Candidates Named For Class Elections

Two Dorms To Be Used By 4-H Clubs

Members Convene For Two-Day Meet

By BARNABY MCAUSLAN

Dunn and Corbett Halls will be occupied from Dec. 28-30 by approximately 160 4-H Club members attending the Annual State 4-H Club Contest to be held here at that time. The girls will be housed in Dunn Hall and the boys in Corbett.

The principal speaker at the meeting will be Charles R. Lund of Baltimore who is the rural youth leader of American Oil. His topic for the opening address will be "The Opportunities for Rural Youth in the State of Maine." He is well known to 4-H Club members throughout the state as he conducts the 4-H Club Tractor Maintenance School each year.

Will Hold Classes

Classes will be conducted for the boys in the following fields: Poultry, led by Frank D. Reed, Extension Service poultry specialist; Dairy by Ralph A. Corbett, dairy specialist; and Crops under the direction of crops specialist Oscar L. Wyman.

Girls' classes will consist of the following topics: Let's Give a Demonstration, Clothing, and You and Your Family.

The Alpha Zeta award will be presented by James Robinson, president of the Maine Chapter, to the outstanding 4-H Club boy in Maine for 1949.

Other awards for outstanding work will be presented to counties, clubs, members, and leaders by George E. Lord.

Dean Deering To Speak

Dean Arthur Deering of the department of agriculture will address the annual meeting of 4-H club executives which will be held simultaneously with the 4-H Club contest.

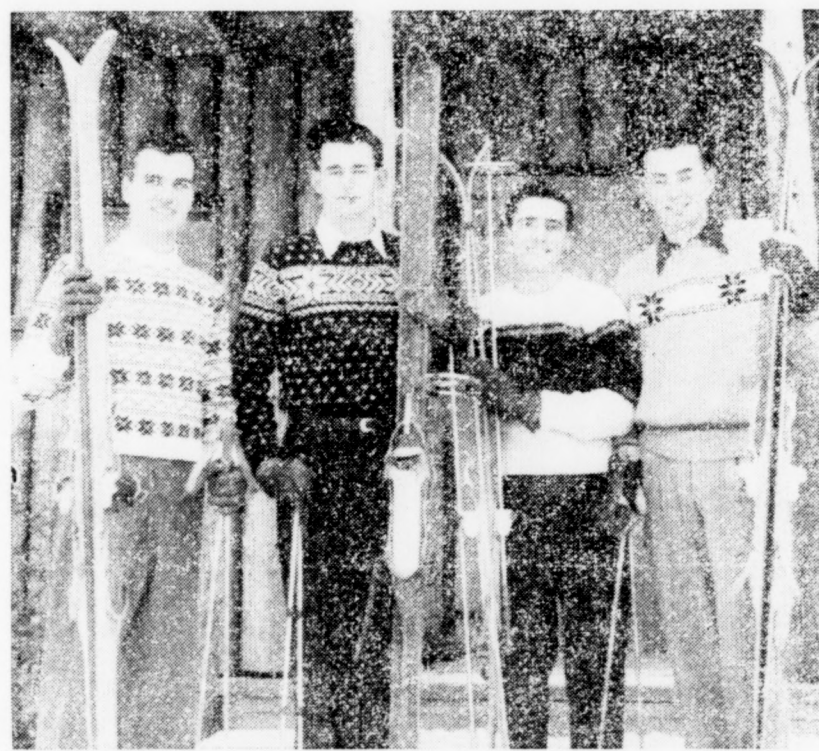

The convention will open with registration and a reception and tea at Merrill Hall on Dec. 28. George Findlen of Fort Fairfield will lead group singing and call square dances after the opening assembly and address that night.

Entertainment on Dec. 29 will be furnished by the Joe Davies baton twirlers of Bangor. Following this demonstration, group singing and games will take place.

The convention will close on Dec. 30 after breakfast.

The 24-hour no-cut rule for students will go into effect Thursday, Dec. 15, the fifth period. The Christmas recess will begin at 11:35, Dec. 16, and end with the resumption of regular classes Jan. 3.

Because of the late returning date, there will be no issue of the Campus that week. The next issue will appear Jan. 12.

Best Winter Carnival In Years On Tap With Gala New Features

Final arrangements have been completed for the annual Winter Carnival. It was announced this week by Hap Gerish, publicity chairman of the Carnival committee.

This year's carnival will feature not only the crowning of a carnival queen, but the crowning of a carnival king as well. Election of the two monarchs will take place Jan. 11 with the co-eds electing the king and the men electing the queen.

Candidates

Candidates for Carnival Queen are Lois Hunter, Nancy Knowles, Dotty Butler, and Connie Webb. Nominees for King are Ted Hawks, John Milton, Tom Collins, and Jim Demetrien.

This year programs will be sold in the dormitories for fifty cents to help defray the cost of the new features introduced into the Carnival.

Along with the program goes a ticket that entitles the holder to attend all the gala events such as the sleigh (Continued on Page Eight)

Luck, Alertness Save Exhibit

Fifty "very valuable" modern Japanese prints were saved from damage or possible destruction Sunday by prompt action on the part of J. Palmer Libby, art department assistant, and Jerome Seidman, member of the psychology department, after a broken pipe filled the print room at Carnegie Hall with live steam.

Prof. Vincent Hartgen, head of the art department, declined to estimate the value of the prints, but described them as being "very costly." All the prints were insured, he said.

Arriving at Carnegie a half hour ahead of his usual schedule, Mr. Libby said he found Mr. Seidman and his son waiting to see the exhibits. When the door was unlocked, they noticed a "wet smell," according to Mr. Libby. Reaching the print room, they found live steam hanging from the ceiling to a depth of six feet.

"Mr. Seidman started taking down the exhibit, while I ran to the Steam Plant to get someone to fix the leak," Libby said.

Quick action by the two men saved all the prints.

Prof. Hartgen said it was "certainly lucky" that Libby got to work a half hour early.

New Nomination System Will Get First Workout As 62 Seek 16 Offices

Voting Will Be Jan. 11 In Oakes Room As Election Committee Keeps Guard

By AL MERSKY

University students will march to the polls on Wednesday, Jan. 11, to elect their class officers from candidates chosen under the newly introduced system of nomination by petition. Sixty-two candidates will vie for the 16 elective offices.

The Louis Oakes Room has been reserved for the polls which will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Coed members of the freshman class will attend the ballot boxes and the entire election will be supervised by members of the Election Committee.

New System Innovated

The votes will be counted Wednesday night by members of the All-Maine Women and the Senior Stulls. The final results will be announced in the January 19 issue of the Campus.

The January election will be the first test of the nomination by petition system which has been termed successful by Brad Shaw, chairman of the Election Committee.

Shaw announces, however, that the committee was forced to disqualify several petitions, upon the official check, due to infraction of the rules and the scholastic ineligibility of several of the candidates.

Provision will be made on the printed ballots for write-in votes, Shaw adds.

The complete list of candidates to be voted upon is as follows:

University Cook Rescues Child In Burning Home

By MABLEY HOVE

Heroes often go missing, and such might be the case of a South Hatahoke cook, Edwin Amis, who rescued a two-year-old girl from her burning home in Rockport last Saturday evening.

Amis, who lives in Rockport, noticed flames shooting out from a nearby farm house, and ran to offer his assistance.

It was soon learned that one of the children had been trapped upstairs by the smoke and flames.

The firemen ascended to the dangerous second landing, but were unable to locate the child because of the heavy smoke. Finally Amis, undaunted by the other failures, dashed up the stairs, ran into a room, and found the baby unconscious on the floor. He picked her up, and, directed by the cries below, found his way back to the staircase.

The child was rushed immediately to the hospital where her condition is reported as favorable.

How Amis knew in which room the child was, how he was able to locate her through the heavy smoke and find his way downstairs again he doesn't know. When questioned, he could only shake his head and say, "Luck was with me, thank God."

Don Quixote Rides At Maine-In Film

One of the world's greatest books about one of the world's greatest heroes, Don Quixote, has been made into a movie and will be shown at the University. The film, produced by Cifesa Productions, has Spanish dialogue with explanatory titles in English.

The picture is scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 18, in the Louis Oakes Room of the Library.

Produced in Madrid at an estimated cost of $1,250,000, the two-hour and 20-minute film stars Rafael Rivelles as the estimable Don and Juan Calvo as the faithful long-suffering Sancho Panza.

Sixty Bucks But No Deer For Hunters From Aggie Faculty

Three members of the University faculty returned from a recent deer hunting trip to Washington County four wildcats and 60 dollars richer.

Arthur L. Deering, dean of the College of Agriculture, and George E. Lord and Richard F. Talbot, of the Extension Service, didn't down a deer. But they did have the satisfaction of ridding the area of four bobcats and collecting the 15 dollar bounty on each

Students Disagree On Coffee Question; Many Views Given

The proposed rise in the price of bookstore coffee next year has stirred up a minor tempest in a teapot. Students interviewed in a campus wide survey expressed opinions varying from indifference to violent reaction.

The question asked was "What is your opinion of the proposed rise in price of Bookstore coffee?"

Answers included:

Mary Belle Tufts, South Estabrooke—"Eight cents is too much for a cup of coffee."

Elizabeth Zaitlin, Colvin—"I don't think that they need to do that."

Bryant Hopkins, Dunn—"Robbery! I don't think that there's any excuse. There's no justification."

Dick Dennison, SAE—"I think it should be eight cents. It's about time, because they've been losing money at a nickel a cup."

Dick Buck, Phi Gamma Delta—"Revolution! The red star is coming to Maine."

Francis Noyes, Dunn—"I don't think that it's necessary. I don't see how it can cost them more than a few cents a cup to make it."

Bob Dagdigian, Theta Chi—"I think that's a gross prevarication of ideals. I'm going to start drinking tea or something that costs a nickel."

Charlie Brown, Lambda Chi—"The capitalists are trying to bleed the proletariat again. Come the revolution, there'll be less of this."

Edward Lawson, Off-campus—"Too D—high. 6 or 7 cents would be enough. To H—with them. I'm going to bring a thermos bottle."

George Morse, North Dorms—"I don't give a D—"

Christmas Vespers Program Attracts Capacity Audience

More than 3,000 persons jammed into Memorial Gym last Sunday afternoon for the annual Christmas Vespers program presented by the University Symphony Orchestra and Glee Club.

The program, one of the most impressive presentations of the year, was well attended by the public as well as the student body.

Outstanding parts were presented by Lila Zimmerman, who sang "Lullay My Liking," Emil E. Winter, the narrator, and the brass ensemble of seven members.

The Glee Club was under the direction of James G. Selwood, and A. Stanley Cayting was director of the Symphony Orchestra. Professor Lewis Niven conducted the brass ensemble and combined groups.

Employees Get Analysis Sheets

Members of the February and June graduating classes will be studied by more than 1,000 prospective employers through a "breakdown" sheet soon to be sent out by the University Student Aid and Placement Bureau.

The sheet lists the number of students who will graduate in each college, each course, and their degree, according to Philip J. Brockway, director of the bureau.

The purpose of the chart is to induce employers to consider members of the 1950 class for employment and, when possible, to come to the University to interview applicants.

Jo Josslyn Reigns Supreme As Newest Honorary Colonel

Jo Josslyn, a junior majoring in sociology, now reigns as the new Honorary Lieutenant Colonel of the University ROTC Corps.

Miss Josslyn, who won the honor over four other candidates after a general student vote, received the tiny gold cup symbolic of victory at the annual Military ball last Saturday night in the Memorial Gym. She succeeds Elaine Lockhart.

As Lieutenant-Colonel, Miss Josslyn will preside at a review in her honor to be held sometime next spring.

Other candidates for the honorary title were Jan Bannister, Genette MacNair, Pat Murphy, and Raema Shultz.

Al Corey and his twelve man band provided music for the annual event.

Guild To Stage First Christmas Day Broadcast

The first Christmas day program ever to be staged by the University Radio Guild, over WLBZ at 10:30 P.M., will feature a script entitled "A Merry Christmas," which will be directed by Gloria Noyes and Bill Messner.

The plot will be an interweaving of the Christmas story, with music furnished by Paul Payson and other students of the music department. The dramatic leads will be taken by Lois Murphy, Al Weymouth, and Jay Winter.

The Guild will start the new year off with a New Year's day broadcast, at 10:30 P.M. over WLBZ, which will include a round table discussion by members of the Maine Debating Council.

Chairman Leonard Minsky, George Brontas, Robert Moran, George Hershey, Donald Waring, and Howard Foley will discuss the current national debate topic—resolved: The United States should nationalize the basic non-agricultural industries. Al Weymouth, a varsity debater and president of the Guild, will direct the show, assisted by Martin Needham.

A satire on education by Marjorie Malloy entitled "The Saber Tooth Curriculum," based on the book of the same name, will be broadcast on January 8, 1950, at 10:30 P.M. over WLBZ. This will be followed by a discussion by members of the education department and students.

Jerry Mudge will be in charge of the controls for all broadcasts.

Mademoiselle Wyman

Marilyn Wyman, '51, has been re-appointed to the college board of Mademoiselle magazine as representative of the University. She is one of 850 appointees selected as Mademoiselle college reporters from a field of about 4,000 applicants.

Square Dances Will Ring Out In Gym Jan. 6

Old country songs will ring out in Memorial Gym on Jan. 6 to open a new year of fun and frolic for addicts of the square dance. Dancing will last from 8 until 11:30 p.m.

Dances will be called either by Al or Bob Brundage, known throughout southern New England as tops among callers. Al has been called by many "The Champion Caller of New England" while brother Bob is not far behind.

The whole Brundage family is well known in square dance circles, having its own orchestra, books, and records.

The wearing of barn-dance costumes is encouraged and Memorial Gym will take on a barnlike atmosphere.

Square dancing has been staging a come back in the United States in recent months and frequenters of the back-road dance pavilions can now swing out in grand style.

If you're not "in the know" on these tricky steps, you are asked to come to the dance anyway, as it will give you an excellent opportunity to learn.

Lines On A Sow's Ear

This week, in our letter column, we carry an anonymous letter. It is not the usual policy of the Campus to publish such letters, but this one is a choice example of several rather undesirable things.

In the first place, Prof. Vincent A. Hartgen does not own 51% of the stock in the Maine Campus. He does not own one per cent. He is, however, a live-wire department head. The exhibits and other work that his department has been doing this year have aroused a great deal of local interest, and from the standpoint of news, they are worthy of space in the Campus.

Mr. Hartgen is also progressively minded when it comes to publicity and cooperation with the press—which includes this paper. It is a pity for all persons connected in any way whatsoever with the University of Maine that the heads of all departments are not equally enlightened. Too many of them start running for cover when "newspaper" is mentioned.

One of the prime requisites in the elimination of ignorant, prejudiced thought which prompts such letters as the one in question, is a free flow of facts, ideas and information. It is the sincere wish of the Maine Campus that more department heads would crawl from their shells and stop quaking with fear over the printed word.

We go along with the fact that you can't "make a silk purse out of a sow's ear." No one is attempting to. Neither is anyone trying to make a "Culture Center out of a Kow Kollege."

As far as the "Kow Kollege" is concerned, we are not ashamed of the fact that the University of Maine has one of the finest Colleges of Agriculture in the country. We are not ashamed that every year this college graduates young men and women who go out into the world to work with the land in providing a fuller and more enjoyable life for all.

Also, we are not ashamed of the fact that students, faculty, and others on campus are taking interest in the exhibits arranged by the art department. We are not ashamed of all this, and we are not ashamed to say so.

We are, however, ashamed to say that there are those who read this paper who would compose such a letter as the one in question. It is emotional in basis with no validity whatsoever. It is the product of a mind which is one of two extremes. The writer is either intellectually immature with a resentment for all that is not familiar to him, or he is the possessor of a super-ego, a person who has set himself on a perch high above all others, looking down on them and sneering in his own, self-satisfying way.

This letter is typical of some that come in from time to time without the writer's name attached. The mere fact that the owner of these words did not sign his name invalidates his thoughts. Anonymous letters are a definite sign of personal, intellectual cowardice.

The letter came into the office on a penny postcard. The writer should have spent his money for a lollipop; it would have been more nearly in harmony with his reasoning capacity.

As for the adult population: Let's remember that a university, of all places, is no place to nurture fear of the printed word.

According To St. James

By DICK ST. JAMES

I found out the other day that Sludgey was back on campus after recovering from his recent illness. So I decided to look him up with the idea of finding some material for a column. I found him in his room with his feet propped up on his desk, gazing thoughtfully at the pin-ups on the wall!

When I entered the room, Sludgey got up and rushed forward to meet me. We exchanged salutations and playful rabbit punches, knocking each other out. When we regained consciousness a few minutes later, Sludgey bad me sit down and offered me one of his roommate's cigarettes.

"Well, how are you, old man?" I asked.

"Fine, how are you?"

"Fine, how are you?"

"Fine, how are you?"

The four of us sat down to a game of bridge and nothing could be heard for two hours but the bidding, shinking, and cursing. Finally Sludgey tore up the cards and broke the ice.

"Well, what do you want? I suppose you came around here looking for something for that crummy column of yours."

"As a matter of fact, you're right," I answered.

"Well, what do you want to know? Shoot," he said.

I took careful aim and fired, nick-ing him on the right shoulder. "What I want to know is, have you got any beefs this week?"

"No, sir, but we've got some lovely veal chops. Only 25 cents apiece."

"Fine. I'll take five and—No, no, Sludgey, not that kind of beef. You know, complaints."

"Oh, yeah. Sure I got a beef. I want to know where is the 1950 Prism? I've been waiting for it ever since early last summer. My folks want to see my picture in it. I want to see my picture in it. I had a profile done, you know. When we got back to school this fall they said have patience, you'll get your Prism in November. So here it is December and no Prism. I even lost money on the deal. I bet a guy that it would be out before the first issue of Pine Needle. I lost two bucks on that bet. I'm beginning to think that the 1951 Prism will be out before the 1950 Prism. That'll be a fine thing."

He threw himself on the floor, beat his fists against it and cried, "I want my Prism."

"Great Scott, man, get a grip on yourself," I said. "I can't print that, Sludgey. Someone might get sore."

He recovered suddenly. "O.K. Don't print it. Print this—Merry Christmas, everybody."

Then I left him. Merry Christmas, everybody.

Basketball coach "Doc" Rankin was noted on campus recently gazing enviously at a couple of tall pine trees. Seems where "Doc" comes from they grow their men that size instead of their trees.

A truly fortunate man is he who can be high on liquid assets Saturday night, and not feel any depression on Sunday morning.

Speaking of the Masque reminds us that they are in the process of going Willie Shakespeare one better. Did he ever produce "Much Ado About Nothing" in twentieth century dress?

Passing thought: If the interested parties in the "no finals for seniors question" were caught on the horns of a bull rather than on those of a dilemma, would they find it a bit easier to throw?

Russia has the atom bomb! Britain has devalued the pound! The steel strike is threatening to cripple the nation! But, the optimist finds solace in the fact that even after "The Flood" someone pulled the plug and drained the water off the world.

How many trips to Pat's must a guy make before his vision is multiple enough to see as many girls on the campus as there are men?

Seems to us that the Almighty did a much better job in the Garden of Eden than the Director of Admissions did at the University of Maine.

Too Much Art?

Editor's note: The following unsigned letter is commented on in this week's editorial column which will be found at the left on this page. It is not the usual policy of the Campus to publish anonymous letters. We hope Prof. Hartgen will forgive us for printing and commenting on this one. We do so only with the hope that a constructive purpose will be served, and that the letter-writer and any who share his views may be made to see the error of their ways.

To the Editor: Does Vince Hartgen own 51% of the stock in The Maine Campus? It would appear that some such situation exists if the space allotted his publicity is any indication. This year's issues of the Campus have been full of "Art," "Hartgen," "Exhibit," "Hartgen," etc., etc.—ad infinitum. You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear. Neither can you make a Culture Center out of a Kow Kollege merely by hammering away on those damn Art Exhibits in all the papers.

An Echo From Colby

To the Editor: Two items of error regarding Colby which I would call to your attention. Both have probably been mentioned to you already, but just for the record:

(1) Colby-Maine game score—13-12, not 12-6 as your story several weeks ago stated.

(2) Al Corey played at this year's Colby Week End (homecoming), not at the Winter Carnival last year. He should have played at the Winter Carnival last year, 'cause the COC hired Charlie Barnet and lost dough doing it!!

No harm done.

A Vote For Wax

To the Editor: After hearing the splendid performance of our glee clubs time and again, I cannot help wishing for a permanent record of their songs, especially our own college songs, such as the Stein Song and our beautiful University Hymn.

I am sure that they could be prepared in album form and find a ready market with the students and alumni.

Professor Sprague would at last be able to enjoy having his oft-repeated wish come true—that of having a recording of the Stein Song made as it should be sung.

Surely it wouldn't be a difficult task to make the recordings. Other colleges have record albums of their glee clubs for their students, alumni, and in fact all who wish to buy them.

If they ever plan to put our songs on wax, here is their first customer.

Credit Is Due

To the Editor: Undoubtedly through some oversight, the name of the person who did the painting of the nativity scene that was exhibited at the Vesper Service on Sunday was not made known.

I know for a fact that Bill Fogler of Sigma Chi spent a great many hours working at this sample of his deftness, and I thought that the rest of your readers would like to know.

University Society Spirals In Pre-Christmas Rush

Mistletoe Spirit Brings Parties, Santas And Toys

BY MARILYN HOYT

The campus ripped the whiskers off the old year last week end, refusing to let it slip away without a final college fling. Santa Clauses visited the fraternities, mistletoe was hung in convenient places in the girls' dorms, and the merry Christmas spirit waved its wand over the campus in general, infecting the students with yuletide cheer.

MARILYN

Alpha Gamma held its annual Woodchoppers Ball last Friday evening. The house was decorated to resemble the interior of a lumberman's hut.

Bunkbeds, sawing equipment, plaid blankets, and mackinaws lined the walls.

During intermission the woodchoppers were entertained by a minstrel show by the pledges.

Rumor has it that all the enlisted men gathered at Beta house for a military brawl, while the more elite officers danced off to the Memorial Gym, last Friday evening. Nonetheless, all kinds of happy crusaders showed up at Beta, dressed in uniforms ranging from Revolutionary War attire, to those of a Granger from the back woods.

Oscar Davis and a conglomeration of musicians cheered the downhearted warriors with a soul-stirring jam session.

Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, alias Charlie Brown and Jan Pettee, came early to Lambda Chi this year. But considering the occasion, a Christmas Party, and the time, Friday night, their presence was understandable.

The couples danced, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Edmond LeBrun, and were later entertained by pledges, Clem Thorne, Harold Buck, Tony Peterson, and Russ Sprague. Harry Henderson and Flutter Floyd did a dance for the group. Cliff Card headed the party committee.

Santa was good to the boys of Phi Mu Delta Sunday evening, as he visited their house in the person of Bob Rendall.

The group sang carols and laughed over the amusing poems attached to their gifts. Norman Ness, past president, gave a short talk and refreshments were served.

A Christmas party and panel discussion were held by the Foreign students last Wednesday evening in North Estabrooke. The party was sponsored by the Orono-Old Town branch of the Association of University Women.

Following the panel discussion, the group sang carols and enjoyed refreshments.

Those participating in the discussion were: Lawrence Evans, Remigio Appalo, Maung Htoo, Mogens Knochel, Nicole Moatti, Antonios Papadopoulos, and Artur Schoedel.

Over fifty active and alumni members of Alpha Omicron Pi gathered at Balentine last week to commemorate the sorority's Founder's Day with a tea and social program.

Pi Beta Phi played host to faculty members at its Christmas Vesper Tea last Sunday afternoon in North Estabrooke. President and Mrs. Arthur Hauck were present.

South Estabrooke had an informal Christmas vic dance Saturday evening following the Bowdoin game. The room was decorated with evergreens and wreaths.

Sigma Nu also held a Christmas party Friday night. The house was attractively decorated with pine. Halfway through the evening Santa Claus (Chuck Loranger this time) arrived with presents for everyone.

Christmas carols were sung and hot chocolate and sandwiches were served.

The chaperons were Mr. and Mrs. Jay Calkins and Mr. and Mrs. Barkley Goodrich.

The Chi Omega girls were out caroling Wednesday night. It sounded nice, girls. Merry Christmas to you, too!!

Tri Delt had a pine party Monday evening for its pledges. The various classes did skits for each other, sang Christmas songs, and gave gifts. Refreshments were served. Marilyn Drake was chairman of the party committee.

Theta Chi held a houseparty last Friday, beginning with a buffet supper, which was followed by dancing. Ray Downs and his orchestra supplied the music.

Bob Dagdigian, as Santa Claus, presented the girls with gifts. The house was attractively decorated with the yuletide theme in mind.

The M.O.C. also had a Christmas party at the Skating Cabin Sunday evening. The club ate spaghetti and sang carols.

John Stimpson and George Morse were in charge of the affair.

Pinned this week are:

Ann Dibblee, Elms, to Howard Bamford, Alpha Gamma; Betty Luce, Balentine to Dom Smyth, Theta Chi; Helen Pendleton, Colvin, to Gay Peary, Delta Tau; Marilyn McDonald, Hartford, Conn., to Horace McGowan, Beta; Skeeb Murray, Balentine, to Charlie Simpson, Beta; Sue Catrell, Portland, to Don Hodgkins, Beta; Jane Beggs, Mount Holyoke, to Harry Eastman, Beta.

Marion Nelson, Fort Fairfield, to Phil Reed, Beta; Sylvia Gabriel, Husson College, to Chester Kennedy, Sig Ep; Nancy Knowles, Balentine, to John Moore, Sig Ep; Joanne Potter, E.M.G.H., to Phil Spencer, Sigma Nu; Lynn Warren, Colvin, to Don Harmon, Sigma Nu.

Engaged are:

Gloria Tupper, North Estabrooke, to Jack Chaplain; Gwen Small, Balentine, to Cliff Tupper; Genene Painchaud, Lewiston, to Joe McGloflin.

Shakespeare Still Treads Board On Small Stevens Hall Stage

By AL MERSKY

The age of Shakespeare is still remembered in Stevens Hall.

Students may have noticed that miniature replica of a 17th Century stage in a Stevens classroom but probably without realizing that this structure of wood, plaster, and beaver-board has played a big role in the world of Shakespearean and Elizabethan literature.

The replica is of the Globe Theater of Shakespeare's Lord Chamberlain's Men, as his acting company was called. The first of its kind to be erected in this country, it was constructed in 1930 by Dr. G. William Small, professor of English, with the help of his Shakespearean drama class.

The small-scale model is a result of his claim that the 17th Century stage was rectangularly shaped instead of being of the narrow fronted wedge shaped type as popularly supposed.

In an article published in the 1935 edition of the Shakespeare Association Bulletin, Prof. Small, after extensive research, concluded that as "the majority of Shakespeare's scenes were enacted on the front stage" this would disqualify the practicability of the wedge-shaped stage due to the "unnecessary cramping and hindering of the action of the most frequently used portion of the stage."

Dr. Small also pointed out that the "clever repartee that forms a large part of each of Shakespeare's plays constantly brings the actors to the forestage so that the subtle points of the brilliant wit may be brought intimately to the greatest part of the audience, which of course was seated in the pit." This fact would also disprove the wedge stage, he maintained.

A colorful exhibit of modern Japanese prints is on view for the month of December in the print room of Carnegie Hall.

The collection includes studies of animals and birds, pictures of oriental gardens and houses, and many attractive landscapes. Quite a few of the prints, which range in price from $4 to $30, have already been bought by visitors to the gallery, but there are a number still available to interested students and faculty members.

Cannons Have Famous Spot In Naval History

Two of the most important eras of American naval history are represented in the two pairs of cannons which for the last 17 years have pointed their silent barrels towards the banks above the Stillwater river.

The war of 1812 is commemorated by the pair of 24-pounders from the U.S.S. Constitution resting on a concrete platform in front of Fernald Hall. Called "long guns," they enabled the 44 gun frigate to knock to pieces the British ships Guerriere and Java in that war which saw almost all American victories on the sea.

The two guns, which have a bore of six inches, are mounted on elm carriages with four solid wooden wheels. The cannonballs on the platform, however, will not fit the Constitution guns, being somewhat larger than the bore of the gun.

Beta Cannons

The cannons near the Beta tennis court recall the advent of the iron-clad warship. These 11-inch smoothbores were once mounted in the revolving turrets of those Monitor-type vessels which gained fame during the Civil War. Along with the rebel Merrimac these "cheeseboxes on rafts" marked the end of wooden hulled warships.

The smoothbores are now mounted on concrete carriages and are ringed by a circle of Civil War cannonballs and shells.

The years and students have left their marks on these monuments however. The concrete platforms have somewhat deteriorated and the paint on the Constitution guns is peeling. In addition some of the cannonballs and shells have been torn from the platforms to which they were attached.

Cannons Once Red

The worse humiliation the two pairs of cannons suffered was probably back in 1932 when the barrels of the Constitution were painted red by several students in a happy mood. During the war there was some talk of melting the guns for war use but that idea was quickly abandoned.

The four guns are the gift of Llewellyn N. Edwards, '98, a former state highway commissioner and a Philadelphia engineer. Offered to the University early in 1932, the gift was accepted by the Board of Trustees and the cannons were set up in their present positions in that same summer.

Maine Plays Host To Women Officials Of Eastern Maine

The Eastern Maine Board of Women's Athletic Officials sponsored a basketball clinic last Saturday afternoon at the Women's Gym.

Coaches of women's basketball teams, team players, officials, and others interested in women's basketball were present.

The purpose of the clinic was demonstration of the new rule changes that have taken place this year, and their interpretation. Members of the W.A.A. Officials Club, members of the Physical Education Department, and P. E. majors took part in the demonstration of the new limited dribble and fouls.

Following the demonstrations, a regular game was played to show officials the new techniques of officiating.

The demonstration ended with a question and discussion period.

Bear Facts

By JOHN MURPHY

Conditioning means a great deal in sports. Football takes a lot out of a man. Baseball does the same. Track does the same. And basketball is one of the fastest games of all.

We have one well-conditioned basketball team this year. With these words goes a deep bow in the direction of the good Doctor Rankin.

Doc has himself a basketball squad that needs give quarter to no man or no team when it comes to running up and down the basketball floor.

A prime example of this is big Charlie Goddard.

Last year, Charlie was in what could hardly be termed good physical condition. It takes a lot of energy to move a big boy like that around the court and Charlie just couldn't put out enough of it.

His stomach bothered him and his feet never strayed too far off the floor.

Offensively, the big pivotman was dropping them in and tapping them in. Defensively, he just wasn't there.

The notable change in Charlie this year has been the talk of the campus.

Charlie was a defensive whirlwind against both Colby and Bowdoin. He seemingly cleared every board during the two evenings. There was plenty of air beneath the Goddard feet when the rebound was in the Goddard hands.

With Charlie as improved defensively as he is, a lot of the load is taken off Al Hopkins. These two big men mean a lot to Maine as far as ball control goes.

When Charlie starts dropping them through the nets in his accustomed manner, Maine opponents are going to need two men on him. The still-embryonic Maine attack will be 10-plus points better then.

Even now, with the players still learning the complicated pass and cut system that Rankin uses, the attack really moves when it clicks.

Granted that so far it has been erratic and spasmodic, when the attack jells and Long Charles starts plopping them, look out, everyone.

Lowell Osgood has been another defensive standout for the Pale Blue in the three games played. He held Colby's Ted Shiro and Bowdoin's Dick Pandora well below double scoring figures. And he also provided the spark that downed Colby.

At the risk of being repetitious, let's have another look at the doormat situation. Where has the much-talked-about item gone.

Could it possibly be in use again at Mayflower Hill?

For variety's sake, a good word for Colby. Following last Thursday night's game between Colby and Maine, Mule coach Lee Williams stated that the crowd attitude in Memorial Gym was the best that his team had encountered thus far in the season.

He also added that player relationships between the two clubs were tops. Maybe the Bates affair was not a harbinger of things to come.

Bates pulled what ranks as the upset of the young season Saturday night at Colby by edging the Mules, 60 to 59.

The policy of all-home dual track meets will continue for at least two more winters, according to Ted Curtis, faculty manager of athletics.

Springfield, Northeastern, New Hampshire, and B.U. have been signed to two-year contracts for indoor meets here in the fieldhouse.

Ski Team Opens At Franconia This Week

Invitation Meet At Lake Placid Next On List

The University of Maine ski squad will open its season this week end when it meets squads from 16 other schools in the annual Franconia Ski Meet at Franconia, N. H.

Two weeks later, Coach Ted Curtis' team will travel to Lake Placid, New York, to participate in the first national invitational meet of the year. At Placid, the Bears will be matched against the toughest competition available with such squads as national champion Middlebury, Dartmouth, St. Lawrence, and McGill entered.

Names Tentative Lineup

Coach Curtis has announced a tentative lineup for the double-event Franconia affair. Acting Capt. Dave Newton, Dick Dwelley, Chuck Barr, Dick Hatch, and John MacDonald are entered in the cross-country event while Newton, Cahrlie Broomhall, Ted Hawkes, and John Hawley will carry the Pale Blue hopes in the giant slalom.

The Bears' coach emphasized that the men chosen were all veterans of last year's squad because he had not had an opportunity to try out the more than 50 new hopefuls.

Six-Event Contest

The Lake Placid Meet is a six-event contest with a limit of five men to each team. Several men on the present squad have had experience on the northern New York courses and are expected to make a good showing. Many of the colleges have Olympic skiers on their squads.

Crosby's Set Shot Makes Frosh Debut A Successful One

A last second set shot by guard Ray Crosby was just what the Maine frosh squad needed to give it a hard-fought 52-50 victory over the Maine Maritime Academy in the preliminary to the Bowdoin game Saturday.

The game, the yearlings' curtain-raiser, was a see-saw affair throughout with the Sailors taking a 23-17 lead at the half and Coach Hal Westerman's crew coming back to hold a 41-35 margin at the end of the third period.

It was the final canto that told the story, however. The Middies came roaring back to tie the count at 48-all with seconds remaining. Crosby put the Junior Bears ahead with a foul shot, and Small's two-pointer for Maritime reversed the situation. A Maine foul shot knotted things at 50-50, then came Crosby's climax toss.

Sutton, Crosby, Hackett, and Dana all stood out for the Frosh.

Women's Court League Will Resume On Jan. 3

Women's intramural basketball goes into its second week of play Tuesday, Jan. 3, when West Hall plays the Elms at 3:30 p.m. and South Estabrooke meets East Hall at 4:30 p.m.

The remainder of the schedule: Wednesday, North Estabrooke vs. East, 3:30; Balentine vs. South Estabrooke, 4:30. Thursday, Elms vs. Off-Campus, 3:30; Modern Dance Apprentices, 4:30. Friday, Elms vs. South Estabrooke, 3:30; West vs. Colvin, 4:30.

Red Hot Bears Take Early Lead

After one complete swing around the State Series circuit, Coach Rome Rankin's Pale Blue basketball squad is firmly entrenched in first place with three wins and no losses.

Last Thursday night at Memorial Gym, Maine proved that its win over Bates was no fluke by downing last season's champion Colby Mules, 40 to 34, with a strong second half drive. Sloppy First Half

Maine trailed 22 to 13, after a sloppily-played first half, when veteran guard Lowell Osgood pumped in three

Team	Won	Lost	For	Against
Maine	3	0	150	124
Colby	1	2	153	144
Bowdoin	1	2	169	172
Bates	1	2	151	173

quick baskets to put the Bears within shooting distance of Colby.

Charlie and Bert Goddard pulled Maine into a 25-25 tie after seven minutes of second-half play. Two foul shots and a basket by Bert again evened the score at 29-29.

Three baskets in succession by forward Vic Woodbrey put Maine out front, 35 to 29, a lead which the Bears never relinquished.

Saturday night against Bowdoin, it was Woodbrey again who paced the Bears to victory by a 59-52 score. His 19 points were tops for the night and also the top production for the young season.

Woodbrey Paces

Bowdoin scored 15 points in a row in the first half to go out front, 23 to 11, before the lanky Woodbrey hit with four straight field goals. Art Dentrement added four more points to leave the score Bowdoin 24, Maine 23, at the half.

Jack Christie scored four field goals to pace the Bears to a 45-29 lead in the second half. Bowdoin pulled up within four points at 54 to 50 but a foul shot and a basket by Charlie Goddard, a basket by Bert Goddard, and a basket by Woodbrey put the game on ice.

'Santa Clausers' Go Again Jan. 2

Things at the Pale Blue basketball camp are anything but pale blue these days, the only sad note resulting from the lay-off brought about by Christmas vacation.

The boys are right in the middle of a win streak, and they would like to be able to continue it, fearing that a two-week rest will slow them up.

Things are so bright, in fact, that Coach Rome Rankin has joined the firm believers in Santa Claus. He told his lads two weeks ago that the best Christmas present he could receive would be their winning their three pre-Christmas games.

Easter Bunnies Now

They won those games for him, making him join that crowd of Dec. 25 expectants. He said the only thing he needs now to make him believe in Easter Bunnies is for them to continue their win streak after Christmas.

The first opportunity the Black Bears will have to start converting the congenial "Doc" will be Monday night, Jan. 2, when they go against the University of Massachusetts for the third year. Game time is set for 8:15 p.m.

This battle, which comes the night before classes begin, promises to be a hard-played contest in view of the fact that the two teams have split the two games that they have played together.

Veterans Back

Last year the Redmen knocked-off Maine, 52-49, in a game which saw three members of this year's Statesmen team throw in 30 of the points. Those veterans back are Bob Johnston and Alex Norsky, guards, and Ed McCauley (who hasn't yet earned the title of "Easy Ed"), forward.

In preparation for this first game of 1950, the Men of Rome will return to the campus on Thursday, Dec. 29, to try to iron out some more of the wrinkles in Rankin's nationally famous system.

After the Monday night game, the Romans will work toward their southern New England tour against Connecticut, Rhode Island, and Northeastern, three teams who promise to give the Pale Blue a rough time.

Bigger And Better Carnival Set For Next Month

rides, the Ice Revue, the coronation of the king and queen, bus rides to Bald Mountain for the intramural and intercollegiate ski meets, an informal party in Carnegie Lounge following the Bowdoin-Maine basketball game on Saturday night, and the intramural hockey game. The programs, with tickets included, will be sold up to and through the Carnival week end.

The annual Intramural Athletic Association's Intramural Ball will be held on Friday evening, Jan. 13, in Memorial Gymnasium. Dick King's band from Boston will play for the affair and dancing will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. The ball will be formal and the admission will be four dollars a couple.

Simultaneously the Maine Outing Club will sponsor a semi-formal Snow Ball in the Women's Gym. The Maine Bears will play for this dance and the admission will be $1.50 per couple.

The whole set-up of the Carnival system was reorganized this year in part of the student body to realize an effort to make it bigger and better. The committee, with its various branches, has worked very hard for these ends and now needs only the support of the student body to realize them.

The Carnival king and the Ice Revue are only two of the new features added to the Carnival this year.
