Well-Balanced Track Team Wins State Meet Decisively For Third Consecutive Year

Jenkins-Coached Team Proves Strength At or not it would adopt a so-called "new campus adorned in its finest greenery, many old faculty members with which to Brunswick; Gowell Makes Sensational Heave Almost Equalling World's Discus Record

For the third time in as many years Maine showed its supremacy as leader of the "Little Four" in track, when its men came out of the Intercollegiate fray at Brunswick Saturday, with a total of 53 1-3 points. Bates was second with 40, followed by Bowdoin's 33 2-3 and Colby 8.

Gowell, captain of the Pale Blue, and Richardson put two State records out of reckoning in the discus and two mile events, respectively. Earl's mighty heave of 157 feet two inches beat the record by 11 feet held by "Duke" Charles of Bowdoin since 1925. Not only was the sensational toss a new State target at which his successors will shoot for many years, but it lacked only 6 feet, 21/2 inches of equalling the national intercollegiate record made by Eric Krenz of Stanford University, a record which will in all probability be accepted as a world's mark by the International Track and Field Federation at its meeting in Berlin, Germany, the latter part of this month.

As Gowell added feet instead of inches to the former mark in the discus so did Harry Richardson clip whole seconds rather than mere fractions from Ray Buker's time of eight year's standing for the two miles, when he literally ran Norm Whitten of Bates into the ground to breast the tape in 9 minutes, 35 4-5 Maine Masque And seconds. This clipped nine and twofifths seconds off the mark set by Buker back in 1922 and was but approximately the same interval shy of equalling the intercollegiate record for the distance.

The varsity baseball team returned last night from the most successful trip this year. Although they lost a close 3-1 game to New Hampshire, they squeezed out a 4-3 victory from Bowdoin and won a 10-8 batting spree from Bates, thus becoming the undisputed leaders of the state series by a comfortable margin.

At New Hampshire the game was close and fast. Hits were infrequent, but New Hampshire managed to come through in the pinches better than Maine. Maine tied New Hampshire's one-run lead in the first half of the fourth, but in the last half of this stanza Dunlap, who was pitching for the Wildcats, hit a single with two on and scored the runs which won the game.

Foster pitched a good game for Maine and received excellent support, as his team-mates did not make a single error. New Hampshire 0 0 1 2 0 0 0 0 0-3 000100000-1

The following day, Tuesday, dawned gray and rainy, and while at Bates the Colby-Bates game was called off for this reason, the officials at Brunswick decided to let Maine and Bowdoin play. The result was somewhat reminiscent of the recent 14-inning game which Maine won 4-3. Bowdoin tallied once in the second inning, and it was not until the sixth that Maine was able to tie the score. It was the erratic ninth, however, that decided the game. A squeeze play with men on second and third and Smith at bat worked to perfection, and two runs were scored while Smith went safely to first. He was forced out at second by Wescott, who then advanced on an error and scored on

> Perkins pitched one of the best games of his career, fanning 11 men and giving only 5 hits. Dwyer, Bowdoin's star catcher and batsman, stopped a foul ball with his bare hand in the ninth and injured it badly. He will probably be out for the rest of the season and his loss will be keenly felt by Bowdoin, although Smith, who is taking his place, is no novice at the game.

In the correspondence column of this issue, there is printed a letter from a person who undertakes to defend the selection of captains for the women's athletic teams of the University. The letter is slightly confused and is characterized by a lack of clear thinking and clear expression. Among other fallacious arguments the writer uses in support of captains elected by popular vote (at least, that is what the author seems to be talking about), is the argument that the majority is always right in its estimate of a person's worth and ability. Examples of the incorrectness of this idea will come to every person's mind. If it is absurd to say that the "affirmative vote of the majority is less just or sane than the responsible for this atrocity?" negative vote of four," we feel that many people could be charged with being absurd. Because a majority votes one way, it is not necessary that we accept the decision as gospel. The size of the vote on either side of a question has nothing to do with the correctness of that vote. If a vote were to be exactly even on both sides, both sides would be right -surely an anomalous situation.

The author evidently feels that popularity is closely tied up with innate worth-another weak point in the letter.

We fail to understand the sentence "Those winning the popular vote have been in a few more activities and have consequently shown up minor faults which those doing little have still kept hidden." The author implies that the All Maine Women are chosen by the nominating group from those who have shown no faults. Another interpretation that could rightfully be placed upon the sentence in question would be that the popular vote goes to the women who show the most minor faults. A logical inference would be that a woman who showed a major fault would automatically be elected an All Maine Woman or a captain of a woman's team, or whatever it is that the author of the letter is driving at.

All in all, we can see no point that the letter makes that is worthy of any serious treatment.

When, in last February, some final exams were stolen, the affair was regarded by many students as a joke on the faculty. Others, perhaps more thoughtful, viewed the matter as something to be ashamed of. be sung at the banquet, as well as that This latter viewpoint is the correct one. With the educational system constructed as it is, the emphasis being placed on the attaining of certain grades, the temptation to steal a final block Miss Bennett's prize-winning ode. or to crib in the exams is a strong one. Now, regardless of the correctness of the present system of evaluating a student's achievements, we petition with 600 other students, but must all recognize that we must play the game according to the rules Principal Willard objected to its use as laid down for the conduct of that game.

A man who steals an exam or cribs, inevitably weakens his moral song" tune. He compromised by allowfiber. Maine athletic teams always play the game fairly; why can't Maine students play fair in the examination room as well as on the athletic field?
