Chin and Chatter

DEAR ME

He used to hate the co-eds so,
He didn't like their style,
But that was then, and this is now And times have changed, meanwhile

A little lady has his pin
The boy-friend walks his mile The Twombly glare is turned into A sweet, cherubic smile

Those of us who read the Portland Press Herald with its story of the Bowdoin-Maine game know where we don't rate. Why don't they name it the Bowdoin Bugle and call it a day?

The public speaking department is, we feel, becoming a bit too frivolous. Evidence: we opened the door of 275 the other day just in time to hear the instructor say, quite playfully, "Now you put your hand on my diaphragm." Of course, it's all in the spirit of play, but is it quite dignified?

We can't remember where we heard this one:
"Flo was fond of Ebenezer.
Eb—for short, she called her beau.
Talk of tides of love? Great Caesar!
You should see them—Eb and Flo!

A surprising bit from a course in advanced comp—"As my brothers and I grew older, we began to notice the impotency of our parents."

(Authorship suspected but uncertain.)

String Randall sez—"You birds can take Beef, Iron and Wine for cold feet. But as for me—give me blankets, lotta blankets! I want so many that I have to keep a book-mark in between 'em so I can tell where to crawl in."

BED TIME STORY

Well, children! Our blonde Pollyanna has given us another big surprise. Great stuff! To show her interest in the good old team, and to prove that, though she was unable to be present, her spirit was with them—Pollyanna pulled a fast one. She sent a nice big telegram to all the little boys on the football team who went to play against the horrid polar bear.

A small riot ensued—when the boys fought to get the wire for their "M" books. It was badly torn due to the scramble but the pieces have been photographed and each member of the team is to get a snap shot for their album, together with a spirit photograph of the State Championship.

Dean Stevens Speaks On Armistice Program

An Armistice Day commemoration program was held at Chapel Tuesday morning in place of the regular Monday morning Assembly.

Dean Stevens, the speaker, described the appalling devastation of life and property resulting from war, and denounced military preparedness as being an instigation to warfare. He paid special tribute to President Harding who stood at the grave of the unknown soldier and, deeply touched, said, "This must not happen again." Dean Stevens also stated his objection to the use of a national anthem glorifying war in the time of peace and offered the lofty sentiments expressed by Katherine Lee Bates in "America, the Beautiful" as being more appropriate. His parting admonition was, "Remember that we are one among the great brotherhood of nations in the world."

"Unknown", a stirring selection by Bruce Barton, was given by Janet Young '33, and the University Chorus sang the "Recessional." The service ended with a bugler playing "Taps."

Masque Will Present Season's First Production To-night in Alumni Hall

MYRILLA GUILFOIL who has leading role in play

The Masque will present its first play of the season this evening at 7:30 in Alumni Hall.

This play is by far the most elaborate that the Masque has produced in some time.

The wall-paper has been carefully chosen to give an 18th century atmosphere. A black marble fire-place has done much to give the room a realistic touch. All in all, great care has been taken to make this set one of the best that the Masque has created. Mr. Bricker, who is assisting Professor Bailey in the presentation of the play has studied the eighteenth century stage, and has created the essential characteristics.

The costumes for the play have been rented from a Massachusetts firm, and are unusually correct and good-looking.
Miss Caroline Cousins is in charge of the costuming of the play.

The most interesting male role, that of the elder Hardcastle, will be played by Francis Ricker, who is well known in Masque circles and about the campus.
Last year he appeared in two Masque productions playing important parts in "The Swan," and "Escape," and is well qualified to take the lead in this presentation.

The leading feminine part, that of Miss Hardcastle, will be taken by Myrilla Guilfoil. She portrayed the Princess Maria Dominica in "The Swan," last year. In this play, however, her part is quite different, as she appears as the young and attractive girl around whom the love interest of the play is developed.

The part of Mrs. Hardcastle is to be taken by Ernestine Merrill, while John Longley is to play the part of Young Marlow, opposite Miss Guilfoil. This will be their first appearance in a Masque production.

University Audit Reveals Surplus For Year 1929-30

The following is taken from an Associated Press dispatch, and should prove of interest to Maine students and faculty.

"A surplus of $54,251 on June 30, 1930 as against a deficiency of $41,675 a year ago that date was shown in the annual report of the treasurer of the University of Maine, submitted to the Governor and Council by the standing committee on educational institutions.

"Income for the year was listed as $1,482,468 and expenses as $1,386,541.
Total assets of the University were given as $3,093,317. The Maine Agricultural Experiment Station balance sheet showed a surplus of $15,881 and assets of $220-120.

"The greatest expenditures were listed as $168,170 for the College of Arts and Sciences, and $131,408 for the College of Technology. Physical education for men and women cost $27,751 for the year.
Cooperative agriculture and home economics work cost $142,535.

"Important income to the University comprised $77,171 in state appropriations, $226,267 from the Federal government, $192,848 from student tuitions, $46,609 from investments and $246,572 from dormitories and miscellaneous sources.

Mishaps Plague Frosh As Auto Breaks Down

A rattle, a sudden bump, a crash, a burst of freshman laughter, and then she stopped. It happened in Bangor last Saturday night. She was only an old time Ford, but they thought she'd stay together until they reached their destination, which was Oak Hall. After hitting a bump in the road, and feeling the river settle down like a hen setting on an egg, the driver, a perfectly innocent freshman, looked up to see the rear wheel of his dearly beloved Tin-tin-tin go rolling past him.

Soon the police arrived on the scene, but only to aid the lads in securing help with which to remove their treasured vehicle from the highway. The situation was enlivened still further by a puddle of mud in which the co-pilot of the ill-fated craft stepped, the mud oozing over his ankles. And one could see that it was autumn, for as she was being towed to safety at a Bangor garage, the leaves began falling, until when she finally rested in the garage only one leaf was left in her front spring.

Girls' Hockey Team Plays Final Game With Connecticut

The final episode in the praiseworthy history of Women's Intercollegiate hockey at the U. of M. will be enacted Saturday, Nov. 15, at Storrs, Conn. when the varsity team meets the girls of Conn.
Agricultural School in a game that promises to be a thrilling contest.

The Connecticut team has been Maine's most formidable hockey rival for several years, yet the Maine girls can make the proud boast of never having been defeated by Connecticut. Last year the struggle ended in Maine's favor, 1-0, and it is expected that Connecticut on her own field will use this last opportunity in doing her utmost to brighten the black record chalked up against her.

The team will leave Bangor at 6:30 A.M. Friday and the game will be played off Saturday morning. The girls will then be entertained at Jewett City, Conn., by Mr. and Mrs. Richardson until Sunday when they will return to the campus.

Those selected to make the trip are:
"Stubby" Burrill, Polly Brown, Clara Richardson, Merrita Dunn, "Spud" Churchill, Emily Thompson, Marjorie Moulton, "Kay" Trickey, Grace Lemoine, Elinor West, Jean Kierstead,
"Ike" Montgomery, "Martie" Smith, Marian Carter.

Yale Presents 60 Books To History Department In Memory of Wm. Taft

Yale University has presented to the department of History and Government a collection of over sixty books in memory of the late William Howard Taft.
Eighteen volumes represent the completed portion of an Economic and Social History of the World War. This history will run over 200 volumes, in several languages. Twenty-five volumes in the Williamstown Institute of Politics series were received. These studies deal with International Relations and World Problems. Some of the more popular titles are:

1. Siegfried: France, a Study in Nationality. An interpretation of French politics by the brilliant author of America Comes of Age.
2. Cippico: Italy. Count Cippico says that Italy is "the central problem of the Mediterranean" and proceeds to give us in a hundred pages the origins of Italy's position and the present situation under Mussolini.
3. Wu: The Nationalist Program for China. A discussion of the aims of the Kuomintang at home and abroad.
4. Hoetzsch: Germany's Domestic and Foreign Policies. Hoetzsch is a Professor of History at the University of Berlin and a member of the Reichstag. His book explains the German Constitution, and why Germany seeks revision of the peace treaties.

Frosh Place First And Varsity Third In New Englands

Maine placed third in the N.E.I.C.A. cross country run held at Boston, Monday. Bates took first followed by New Hampshire. The freshman team took first place in their race, which is an advancement over last year when they had to be content with a fifth.

Gunning, in fourth place, was the first Maine man to finish. Bud Brooks crossed the line in eleventh position; Booth, 19; Mank, 23; Austin, 28.

Henry Hazen, of the University of New Hampshire, won the race, beating the time set by Lindsay and Richardson last year of 27 minutes 35 3-5 seconds by 7 2-5 seconds. Whitten, of Bates, was third. The faster time was due to the fact that Lindsay and Richardson had to go over three hurdles that were not on the course this year.

The scores: Bates, 32; N.H., 49; Maine, 85; M.I.T., 118; Conn. Aggies, 149; Holy Cross, 166; Rhode Island, 173; Northeastern, 177; B.U., 234.

The big cup, given by the sponsors of the race, is offered with the understanding the team winning it most often over a ten year period gains it permanently.
A peculiar situation has arisen, however, inasmuch as Bates gained its fourth victory Monday, when the ten year period expired, and Maine has also four triumphs to its credit. Williams lifted the cup in 1924 and New Hampshire in 1926, but the problem was whether Bates or Maine should be the recipient of the trophy. The association had not decided last night as to the course it should take.
Maine was in second place last year.

In the freshman race, Jackson and Earle, of Maine, took fourth and fifth places respectively, while Osgood was in eighth followed by Caswell, Crosby, Harvey, and Robbins. The scores: Maine, 49; N.H., 56; M.I.T., 86; Holy Cross, 126; Rhode Island, 130; Bates, 131; Northeastern, 172; M.A.C., 228.

Maine will enter the I.C. 4A at Van Cortlandt Park, New York, on Monday.
The same team will run. Bates will not be able to participate as her men have already run for three seasons, since they had not the freshman rule in force.

Physics Department Shows Instruments

The meteorological instruments recently purchased by the Physics Department have been put in place and connected to the recorder in the show window, just inside the door leading to the lecture room.
A drum is rotated by clock work once in six hours. Lines running lengthwise mark off five minute intervals. The right hand pen kicks sideways each time the wind has blown a full mile. In addition a buzzer located under the instrument sounds each time the wind has blown 1/60 of a mile. This enables one to tell the miles per hour the wind is blowing by merely counting the buzzes per minute. The other pen records the sunshine.
It is connected through the clock so that it is possible if the sun shines for the pen to kick each minute. This results in a wavy line being drawn while the sun shines. If rain comes on, the sunshine recorder fails because of lack of sunshine. This same pen is connected to the rain gauge on the roof and will give one kick for each 1/100 inch of rainfall. It

Intercollegiate Play-Day To Be Held Here Nov. 22

The Women's Athletic Association is sponsoring an intercollegiate play day on Nov. 22nd. If the weather permits an outdoor program will be followed. Hockey, tennis, and archery will be carried on in tournament form. There will be a picnic at noon on the banks of the Penobscoot, and a banquet will end the day's program. Twenty-four girls representing Bates, Colby, and the University of New Hampshire will arrive on Nov. 21st.
A short business meeting will be held that night at which time an attempt will be made to form a league of the four colleges. Each college will plan to have a play day once every three years. Play days of this type were held at New Hampshire two years ago and at Bates last year.

Two Co-eds Attend Y.W. Industrial Conference

Two delegates, "Frankie" Dean and Eulalie Collins went to the Y.W.C.A.
Industrial Conference held in Boston last week-end. Many industrial and Y groups were represented. Mr. A. J.
Muste of the Brookwood Labor College in New York was the main speaker.
The theme was "What part do we as people have in the economic life of today?" Mr. Muste spoke on "The Industrial Situation as I See It." He pointed out that from his observations, the reason for so much poverty and distress in the midst of plenty is due to overproduction. The masses of the people are not able to buy what they help to produce.
The unjust distribution of wealth is at the root of it all, so Mr. Muste declared.
As an incentive and aid for the other groups, the representatives of the different groups told what they had accomplished. A working girl present brought out the point that what the industrial girl wants most from the college girl is fellowship and study. There are many groups of industrial girls and college girls working together. From the practical point of view they are striving to better the conditions of the working girl.

TRYOUTS FOR PLAY

Tryouts are held today, tomorrow, and Saturday for the next Masque play, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

A fast and inspired Bowdoin eleven defeated the supposedly overwhelmingly superior Maine team at Whittier Field in the biggest upset of the State Series of 1930. Bowdoin outplayed Maine in every department, and seems to be heading back towards the heights of football prominence. It was Maine's first defeat at the hands of Bowdoin since 1921, and the first loss at Whittier Field in 21 years.

Maine received a serious setback at the very start of the game, when Sims fracted his right elbow in attempting to make the tackle after the kick-off. He was relieved by Wilson, whom Coach Brice had obviously intended to keep back until later in the game.

Maine had its first chance to score soon after, when a Bowdoin fumble was recovered by Romansky and two line plays, followed by a forward pass, put Maine dangerously near the Bowdoin goal. A forward pass was attempted on the next play, but it grounded in the end zone.
Bowdoin immediately retaliated with a sweeping 78-yard march, featured by Foster's, Ricker's, and Morrell's long end runs and line plunges; but Maine finally held for downs on its own 2-yard line. Bagley punted out of danger.

Later, in the same period, Bagley threw a long pass to Lamb, who was then on the Bowdoin 5-yard line. But Lamb was playing with a broken hand, and the ball slipped through his fingers and grounded in the end zone.

Bowdoin scored in the second period, after a spectacular 80-yard march, on a long forward from Foster to Souther.
Souther place kicked the goal. The second score came in the third period, start-

Real Political Battle Being Waged by Frosh For Class Presidency

A new wrinkle in class elections started on the campus a few weeks ago when a real, honest-to-goodness, presidential campaign for the presidency of the freshman class was inaugurated. So far the campaign has been a success for both campaign parties for at the primaries held Monday evening in Alumni Hall Willard Caswell and Robert Russ, the men for whom the campaigns have been waged, were nominated and will be voted upon in the final ballot next week.

Hannibal Hamlin and Oak Halls have been the battle ground for the thickest of the campaign, but it has been spread over the entire campus, and into Orono and Old Town. Following the path of modern presidential campaigns this one has taken the form of the "whispering campaign", and room to room canvassing is being done through the dormitories.

The platform on which the supporters of one of the candidates are taking their stand concerns freshman representation in the Student Senate, and they promise, if elected, to do all in their power to secure such representation. The other party points to the personal qualifications of their candidate, and feels quite confident that the election is already in their hands. Both parties are confident and show little evidence of worry or anxiety as to the outcome of the final election next week.

The Caswell supporters have gone to the extreme of drawing up an entire ticket, with a candidate for each office, and were quite pleased after the votes had been counted Monday night, to find that their entire ticket had been nominated. So far they have been more on the offensive than on the defensive side, and have campaigned more fervently than their opponents. Soap-box oratory may be used this week, the final period in which the battle will undoubtedly be hotter than it has been at any time before. We may also find campaigners bribing those members of the class who have taken no definite stand by offering them cigars if they will come over to the campaigner's side. This, of course, might not be used in winning the votes of the co-eds.

For some years the problem of supporting the bear has been a troublesome one. Various organizations have tried their hands at the job and have relinquished it to some other group. Now the Student Senate is burdened with the job and is finding the going just as hard as the other groups found it. The question must soon come up for settlement whether or not the students want a bear for a mascot. The latest drive held to sell blotters to support the bear was not successful and the Senate is in a quandary as to what to do with the animal. Some have suggested that it might be possible to hire a bear for any occasion that demanded one, but it is possible that this would not meet with the approval of the students for several reasons. It would reflect poorly on the spirit of the college, and it would savor too much of commercialism.

The whole question seems to boil down to this: The bear is admittedly a luxury, but is the student body willing to pay for the maintenance of this luxury? If not, the bear will in all probability pass into the discard. The alumni are reluctant to assume support of the bear, and the students are also unwilling. The Administration has stated that it will not consent to taxing the students for the support of the bear. So the conclusion seems inevitable that unless the students make some lasting arrangement for the keeping of the bear, that the bear will pass into the limbo of abandoned traditions.

The matter of the senior remembrance will come up for settlement at the class elections to be held next Wednesday. As far as can be ascertained at the present time, the senior class seems to be agreed that the class cane is due to be discarded in favor of something yet to be chosen.

There has been mention made in this column of the points in favor of a class ring as against the class cane. To recapitulate them briefly, the ring would be more constantly before the eyes of the members of the class, the custom would be more up-to-date, the ring would be "sui generis"—that is, it would be of a model designed especially for the class, and therefore would be different from the average run of class tokens. The cane, to review the weak points of this article, seldom is seen after it is placed in a closet after Commencement, very few men carry canes today, and the woman who carried one would be regarded as a curiosity; furthermore, the canes supplied at the price paid in the past were of poor quality. As a means of recalling undergraduate days, the cane is almost totally useless, because in the large majority of cases, it is never seen.

So then, the points mentioned above would seem to be conclusive in favor of the ring.

Provision will be made that the senior class ballots carry a place for a vote on this question. Those elected to the committee in charge of arranging for a class token will carry out the decision of the class on the matter. It is up to the Seniors now—are you content to buy a cane which is useless from the start, or do you prefer to buy something of lasting value?

CORRESPONDENCE Senate Accepts New Frat Council Rules

Editor of the Campus
Box 49, U. of M.

I would like to use the columns of the Campus as a means to call to the attention of the University and the students the unbalanced division of the fraternities into a Northern and a southern league.

In looking over the nominations for senior class officers it appears that out of approximately forty nominees, only two of the men come from fraternities in the Northern League. Since several of the strongest houses on the campus are located at this end, it would seem that there must be an unequal division of the houses.

The inequality is doubtless caused by the recent ruling of the trustees, whereby upperclass students who are not members of a fraternity can no longer live in the dormitory, but must find rooms elsewhere. This would cause a decided shift from the northern to the southern end of the campus.

This is a matter which I think should be acted on immediately, as it introduces many of the evil effects of politics into campus elections, and does not give fair representation to all.

Senate Accepts New Frat Council Rules

At the meeting of the Student Senate held Tuesday evening, the Interfraternity Council Rules were finally adopted after amending Article 2, Section 7. As the section reads in its adopted form, special students, two-year aggies and transfers may be pledged at any time, this provision to go into effect immediately. A committee was appointed to dispose of "Bananas," as the problem of supporting him has been given up by the Senate. Those on the committee are Gerry, Page, and Dickson. The sale of blotters to support the bear will net approximately only $55 or $60, it was announced by President O'Neil. This amount will be quite insufficient to keep the bear thru-out the winter and accordingly, the animal must be disposed of. Provisions for conducting the class elections were made and men appointed to supervise the balloting and to count the votes. President O'Neil appointed Bernard Schneider, secretary pro tem in the coming absence of the regular secretary, Holdridge, who is to go to the forestry camp shortly.

CHEMISTRY DEPARTMENT TO SHOW FILMS

Book Review

"The Waters Under the Earth"
By Martha Ostenso

The author of "Wild Geese," "The Dark Dawn" and "The Young May Moon," submits to the public's approval her latest novel "The Waters Under the Earth." Her previous novels have all been marked by splendid characterizations and in "The Waters Under the Earth," this remarkable gift of Miss Ostenso contributes much to the merit of the book.

It is a story of seven children and the destruction of their lives by their own father. Each characterization is separate, yet they all are unified and combine to form a complete and interesting story of family life. The theme is important as it illustrates the destruction caused by censorship and strict enforcement of a time worn code. Normal children with modern ideas contending with a god-fearing father who advocated eighteen century rules of conduct. This caused considerable conflict between them and led to the final destruction of their lives. Because they loved their father, they submitted to his bigoted ideas and thus were excluded from all happiness. The tragedy is that he never realizes it is he who wrought destruction in his children's lives. Whenever misfortune assails them, he accounts for it by the belief "Twas God's Will."

The novel is by far Martha Ostenso's best, and is the November choice of the Book League of America.

CHI OMEGA HOLDS INITIATION

Chi Omega sorority recently initiated Martha Smith and Margetta Dunn of the class of '33. Both are outstanding members of their class. Martha Smith is President of the Sophomore Eagles, a member of Nei Mathetai, and a varsity member of both the hockey and basketball teams. Margetta Dunn is an excellent hockey player, having been sent last summer to represent the University at a school in Pennsylvania.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

Professor O. S. Lutes, Dean of the School of Education has announced some new changes in this department. The Field of Concentration is very important. Instead of having a single major subject, the student may have a minimum of forty or fifty semester hours in a group of related subjects commonly taught in the secondary schools. In this way a student is better able to meet the needs of the typical high school situation. This work must be carried with a grade of C or better to qualify for a degree in Education.

The schools of Old Town and Orono have cooperated so that the student teachers may have a regular schedule of conferences with the critic teachers and with the instructor of the course in order to secure criticism and appraisal in relation both to individual and group activities. The course is nine weeks in duration, and carries a two-point credit for successful completion.

The school of education is prepared to render specialized services to Maine schools. The teacher placement is one of its important duties. Schools are welcome to call for teachers of secondary or junior high school subjects in case of temporary vacancies. Other types of services, however, such as educational and building surveys, help in planning local testing and remedial programs, consultation on approved financial practices and help on curricular and organization problems can be secured from this school.

This is only a brief summary of the work and changes of the School of Education. More detailed information may be obtained from the October issue of The Maine Bulletin, titled "Announcement of the School of Education, University of Maine, 1930-31."

ing with a sweeping 47-yard end run by Foster. A few short stabs followed, and Morrell plunged through center for 10 yards and a touchdown. Souther failed to kick the goal.

On the last play of the third period, Captain Horne was forced out with a knee injury. Horne had played a good game, and his loss was keenly felt during the last quarter.

Blockinger relieved the exhausted Bagley soon after the opening of the final quarter, and engineered Maine's only touchdown. This came as a result of a typical Maine march, in which Riley and Romansky were consistent ground-gainers. Riley was taken out of the game after being knocked out three times, and Romansky was relieved by Curtis after he had succeeded in placing the ball on the 5-yard line. Curtis made the required distance for the score in three attempts. Means kicked the goal.

With fully eight minutes to play, Maine supporters gathered new hope; but Bowdoin, fooled earlier in the game by a short kick, was on the watch for the one which followed and dropped on the ball near midfield. Maine had the ball but once during the remainder of the game, but Bowdoin soon regained it when Morrell intercepted a forward pass. The game ended with the ball on Maine's 2-yard line, just as another Bowdoin touchdown seemed inevitable.

Foster, Morrell, and Ricker all shone brilliantly for Bowdoin. These three men were able to gain almost at will; Morrell once made 75 yards in four consecutive tries. Captain Horne, Riley, Romansky, and Lewis were Maine's outstanding men. Lewis played the game of his life; when gains were made around his end it was only because he could not take out the interference and make the tackle at the same time.

It is difficult to lay the blame of Maine's defeat on any one or to individuals; the entire team seemed to be stale and lacking in pep. It was certainly not the same team that defeated Colby last week. Being a recognized favorite, it was too confident of winning.

Bowdoin, on the other hand, showed the dash and spirit that justifies all that was said about the Brunswick eleven earlier in the season.

In dormitories as well as in the gym ...beware of "ATHLETE'S FOOT"

THE man who's making his "M. A." as well as the man who's making the team—the fellow whose foot-work is from class to class as well as the bright boy who can foot it in 10 seconds flat—any one or all of them stand a good chance of having that ringworm infection commonly known as "Athlete's Foot." In fact, 50% of the men in universities as widely separated as those of Pennsylvania and California have caught it, according to authoritative reports. "At least half of all adults suffer from it at some time," according to the U. S. Public Health Service.

The symptoms vary, but all are traceable to one germ, tinea trichophyton by name. Sometimes it starts with redness between the toes and it-c-h-i-n-g. Again, tiny blisters appear; or it may show itself in a thick, moist skin condition; or dryness with little scales.

It lurks in the very places where we all go for cleanliness and health—on the edges of swimming pools and showers—in gymnasiums—on locker and dressing-room floors. In spite of modern sanitation (you have to boil socks 15 minutes to kill it) this fungus parasite infects and re-infects bare feet almost any time they come in contact with damp floors.

Absorbine Jr. kills the germ of "ATHLETE'S FOOT"

Tests in a famous New York "lab" have revealed that Absorbine Jr. penetrates flesh-like tissues deeply and that wherever it penetrates, it KILLS the ringworm germ.

It might not be a bad idea to examine your feet tonight. At the first signs of the symptoms mentioned, douse on Absorbine Jr. And keep a bottle handy in your locker as a preventive. Use it after every exposure of bare feet on damp floors. At all druggists—$1.25. W. F. Young, Inc., Springfield, Mass.

ical Development of Japan. Dr. Fujisawa's account includes a study of the character and achievements of three of Japan's leading statesmen, and a discussion of recent political history and Japanese relations with China, Korea and Russia.

Besides the two series above mentioned there are 19 miscellaneous works of a varied character. Three of these are noted below.

1. Vernadsky: Russia. In 337 pages Vernadsky relates in concise and readable manner the development of the Russian people in terms of geography and climate; of social, cultural and religious influences; the Mongol invasion; the expansion of the Russian Empire; the World War and the Revolution.

2. Davie: The Evolution of War. Professor Davie writes interestingly on the major motives for war, tracing their development in primitive society.

3. Joseph: Nationality. An arresting and challenging argument against internationalism. Mr. Joseph is firmly convinced that the only satisfactory and enduring basis of society is the complete recognition of the principle of nationality, and supports his thesis with a study of the origin and value of nationality. Language, religion, races, tradition, literature, are some of the elements which explain the strength of nationality in Europe, India and elsewhere today.
