Chin and Chatter

First, let's have the weekly psychology joke:

Professor: I am now going to drive this point home.

George: Can I ride along, too, please, Mister?

Then a bit from the Biblical department:

Question: When did Saint Paul sleep five in a bed?

Answer: When he slept with his forefathers.

Speaking of the Bible, we certainly agree that it is more blessed to give than to receive, at least as far as demerits go.

And continuing along the religious line, we would like to say that our moral sense received a distinct shock when the choir in one of our local churches rose last Sunday and sang for fully five minutes about a pair o' dice.

Corrupt forces are certainly at work on this campus, and they do not stop with humans, they even seek to ruin the livestock. Proof: Phil Brockway, M.C.A. man and potential preacher that he is, has actually taught 37 9-10% of the grey squirrels on campus to chew tobacco.

After her first visit to the Chateau, Kay Dick (freshette) admits the truth of the old maxim: "Big aches from little toe-corns grow."

Chinna recently got this letter from Chatta:

Dear Chatta:
Whoopie! Venimus, Vedimus, Vicimus. We had a perfectly gorgeous game and then it began to rain. Old Jude Pluve showed that he cared a wee bit for the Maine co-eds, because he didn't send the rain until after we finished the game. Or is it possible he was sympathizing with the Aggies?

We have been eating, talking, and sleeping ever since we arrived at Clara's. Marge and Merrita have grown so attached to breakfast food that they now sleep with shredded wheat. Watch them when they return to Balentine.

Ikie and Spud have turned Stoics. Miss Lengyel tucked them in a bed littered with wood and other such odds and ends and they actually stayed there (until the door closed).

The shades of night are falling so I am

Yours,
Chatta

Now that mid-semester ranks are in the air, let's keep in mind what the old colored preacher said: "God predestines man to be saved; the Devil predestines man to be damned; and the man has the casting vote." Our ranks, in other words, are on our own heads.

And don't eat too much turkey!

Senior Foresters Leave For 9 Weeks At Lumber Camp

Eighteen senior foresters left last Saturday for their winter camp, located near the town of Grindstone in northern Maine. Their work, under the supervision of Professor R. I. Ashman, will consist of careful study of lumber operations, silvicultural work, forest mensuration, and beard growing. The crew is expected back again after a sojourn of nine weeks. The following men are now on location:

Masque Presents Goldsmith's Play To Crowded House

Edward Berry Stars In Amusing Role Of Tony Lumpkin

Last Thursday evening in Alumni Hall the Maine Masque presented "She Stoops to Conquer" to an enthusiastic audience.

The mirth-provoking Tony Lumpkin, played by Edward Berry, the aspiring Mrs. Hardcastle, played by Ernestine Merrill, the jovial, self-centered Mr. Hardcastle, played by Francis Ricker, the sweet "Kate" Hardcastle, played by Myrilla Guilfoil, and all the rest made this comedy one of the finest that has been seen on the campus for a long time. The entire cast gave a professional touch to the acting of this most popular production with a great deal of credit going to Professors Bailey and Bricker who made it possible.

Edward Berry, as Tony Lumpkin, was the most outstanding of the cast. Berry played his part from the opening to the finale and it was his fine interpretation and portrayal of his part that kept the action moving along at a rapid rate. When not occupying the center of the stage, the audience waited with pleasant expectancy for his next appearance.

Mr. Berry was at his best in the scene at the alehouse. This scene was the one that tested and proved the high calibre of his acting during this production. Mr. Berry's interpretation and the fine acting of those who took part in this scene made it one of the most humorous in the play.

The parts of Mr. and Mrs. Hardcastle were taken by Francis Ricker and Ernestine Merrill. Mr. Ricker as the jovial and self-centered Mr. Hardcastle played his part in his usual capable manner. Miss Merrill, who made her first appearance as a Masque player, ably took the part of the temperamental and loquacious Mrs. Hardcastle whose greatest desire was social prestige.

The main romance centered about young Marlow, the egotistic and snobbish son of Sir Charles Marlow, a boyhood friend of Mr. Hardcastle, and Miss Hardcastle. Young Marlow was played by John Longley, a freshman, and Miss Hardcastle by Myrilla Guilfoil, an experienced player of the society.

The other romance which nearly culminated in a successful elopement, was between Hastings, close friend of young Marlow, played by Walter Hall, and Miss Nevill, a friend of Miss Hardcastle, played by Freda Crozier.

Girls' Varsity Hockey Team Wins Final Game From Connecticut, 6-3

The Maine Varsity Hockey team completed a successful season by defeating the Connecticut Aggies 6-3 on the Connecticut field at Storrs, Saturday, November 15.

The game was played in a drizzling rain which threatened to break into a shower any minute; but even rain could not dampen the spirits of the Maine girls. Four goals were made in the first half, two by Stubby Burrill and two by Polly Brown. Connecticut scored one goal during this half.

The Connecticut team came back for the second half with more fight. During this period Connecticut scored twice and Stubby Burrill made two more goals, keeping Maine three points ahead.

This half was much faster and Maine had to do some real fighting to keep the Aggie girls from rolling up a score. Montgomery substituted for Kierstead and Carter for Trickey during the second half.

The Maine team was lighter and faster than Connecticut, although Connecticut had some very heavy hitters, notably one called "Dynamite," who drove the ball the length of the field with careful aim and great speed.

Connecticut played a very fine game, but did not keep their formation, nor have the team work that distinguished the Maine girls. The Connecticut lassies were easily winded and at one time one girl, needing a rest so badly, sat down on the ball for a while, but got up when prodding became too vigorous.

Letter From Ex-Track Man Stresses Great Need Of Candidates For Team

The following letter was received at about the same time that Coach Jenkins gave his views of the situation that exists on the track team, and supports the statement of Coach Jenkins that men are badly needed in this line of activity.

Editor of the Campus,
Dear Sir:

This letter is intended for the reading of every able-bodied Maine man. It is the culmination of the unpublished feelings of one who has participated in athletics at the University of Maine and one who is closely in touch with the athletic situation, whether football, baseball, or track.

Maine has been fortunate in athletics during the past five years. There have been outstanding football teams, there has been a State Championship baseball team, and Maine has achieved a remarkable position in New England track circles thru her four straight titles over eighteen other institutions. Hard work, superior coaching, and faithful training have given Maine a "place in the sun." Credit and praise to those men who made it possible!

Many Maine alumni of the past five years know how these things came about. No "stars" flocked to Orono from leading prep schools; no extensive scouting was done by alumni and Maine followers to send up brilliant freshmen for athletic purposes. Maine developed the men whom she found in her midst. One year every boy on the football team was from within the State of Maine. "Bud" Lindsay never actually ran in competition before he entered Maine in the fall of 1926; he left four years later, Intercollegiate Cross-Country record-holder of United States! "Bill" Gowell never had a discus in his hand until March of his sophomore year, yet in two years there were only two men in the world who had ever thrown it farther than Bill's 159 foot mark of last Spring. Time was when Maine men came out for sports without experience, and came out in large numbers. Some came just for exercise; others figured that they would have a chance to be "up there" after a couple of years. Group spirit and faithful practice by many reaped its deserved reward.

The class of 1934 has caught this former spark. Their football squad was large and held its numbers. The cross-country boys have built up a scrappy, cocky little team which would take off its hat to no one in New England a week ago. Not much experience, but a lot of hard work has characterized the class of 1934.

Maine needs men for track this winter and more men in the Spring. Maine can keep her track reputation as high as ever if she has good material out. Fifteen different events for a man to choose from; surely there is a place for the fellow who goes after it. With indoor track facilities second to none in the country, it is often pitiful to see how few are utilizing them.

The Christmas Handicap will come the second week in December. Several years ago it was the high-light of indoor track before the Bates meet. It should be this year. Coach Jenkins needs men, but he can't drag them over or tease them to come out. For exercise, or what you will, let's see a real turn-out for track. Bates will bring a strong team here at the end of February. Let's stop this Bobcat clean-up by a band of track men that will warn Bates of what is going to happen at the State Meet here next Spring!

Sincerely yours,
A Member of the 1928
Track Team

Debaters Form League With Other N.E. Colleges Bricker Elected Head

The debating season at the University of Maine will get underway next Monday at 4:15, when all candidates, both men and women, varsity and freshmen, will hold a meeting in room 235, Arts and Sciences building. Professor Herschel Bricker, coach of the Maine debating teams will be in charge, and will outline to the prospective debaters the program for the year.

The schedule this year is expected to be more extensive than formerly. A new debating league, including five New England colleges, was recently formed at a conference held at the Parker House in Boston, and debates will be held with each of the other colleges in this league. There is also a possibility that other colleges will join before the beginning of the debating season. Professor Bricker was elected president of this league, which includes in addition to the University of Maine, the University of New Hampshire, Colby College, Emerson College, and the Connecticut Agricultural College. It will include both men's and women's teams, with the first debates beginning in about a month.

The subject for debates in this league will be, "Resolved, that the state should enact legislation providing for compulsory..."

Forestry Department Planning A New Camp For Senior Foresters

The Forestry Department of the University of Maine is at present planning to construct a permanent forestry camp near the towns of Princeton and Waite, to be occupied by the forestry students during the last half of their first senior year semester. This has been made possible by a gift of $1000 from Curtis M. Hutchins, a former post graduate student of the University. The gift was made with the provision that the University add at least a similar amount.

Construction on the camp will begin next spring, and will be ready for the occupation of the foresters of the class of '32.

The camp will be built on state land, under the charge of Forest Commissioner Neil L. Violette, and will assist in the development of permanent management of the township in which it is located.

Four of those who received numerals played in every period of every game. These men were Donald Favor, Robert Hill, Carleton Davis, and Chester Marson.

Indoor Vaulting Pit In Gym Being Rebuilt

The wooden floor for Intramural basketball is now being laid in the Memorial Gym and the chances are that the teams will soon be practicing on it in preparation for the coming season. Eleven men have been working on it the past few days and all is completed except that the bleachers have not been erected.

The pole-vaulting pit in the indoor gym is being rebuilt completely. The canvas supporting the saw-dust has been taken out, and the loose logs that supported the canvas have also been removed because they have decayed. Those in charge of the rebuilding of the pit are desirous of putting in cedar poles in place of the birch sticks formerly in the pit, because cedar is less susceptible to moisture than is birch.

NOTICE

There will be no issue of the Campus next Thursday, Thanksgiving Day.

Varsity Harriers Place 6th, Frosh 5th, In Nationals

Gunning Finishes 8th In Varsity Race To Lead Maine Pack

The Maine Cross-Country varsity team placed sixth with a team score of 187 and the freshman team placed fifth with a total of 133 in the Intercollegiate Cross-Country run held Monday at Van Cortlandt Park in New York City. The Maine men finished in the following places, order and time in the varsity race: Everett A. Gunning, 8th, 31:10; Bud Brooks, 32nd, 32:08; Harry Booth, 45th, 32:44; R. E. Austin, 47th, 32:47; Jim Fuller, 63rd, 33:33; R. E. Pendleton, 66th, 33:43; Steve Mank, 73rd, 33:56.

In the freshman race, the Maine cubs finishing for fifth place in the team totals, placed these men in the following positions with the time noted: Laurence B. Jackson, 18th, 15:45; Theodore Earl, 21st, 15:50; George Osgood, 26th, 16:03; Irving Harvey, 36th, 16:16; Paul Robbins, 37th, 16:17; Alfred Adams, 47th, 16:28; William Caswell, 61st, 16:46.

The time of the winning man in the varsity race was 30:19½, a figure 13 seconds slower than the figure of 30:06 set by Lindsay and Richardson in their tie for first last year in this event. The six-mile course was a sea of mud which hindered the runners to a great extent. The scores of the teams in the varsity race that placed ahead of Maine were Penn State, 29; Syracuse, 67; Harvard, 98; N.Y.U., 107; Cornell, 167; Maine, 187.

Jenkins Urges Men Go Out For Track; Many Events Open

In line with the letter printed in an adjoining column, a Campus representative interviewed Coach Jenkins on the subject and found that the need for men to come out for track is great. As evidence of the need is the fact that out of the men on the track squad who won points in the New England last season, the only one who will be in competition next Spring will be Raymo White. White placed third in the hundred yard dash and earned two points by so doing. There are only four men left of those who won points in the state meet held at Bowdoin last Spring. These men are White in the sprints, Ev Gunning in the two-mile run, Norm Webber in the shot-put, Curtis in the discus, and Bill Jensen in the javelin.

COACH JENKINS

Coach Jenkins, in the interview, stated that those men who come out for track now will stand a good chance when the season actually opens, for they can spend the remainder of the Fall and all Winter in learning the fundamentals of their events, then, when conditions are such that outdoor work is possible, the candidates can devote their time to polishing up their style and trying to better their achievements in their chosen event. Coach Jenkins pointed out that because of the dearth of men, any man coming out for track now would have fifteen events to choose from and surely would be able to find one for which he was suited. Coach Jenkins also stressed the fact that the team would of necessity have to be one that would get most of its points in second and third places—the test of a well-balanced team. By having a large number of men to choose from, the coach will be able to build up a strong aggregation that will make its

After the final election has been made,

In this issue of the Campus, we are glad to print a letter from a member of the track squad at the University of Maine during the season of 1928. A letter of this nature should be taken to heart by those to whom it is addressed. The writer is desirous that the track team develop to the point where it can decisively trim Bates as it has in years past—a feeling that should meet with the approval of the entire student body. But, although the students may agree that Bates should be beaten, very few are willing to get out and do anything about it. This is no new phenomenon—the indifference of college students is too well known to need comment. Perhaps it would be well to call a spade a spade and attribute the lack of interest to "laziness". For this there is only one remedy—a little interest and pride in the Maine track teams of the past few years. If each fraternity house were to see that as many men as possible went out for track, it would help immensely, and would raise the standards that could be set for the talent required to secure a place on the team.

Perhaps if some of those with athletic possibilities could see the latest copy of the Bates "Student", with its rhetorical splurges about the Bates football and cross-country teams and their newly-acquired championships, they would feel the desire to stop the career of the Lewiston collegians toward a clean sweep in all the intercollegiate sports in the state.

This year, there will be no outstanding stars on the Maine track team, who will win meets by their own efforts—rather, the team will have to be a well-balanced unit, capable of getting points in all events. The only way in which a team of this kind can be developed is by constant practice and work. It follows that individuals will perhaps stand a better chance of not being overshadowed by star performers. But a large number of men are needed to develop a team that is fairly well represented in all events, rather than a team that wins meets on the efforts of individual stars. Coach Jenkins would like nothing better than to be rushed off his feet by a crowd of men coming out for track.

The restricting of the number of those attending the Military Hop is a commendable step. As was pointed out in this column last Spring, formal dances in Alumni Hall are, as a rule, too well attended. With fraternity booths encroaching on the none-too-large hall-space, there has always been congestion at formal dances in Alumni.

It is probable that conditions will be changed if those running the dance persist in their intention and actually admit only two hundred couples.

We hope that the attendance will be held rigidly to the established figure, and that those without tickets will be refused admission to the dance.

The experiment will be watched with interest by those who will be running dances in the hall on other occasions.

Book Review

"The Gospel for Main Street"

By Charles R. Brown

Charles R. Brown, Dean Emeritus of the Divinity School of Yale University, has written a book on present day religion in the language of the layman. His principal object in writing this work is to give to the public a book on religion as the majority of people consider it today, and in a language that college student, business man, and day laborer may equally understand. Needless to say, Dean Brown has accomplished the task for which he set himself and has done so in an admirable fashion.

The book begins with the story of Simon the Pharisee and the woman with the box of ointment and their experience with Jesus. The former represents the upper part of Main Street, and the latter the lower. Jesus brings the two together and his influence causes them both to change for the better. The story is applicable to our times—the upper part of Main Street is the overbearing and intolerant attitude of the present day "religionists" toward their lax and undisciplined brethren.

The author strikes at the industrial system of our day and shows the foibles and shortcomings of the various classes. "The Gospel for Main Street" is a book which will find its way to many readers, because it brings to the average man his religion and what it really means.

PROF. PERHAC TALKS ON VIRGIL

Professor Perhac of the Latin department gave a very interesting speech on Wednesday afternoon at General Lecture on the Life of Virgil.

Publius Vergilius Marco was born in the district of Andes near Mantua in Cisalpine Gaul October 15, 70 B.C. He was the son of humble parents. At first his father was a public courier but he later devoted his life to raising bees.

Virgil studied at Cremona. Then at the age of twelve his father sent him to the more advanced school of Milan and finally to Rome.

He attempted a lawyer's career, but, being slow of speech, he gave up the attempt and devoted his life to the study of poetry, and became one of the greatest poets that ever lived.

Virgil wrote several minor poems of no importance. His greater poems were the "Eclogues"—a selection of pastoral poems, and the "Georgics"—a collection of poems on agriculture with which Virgil attempted to rekindle the old love of agriculture by placing farming on a level worthy of poetical treatment. Virgil's greatest work was the "Aeneid." This poem won for Virgil immortal fame; it is considered perhaps the greatest epic poem that human genius has ever composed. In this poem Virgil gives the account of the wanderings of Aeneas, the hero of the poem, who later becomes the founder of Rome.

More than ten years were spent upon the composition of the Aeneid, but in the poet's judgment it was still unfinished; he left instructions in his will to burn the poem, but Augustus forbade them to do so, and ordered it to be published just as he had left it.

Virgil died at the age of fifty-one—19 B.C., and was buried at Naples. The two-thousandth anniversary of his birth is being celebrated throughout the world this year.

VARSITY RIFLE TEAM TO HAVE BUSY SEASON

The Varsity Rifle Team will represent the University in matches held with colleges and universities over the entire United States, under conditions one hundred percent better than in previous years.

The Indoor Range, situated in the Armory, has been completely remodeled. In place of the high, awkward benches previously found at the firing points, a low box has been constructed and filled with a suitable mixture of sand and loam. A canvas covering serves to hold the latter in place. The butts on which the targets rest have been entirely overhauled, a new set of steel plates put in place, and a battery of lights installed so that each target receives the benefit of four fifty-watt bulbs, two from above and two from below.

Charles Daniels and Robert Vickery are acting Captain and Manager respectively of the team which will number not more than thirty men, selected from the three upper classes. Although the majority of the matches do not come until January, 1931, the team begins practice Friday afternoon, November 21st. Captain Andrew J. McFarland of the Military Department will act as varsity coach during the ensuing year.

The partially completed schedule of 31 intercollegiate matches includes matches with the following institutions:

Jan. 10 Cornell University, Mississippi Aggies, New York University
Jan. 17 Georgetown University, Penn. State College, University of Dayton, John Hopkins University
Jan. 24 Carnegie Tech., North Carolina State College, University of Washington
Jan. 31 University of New Hampshire, University of Wyoming, United States Military Academy
Feb. 7 Michigan State College, University of Kentucky
Feb. 14 University of Delaware, Oregon Aggies, University of Cincinnati
Feb. 21 Lafayette College, Ohio State University
Feb. 17 De Pauw University
Feb. 28 State University of Iowa, Rose Polytechnic Institute
Mar. 7 University of Michigan, South Carolina Presbyterian College, New Mexico Aggies
Mar. 14 University of Tennessee, Oklahoma Aggies, Texas A and M College
Mar. 21 University of California, University of Idaho

Besides competing in the above matches the University will enter two five-man teams in the National R.O.T.C. Rifle Matches to be fired during February, and one ten-man team in the First Corps Area Intercollegiate Matches to be fired during January and February, 1931.

NOTICE

Boxing candidates are to report for the beginning of the season on Monday, Nov. 24 and Wednesday, Nov. 26, to Louis Asali, in Alumni Hall gym during the 7th and 8th hours.

BARKER TO SPEAK IN CHAPEL

Dr. Charles E. Barker will be the assembly speaker on Monday, December 1, when he will speak to the entire student body on the subject "How to Make the Most out of Life." He will speak in the Gymnasium.

At 1:30 he will address the men in the Gymnasium and at 3:20 will speak to the women in the Chapel.

Dr. Barker spoke at the University several years ago and made a great impression on the student body. He is a very interesting speaker and has the faculty of putting his message across.

TOUCH FOOTBALL RESULTS

In the past week Kappa Sigma won the intramural touch football series by winning a pair of tilts, one from Beta and the other from Lambda Chi, by the respective scores of 12-0 and 6-2. Kappa Sigma easily took the Beta game by scoring twice. The first touchdown came as a result of a long forward pass, and the other by intercepting a forward pass. The Lambda Chi game, however, was more evenly contested. Kappa Sigma was led in this game by a 2-0 score until the last three minutes of play. Lambda Chi made their score by recovering a fumble caused by a bad pass from center. Kappa Sigma scored when Raymo White ran around the end for a touchdown. This game ends the touch football series for this season.

NOTICE

There will be a smoker given tonight, Thursday, for engineering students of the University. The smoker will be held in Alumni Hall at 7:00 and the various Technical clubs will put on entertainments.

Freshmen are particularly invited to attend.

ENTERTAIN AT BRIDGE

Miss Doris Gross and Amy Adams entertained at a bridge party, Friday, November 14, at Balentine Hall. Refreshments consisting of sandwiches and punch were served. The guests were Helen Moore, Adrienne Bedelle, Dr. Frederick Guerin, Irvin Mason, Ermo Scott, and Galen Veayo.

SIGMA NU INFORMAL

NORTH HALL TEA

A very delightful tea was held at North Hall, Saturday afternoon from three to five for the patronesses of Phi Mu, Mrs. Hart, Mrs. Fielder, Mrs. Huddleston, Mrs. Wear and Mrs. Parker. The sorority colors, rose and white, were attractively carried out in decorations and refreshments. Many delegates were present from other sororities. There were also a large number of matrons who attended.

Tuesday night the Y.W. had a meeting at which Dr. Drummond spoke on "Student Life in Germany." He told many interesting features of German student and faculty life. Dr. Drummond stressed the fact that the German student has almost complete freedom. He can take as many or as few subjects when and how he pleases. He arranges his own schedule and takes no examinations until he feels that his university days are over and that he has covered his field.

"Migration," which means a transferring from one college to another, is common among German students. If one feels he wishes to study some subject under four or six outstanding scholars he goes to the various universities to find those professors.

The German student is not bound by rules or conventionalisms. He can speak or say what he wishes about anything and can be discharged from his university only for very important reasons. On the whole the German student is more serious and displays keen interest in all elections.

The meeting closed with a piano solo by Grace Quarrington, '33.

BALENTINE DINNER

A formal dinner was held in Balentine Hall, Wednesday evening, November 19, with the following faculty members as guests: Dean and Mrs. James S. Stevens, Dean and Mrs. George D. Chase, James A. Gannett, Mrs. J. C. Gannett, Miss Helen Lengyel, Miss Ava W. Chadbourne, Dean Achsa Bean and Miss Hazel Parks.

Decorations were in green and yellow, with chrysanthemums on each table. The committee in charge was Elizabeth Livingston, Ellen Wareham, Jessie Fraser, Grace Quarrington and Melba Gifford.

PHYSICS CLUB MEETING

The semi-monthly meeting of the Physics Club was held last Wednesday at 204 Aubert Hall. The president, Otto Pasanen, gave an illustrated talk on "The Fifteen Mile Hydro-Electric Development in Vermont." The talk proved to be exceptionally interesting and enlightening.

At the close of the talk, Doctor Fitch proceeded to answer the questions left by students in the club's question box.

Dean Stevens has been secured to speak at the next meeting of the club, which will be held Tuesday, Nov. 25. His subject will be "The Follies of Science." All students are welcome, and urged to attend.

SCREEN

Anybody who thinks that eyes or lips are important to a beautiful girl is barking up the wrong tree, according to Florenz Ziegfeld, world-famous glorifier of the American girl, whose first venture into motion pictures is represented by "Whoopie," starring Eddie Cantor, which comes to the Strand theatre on Nov. 26-27. This picture, produced by Samuel Goldwyn from the stage musical smash of the same name brings to the screen for the first time the results of Mr. Ziegfeld's connoisseurship of feminine beauty.

And according to him, noses are the most important considerations in beauty. "Eyes, hair, complexion and figure she must have, of course," he says, speaking of the ideal beauty, "A beautiful mouth is not absolutely necessary, but her chin is second in importance to her nose. A girl may have all the other things that make for beauty, but she must have a good nose before she may be called beautiful. I think we naturally look at other persons' noses first."

Good legs are important too, he thinks, but in this day of longer skirts, the importance they had two or three years ago is on the wane. For anyone who is going to do stage dancing, an excellent figure cannot be dispensed with.

One of the greatest assemblies of feminine beauty ever seen was gathered together for this Goldwyn-Ziegfeld production of "Whoopie." Five thousand applicants were interviewed, comprising the prize beauties of Hollywood and New York, the centers of beauty in a nation known the world over for beautiful women. The combined expertness of

MAINE ALUMNUS IN INTERESTING RESEARCH

The Bell Telephone Company has published a piece of research by Norman R. French and two others in collaboration on Words and Sounds of Telephone Conversations. This work should have considerable linguistic and phonetic interest. The authors have listed the words used in various telephone conversations, using, for example, 500 for nouns, 500 for verbs, and 500 for adjectives and adverbs. They have counted the number of different words used and compared these with the corresponding number used in written English as compiled by Godfrey Dewey. A list of the common words used in these conversations is tabulated showing the number of times each occurs. These words are then compared with the frequency of their use in written English. The words are also classified with reference to their origin from Latin or Anglo-Saxon sources. An important part of the investigations is devoted to the subject of sounds in which the varieties of pronunciation used in the same word by people in the different sections of the country are noted. The three authors come from Maine, Illinois, and New Jersey, and have done their college and university work at Maine, Princeton, Harvard, Oxford, and New York University. Mr. French is an alumnus of the University of Maine in the class of 1914, with major work in Physics, in which department he also took his Master's degree. After serving as instructor in the department at Maine, he took a similar position at Princeton, and then left the teaching field for research work with the Bell Telephone Company.

Samuel Goldwyn and Florenz Ziegfeld was a guarantee of infallible selection.

STEPPING INTO A MODERN WORLD

It looms up large in their lives

The telephone has a big place in the daily lives of most people today, but its place will be even bigger tomorrow.

Its importance has been fostered by the work of men in all phases of the telephone business and no little part has been taken by those engaged in selling. They have helped to effect an increase of more than three and a half million Bell telephones in the last five years. In the same period they have been instrumental in making the public realize more completely the telephone's usefulness. Result: an increase from 49,000,000 calls per day to 65,000,000.

For men with a leaning toward sales promotion, the opportunity is there!

STEEL under the microscope

Burnished mirror-bright, etched in an acid-bath, a shiny square of steel is placed in the projector microscope in the metallography room at Crane laboratories.

To the layman, the texture disclosed is surprising as the filigree design of magnified snowflakes. Sometimes it is like a relief map of mountain ranges, sometimes like finely veined marble, sometimes like cumulous clouds.

But to the scientist in metals who judges it with a connoisseur's eye, the surface tells a far wider story. It discloses coarse uneven or beautiful fine grains, tells of disproportions and proportions of constituents in the alloy, speaks volumes concerning malleability, ductility, hardness . . . gives a key to action of the metal in service, all based upon knowledge of the product.

Careful metallographic records of all metals used in Crane valves and fittings, painstaking microscopic examination of all new metals offered for possible use, are a part of the check and double check and triple check which is routine in Crane research and manufacturing.

The full story of Crane application of chemistry and science to metals is told in a fascinating book, "Pioneering in Science." It is a valuable reference book for students. Let us send you one.

John Longley, making his first appearance in a Masque production, did a very creditable piece of acting as the young gentleman of the times. Miss Guilfoil, who played opposite Longley, as the seemingly demure young lady, but in reality coquettish, was splendid in this fine production.

The minor parts of the play were well acted. Bradstreet played the part of Stingo, and Dorothy Blair that of the efficient little maid. Theodore Prescott as Diggory, Philip Brockway as Rogers, E. H. Williamson as Jeremy, and Reed and Mosher as servants gave a very creditable performance.

At the conclusion of one of the acts

President Bradstreet of the Masque spoke to the audience about the splendid work that the officers of the Masque are doing in order to make these productions possible. President Bradstreet also stated how fortunate the Masque has been in procuring the high type of plays it has been presenting.

The music for the play was furnished by the University Concert Orchestra under the direction of Mr. Galen Veayo. Mr. Harold Doe, Concert Master of the Bangor Symphony Orchestra, gave several fine violin solos during the evening.

Whole-hearted,

EQUALLY genuine is the response of smokers to Chesterfield's satisfying goodness, its wholesome smoothness.

No one ever has to "acquire" a taste for Chesterfields. You don't have to learn to like them. Smokers take to their pleasing flavor instinctively . . . and here's why:
