Farm and Home Hour Includes Maine Speakers In National Broadcast

Land Grant Colleges' Purpose Subject of Faculty Round-table

Maine officials and students will speak on a special broadcast on the National Farm and Home Hour, Wednesday, April 17, over a coast-to-coast NBC Blue Network from 12:30 to 1:15 p.m. The program is one in a series of broadcasts originating at outstanding state agricultural colleges. Listeners on the Pacific Coast will hear the Orono broadcast at 9:30 a.m., Pacific time.

WLWZ in Bangor has rearranged its broadcasting schedule in order to enable Maine listeners to hear the broadcast.

Theme for this series of national hook-up programs is "What the Land Grant colleges are doing to conserve and utilize properly the resources of the state for the welfare of the people." Land Grant colleges that have presented similar broadcasts this year include Louisiana, Mississippi, Connecticut, and the University of Hawaii.

The Maine program will open with a round-table discussion by faculty members of the agricultural and industrial resources of the state and the efforts of the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station and Maine Technology Experiment Station to conserve and utilize the state's resources. Highlights of the story will be dramatized in three scenes, the first taking place on an Aroostook farm; the second, in the highway engineering laboratory, and the third, in the chemical engineering laboratory. Fading back to the original discussion, a brief summary of the important facts will then be made. An address by President Arthur A. Hauck will conclude the broadcast.

Mr. Delwin B. Dusenbury and Mr. William Weatherbee, of the Speech department, will serve as narrators for the program story. The cast for the dramatic episodes includes Carl Duncan, John Jordan, Quenton Crandall, Elton Carter, Russell Woolley, Barbara Welch, Beth Trot, Fred Libby, Robert Lovejoy, William Dow, and Francis Andrews.

Dean Arthur L. Deering, of the College of Agriculture, Dean Paul Cloke, of the College of Technology, Mr. Fred Griffie, Director of the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station, and Mr. Henry Doten, President of the Maine Association of Engineers, will participate in the round-table discussion. The University of Maine Band and Men's Glee Club will be featured in musical portions of the program.

Mr. John C. Baker, radio extension specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture, will be on the campus a few days before the

Robert Coffin To Speak Here

Named the outstanding poet of the nation in 1935 and winner of the Pulitzer Prize for poetry in 1936, Robert P. Tristram Coffin, professor of English at Bowdoin and nationally-known lecturer, will speak on "Poetry as the Essence of Living," Thursday, April 18, 7:30 o'clock at the Little Theatre, sponsored by the Contributors' Club.

"Poetry is the best one can say about life," he has said, seeing poetry in common speech and people and in usual sights. He will read selections from his later poetry during his talk. His last volume, Cap'n Abbey and Cap'n John, is the result of his finding a chest of letters and diaries of a sea-going couple, and tells in prose of their adventures, using much from their own writings. Other volumes of poetry are Strange Holiness and Balads of Square-Toed Americans.

He has also written essays, An Attic Room; history, Kennebec, Cradle of Americans; biography, Portrait of an American, the story of his father, and Salt Water Farm; and novels, Red Sky in the Morning, and John Danen.

He was a Rhodes scholar from Maine and received his master's degree from Princeton in 1916. He has a degree of Doctor of Letters from the University of Maine.

Alumni Drive Nation Wide

With more than $60,000 subscribed by alumni, Maine's new library campaign got off to a good start last week as opening meetings launched the campaign progressively in areas in the state and simultaneously in the mid-west, according to an announcement made by Mr. Philip J. Brockway.

Starting officially in Bangor on Monday, April 1, with a big division meeting of local chairmen, committee members, and workers, alumni showed promising enthusiasm and desire to support the project. Current pledges include alumni gifts from the drive in these early areas, the pledges of the campaign workers themselves and the work of the Special Gifts Committee.

The meeting in Bangor included workers, both alumni and alumnae, from all Penobscot County, Hancock, Piscataquis, and Waldo counties. It was followed by a similar opening meeting in Augusta on April 2 of the alumni of Kennebec, Knox, Lincoln, and Somerset counties, at Lewiston on April 3 for Androscoggin alumni and alumnae, Franklin and Merrymeeting Bay alumni, and at Portland on April 5 for Cumberland County and York County alumni and alumnae.

On the campus a campaign has also been started among those faculty members who are not alumni of the University. This activity is under the direction of Prof. A. M. Turner, of the department of English, assisted by a committee consisting of Dr. F. H. Lathrop, Prof. J. A. Chacka, Mr. P. F. Crane, Prof. C. A. Jenkins, Mrs. Julia D. H. Whittlesey, Prof. E. R. Hitchner, Prof. G. B. Steinbauer, Dr. Marion Sweetman, Prof. A. S. Hill, Prof. I. H. Prageman, Prof. R. L. Morrow, and Dr. C. A. Dickinson. Early reports show that already over $6,000 has been subscribed by non-alumni faculty and staff.

Simultaneously with the opening meeting in Bangor, Western Pennsylvania alumni met in Pittsburgh on April 1 to launch the campaign in the central and western areas of the United States. Under the direction of Wayland D. Towner, '14, former alumni secretary, the drive will proceed from Pittsburgh through Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, and other sections.

The meeting in Bangor, launching the campaign for the country, was a dinner meeting at the Bangor House with over eighty alumni workers present. Chairmen from each county at the meeting included Walter K. Hanson, '12, Penobscot alumni, co-chairman.

Elect Ten Juniors, Two Seniors to Phi Beta Kappa

Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honorary fraternity, has chosen twelve students—ten juniors and two seniors—it was announced recently.

They are: Myer Alpert, Pauline Westin, Margaret Hauck, Linnea Gogan, Loren Dow, Virginia Tuttle, Walter Schultz, and Alvalene Pier-son, all seniors; and Marjorie Whitehouse and Charles Hall, juniors.

Students elected to Phi Beta Kappa are members of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Alpert has been a dean's list student every semester, has taken the tutorial honors course for four years, and received the Charles R. Woodman scholarship last year. He is a member of the International Relations Club and the Debating Society. He is a history and government major.

Miss Westin has been a dean's list student for three years, has taken the tutorial honors course, has been a member of the Students' Arts Club, Campus staff, university orchestra, Y.W.C.A. cabinet, was a member of her freshman class banquet committee, was captain in the recent student library fund campaign, took part in the All-Maine Women pageant her sophomore year, and is an English major.

Dow, a sociology major, was a dean's list student last year.

Insurance Supervision Explained by Lovejoy

Explaining the functions of his department, C. Waldo Lovejoy, commissioner of insurance, spoke as guest lecturer before the Maine government class last Tuesday.

Mr. Lovejoy, appointed for a four-year term by the governor with the confirmation of the council, told of his duties supervising the insurance business as required by the laws of the state. The statutes, established for the protection of the public, regulate the investigation of all suspected cases of incendiarism and the storage of inflammable liquids and explosives. Also included in his department is the licensing of auto financing companies and insurance agents and the approval of insurance companies.

All Campus Cars To Be Resistered

Students Apply At Treasury For Stickers

Dean Lamert S. Corbett presented this week the following proposal for the registration of campus automobiles:

"Each year the increasing number of automobiles used by the university family (students, faculty, employees) and visitors to the campus has intensified the problem of regulating traffic and parking for convenience and safety of all concerned. Most of our automobile users have been very thoughtful, courteous, considerate, and co-operative with those whose responsibility it is to keep our traffic plan operating smoothly.

"The plan with which you are familiar and has been in use for the past several years is the result of experience in the light of our own campus conditions and a desire to have a system that will be simple, fair and most beneficial to all concerned. At the present time, no changes in the existing set-up are contemplated. However, your co-operation is further requested by including your car in the University's automobile registration list in an attempt to expedite adjustment of traffic situations that arise from time to time.

"Arrangements have been made to register cars on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 16 and 17. Student car registration will be taken care of at the Treasury Department windows, the faculty and departmental employee registration at the office of their college dean.

"Registration will consist of filling out a card with the following information: name of car operator, name of car owner, make of car, state registration number. A small windshield sticker with your U. of M. registration number will be furnished. Please put it on the lower right hand corner of your windshield. There is no charge connected with registration."

Prof. Stevens Dead; First Dean of Arts

James Stacy Stevens, whose death occurred in Florida several weeks ago, served the University of Maine as a teacher and instructor for forty-one years. The imprint of his contribution to the intellectual life of the campus is symbolized in the building which houses the College of Arts and Sciences and which bears his name.

Dean Stevens came to the University of Maine, or the Maine State College as it was then known, as professor of physics and soon afterward established the department of electrical engineering. He later became the first dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and was instrumental in establishing the University's chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

Dean Stevens has been a national officer of Phi Beta Kappa and was that organization's president general from 1919 to 1923. He was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, of the American Physical Society, of the French Physical Society, and a member of Tau Beta Pi.

Active in community life, he served as president of the Bangor Forum, of the Dickens Fellowship, of the Maine Association of Biblical Instruction, and of the parish committee of the Fellowship Church in Orono.

Randall Chosen Campus Head in Election

Warren Randall, managing editor, was elected to succeed Charles Peirce as editor-in-chief of the Campus at the staff meeting Friday afternoon. Peter Skoufis was re-elected business manager.

Catharine Ward, a reporter and contributing editor, was elected associate editor, succeeding Rachel Kent. Richard Cranch was elected to the vacancy left by Randall as managing editor.

Other staff changes include Corinne Comstock, a reporter, elected women's news editor, and Paul Ehrenfried and Robert Willets, co-sports editors. Gwendolyn Weymouth, society editor, and Charles Leining, news editor, were re-elected.

Faculty To Present Skit In Evening

The first opportunity for the student body to inspect Estabrooke Hall, new women's dormitory, will be but one of the features of the shortened Maine Day program to be held this year Wednesday, May 1, it was announced today by James Fitzpatrick president of the committee for the program.

Also on the program will be a community sing, dance, student entertainment and faculty skit in the evening; the Maine Bowdoin baseball game and Maine-Tufts tennis matches in the afternoon and a tree planting ceremony to be held by the college 4-H Club. Classes will not be held in the afternoon.

The program of work done each year by students during the morning is not being held this year, as it is felt that much of the energy usually devoted to this program by student leaders was well spent in the recent student library fund campaign.

In the evening Albion Beverage will lead the community sing which will include modern songs as well as the old favorites. The band and glee club will participate in the program.

It was thought at first that it would be impossible for the faculty to present their program in the evening, but it was decided at a meeting this week that they would carry on this tradition.

The Maine Day program, one of the annual highlights at the University, was instituted by President Arthur A. Hauck when he was first appointed to that position and has rapidly grown in popularity with the students. Fitzpatrick said that the program would return for its full lay standing next year.

May, Schmidt To Play Leads

Virginia May and George Schmidt will play the leads in Stage Door, to be presented by the Masque as its last show of the year for four nights beginning April 29, it was announced by Director Mrs. Joyce Stevens after intensive tryouts held before spring recess.

Other major roles have been assigned to Barbara Ashworth, Jane Page, and Philip Pierce. This play was written by Edna Ferber and George Kaufman.

The cast, with the exception of three minor roles, is as follows:
Olga Beatrice Besse
Bernice Emily Hopkins
Mattie Josephine Blake
Big Mary Pauline Riley
Little Mary Elizabeth Reid
Madeline Claralyn Preble
Judith Virginia Howe
Anne Shirley Roberts
Mrs. Orcutt

FIFTY MEN OUT FOR SPRING FOOTBALL

Varsity Baseball Team Has Two Weeks Left Before Season Opens

Coach Kenyon Tries Various Combinations

By J. P. Dimmer

With the first game of the current baseball season less than two weeks away, varsity baseball Coach Bill Kenyon is driving his diamond charges with renewed effort in order to be ready for this year's tough eighteen-game schedule. Playing six days for a fast, well-drilled, and hard-hitting ball club, and Coach Kenyon intends that Maine shall field just such a club.

On Saturday a long afternoon drill was held in the field house, with most of the varsity prospects seeing service. Fourteen innings of ball gave the Pale Blue hurlers plenty of opportunity to show their wares, as they tossed them up for periods varying from one to three innings, while the catchers also alternated at the receiving spot. In the infield, Kenyon experimented with several combinations in an effort to find a quartet which will really click against this season's stiff opposition. At present the scramble for both infield and outfield positions continues, and from all appearances will be carried right through the season, in view of the fact that so many men are evenly matched.

Heavy Schedule

From the looks of the varsity schedule this year, Coach Kenyon will need plenty of reserve as well as first-string material. From April 19 to May 24 a game is scheduled every two days, with several of the contests to be played on consecutive dates. The season opens on the nineteenth against Colby at Waterville. After the opener the Bears depart on their New England trip, meeting Rhode Island, Northeastern, and New Hampshire on consecutive days.

Returning to the state, they meet Bates at Lewiston and then settle down to a series of four home games, with Bowdoin, Northeastern, Colby, and Bates as the opposition. The double-header with Connecticut on May 18 winds up another group of five games. The remainder of the season's contests are at Orono, the current campaign ending against Rhode Island on May 24.

Varsity Track Looks Strong For Spring

Coach Jenkins called out his varsity trackmen last week to start training for the rigorous schedule ahead of them.

Don Smith is expected to continue his excellent performances in the half mile and mile events, while Blaisdell, rather late in starting training, is considered one of the best two milers in the state. Stan Johnson and Lefty Bennett are now twirling with the lighter hammer and, with two national champions on the squad, Maine should capture a majority of the points in this department.

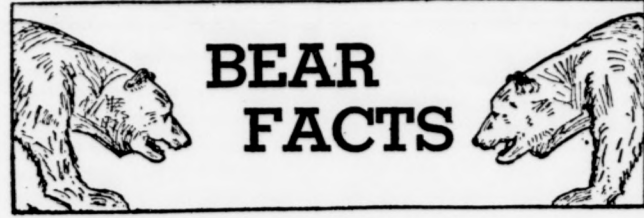

Ehrlich is working out regularly and when in shape is expected to give Maine a strong quarter miler. Herb Johnson, a sophomore, is doing very well in the discus and, based on his performances this winter, should dominate this event. Rich is going places in the pole vault and during the past season has shown much progress.

As yet, the full squad has not reported for practice, and the absence of Gilman, Dexter, Atwood, and Phillips is keenly felt. Without these men, Coach Jenkins says, the squad will be unbalanced and therefore weakened.

Opening the season at Boston on May fourth, the Orono men will run against the Boston College trackmen. The Boston meet will be a tough one, and the Pale Blue will need every ounce of their strength for this contest.

Hearst Trophy Won by Maine Rifle Team

The University of Maine rifle team, coached by Major James Cooper, won the national R.O.T.C. rifle competition for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy. Maine placed not only first in the First Corps Area but also placed a team fourth. The winning team will receive a plaque and five medals for their achievement. This is the first time a Maine team has ever won the trophy.

By Bob Willets

The rain is dribbling down in a slow trickle from a lead-gray sky. Germany, according to our radio, has walked over Denmark and is now trying a Blitzkrieg on Norway—maybe we should try one on this column. Anyhow, sports this week are just about as dreary as all this sounds—so much dope stories we all feel dopey.

FROSH BASEBALL

We were talking with "Smilin' Sam" Sezak over in the gym a few minutes ago and he is enthusiastic over a new pitcher he has just found. The kid is a south paw, Clarence Gilman, with plenty of stuff—from what Sam said he had the Frosh batters guessing in practice the other day.

The Frosh seem to have about the same number of candidates in baseball as they have had in all the other sports—three men in every position, and in most of the positions one man is as good as another. And, incidentally, the average age of the frosh squad is twenty.

PALE BLUE PERSONALITY

Hailing from Cranston, Rhode Island, comes Bob "Lefty" Bennett, husky athlete who has become well known around campus since he landed here three years ago. In frish football he was a first-string fullback, and in frosh track he broke, unofficially, the National Freshman record in the hammer.

As a varsity performer, "Lefty" went on to further heights in athletic fame, by winning the ICAA hammer throw at New York. The same year he took third in the state meet and second in the New England meet, and also continued his football activities, this time at quarterback. This year he has gone on to gain national recognition in the weight events by annexing the 35 pound weight title at New York this winter. He is expected to continue these fine performances this spring, perhaps even breaking a national or world's record in the 16 pound hammer.

Bob Bennett has made a name for himself in Maine track history. The Maine Campus salutes him.

GOLF

We are sorry to announce that, due to added activities, Bill Wells will be unable to coach golf this year. However, the team has had a meeting at which fifteen men turned out, three of whom were letter men, Tracy, Pryor, and Brunor. Larry Burney, a letter man from two years ago, is also back. Ted Curtis refused to divulge who the likely candidates for the coaching post were. Our guess is that it could be anybody from Prexy Hauck and Dean Corbett to Phil Jones or John Higgins, the man who works in the supply room at the gym.

STUFF

Doc Gerrish has been converted from an outfielder back to a catcher—Coach Kenyon has a new find in Frank Shearer, a right-handed pitcher, who, if he keeps up the good work, should trouble the opposition this spring. The state track meet will be held here this year.

Yacht Club Is Formed On Campus

Student yachtsmen met March 19 in the marine library to organize and form the Maine Sailing Club. The group, consisting of fourteen students and three faculty members, elected officers and discussed the development of cruising, racing, and general sailing for students of the university.

The following officers were elected: Raymond Gay, commodore; Warren Roll, vice commodore; Dan Roberts, secretary-treasurer. Prof. A. C. Lyon will act as faculty adviser. A governing board consists of Commodore Gay, Prof. Lyon, Gordon Blanchard, Charles Gildersleeve, and Eugene Leger.

At the present time the organization has no official connection with the university, but it is hoped that, in time, sailing will develop into an intercollegiate and intramural sport at Maine.

Several events are planned for the remainder of the season, the most prominent being the Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Association regatta at Brown University on April 27th and 28th. Twelve college clubs have been invited to compete in this event. Also planned are meets with the clubs at Bowdoin and New Hampshire. A week-end cruise is scheduled for some time in May.

Any student yachtsman interested in the club should contact Dan Roberts at Kappa Sigma or Ray Gay at Lambda Chi Alpha.

Frosh Outfield Reports For Practice This Week

Although it still doesn't look like spring, the frosh baseball squad is deep in practice. Infielders and batter-ies are now getting in shape for the season which starts April 30.

Coach Sam Sezak has quite a problem on his hands with the capable candidates battling for the infield positions. At first base it is a three-way tie between Nickerson, Jameson, and Parker. All are equal in fielding so their batting strength will decide the winner. For second base Markee looks strongest with two other contenders, Brackett and Quint.

The short stop position is a tie between Sawyer and Young. Sawyer has the edge in batting, but Young is a little better in fielding. There are more worries over third base with a three-way tussle among Kittredge, Whitley, and McKeen. Here again the big sticker will be the man to get the position.

In the battery positions Coach Sezak has two great catchers in Ward and Mortland and two other good men in Titcomb and Baisley. On the other end four pitchers have been outstanding—Tooley, Allen, and Aho, all right-handers, and Gilman, a lefthander. All of them show promise as steady, reliable hurlers.

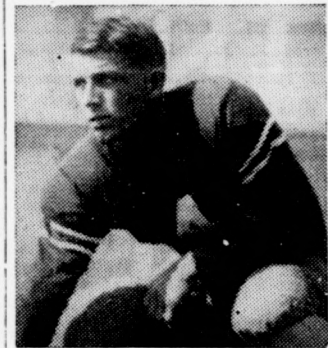

Practice sessions are held late every afternoon with batting, fielding, and pitching drills. Outfielders will report at the end of the week, completing the squad.

Largest Spring Squad In History Turns Out At Coach Brice's Call

Veteran End

ROGER STEARNS

Tennis Team Goes Outside For Practice

Forcing the season with outdoor matches on the asphalt court, the tennis squad is rounding into shape for its New England trip. Since all matches on this trip are played on hard courts, it is an advantage for the team to be able to practice outdoors on the windy and comparatively dead court rather than on the fast indoor court.

Before vacation ranking matches were started on the indoor surface. These matches are being continued outdoors with afternoons completely scheduled. Since Coach Small is experimenting with various combinations, the squad has not been cut. The doubles combinations are going to be the greatest problem, with only the veteran team of Hamilton and Crockett returning.

Official practice matches have not yet begun for the freshman team because the single court is being used for varsity work.

Following the New England trip on which four colleges are played, the varsity team will start competition within the state. Added to the schedule this year is a match with Tufts which will probably be one of the hardest matches of the season. Colby, Bates, and Bowdoin will put out strong clusters this year.

Colby appears to have the strongest team, on paper, with State Champions Lord and Pinansky returning. Bowdoin, which surprised everyone by nipping Colby in the state meet last year, will have a well-rounded team. Howie Kenney will pace the Bates' team again this year.

Golf Candidates Train For New England Meet

With the coming of spring and dry weather, the University golf team is getting ready to meet a good cross-section of New England competition. At least as strong, and possibly stronger than last year's team, this crop of modern Scotchmen will find ample competition in every one of the nine matches on the schedule.

A meeting last week resulted in fifteen candidates reporting.

Many Frosh Report With Varsity Men

Over fifty men, the largest spring football squad in university history, answered Coach Fred Brice's call for practice last night. Indoor sessions will continue until weather allows the squad to go outdoors. Only eight of the twenty-four letter men of last season will be back, and only half of these were in the starting line-up. The "Fox" said that all men out would be looked over carefully, as there are plenty of big holes to be filled for next year's team.

The loss of Dick Dyer leaves the Black Bear squad without an experienced passer or kicker. However, Parker Small and Phee Russell, according to Coach Brice, look good and will probably be able to fill Dyer's shoes. Ken Wright, last year's freshman ace, Stu Svedman, who has been converted to end, or Spencer Leek will probably be able to hold down the end left open by Red Lane's graduation.

Last year's letter men who will be back next year are Roger Stearns, one of the best ends in the state, Clary Genge, who has been in the starting line-up at guard since his sophomore year, Charlie Arbor, who has done plenty of fancy running from the half-back position, and Jack Reitz, who led the Pale Blue team at quarterback last year. Other lettermen who are expected to see much service next year are Big Ed Barrows at full back, Lefty Bennett at quarterback, Jim Harris at center, and Charles Gardner at guard.

Those who received invitations for spring practice are:

Ends: Roger Stearns, Spencer Leek, Kenneth Wright, Stu Svedman, George Harvey, Sam Dyer, Robert Dalrymple, and Cliff Nickerson.

Tackles: Bill Irvine, George Grant, John Gorman, Norman Lyon, Carroll Stairs, Robert Kinghorn, Richard Harlow, Henry Wallace, and Einar Olsen.

Guards: John Stahl, Clarence Genge, Charles Gardner, Raymond Gay, Frank Austin, Keith Grover, Warren Fish, Richard Coffin, Ed Robertson, and Jim Briggs.

Centers: Jim Harris, Walter Foster, Harold Howard, Atwood Smart, and Frank Wright.

Quarterbacks: Jack Reitz, Hal Anderson, Don Holyoke, Oliver and Bunkley. Bob Bennett will not be out this spring because of track.

Half Backs: Parker Small, Phil Russell, Charlie Arbor, Si Brody, Chet Savasuk, Tom Pollock, Dick McKeen, Lowell Ward, and Carl Goodchild.

Full Backs: Ed Barrows, Dana Dingley, Al Edelstein, and Frank Haines.

The following is the schedule of next fall's football games.
Sept. 28 Rhode Island at Orono
Oct. 5 Columbia at New York
12 New Hampshire at Durham
19 Connecticut at Orono
26 Bates at Orono
Nov. 2 Colby at Orono
9 Bowdoin at Brunswick

Frosh Track Team Good In Preseason Workouts

With freshman track practice well under way, Coach Chester Jenkins looks forward to another successful season for the frosh tracksters. The going will not be soft this year, as they oppose, in most of their meets, the combined forces of from two to seven of the state's top high-school track teams. The first-year men also are slated to compete in the Freshman Medley Relay Races for both the state and the New England championships.

In the distance events Maine looks to Radley and Stewart in the quarter mile, Creamer and Moody in the half, and Martinez and Hamm in the mile. Most of these men have run cross country and indoors, and should improve their records against the good outdoor competition.

Bill Hadlock, a strong point winner all the year, is also expected to bolster the team considerably in the hurdles and the broad jump. Brady and Crane, consistent frosh high jumpers, are both in good shape, while Gildersleeve and Worster may decide many of the meets in the pole vault.

In The Beginning

It is customary for the new editor to inaugurate his term with an editorial outlining his editorial policy. Frankly, we are not sure what our policy is going to be. We are, at present, more concerned with giving the students a good paper regularly each week. We make no promises, but it is our intention that a year from now the next editor will take over a paper a little bit better than it was before.

We realize only too well the limitations of a four-page weekly. It is useless to feature events in the past, and we plan to concentrate on events in the future. We can not compete with the Bangor dailies, but we can supplement them in a fuller, more personal style. This is our aim.

We think it hardly fair, therefore, to find in our first day's mail an exchange from the University of Texas, the Daily Texan, with a feature edition of 70 pages and a tabloid supplement of 32 pages. It is a wonderful example of collegiate journalism, but rather discouraging to a new editor.

Free Speech?

Shall a man's right to teach in an institution of higher learning be determined solely by his competence? Or rather, should there be the requirement that his religious and social views conform to those of the community in which he is to teach? It is on the consideration of these two questions that the case of Bertrand Russell must rest.

The appointment of Bertrand Russell to a two-year term as professor of philosophy in the College of the City of New York was announced in the press on February 26. Immediately a storm of criticism arose and continued until the Supreme Court of New York decided that a man's personal views were more important than his competence to teach.

First blow came from New York's Episcopal bishop, William Manning. He denounced Bertrand Russell as a "recognized propagandist against both religion and morality, who specifically defends adultery." To document these hard words, the Bishop called forth quotations from the books, essays, and lectures that have won Bertrand Russell popular fame as a pugnacious Voltairian moralist. Most quoted was this tid-bit, "Americans should indulge in marital infidelity to preserve their homes." Most inflammatory was Russell on college life when he wrote, "I am sure that university life would be better...if most university students had temporary childless marriages." Perhaps many psychologists would agree with Russell if they didn't have to face the ire of their compatriots for a statement so dangerous to the morals of the coming generation.

Not once was Russell's competence to teach ethics and mathematics challenged throughout the controversy. His Principia Mathematica (co-authored by Albert Whitehead) has given him the right to be called one of the great thinkers of our time.

Thus the issue simmers down to the fact that a man must be equipped to teach not only with a good understanding of his subject, but he must also be prepared to think and speak in the same pattern as his fellow beings. If he has an original thought, he should be most careful about the form of expression it takes—if he wishes to eat.

President Mead has indicated that Mr. Russell was invited to teach mathematics and logic. His religious and social views are clearly irrelevant to the teaching of these subjects. But apart from this irrelevance, freedom of thought is the only basis on which religion and science can hope to prosper. Moreover, American youth must develop its own judgments through a knowledge of conflicting views, not by living in the shelter of ignorance and cloistered security.

Nor do Mr. Russell's unconventional ideas, nor his observations on the conditions and needs of our society constitute proper cause for excluding him as a teacher in a public college. His books are available in virtually every library in the country and have been used as textbooks and collateral readings for decades. Certainly an institution of higher learning has a great obligation to offer its student body every available opportunity to examine different views about the nature and future of our society. Anything less would constitute a denial of both the democratic tradition and the principles of free education.

Res Politicæ

By Martin Scher

Supporters of constitutional methods must have lauded the action of Federal District Judge George A. Welsh, of Philadelphia, in ordering the arrest of two Dies Committee agents and a police lieutenant for conspiring to deprive a Communist political candidate of his constitutional rights. The Dies Committee's high-handed methods and overstepping of authority have gone too long unnoticed by the public, and this may make evident that when unconstitutional methods are used in the persecution of one political group, such methods may soon be applied by the group in power to other minorities.

Despite the animosity with which some people believed the census takers would be met, so far there seems to be little reluctance on the part of the public to impart the information which these enquirers are seeking. Most people evidently realize that in order to cure our economic ills we must know what they are.

In an address before a group of business men and farmers, Attorney General Cogan, of Ontario, stated that Canada's supreme task in the present European conflict is to bring the United States in on the side of the Allies. "They need...the material resources of our great neighboring republic to the South," he declared. "No sacrifice on our part will be too great...to bring this about," he said, referring to our possible embroilment in what is certainly not our affair. He evidently believes that we did not learn anything from our last expensive lesson.

An attack upon the freedom of education, that America has always prided herself upon having, is easily discernible in the controversy created by the appointment of Bertrand Russell as a professor at City College of New York. Although his post at C.C.N.Y. involves the teaching of the logic of mathematics, he is being castigated upon the basis of his moral philosophy, which happens to be repugnant to several people whose right to judge it, from the point of view of their knowledge, seems small indeed. Albert Einstein hit the nail on the head when he said that great spirits are very often confronted with opposition from mediocrities.

Harold Callender, in a recent article in the New York Times, told of an ironic situation in Narvik, Norway, where German and British boats tie up at the same dock in order to load iron ore with which to carry on the war. As seamen, he tells us, the Germans and the British naturally dislike to see their fellow seamen, regardless of which side they are on in the war, fall prey to submarines, mines, and machine gun fire from enemy airplanes. As a result, the animosity which one would expect to find between the seamen of the two countries is lost in mutual disgust at the horror and uselessness of war.

CORRESPONDENCE

All letters should be signed with the author's real name, but a pen name will be used in publication of the letter if desired. Editor of the Campus:

Dear Sir:

All this year a large percentage of the students have looked forward to the annual Maine Day. We are, therefore, very disappointed that it is impossible to carry out the usual program without it being modified.

Although we have always considered the work projects, included in Maine Day, as our yearly constructive contribution to the University, the change in the program for this year is justified when one realizes that our project, done as a whole, was the library drive.

We, as an organization, sincerely hope that the student body will cooperate in making the modified Maine Day a success.

However, next year we definitely want the Maine Day to be as in past years with the mayoralty campaign, the work projects, and the athletic events during the day, concluded in the evening by the faculty show and the dance. We hope that the entire student body feels as we do and will work to bring back to our campus the usual Maine Day program next year and the years following.

RADIO NEWS..

In the debut of this column the editor invited criticism of his efforts. Well, he got what he asked for! Criticism both profuse and eloquent has fallen upon his unprotected, and as yet unbowed head. The main "beef" seems to be that we complimented two minor characters of the School for Scandal cast and ignored the leading parts.

To our critics we offer this consolation: Since our comments are, after all, personal opinion, we can be wrong. However, just to keep the records straight, I intend to judge the performances of the actors by their interpretation of the parts they play, not by the importance of their parts. Leading parts are a necessity; good actors a rarity.

According to reliable sources, there has been some investigation of the possibilities of broadcasting from the music studios in North Stevens. After listening to the musical broadcast of a couple of weeks ago, we are inclined to agree that something should be done about it. We do not wish to infer that we disliked the performers in that show. The fault we have to find is with the technical reproduction of musical broadcasts.

For speech and dramatic programs the studios in Lord Hall are entirely satisfactory. However, from the musical acoustics standpoint, there is room for criticism. The large number of windows in the studio presents one of the main problems. The walls, although they have been soundproofed, give a "bounce" or echo to musical frequencies which cannot be avoided. Since the studios in North Stevens were built expressly for musical programs, these difficulties have been taken into consideration and eliminated.

This corner sincerely believes that if there is to be an increase in musical programs such a change is a step in the right direction.

Lending a critical ear to last Sunday's broadcast of Macbeth, we were agreeably surprised at the outcome of such an ambitious undertaking.

Clark Thurston scored a dramatic triumph in the title role. His understanding and interpretation of the part he played were remarkable. The hard work he must have had to do on his role was well rewarded by the quality of his performance.

Yet, Thurston stood not alone as the bright spot of the show. Barbara Welch, as Lady Macbeth, and Earle Rankin, as Banquo, ran him a close second for top honors.

To the entire cast we extend our compliments for a good job well done.

The "power behind the scenes" has asked this corner to extend an invitation to all students interested to attend coming broadcasts as an audience. It

In the spirit of Mr. Hull's reciprocity, I Lost My English Accent is the British comeback to Margaret Halsey's With Malice Toward Some. Whereas Mrs. Halsey's pen is often dipped in vitriol, Mr. Thompson softens his satire by subtly insinuating that our ways may not be the best after all. The author's attempt to make us see ourselves as others see us at first brings words of protest rushing to our lips or perhaps counter-criticism, but, nevertheless, he prods some vulnerable spots that we are ashamed of, even if we never acknowledge them, and he can make us laugh at our foibles.

Mr. Thompson is more than a superficial observer. Since 1933, he has been correspondent of the London Daily Express. He has seen America in a colorful, exciting period. Initiated into New York while Prohibition still uncomfortably girded the national waist, he became familiar with the New York of bathtub gin, bootleggers and subterranean speakeasies. One of the few dates the author is determined to remember is December 5, 1933, when an excited people celebrated the news of repeal by a "national hiccup." When the New Yorker came out into the open to indulge in his favorite pastime, his city became the gayest in the world.

Mr. Thompson says, "The average reader of an English newspaper thinks he would need a gun in New York if he went to buy a pound of spinach." He is glad to report that this conception of our fair country is erroneous. America has worked wonders on him: melted his English reserve, developed his self-confidence and sense of humor, and increased his tolerance and broad-mindedness.

Less pleasant aspects of American life are pointed out in his criticism of justice, as demonstrated at the Hauptmann trial, and the more petty annoyances occasioned by our noisy movie audiences, the revolting songs of Haris believed that an audience will not only add to the show, but will help the players by giving them a visual audience. It is much easier to act in front of a "live" audience than alone in front of an impersonal microphone.

Interviews of The Past brought Napoleon to life last Monday in the person of Bill Dow. His remarks seemed to be extremely pertinent to present day affairs in spite of having been written so long ago.

In these broadcasts, the recorded words of the person being interviewed are used. Since these quotations come, for the most part, from personal letters, there is not much continuity in them. This tends to make them seem stiff and formal.

lem, the rudeness of New York's "public servants."

He has witnessed some exciting events in these seven years—the presidential election of 1936, the Munich Peace of 1938, the bloodless conquest of the Czechs, and, as a climax, the royal British tour of Canada and the United States. At the end of this time he no longer considers himself a typical Englishman, prefers the "tang of New York to the subtle flavor of London," is more at home in the American vernacular—but—the uplifting experience of accompanying the royal party on its tour brings home the realization that he will never entirely lose his English accent.

Busiest Cigarette in the Country ...that's Chesterfield

Miss Aasta
Pedersen
... the smiling hostess
who welcomes guests at one of New York's most famous hotels.
She will tell you Chesterfield is the busiest cigarette in the place.

Going "two packs at a time" because Chesterfield is today's definitely milder, cooler-smoking, better-tasting cigarette

These three qualities—MILDNESS, COOLNESS, TASTE... are the sum and substance of real smoking pleasure.
You enjoy all three in Chesterfield's right combination of the world's best cigarette tobaccos.

At over a million places where cigarettes are sold you can see these clean white Chesterfield packages going into more pockets and more handbags every day. All over the country smokers are finding out you can't buy a better cigarette.
