Maine Day 1947 Supplement

Orono, Maine, May 1, 1947

'Share In The Work' - - Asks Pres. Hauck

My Aching Back!

Prexy Hauck Has Role Of Street Sweep

The University of Maine street cleaner is a college president!

Our annual Maine Day celebration calls students from their books, administrative officials from their desks, and professors from their classrooms for a one day work holiday devoted to cleaning the campus area. President Hauck initiated the idea 12 years ago and has led the cleaning activities each year by sweeping the college drives.

This year, May 7 has been chosen for the occasion and an extensive list of projects has been selected as part of the Maine Day work assignments.

Many of the assignments are repeated each year, but as new necessities arise they are added to the list at the suggestion of either the students or administration. The work will be accomplished under a completely co-operative system whereby each interested student and faculty member is expected to pitch in voluntarily and give the grounds a spring scrubbing.

The schedule is not entirely devoted to work. During the latter half of the day, athletics, faculty and student skits, and a special program of recreational events are presented.

This year, the married students,

'Vital Year In History Of School'

This year is an important one in the history of the University. Because our student body is much larger than normal and includes so many mature students, the traditions we now establish or help to continue will be carried through to future years.

That is why, if we want Maine Day to hold its established place in the life of the campus, we must all do our part in making next Wednesday a happy and productive event. I know that you will all wish to share in the work part of the program, for the projects outlined by the committee, if successfully carried out, will add much to the attractiveness of the campus.

Many of you have not been here long enough to participate in past Maine Days. I cannot recall any that have been unsuccessful but I am bearing in mind the relative size of the student body in past years. This year we have our greatest opportunity, and, if the pattern follows that of the past, we shall have a maximum of cooperation and accomplishment.

I am confident that the spirit of participation in Maine Day fostered so well in the past will be continued this year.
—Arthur A. Hauck

Two Skits By Profs, Students On Gym Stage

The entertainment spotlight for Maine Day will be centered on a program consisting of two skits, one by the faculty and the other by students, to be presented at the Memorial Gymnasium. Because of the anticipated crowd, there will be two performances. The first will start at 6:30 p.m. and the second at 8:15.

The faculty show will include the talents of Prexy Hauck, Stan Wallace, "Squeaky" Bennett, Matthew McNeary, Louis Thibodeau, and many others. One of the features of the entertainment will be the faculty orchestra, starring Dean Murray and a host of other alleged musicians.

The profs' presentation, "Let's Reciprocate," was written by Dayson DeCourcy, and Russ Woolley of the Speech department with the assistance of Walter Whitney, Professor of English.

The opening scene takes place in a prominent campus setting. While the action of the play is running smoothly, a sudden interruption forces a change in presentation and from there on the play is frankly a mystery. We have learned that the faculty is required to take part in a Gay Nineties Revue which is being staged as part of the Maine Day celebration. Apparently they consider this below what they refer to as their professorial dignity. "Squeaky" Bennett adds additional mystery to the skit by appearing with a black box.

Matthew McNeary of the Mechanical Drawing Department has written his own lyrics to a famous operatic air. This number will be presented for

How Maine Day Developed As School Custom

When man bites dog, that's news, but when raucous collegians are transformed into solid, hard-working campus citizens, that's also news... and it started back in 1934 when President Hauck came to Maine.

At that time, the University of Maine was busy building a far-flung reputation as the last academic outpost of the hairy-chested, with inter-class derring-do the rule rather than the exception, and freshman and sophomore blood was spilling at the drop of a raccoon coat.

Perhaps it was the spirit of spring, or the casting off of the winter's drab normalcy, but early May usually found the members of Maine's two lower classes spoiling for battle. Eye witnesses shudder a little even today, recalling signs painted, "To --- with '38," and similar insults. These signs and other manifestations of inter-class rivalry appeared overnight, and when a sophomore "slipped" from the river bank into the frigid Stillwater,

Called 'Campus Day' During Middle Thirties

It was called "Campus Day" at first, but with the exception of the name, today's "Maine Day" is much the same as it was in the middle 30's. As an academic recess in which students and faculty turn out to spring clean the campus and make small but effective improvements, Maine Day furthers the friendly, cooperative, and informal atmosphere with which the University of Maine has become so well identified.

Maine Day Project

Workers, Leaders Meet At New Library Steps

All persons working on the Maine Day projects will meet their group leaders at 8:30 Wednesday morning in the vicinity of the New Library steps.

Campaign Of 12 Years Ago

The following account of the University's first campus mayoral campaign, held in conjunction with the initial Maine Day celebration, May 1, 1935, is quoted from The Maine Campus of exactly twelve years past.

"Honest Naugler," the balcony speaker from Topsham, led his nearest opponent by 108 votes in the balloting at the big campaign rally held Tuesday evening in the Memorial Gym. The rally was a just climax to a noisier campaign...

Carried in a Hearse

"The body of Ingraham (Ed.—another candidate) was carried to the gym in an ancient hearse, drawn by an old saddle-backed horse and escorted by his faithful followers. He was borne into the Gym in a plain casket and placed on the platform. His followers, carrying lighted candles, were led by...

"The big man for the job," Sam Reese, was the last to arrive. Announced by trumpets and horns he rushed in after his party men... Despite the frantic effort of the Reese men to place their banner on the platform, they were forced to take it to one side while the opponent's speeches got under way.

Rises from Casket

"Then Ingraham rose from his casket and continued his speech... dealing with his abduction and promises to the public.

"The stink of the political activity of the rivals and an attack against everything in their platforms was the subject of the address by Dapper Dan MacDonald. His statements were expressed in a learned manner from a speech someone else had written for him...

Let's see how much difference 12 years will make.

Thanks To The Print Shop

The editors and the Maine Day Committee on behalf of the student body wish to thank the University Print Shop employees for their co-operation in making up this supplement.

Fraternities Sing Tuesday

A special feature of Maine Day will be the Interfraternity Sing, a music festival offering the best efforts of our campus fraternities in the line of choral presentation. The Sing will be held on Tuesday evening, May 6, at 7:30 in the Memorial Gymnasium. It will be presented on a competitive basis; the winning fraternity group will be presented with a victor's cup.

The Interfraternity Sing can boast of no long and time-honored tradition. The event, as such, was first established in 1942, and was held again in 1943. During the war, with the fraternity houses closed, the Sing was discontinued. This year it is being revived as a high point.

The event is sponsored by the Men's Glee Club and the Interfraternity Council, and is supervised by Mr. James Selwood.

Maine Spirit In 1935

The singing of the Stein Song on Wednesday night made one realize that Maine does, after all, have school spirit; that it is, after all, a University, and not merely a collection of students and faculty.

Maine Day Parade To Form At Beta Wednesday Morning

Fall in!

The Maine Day parade will start at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning in the vicinity of Oak Hall and the Beta House. The University Band will lead the group past the Estabrooke-Colvin-Balentine area to gather co-ed workers and then retrace their steps towards the New Library.

On the front steps of the New Library, the Campus Mayor will be announced and after accepting his mayoralty, his first official duty will be to start the Maine Day activity program. The morning clean up period will be held until 11:30.

Men living in the area near the start of the march are asked to join the parade at that point and help call out workers from the women's dorms. Those not living in dorms along the parade route may join at any point or meet the group at the New Library.

SKITS

the first time, and possibly the last, before any audience. McNeary is also rehearsing a chorus that is rumored to be a close rival of many now appearing on Broadway.

In the other half of the evening's show, the students will present their skit entitled "Let's Orientate." This production was written by Betty Lehman and Johnny Ballou, co-chairmen of the student committee. Assisting with the writing were George Berger, Ted Jennison, "Trapper" Reynolds, Barby Sewall, and Dick Sprague.

The student skit is a burlesque of a college professor orientating a class of freshmen at the University of Maine. The students are told what they should expect in each of the colleges, the bookstore, athletics, and other phases of their new University life.

HISTORY

Most of the battling took place in the neighborhood of the heating plant, where the victors announced their success by blowing the steam whistle. Perhaps it started this way, but the end result was a gnawing, bashing, and gloriously uninhibited scramble for possession of the rope. Frank Cowan, veteran campus policeman, recalls these feuds with a sad smile and a shake of his head.

This was the situation when President Hauck came to Maine. It was clear to everyone that changes were necessary, but changes of this nature, involving the destroying of a tradition, were no less difficult at that time than they are today. While educators and students shook their heads and muttered to themselves, President Hauck made a decision.

In effect, it was a substitution of one tradition for another. The energies formerly expended in inter-class battling were diverted to campus work projects.

SWEeper

mostly veterans, are planning their own program which will be held in conjunction with the regular campus holiday. Members of the South Apartments, Cabins, and Trailers have mapped out plans for the construction of children's playground areas, parking lots, clothes line repair, and other projects which are new to the usual Maine Day activities.

Editor's Note

There is still a place in the work project program for those who did not have an opportunity to pledge their support last week.

Members of the Maine Day Project Committee urge all persons who missed the initial opportunity to choose a job to select one this week and report at 8:30 Wednesday morning to that assignment.

The committee wishes to have the cooperation of the entire University group and, recognizing the difficulty presented by having to sign prematurely, hope that this arrangement will accommodate all who now wish to join in the activities.
