholarship for two years followed by six months at Bradden's Academy.

West Point

"It was then I got my principal appointment to West Point from Senator Styles Bridges. I entered the Academy in July, 1943.

"I was on the undefeated football squad of 1944 and 1945 and the undefeated baseball team of 1944. I played right halfback with the all-time greats Glen Davis, Otto Tucker, Jack Greene, 'Doc' Blanchard, Barney Poole, and Hank Folberg," Capt. Chabot reminisces.

"No matter where we went on our games, the oddity of the West Point uniform with its high collar gave us some interesting and often embarrassing incidents.

"Here, Boy"

"Once, at the Hotel Astor, I was misrepresented as a bellhop. I never lived it down. The boys just called me 'Here, boy' from then on.

"Then I remember the time we played cards with Frank Sinatra on the train while we were on our way to the Army-Navy game. That was early in Frank's career. We met some interesting people," Capt. Chabot continued.

"I graduated from the Academy in June, 1946, and was married eleven days later to Virginia Robinson, my 'OAO' Manchester, N. H., girl. 'Oao' stood for 'one and only,'" he said.

From the Academy, Capt. Chabot went to the Officers' Basic Course at Fort Benning. In the summer of 1947, he completed his Jump School Paratroopers Training.

To Korea

"So I went on occupational duty in Korea where I was assigned to Charlie Company, 1st Battalion, 32nd Infantry Regiment in the 7th Division—right on the 38th parallel.

"There I received my 1st Lieutenant's rating and played a little football. We entered the Rice Bowl in Japan and played the Japanese All-Stars, a team composed of the best American troops in Japan. We won, by the way, 18-13," he smirked.

"In the 7th division, I knew Major General Dean. Dick Kinney, one of Army's great baseball men, and I used to play ping-pong at the General's home. The regimental commander used to go to the General's home to visit and he took some of us along. It provided a chance for the General to meet the officers and the officers to meet the commanding general."

Capt. Chabot returned to the States in the winter of 1949.

Back To Korea

"I joined the 11th Airborne at Fort Campbell, Kentucky, and stayed with it until the 187th formed in regimental combat. I received my present rating, Captain, and headed back to

The Rabbit: "That was then . . ."

Korea in time for the Korean conflict.

"I served with the regiment until 1951, and then I returned to the officers' advanced course at Fort Benning. From there I came to Maine.

"When the boys at Sigma Phi Epsilon invited me to be their chapter advisor, I was very pleased. Fraternities do not exist at West Point and the experience with the fraternity has given me great experience.

"I have found my association with the faculty and students at Maine very pleasant. Students are cooperative and willing workers on most any class project," Capt. Chabot added.

Sailing Club Meets Tonight For Movies

The sailing club, recently passed for official recognition by the Committee on New Student Organizations, is holding its first meeting of the spring season tonight at 7 p.m. in the Totman Room of the Union Building.

The meeting is an introduction to the course which will be presented through the spring for those interested in learning to sail. Movies on college racing donated by Sailing Master Wood of M.I.T. will be shown. Club adviser, Don Taverner, will be present and give a short talk on the club's accomplishments to date.

Up to this time, the sailing club has functioned as an informal racing group. It is hoped that with official recognition the club will be able to extend its activities to intramural racing and pleasure sailing for those who do not race. The club will also teach non-sailing members how to sail.

For those who are already proficient in sailing, informal discussions on racing rules and tactics will be held.

Good Will Chest Lists Charities

With the annual Good Will Chest drive set to start Sunday, April 18, the allocations committee has compiled a list of charities to receive funds.

The list was presented to the Chest Board of Governors at a meeting yesterday afternoon.

This year the World University Service will receive 50 per cent of the Good Will funds. WUS is an organization working without prejudice to race and nationality that encourages and supports students and professors to meet the basic needs of the universities throughout the world.

With its headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, WUS annually conducts fund-raising and educational campaigns on more than 700 American campuses. It receives almost all of its support from colleges and universities.

Eleven per cent of the Chest's money will go to the Save the Children Federation. The Federation was begun as an organization to serve underprivileged children without regard to race, color or creed. It works in foreign countries as well as in the United States, providing food, clothing, schooling and medical aid to needy children.

The United Negro College Fund, which helps support 32 Negro colleges and universities in the United States, has also been approved as a recipient of Chest money—receiving 6 per cent.

A fund established to give financial aid to foreign students attending the University will receive 5 per cent of the allocations.

String Quartet Presents Union Concert Sunday

Haydn's First Quartet in B Flat Major Opus 1 No. 1 will be the most extended work which the String Quartet from the advanced classes in ensemble at the University will play on Sunday afternoon, March 28, at four o'clock in the Main Lounge of the Memorial Union.

The Quartet is composed of Frederick Anderson and Sidney Cronsberg, violins; Faith Wixson, viola and Margaret Dow, violoncello. The group is conducted by William Sleep-er.

The program covers a wide range of works extending over five centuries: A Ricercar by Andrea Gabrieli, Three Ayres by John Jenkins, The Haydn Quartet, a slow movement from Tchaikovsky's Quartet in D Major, the well known "Andante Cantabile."

A campus emergency fund out of which comes financial aid in the event of any misfortune such as a fire on campus will receive an eleven per cent donation.

This fund was used in the past to aid the students who were burned out in a North Dorm fire in 1949-50. Last year aid was given to a family on campus whose child was suffering from leukemia.

Under a miscellaneous fund, receiving 17 per cent of the Chest's money, is a list of charities that will each get gifts.

Although these were not listed in the committee report, the organizations usually placed here include such charities as Red Cross, Maine Cancer Society, Maine Heart Association, March of Dimes, and the Orono Twins, community house-Hi-Y fund.

By PAUL FERRIGNO

Let's take time out to extend a hearty farewell to a great guy, Dr. Rome Rankin, who retires after four long and memorable years as Maine's basketball coach.

Rome took over the reins temporarily during the 1949-50 campaign, and while not producing any record breaking teams, he always had a club which exhibited the true Maine spirit in victory and in defeat.

His warm personality and friendship will last a long time in the memories of the players he coached, and most anyone he ever came in contact with.

Rankin will now be able to settle down and concentrate more on his duties as Director of Physical Education and Athletics here. We extend a hearty but sorrowful goodbye to a great coach and a great guy—Dr. Rome Rankin.

Over the week end we were fortunate enough to be able to take in the NIT final in New York City. All the credit in the world should go to the Holy Cross quintet for their stirring upset over highly rated Duquesne.

Although Togo Palazzi, the Crusaders' great forward, received unsurmountable but deserving publicity, the Cross's effort was by no means a one man performance. The championship game was a team victory for the New Englanders with little basis to choose an outstanding player.

However, the fabulous Togo really earned the MVP award in the semifinals when he fired 32 markers through the hoop against second seeded Western Kentucky.

Against Duquesne a beautifully designed defense proved the Duke's undoing. The Crusaders magnificently boxed out such ace rebound scorers as All-American Dick Ricketts, Jim Tucker, and Si Green. They completely shut out Duquesne under its offensive backboards.

The big board cleaner and perhaps the reason for the Holy Cross victory was 6' 6" sophomore center Tom Heinson who time and again limited the Dukes to a mere one shot at their basket.

All in all, it was a great ending to a successful season for the Crusaders who finished the campaign with only losses to Notre Dame and Connecticut blotting their record.

In addition to the NIT title the Cross is the holder of the Sugar Bowl Classic held in New Orleans during the Christmas holidays. Palazzi also received the Most Valuable Player honors in the southern tourney. Connecticut must be in high spirits as they hold a 78-77 victory over the Cross this year. A two handed set by Worthy Patterson with a second remaining gave the UConn's the upset triumph.

Speaking of the Huskies they were recently eliminated from the NCAA tournament in the first game by a strong Navy squad which won another game before bowing to La Salle and terrific Tom Gola.

On the local scene; after an upset filled campaign the Fraternity basketball division has finally been leveled to a definite leader.

It is almost a sure bet that Sigma Chi will become the 1953-54 champion with a lone defeat, to Phi Eta, on their record. The Sigma Chis were the only team to survive the epidemic of upsets plaguing the league all year managing to pull a few of their own earlier in the season.

Sigma Chi has only two games left and both are against second division competition. There is still a chance of an upset which would be a tremendous one.

Numerals And Letters Given To Sixty-Three

Sixty-three letters and numerals were awarded to varsity and freshman basketball players, trackmen and skiers at the annual Winter Sports Awards Banquet Wednesday evening.

The banquet, which was held in the New Cafeteria, was highlighted by speeches and award presentations by the various coaches.

The following awards were made:

Scrone And Irish End Great Seasons

Bobby Irish and Wes Scrone, Maine's varsity ski co-captains, brought Coach Ted Curtis' winter sports schedule to a successful conclusion last weekend.

Except for a few probable individual entries in a downhill and slalom event the first week of April at Bald Mountain the ski season here is over.

Last Sunday Irish won top individual honors in a field of 35 contestants during the Penobscot Valley Ski Club sponsored annual Golden Ski races at Bald Mountain.

Irish accumulated the best time in both the two-heat slalom and downhill grinds. Scrone, a junior, recorded the fourth best time in a 19 mile cross country race at Andover, competing against some of the best in the East.

Phi Gam Topples Phi Eta Kappa As Sigma Chi Grabs Hoop Lead

After cruising along for almost three fourths of the season with an unblemished record, Phi Eta Kappa was belted from the unbeaten ranks by Phi Gam, 58-47, and then, one night later, submerged to third place by a fighting Sigma Nu club, 62-55.

The two Phi Eta setbacks moved Sigma Chi, which has been waiting for the leaders to falter, into the lead with just two games left to play.

At this moment, the Sigma Chi's appear to be heading for the championship with ease as their two remaining games are against a mediocre ATO squad and a very weak TKE five. Sigma Chi passed their two serious obstacles last week, coming from behind to topple Lambda Chi, 63-60, and then punching out a 52-48 overtime triumph over tough Kappa Sig.

Fight Close In Handball Sets

Competition is keen as the intramural handball schedule nears to a close with Phi Mu Delta leading in the Southern League and Sig Ep and Dunn 2 deadlocked for the sunberth in the Northern League.

Probably the most important game left on the schedule is between Sig Ep and fourth place Corb 2, which has only two defeats.

A twosome of Clay Beal and Ken Woodsum have proved to be too much for any other team in the Southern League and have sewed up the crown for Phi Mu.

The Standings:

Ed Bogdanovich, Maine's outstanding fullback, punted 42 times last year for a total of 1,447 yards and an average of 34.5 yards per punt.

Phi Eta Takes Track Trophies; Phi Gam Second

Track conscious Phi Eta Kappa continued to dominate intramural running and field events this year, capturing both the Charles Rice Cup and the Intramural meet last Saturday afternoon.

Phi Eta, which copped the relays two weeks ago, romped home with 57½ points to 41 points for second place Sigma Chi in competition for the cup. Phi Gamma Delta tallied 12 points for a distant third.

Win With Ease
In the intramural division Phi Eta amassed 58 points easily doubling the 25 point score of Phi Gam's Fijis, a surprise second. Sigma Chi took third honors with 24 points.

Phi Eta's depth proved too much for Sigma Chi's big winners, Bill Calkin and Bill Johnson, to overcome. Although Calkin, Maine top indoor point totaler, gained 13 points for his fraternity the points may prove to be costly for the fleetfooted junior pulled a leg muscles in one of the running events.

Coke Haskell came home first in the 1000 and 600 yard runs and took second place in the 500 yard run to pace Phi Eta in the scoring for the cup.

Pete Werner, who garnered first place in the shot put and also took seconds in the hammer and discus, and Brad Claxton, who netted a first in the 300 yard run, a second in the 50 yard dash, and a third in the broad jump, were the top men for Phi Gam.

Spring Football Call

Harold Westerman, head coach of varsity football, announced today that men interested in playing varsity football next fall regardless of previous experience will meet in the Lown Room of the Memorial Union on Tuesday, March 30, at 7:30 p.m. Plans for the 1954 season and spring will be discussed.

Track Sweep Puts Phi Eta In Trophy Lead

Phi Eta Kappa on the strength of 73 points acquired in the Intramural track meet last weekend forged ahead in the race for the Benjamin C. Kent All Point Trophy.

Phi Eta has amassed a sum total of 117 points to date which does not include basketball and handball results which will be completed in about two weeks.

Close Battle
Battling nip-and-tuck for the second slot is Kappa Sig and Sigma Chi with a total of 69½ and 69 respectively. Kappa Sig's main asset has been its fine showing in football where they earned 45 points. Meanwhile Sigma Chi, which is usually a track power, had to settle for a third in the Intramural meet earning 32 points.

Closely behind the top three is Phi Gam which nipped Sigma Chi for second in track with 65½ points. Phi Gam by gaining the runner up position in Saturday's meet garnered 35 points which was added to 20 points earned in football and 10½ points in skiing.

Rounding out the first five is Phi Mu with their total of 55 points for last fall's football championship in the fifth slot.

Race Closer
When the final results of the handball and hoop seasons are in the race should tighten up considerably. Sigma Chi, which is on its way to the basketball crown and has a good showing in handball, will be breathing down the leader's neck. However, the Phi Eta's themselves, while not producing a champion in either sport, have made extremely favorable showings which may give them a slim lead over the Sigma Chi's.

Phi Mu will definitely rise into contention as they are having a winning season in both handball and basketball. In handball Phi Mu has a spotless record thus far and is on top in their division.

Kappa Sig and Phi Gam will both be hurt by mediocre handball campaigns despite superb basketball seasons.

Thon, Landeck, Muir To Present Art Exhibits Here This Month

Are you missing something? Do you take advantage of the opportunities that come your way?

The Art Department presents a new exhibit every month which is open for all to see. True, not all people love art, but everybody talks about art, either praising it or condemning it. Many people state opinions without seeing recent paintings.

This month the Art Department has especially arranged a combination of modernistic and realistic art for the public to view and compare.

William Thon, currently teaching at Norton Gallery and School of Art, West Palm Beach, Florida, has a selection of modern watercolors on display. Thon is a resident of Port Clyde, Maine.

Armin Landeck, a well known graphic artist for 25 years, presents a collection of his works of the realistic type. Among his awards and honors, Landeck belongs to the Society of Graphic Arts, Metropolitan Museum of Art, and the Institute of Fine Arts.

William Muir, of Stonington, Maine, is also presenting a collection of his wood sculptures.

Phi Eta Elects

Donn Littlefield has been elected president of Phi Eta Kappa. Other officers are Mert Robinson, vice president; Charles Casey, secretary; and Francis Lee, treasurer.

Debaters To Meet Here April 13-15

The University of Maine will be host to the annual Pi Kappa Delta Province of the Lakes Convention April 13-15. Dr. Wofford Gardner, director of the convention, announced today. The Convention will feature debating, discussion, original oratory, extemporaneous speaking, and after-dinner speaking.

Founded 1913

The first chapter of Pi Kappa Delta, an honorary speech and debate fraternity, was founded in January, 1913, at Ripon College in Wisconsin where the need for a national honorary debate fraternity for smaller colleges first arose.

Tau Kappa Alpha, the only honorary debate fraternity then in existence, granted but one chapter in every state; smaller colleges therefore found it impossible to have a chapter of their own. The new honorary fraternity corrected this situation by granting charters to any college which could provide five members for the organization.

Maine joined the national honorary fraternity on March 31, 1949, when the Maine Beta chapter of Pi Kappa Delta was founded by Dr. Wofford Gardner, head of the department of speech at Maine. Other original charter members were Dwight Demeritt, Francis Bean, Everett Leach, Kathleen Kennedy, Margaret Mollison, Mary Linn, Robert Moran, Donald Waring, Lawrence Jenness, and George Vardamis.

Present Pi Kappa Delta members at Maine include Constance Zoschka, president, Cora Coggins, vice president, Adolph Storey, secretary-treasurer, Mark Lieberman, Charlotte Gellinas, Dana Baggett, Wilma Monroe, Carl Brooks, Frank Grant, Jessie Sargent, Zane Thompson, Joan Williams, Barbara Knox, Prof. Herschel Bricker, Prof. T. Russell Woolley, and Mr. Duff Gillespie.

'57 Mysteriously Comes; Painters Quietly Remove Whodunnit?

That seems to be the question of the week. Who painted the '57 on the Stevens Hall cupola?

Apparently done sometime last Saturday night, the job, termed by many as a shameful waste of artistic talent, was undone Tuesday morning by the buildings and grounds crew.

Said Dean of Men John E. Stewart: "This is the third time it has happened this year. It's time someone besides the University paid for the repair. Anyone with the talent for doing such a good job ought to divert it to something useful."

He cited the two previous occasions when '57's appeared on the smokestack at the heating plant.

Frank Cowan, chief of University Police, said it looked to him like the same artist had done all three jobs—the lettering has been so much alike in each case.

University officials are still probing the case in an effort to determine who has been responsible for the damage.

J. Carroll Dempsey, superintendent of buildings and grounds, has estimated the cost of repairing the damage at around $25.

Union Sets Up Pool For Vacation Rides

Starting yesterday, March 24, the House Committee of the Memorial Union is conducting a Riders' Pool for the benefit of students who are making plans for trips home and elsewhere for the spring recess.

Details on the procedure for registering for "Rides Wanted" and "Rides Available" may be obtained from the Newscounter in the Lobby of the Memorial Union.

The Newscounter is open daily except Sunday from 7:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. and during these hours the attendants will answer inquiries concerning this service.

'Masque Play Not Error' Reviewer Says; Season's Third Play To End Saturday

By PROF. CECIL J. REYNOLDS
Associate Professor of English

The Comedy of Errors, Shakespeare's shortest play, is hardly a dramatic feast. It is a snack, a sandwich, a filling of farce between two very thin slices of sentiment. In farce anything can happen, anything for a laugh.

Shakespeare, finding one set of improbable identical twins in an old comedy by Plautus, did not scruple to double the fun by adding a second set as servants to the first. Thus possibilities for mistaken identity multiply; almost every scene is an instance. Almost every character is kept busy trying to straighten out mistakes. The pace accelerates until the ingenious author decides enough is enough.

This perpetual-motion affair of mistaken identities is prefaced by a prologue scene in which the long-suffering father of the gentlemen twins tells his tearful story. The action, running from sunrise to sunset, is wound up neatly and simply by bringing all the characters together, for good measure discovering the boys' mother as an abbess.

Difficulties Obvious

This is the play the Maine Masque presents this week. Certain difficulties are obvious at once. Where can the producer find two sets of twins or lookalikes who, if not experienced actors, can at least enter into the spirit of the play? How can pace and momentum be maintained for this day of confusion without too much curtain interference? How can the cast put across the numerous Elizabethan puns and involved constructions characteristic of the very early Shakespeare? To overcome just one difficulty would be a near miracle.

Professor Bricker found his gentlemen twins in Paul and Bill Butler. Paul (at least I'm almost sure it's Paul) now and again catches the spirit of the play by infection from other characters, not necessarily from Shakespeare's lines. On the whole, he acquits himself reasonably well.

but, understandably, has difficulty acting like a married man.

Brother Bill runs off his lines largely to himself, a style which leaves any number of puzzles for the audience but, happily, does not disconcert the other characters. To me Bill seemed bored with the whole affair. Yet I suppose twins eventually do get fed up with being mistaken for each other. Bill may be interpreting the role far more subtly than I suspected or Shakespeare intended.

Lookalike Servants

The lookalike servants are played by Bob Fairweather and Jack Hardy, a couple of amusing acrobats who conveniently carry fraternity paddles to lend Paul and Bill to whack them with. (Confusing? So's the play.) Frankly, I'd like harder whacks, to cover up for the Elizabethan jokes I miss.

To repeat, in farce anything goes. If the two Dromios can take it, the audience can. They are an asset to the cast and enjoy themselves in despite of Shakespeare. I think he would approve.

Claire Lewis as Adriana, wife of Antipholus of Ephesus (Paul Butler) delivers her lines with vigor, in fact raises quite a hullabaloo, as well she may. Both she and sister Luciana (Eda Hayward) looked very pretty, affecting me, I think, more than they did their opposite numbers. One of Luciana's speeches was very well done. Margaret Dow is adequately pathetic but articulate as Aemilia the abbess.

Joan Reynolds as Luce has to try to scream and articulate simultaneously. It's not easy. Believe it or not, Carolyn Perkins played a courtesan in the grand manner combined with an undulation beside which Monroe's is a mere ripple.

Howard Danner performs with patience and dignity as the Duke of Ephesus, and Roger Bowman does

Looking 'Em Over: Profile

Bricker Is Good, Calm Director, But Absent-Minded, Actors Say

By JOE RIGO

It's said that one characteristic all great people have in common with college professors is absent mindedness.

Herschel L. Bricker is a college professor and, if the word of the students he works with and a look at the record is any indication, he is also great.

True to form, he is also absent minded, Maine Masque players will testify.

They cite as an example, the time during a rainy week that he was so used to wearing rubbers to class and kicking them off at the door of the room that one day when he forgot to wear them, he kicked off the loafers he was wearing and proceeded to teach class with no shoes at all.

But absent minded or not, Masque players have highest praise for their director, both personally and artistically.

They describe him as a calm director, good to work with and considerate, but still one who demands and gets all he can from an actor.

Professor Bricker, in return, has equally high praise for his students. He especially admires the abundance of talent at the University, saying he has never lacked in this matter for his plays.

Graduate Work

Under his encouragement, majors in his department have gone on to graduate work in many branches of theatre. And, except for girls who have married, Bricker reports all but two or three of his majors are still in the business although spread out in areas from stage work and radio and TV to teaching.

Bricker has had an impressive career nationally as well as on campus.

He is a member and former president of the American Educational Theatre Association. Very active on its committees, in February of this year, he was in charge of its annual International Theatre Month.

He is a member of the National Theatre Conference which boasts its membership is of the 75 leading university and community theatre people in the country.

And he is in the American National Theatre Academy, officially recognized by the U. S. Congress, and considered the top theatre organization in the United States.

Study Of Directors

In 1936-37, under a Rockefeller Foundation scholarship, Bricker was able to study first hand the methods of some 40 Broadway directors including such leaders in the field as Arthur Hopkins, Antoinette Perry and George Abbott.

During and immediately following World War II, Professor Bricker, on leave of absence from the University,

Flowers, Especially Roses And Tulips

worked on theatre projects in Europe sponsored by the U. S. Army, the Department of State, AETA and ATC.

Perhaps his favorite job during this time was at Shrivensham-America University in England. Here he set up a course in theatre for American soldiers trying for college credits while waiting to be sent home after the war.

Other experiences in Europe included work on establishing a school to teach soldiers to entertain other soldiers, a lecture tour through the occupied zone, hospital entertainment and quite a bit else.

Favorite Off-Campus Work

Probably his favorite off-campus work is with his Camden Hills Theatre, now in the midst of a serious housing problem.

Located at the state park grounds near Camden, this nationally famous summer theatre group has in the past utilized buildings formerly used as

This germanium refining method keeps impurities down to less than 5 parts in a billion

In this refining apparatus, at Western Electric's Allentown, Pa. plant, germanium is passing through multiple heating zones in tandem, producing a bar containing impurities of less than 5 parts in a billion for use in transistors. Note heating coils on the horizontal quartz tube.

A new method of metal refining, currently in use at the Western Electric plant at Allentown, results in the production of germanium that is better than 99.9999995% pure — the highest degree of purity ever attained in a manufactured product.

The need for germanium of such exceptional purity came about when research by Bell Telephone Laboratories in the field of semi-conductors led to the development of transistors, which are manufactured by Western Electric.

The transistor is a tiny crystal device which can amplify and oscillate. It reduces space requirements and power consumption to a minimum.

Germanium crystals of the size required in transistors do not occur in nature; they are artificially grown at Western Electric. At this stage in transistor manufacture, other elements are introduced in microscopic quantities to aid in controlling the flow of electrons through the germanium. But before these elements can be introduced, it is necessary to start with germanium of exceptional purity, so that the impurities will not interfere with the elements that are deliberately added.

So Bell Telephone Laboratories devised an entirely new method of purification, known as zone refining, which was developed to a high-production stage by Western Electric engineers.

In zone refining a bar of germanium is passed through a heat zone so that a molten section traverses the length of the bar carrying the impurities with it and leaving behind a solidified section of higher purity. By the use of multiple heating zones in tandem, a number of molten sections traverse the bar. Each reduces the impurity content thus producing a bar which contains impurities in the amount of less than five parts per billion.

Because of the importance of the transistor in electronics, the zone refining process—like so many other Western Electric developments—has been made available to companies licensed by Western Electric to manufacture transistors.

This is one more example of creative engineering by Western Electric men. Engineers of all skills—mechanical, electrical, chemical, industrial, metallurgical, and civil—are needed to help us show the way in fundamental manufacturing techniques.

Life Magazine Photographers Cover Annual Penny Carnival

"Life" went to a penny carnival last week end, and while the story may never appear in the magazine, an added note of excitement invaded the carnival.

Two "Life" representatives, Lisa Larson, considered one of the magazine's top photographers, and George Shiras, regional representative from Boston, covered the 31st annual presentation of the women's physical education department.

Miss Larson took more than 100 photographs during the evening.

200 Attend

About 200 students and faculty attended the costume affair.

Prizes for the best costumes went to Elizabeth A. Brockway and Charles C. Rearick, dressed as a pair of bunnies, and an alumnus and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Chittick, costumed as a scarecrow and a grandfather clock.

A faculty costume prize went to Dr. and Mrs. Elon H. Moore, Jr., disguised as midgits.

"Life" first became interested in the carnival from a request of the New York office for a story of some New England campus social function, Shiras said in an interview.

Shiras reported contacting all major New England colleges early last week to find out their programs for the week end. He chose Maine's penny carnival as most promising. After receiving an "okay" from New York

Life At Maine

In marked contrast to the industriousness of certain freshmen last week was the spirit shown by a majority of those students who went to Saturday's Penny Carnival.

Supposedly a costume party and dance, less than half of those attending bothered to take time to prepare a decent costume, if any.

Of those who did go costumed, a large percentage merely tied a large handkerchief around their necks and put on old dungarees.

A costume need not be expensive to be good. A little imagination and work can win a prize.

As it happened, the carnival was covered by representatives of "Life" magazine. Their photographer there, Lisa Larson, is considered one of the magazine's best, but she was sent from New York to take pictures of a costume affair.

If the article does not get printed, one need look no further for the reason.

The University will probably have many more such events, and while they will not be covered by "Life," they can be made much more enjoyable and profitable for everyone by a little thought and preparation by those going.

This applies not only to dances, but to organization meetings, basketball games and class lectures.

And while on the subject, some of that preparation could well include talking a few more people into going to the event, whatever it is.

The Heights Of Folly

For the third time this year, some of the higher minded members of the freshman class have planted their numerals for all to see.

Twice thwarted by fast-acting people at the University heating plant who removed numerals from near the top of the smoke stack before too many people could see them and perhaps get similar ideas, the most recent set, this time on Stevens Hall, was seen and admired by many—students.

There are undoubtedly hatching in minds from one end of the campus to the other, various ideas of how to top the Stevens Hall incident. So, for the next few weeks, the University might as well prepare for a rash of mediocre attempts to better the freshmen.

We wonder how many expulsions will result from some of these pranks.

Perhaps the best part of the whole thing is that a good joke was performed with no damage to University property that could not be repaired.

Too often, people get a big kick out of seeing how much property they can destroy for their fun. That's where fun ends and vandalism begins.

Of course, the University and particularly the people who had to remove the paint from the cupola on Stevens and the stack at the heating plant, probably have even more severe ideas of where vandalism begins.

Chil'in, It Just Ain't So!

BY ASHER KNEELAND

Happy endings and handsome heroes and dirty villains and bosomy babes.

That's what's wrong with the mind of America today, I think. Too many happy endings, handsome heroes, dirty villains, bosomy babes in novels, movies and comic strips, and America expects them in real life too.

Chil'in, it just ain't so!

In life there aren't many endings at all, leastwise happy ones. There are few heroes and even fewer handsome ones. When things go bad there are not even villains responsible all of the time; and while most of the babes are bosomy, it's mostly store-boughten stuff.

In the story the villains always get it in the end, so if the villains in real life do not get punished, then America decides they are not villains after all.

And there is always a villain at the bottom of anything that goes wrong in the movies or comics or popular novels, so America always wants a scapegoat when something goes wrong in real life.

So a baseball manager gets fired, a diplomat gets called a traitor, a far-east expert gets called a commie, a player gets accused of throwing the big game, a president gets called a fellow-traveler, a referee gets called a crook.

And America wants a villain every-time there is not a happy ending. A happy ending is natural. If there is not one, a villain must be to blame. Find the villain! And in the uproar America can forget that her dream-world is not working out.

The handsome hero complex, as old as tales in these United States, has produced a people of wishers. The American male wanders around taking orders from his mother, aunts, sisters, wife and finally daughter, all the time wishing he could be a hero, a handsome hero.

The bosomy babe complex, a new one, brought to its fullest flower by Jane Russell, la Monroe and the women of Mickey Spillane's dream-worlds, has made America a nation of up-lifts and false fronts.

The dream world of the American started when the story of Cinderella was perverted from the European tale of how wonderful it was to find beautiful Cinderella among all the squalor to an American version that played up the idea that every girl had a right to expect a fairy godmother and a Prince Charming.

My denunciation is, of course, over-drawn and over-simplified. But the happy ending, a childish simplified view of life taken from movies, novels and comic strips, is still a factor in American thought.

And chil'in, it just ain't so!

Student Government

High School Week End Planned

BY GORHAM W. HUSSEY

President, General Student Senate
One very distressing fact we constantly encounter is the suspicion that the University of Maine each year does not attract nearly enough high school graduates for enrollment.

Part of this difficulty lies with our own students who do not do an adequate job of "selling" the University to these high school students. If a more positive interest were shown in these potential students, the number and ability of those attending the University could rise considerably.

Perhaps the athletic and general scholarships available are not as large in number and amount as those offered by other institutions, but our record of student aid through scholarships compares favorably with other state institutions, as President Hauck pointed out at the annual Student Dinner held in February. Maine lists many definite advantages in education, opportunities for self-help employment, and a low rate of tuition in comparison with private institutions that should find the University definitely an attraction to prospective students.

The Senate last year took a positive step in this direction by sponsoring a High School Weekend in May. Although the efforts were not entirely

Maine Women Got No Taste

To the Editor:

The situation on this campus is really for the birds as far as most of the freshman men are concerned and I guess that could go for most of the upperclassmen, too! Maybe we should use more Lifebuoy soap, start growing goatees, and/or give up dancing and join the Shamrock club.

I watched eleven different guys, last Friday night, ask girls to dance and they were turned down. One unshaven upperclassman, looking like something out of Plantation 16A, just south of the Allegash, was really the beau of the ball. Finally six guys went off to various soda fountains in nearby communities, and the rest of the wallflowers discussed the superb performance of Ellsworth in the semi-finals at the Boston Garden.

Several of the girls who attended the stag dance did not dance at all even though each had opportunities. They all seemed to be waiting for some Prince Valiant with his scotch plaid trench coat, canary yellow suede shoes, and blue and gold pajama shorts.

Admittedly the U. of M. men are not as suave, mellow, and wealthy as some collegians; however our health is better than average. We have been known to take baths, and some of us have even been known to brush our teeth.

Shall we all turn to chess, Canasta, and Cosmopolitan magazine? Well, girls, what is your excuse?

crowned with success, many high school students did become better acquainted with the University, and the interest aroused seemed to warrant more activities along this line, headed by Normand Blais.

The advantages of holding such a week end in the fall appear as follows:

1. High School Seniors are beginning to make definite plans for college in the fall. Such a week end held in May is generally anti-climactic.
 2. An intercollegiate football game would be a definite attraction.
 3. High school students seem to be far busier in May with their own school activities prior to graduation than they are during the fall.
- Other phases of a program could be adequately co-ordinated into a well-planned occasion. Interviews with instructors, general acquaintance with facilities, some special exhibit, and a meeting with the University Admission Director as well as other University personnel could be effectively combined.

barracks in a wartime civilian concentration camp. The area is now being taken over by the government again, however, to be razed.

(Ed. Note: Professor Bricker just announced the Camden Group will have housing.)

Since its foundation in 1947, the Camden Hills Theatre has served as a popular workshop for students and teachers throughout the country who go there to work with Bricker, its founder and director.

A native of Iowa, Professor Bricker has been at the University since 1928 except for his leaves of absence. During this time he has authored a textbook, "Our Theatre Today," and contributes occasionally to magazines.

He gives close attention to the growth of children's theatre in the country. At Camden Hills a children's group has been enthusiastically received, and it was largely through his efforts that children's groups have been recognized by AETA.

He also leans heavily toward the arena type theatre and tries to put on at least one production each year in that style with his advance acting class. This year's performance, to be given later in the spring, is "Bell, Book and Candle."

Hobby: Gardening

At home, he lives with his wife and son. Because of his hobby, gardening, his house in Orono is virtually surrounded in summer by flowers, especially roses and tulips.

Meanwhile, with the Masque now in the midst of "Comedy of Errors," Professor Bricker is planning for the next Masque play, designed to be one of the biggest productions the group has ever done, George Bernard Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra."

WSGA Notes

At a recent meeting of the Women's Student Government Association, Ruth Bartlett, co-chairman of the New England Conference Committee, announced that Marion Martin, an alumna of the University of Maine, will be the main speaker at the Conference the week end of April 30.

Cynthia Nelson, head of the dormitory social chairmen, reported that the group held a panel discussion with the faculty concerning Guest Night. The pros and cons of the present program were discussed and ideas for improvements were drawn up.

Assembly chairman Sue Bogert announced that Marion Bugbee will be the guest speaker at the spring assembly. The assembly will be compulsory for all women students.

Charlotte Moreshead was appointed chairman of the AAUW committee. This committee, consisting of the dormitory representatives, will formulate a plan for selecting candidates for the AAUW award.

Other business of the meeting included consideration of convention topics, suggestions for conducting convention discussions, selection of Norma Cumming and Cynthia Nelson as representatives to the All Maine Women Banquet.

Tryouts for the Maine Masque Theatre's final production of the year, George Bernard Shaw's Caesar and Cleopatra, will be held at 6:30 p.m. on March 28, 29, and 30 in the Little Theatre.

The Masque's biggest production in more than ten years, the play has a cast of seventy and requires colorful staging and costuming. Anyone interested in contributing in some way should report to tryouts.

No one need be a member of the Masque to work on the play, and as is the Masque policy, persons wishing to obtain parts in the play do not need any previous acting experience.

Annual Band Concert Sees Small Audience

An audience estimated at 250 people attended the seventh annual University of Maine band concert Friday evening in the Memorial Gymnasium. Francis G. Shaw, of the music department conducted.

Among the selections presented were Suppe's Pique Dame, Porter's Begin the Beguine, and Teike's March, Old Comrades. Hit tunes ranging from Sigmund Romberg selections to themes from Kern's Showboat were also presented.

Student conductor Al Halliday led the band through the Brass Pageantry March.

Random interviews produced such comments as:

"Very excellent—comparable to LaValle," said student Ben Adams.

"I thoroughly enjoyed it" Jo Geddy, Jan Marston, Ruth Bartlett, Sally Bransford, Les Chapiro, Clint Hutchins, and Bob Catley commented individually.

"Wonderful. The selections were well balanced and well presented," commented Bill Oliver, Ray Pesola, and Bill Bodwell, student band leader in 1950.

Masque Comedy To End Saturday

likewise as Angelo, both delivering lines clearly and with understanding. Don McAllister is a sufficiently grizzled and pathetic Aegeon who hides out for the farce and then plays a short return engagement.

Peter Pierson (Balthazar), Norman Andrews (Pinch), Paul Richardson, John Eustis and Nick Carter round out Shakespeare's cast. Mr. Bricker adds Dowsabel, rightly judging from Dromio's description that she must be seen to be appreciated.

Worth Production

This incredible farce is well worth production, even at the cost of a very uneven performance. Shakespeare of 1592 put every current trick into it puns and slang galore, so that it now requires scores of footnotes. If our actors miss many subtleties of phrase, they do produce action and confusion, which is perhaps all we should ask.

Numerous rapid changes of scene test the producer's ingenuity. Mr. Bricker and his assistants meet the test with a six-in-one contrivance of cleverly designed sets to be changed while the curtain is up. He saw that the action was far too fast to be hampered by numerous curtains. The scene-changing crew thus become actors, and may add to the errors of the play. Costumes are very pleasing, even Dowsabel's.

To sum up in baseball terms—no hit, plenty of runs, and a choice variety of errors. But the season is early for most of these players.

Bear Facts

BY MOE HICKEY

Way back since the Dark Ages, prognosticating has become the livelihood of sages, fortune tellers, weather forecasters, and in more recent times, the brow-beaten sportswriter. What makes or breaks a sports forecast is the source of information one bases his prediction on. A sports forecast may be based by talking to the coach, by observing, by reading other newspapers or magazines, maybe through hearsay, or any combination of these sources.

Let's play it safe and take it straight from the horse's mouth, i.e., what the Maine varsity coaches think of their prospects this year. After discussing the spring baseball, track, golf, and tennis seasons with the various varsity coaches, here in a nutshell is what to expect of these teams.

BASEBALL—No outright prediction on whether the Black Bear diamonds will take the State Series title outright this year is being made by head coach Harold "Tubby" Raymond. No wonder either, for "Tubby" will be starting the season with no less than five untried sophomores in the lineup! One thing that is encouraging though is the strength of the Bears' pitching staff headed by Charlie Otterstedt which along with a tighter defense than last year will keep the opponent's score down. The thing that worries "Tubby" right now is the ability of the team to hit. Look for the one run strategy on this year's club, sacrificing, bunting, stealing, and hit and run.

OUTDOOR TRACK—Here the outlook is brighter. And why wouldn't it be with sensational Bill Calkin raring to set or tie more college records. Coach Jenkins isn't going overboard by any means, but the veteran coach stated definitely that the team is much stronger this year. No prediction was forthcoming from Jenkins as to whether or not the cindermen would win the State Meet outright. Maine was supposed to have given Bowdoin a good battle last year for the title, but for a number of reasons fell far short of their goal. The same thing may possibly happen again this year, but the Bear trackmen are stronger than they have been in several years as evidenced by the recently completed indoor meet, and will be a good bet to wrest away the State crown.

GOLF—Nothing less than sensational is expected of Charlie Emery's varsity 1954 golf team if they get their share of breaks. Returning to the fold this year are their top trio of last year Captain Al Noyes, Tommy Golden, and Joe Young. A wealth of depth on the team makes it almost positive the Maine linksmen will annex their seventh straight State Series title with ease, and possibly win the Yankee Conference title. Emery commented, "Boys like Golden, Noyes, and Young, need only a couple of weeks of practice to get back on their game and if they get this opportunity before meeting Connecticut on April 22, they have an even-Stephen chance of beating the champs and take the title for themselves."

TENNIS—Tennis interest is on the upswing here what with the recent completion of several asphalt courts and a tremendous potential in the freshman class. Coach Russell has four top men in Ernie Sutton, Ken Barnard, Brooks Whitehouse, and Ship Hall, who he thinks will improve last year's mediocre season. The tennis team, like the golf team, has depth which leads Russell to conjecture that the team will do creditable showing in both Yankee Conference and State Series play.

Raymond Juggles Bear Infield For Best Possible Combination

BY PAUL FERRIGNO

With a little over a week remaining before the spring jaunt baseball coach Tubby Raymond is shifting his new infield around like a circus juggler. Coach Raymond announced that he is planning to take along a squad of 18 which is one more than in past years.

Included will be six pitchers, six infielders, four outfielders and a pair of catchers. The squad will be officially announced by Raymond on Saturday morning.

Women's Sports

BY MARGE MEALEY

The Seniors really swept the tournaments this year. They went undefeated thru both the hockey and basketball seasons. The Juniors placed second in the class tournaments followed by the Sophomores and the Freshmen.

Peggy Flynt won the ping pong singles tournament by defeating the leading contenders in the field. On the other end of that ladder tournament, Ellie Pfeifer took consolation honors.

Square Dance Club is sponsoring its annual "Hoe Down Hop" this Saturday night. There will be fun for everyone there.

Members of the Officials' Club took their rating tests last week. Miss Inez L. Smith and Janie Ingraham renewed their National rating. Anita Ramsdell earned her National rating. Janie Bacon got her Associative. Ellie Easler earned Local rating.

Barbara Moore was elected by the WAA Council to serve as the Freshman representative to Council.

Penny Carnival was a huge success and congratulations for a fine job go to Mu Verril, general chairman of the affair. Thanks are sent to all those who helped in any and every way.

Maine Netmen Open Spring Trip Against Georgetown University

BY MOE HICKEY

"We'll win our share this year," Coach Russell B. Gardner commented as Maine's varsity tennis team prepared for an April 5 invasion of five and possibly six Central Seaboard colleges.

Although varsity players have been working out all winter long, official practice began two weeks ago in Memorial Gym. The new asphalt courts completed last fall will probably enable the team to get at least a week of outdoor practice before they open the season against Georgetown University.

Last year the Maine netmen suffered one of its worse spring trips, losing all but one match. Four top-flight returning veterans and a wealth of depth make Coach Russell a bit more optimistic at this point than the same time last season.

Four Lettermen

Expected to carry the brunt of the scoring for the Bear courtmen on the Southern trip are last year's captain Ernie Sutton, Ken Barnard, Preston "Skip" Hall, and Brooks Whitehouse. Russell said a new captain will be selected just before the team opens the season.

Sutton, a tall, lanky senior, has an exceptionally fine service and has perfected it to the point where his second serve has just as much steam behind it as the first. Ernie, who got his start playing for St. Dominic's High School of Lewiston, also is very steady on his ground shots.

Spring Trip Schedule:

- April 5 Georgetown University
- " 6 University of Maryland
- " 7 Wilson College
- " 8 American College
- " 9 George Washington University
- " 10 Upsala College (pending)

Potentially one of the best among New England college tennismen, according to Coach Russell, Whitehouse looms as the difference between a good team and an exceptional one. Whitehouse is strong in all departments, and has an acute knowledge of the game. He set a precedent by winning the varsity tennis tournament his freshman year.

Barnard Has Good Form

Another tall netman is Ken Barnard, a senior, who probably has the best form of anyone on the team and is exciting to watch. Barnard, who first showed signs of his tennis ability playing for Shady Side Academy, has come a long way and will be well worth watching as the season progresses.

The fourth man in the quartet is Hall, who nets the majority of his points on hard forehand smashes. Hall, who played tennis for Hebron Academy, is probably the fiercest competitor on the team.

Maine's depth comes in the persons of Ray Cross, who has shown the most improvement of any one on the team the past year, and Mark Lieberman, who like Hall is a great competitor on the courts.

Russell said there are excellent sophomore prospects this year.

Sigma Chi Takes College Hoop Title This Year

As the upset-filled fraternity division's basketball season draws to a close this week, Sigma Chi has the crown wrapped up. Sigma Chi, which has been defeated once this year, clinched the title a couple of weeks ago, defeating its one big obstacle Kappa Sig in an overtime thriller.

Thus, Sigma Chi takes the title away this year from such big basketball powers as Phi Mu, Phi Eta and Kappa Sig. Not figured to grab off any honors at the outset of the year the Sigma Chi's, led by such stalwarts as John Bosse, Fred Breslin and Dexter Burlingame, survived an upset-filled league with flying colors.

Last week the Sigma Chi's led by John Bosse's record breaking performance of 41 points blasted ATO, 87-44, for their 11th straight win.

Sigma Nu, which was idle last week, remains in fifth with an 11-3 slate. The Sigma Nu made a strong run to the wire this season and undoubtedly will be the team to watch next year.

Tonight the Memorial Gym will be the scene of the Non-fraternity championship which will bring together Corb 4 the winner of the National league and the winner of the American league, Dunn 3.

The winner will meet fraternity champion Sigma Chi Monday for the campus championship.

Standings:

Team	Won	Lost
Sigma Chi	15	1
Phi Mu	14	2
Phi Gam	13	2
Phi Eta	12	3
Kappa Sig	12	3
Sigma Nu	11	3

Chip Sets Mark In Hoop League

With just one more week left in the Fraternity basketball campaign, Chip Moody with a startling record breaking 54 point effort against Tau Ep is virtually assured of capturing the individual scoring honors.

Moody was unstoppable against Tau Ep, tossing in an amazing 26 field goals to raise his season's average to 20.4 per game. Oddly enough Moody's brilliant performance came just two nights after John Bosse of Sigma Chi had poured 41 markers to set a new gym record. Moody has amassed the amazing total of 307 points in fifteen games and has one game left against Kappa Sig.

Moody Has Big Lead

In second place is slim Maurice "Wilky" Wilkinson of ATO who has 252 points in fifteen ball games for a 16.8 average. Wilky moved up two notches last week as he hit for 25 against Sigma Chi and 31 against Kappa Sig.

Volleyball Due To Start After Spring Vacation

Sam Sezak announced that the volleyball season will begin Tuesday, April 13, at 6:30. The schedule has not been released yet, but it will be in next week's Campus. Seventeen fraternities and six dorm teams are expected to enter.
