Patriotism for Profits

The wave of patriotism that has swept the country in the last year has brought with it much that is regrettible. We refer especially to the highly-organized patriotism that we have seen in the slogan, "Buy American!"

I must say, however, that we do not see patriotism in the narrow sense of the word, but we do see a certain type of patriotism, which we believe to be a danger to the best interest of the country.

Our national anthem was written, not for profit, but because of the love of country. It is a song that expresses the American spirit, and not merely the desire for gain.

Can we feel the same way of "God Bless America"?

Francis Scott Key was inspired by honest patriotism under heroic circumstances. It became the national anthem after many years of struggle and difficulty.

Can we feel the same way of "God Bless America"?

Standing stiffly at attention while the tune swung on."

It is a fine song, one that expresses our national spirit, and not merely the desire for gain.

The subjection of the high school curriculum to the acquisition of a certain number of credits in specified fields so that the student can be made to acquire a certain type of education has been a great step forward.

This experiment should stimulate more colleges to adopt a similar system. It has shown the advantages of these presentations to the student body.

The "guinea-pig" students equalled their conventionally educated peers in every respect.

Let us make it a point to examine the results of two national election polls of college students. In 1940, Willkie 50.5 per cent of the student support, Roosevelt 49.5 per cent.

It makes your telephone service the world's best and most economical.

Should we continue to follow the "Buy American!" slogan, the result will be that our students will lose their sense of patriotism, and the country will suffer.
