Chin and Chatter

Watch the general migration of co-eds Orono-wards this week-end. And if they all pay board and room Santa Claus won't visit li'l Nell this Christmas.

Have you seen the bridal suite in Merrill Hall? All modern conveniences. Moderate prices for college students.

You see them everywhere—he, tall, dark, and handsome; she, a blonde young thing, a freshette. They haunt the libe, the bookstore, the high school. It's young love, and younger than usual.

The girls in Colvin wish that a booth might be built around the telephone as co-eds in bidding au revoir to their eds are so noisy that telephone conversations are difficult.

They were quarreling as they passed the Kappa Sigma house. She had just pulled a dirty one and it was his turn. "Well," he said, and an evil twinkle gleamed in his eye. "I hope all your children are radio announcers."

The Betas have turned philosophers. They have recently established a new paradox: "Horses neck—and so do you."

We hear that the band played at the state institution this side of Bangor Wednesday. Make your own wise-cracks on that.

We wonder how two people known at the University, happened to be in the audience.

The fine ice on the river certainly gave some skaters a chance to go places.

Did you know that there's to be a skating rink near Orono bridge? We understand that the owner of the small lunchroom at the bridge has a permit from the selectmen of Orono to board off part of the river and flood and scrape the enclosure. The price of admission, they say, is to be 10 cents.

Play Course Students Will Present Several Strong Modern Plays

The students of Mr. Bailey's "One-Act Play Course" are at work on a number of powerful plays including the prize play, Judge Lynch, by John William Roger. It is directed by Charles O'Connor and the cast is as follows:

Mrs. Japlin Ernestine Merrill
Ella Miss Young
Ed Japlin Francis Ricker
A Stranger Frank Waterhouse

The scene is southern, and the theme centers about the lynching of a negro.

Another play of interest is The Valiant, by Holworthy Hall and Robert Middlemass. The director is Atwood Levensaler and the cast is:

Warden Hall Philip Brockway
Father Daly O. B. Packard
Dan Mr. Bryant
Janus Dyke John Gehring
Wilson John Moran
Josephine Paris Lucille Nason

It is a strong, emotional play dealing with the hanging of a young murderer. Just before the end, his sister comes to him, and he convinces her that her brother has been killed in war, concealing to the last his identity and disgrace.

Hyacinth Halvey's Lady Gregory is directed by Myrilla Guilfoil and the cast is:

Hyacinth Halvey Milton Sims
James Quirke Robert Shean
Fardy Farrel John Longley
Sergeant Carden Mr. Rowsley
Mrs. Delane Miss Moors
Miss Joyce Helen Osgood

This is a typical Irish play dealing with the vain efforts of a young man, believed by the community to be a saint, to dissuade his admirers.

A Woman of Character, by Estelle Aubrey Brown is spicy, entertaining, dealing with human frailties in a humorous way. It is directed by Edward

New Paper Issued On Campus; Run By Board of Freshman

DE COURCY HEADS STAFF OF PUBLICATION, WHICH IS BACKED BY Y.M.C.A.

Those who have seen several long sheets of typewritten pages floating around campus similar to a long mid-semester exam, may be interested to know that the new Freshman paper has arrived! While the rest of us have been sleeping over our mid-semester, '34 has gotten busy, organized themselves under the name of "The Freshman." The present purpose of the paper is mainly to serve the interests of the Freshman Class by writing up Freshman activities, calling attention to coming events and to act as a medium of expression. It is hoped to later develop an educational section that would include national and world affairs which are significant to the educational world. The paper purposes to unify the class as a whole thereby aiding the University.

So far as it is known this is an entirely unique experiment and is not copied from any other college.

The department is not yet wholly organized and all members of the class are urged to offer services so that a bigger and better "Freshman" may appear. The meetings up to date are held Saturdays at the M.C.A. building.

The present staff is as follows:

Military Ball To Be Held Friday. Number Attending To Be Restricted

The five candidates to be voted on at the ball.

The annual Military Ball, sponsored by Scabbard and Blade, is to be held Friday evening in Alumni gym. Music is to be furnished by Joe Roman's orchestra.

This year those in charge are restricting the number to be admitted to 200 couples, in the hope that there will be less congestion on the dance floor.

Due-less, Record-less Club on Campus Draws Interested Faculty Members

There is on campus a unique experiment in the matter of clubs—no president, dues, or records. In 1927 Dr. D. B. Young came to the University as head of the biology department. He became acquainted with Carl Sax, and every Wednesday the two men ate their lunches together. Other members of the faculty joined them in whatever room at Coburn was available at noon.

The next year the dinner-pails were discarded in favor of hot lunches prepared by Home Economics girls. Random talks were given by members of the group.

This year Spruce of Old Town looks after the luncheons, at a small cost to each member. A committee has drawn up a formal program, on the subject of "General Physiology." The group from two men has increased to an average weekly attendance of thirty-five, and includes not only the faculty of the biological department, but all in the University interested in the physical and chemical study of living organisms.

Wednesday noon, Dec. 10, Miss Pearl Greene spoke before the group on "Fitness of the Environment" based on Henderson's book by that name.

Senate Members Dinner Guests In Boardman Home

Twenty members of the Student Senate were guests at dinner last Tuesday evening at the home of President and Mrs. Boardman. Dean and Mrs. Corbett were present and aided in making the occasion a very pleasant one. An excellent dinner was served, with Mrs. Boardman acting as a very capable hostess. The fine type of hospitality as shown at the home of the President has been commented on many times. Last Tuesday evening it was at its best.

After the dinner was completed, the members of the Senate convened in the main room, and held their regular business meeting. During the meeting many things that should be of interest to the student body were brought up, discussed and passed upon.

The meeting was opened by President O'Neil. The first item of business was the drawing of the numbers for the location of the booths at Military Hop. The following are the numbers of the booths drawn by the various fraternities:

Beta Theta Pi	No. 1
Beta Kappa	No. 2

Pageant To Be Staged In Chapel by Students; Chorus To Assist Cast

The program for Assembly on Monday, December 15, will consist of a Christmas pageant, "The Nativity", given by a cast of fifteen students, assisted by the University Chorus. This pageant, arranged by Jeanette Roney '30, with lighting effects by Leslie St. Lawrence, '31, was presented at a vesper service two years ago with great success. The characters this year will be:

Prophet Charles E. O'Connor
Joseph Henry Conklin
Mary Myrilla Guilfoil

Leon Savage
Stacy Billings
John Longley
Neil Hamilton

Angels Marguerite Macuen
Virginia Berry
Eugenie Austin

The pageant is under the general direction of Louise Campbell, Myrilla Guilfoil, and Charles O'Connor. Costumes are in charge of Ellen Wareham; lighting and stage settings, Leslie St. Lawrence; make-up, Atwood Levensaler.

Inter-frat Basketball Competition To Start After Xmas Vacation

BETA HOUSE, LAST YEAR'S WINNER, TO HAVE PRACTICALLY THE SAME TEAM

Intramural basketball is apparently coming back stronger than ever this season. All the fraternities are reporting strong teams, and the dormitories, organized as never before, have signified their intentions of making determined bids for the title.

One important shift in the league has been made. Phi Eta Kappa will play in the Southern League this season. This is because of the fact that Hannibal Hamlin is to be represented by three teams, one from each section.

In the Northern League, Beta Theta Pi, winner of the Intramural title for the last three years, seems to be the leading contender, with virtually the same team as that of last season. She will, however, find plenty of opposition, especially from S.A.E., Kappa Sigma, Sigma Nu, and the dormitory teams.

In the Southern League Phi Gamma Delta, last year's runner-up, promises a strong team, closely followed by the newly shifted Phi Eta Kappa team.

The entire series of games will be of much interest during the winter months. Close and hard-fought battles are predicted, with upsets expected from any quarter.

The season will open January 10, the first Saturday after the Christmas vacation. Due to the fact that Intramural volleyball will be run off before college closes for the holidays, there will be no regular scheduled practice sessions, as in years past. The fraternities will have to practice on any and every available opportunity. Schedules for the season will be sent to the fraternity houses before Dec. 19th.

Anyone desiring to referee Intramural basketball games should give his name to "Rusty" Rumazza at the Phi Kappa House before the above date.

Christmas Handicap Meet Begins Friday

The annual Christmas Handicap Track Meet will be held Friday and Saturday of this week.

On Friday, Dec. 12, the discus, javelin, and 35 pound weight throws are to be held. Competitors in these events are asked to report as soon after class as possible.

The other events, both track and field, are to be held on Saturday, Dec. 13.

The order of the track events on Saturday will be as follows:

1. 100 yard dash trials
2. One mile run
3. 440 yard dash
4. 100 yard dash finals
5. 45 yard high hurdles
6. 2 mile run
7. 220 yard dash trials
8. 100 yard low hurdles trials
9. 880 yard run
10. 100 yard low hurdles finals
11. 220 yard dash finals

MISS LENGYEL HOLDS MEETING TO DISCUSS WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

A meeting was held at Miss Lengyel's home last Sunday evening to discuss the future in women's athletics. The six group leaders, the president of the Athletic Association, Miss Lengyel and Miss Rogers were present. Supper was served after which a free and open discussion of the new athletic system was held.

Extensive plans were made for the development of the group system. The girls were more enthusiastic than they have been formerly, and a great deal was accomplished. The new constitution of the Athletic Association was discussed.

The girls were very free in giving their viewpoints of the matter of awarding the Maine seal, the highest athletic honor which a girl may hope to attain. Many comments were heard concerning the changes of the old numerals into letters, and the matter of a reward for the group leaders was brought up.

At this time, Miss Lengyel announced that there would be inter-group bowling at the Strand Alleys starting after Christmas vacation.

The law of true art, even according to the Greek idea, is to seek beauty wherever it is to be found, and separate it from the dross of life as gold from ore. —Lafcadio Hearn.

"Masque" Presents Drama by Jerome Tonight in Chapel

Bradstreet, President of Group, To Appear in Last Major Role

E. RAYMOND BRADSTREET

The Maine Masque will present its second production of the year tonight in Alumni Hall, when the curtain is raised on the first scene in Jerome K. Jerome's drama, "Passing of the Third Floor Back." This play drifts away from the usual run of the various dramas, in that it deals with the delicate subject of showing how easily a little good in the world can overcome all evils and bad habits. It is the same type of play as Sutton Vane's "Outward Bound," which was successfully presented by the Masque on two different occasions.

A fine chance is afforded to the eleven principals in the cast, and the plot itself is cleverly developed from the opening to the finale. Professor Mark Bailey is directing the production with the aid of Herschel L. Bricker. E. Raymond Bradstreet, president of the Masque, will be seen in his farewell appearance in the title role of the Third Floor Back or the Stranger.

The action is laid in the front room of a boarding house of questionable repute in Bloomsbury Place, London, which is run by a certain Mrs. Sharp who believes in getting everything possible from her boarders and giving as little as possible. She is assisted by a girl secured from a local workshop, and her house is filled with nearly every type of person imaginable, all being of a rather shady character, and up to no good.

Track Outlook Dark; Point-Winners Lost Through Graduation

Graduation depleted the ranks of the University of Maine track team New England Intercollegiate champion for four years. Coach Chester Jenkins' prospects do not look any too bright this year.

Maine has but one point left of the 26½ points that won the title last spring at Boston. Then again only eleven points remain of the 45 garnered in the Maine State Meet. It lost Earle Gowell, discus star, Emerson Stymiest, sprinter, two-milers, Harry Richardson and Bud Lindsay, Charlie O'Connor, responsible for eight points in the high and broad jumps, and James Ashworth, who failed to place although he had turned in better marks with the javelin in previous competitions than that which won at Boston.

Bates and Bowdoin are more fortunate than Maine since they have almost every man back that placed. Colby will be stronger this year with men competing who were ineligible last season.

Jenkins will have his hands full trying to put his team back in the winning column. In the dashes, Captain Raymond White is good for ten seconds in the century, although his best bet is in the shorter distances. Walter Riley, who has been playing football this Fall, may run if his health permits. Don Marshall is improving, and with Mel Means, who came

THE INTRAMURAL A. A.

The deep interest being shown in Intramural basketball is an encouraging sign. Each year the calibre of the teams engaging in the interfraternity hoop struggle is improving. This year, several teams have already, in practice, shown signs of being much stronger than the teams of last year. The games sponsored by the Association have drawn good-sized crowds in the past, and there is every prospect that the stands will be filled again this year when games are in progress. The development of this form of activity is desirable, inasmuch as many more students can engage in the game than could participate if the sport were an intercollegiate activity in the state.

The Intramural Association is to be commended for its action in popularizing the sport, and in promoting other sports for interfraternity competition, such as touch football, tennis, and track. This is one organization on the campus that is pulling its weight and justifying its existence.

WHY NOT BE ON TIME?

At each Masque play, those who arrive on time for the beginning of the performance have been annoyed by those who came in late and who caused some confusion when taking their seats. At the last play, the persons in charge of admission, allowed late-comers to take seats in the rear of the hall until the end of the first act. This obviated a great deal of the usual confusion, but there was still some unnecessary disturbance. A little thought and effort to be on time on the part of those planning to attend the play would, we are sure, reduce the noise and disturbance. Any who do come in late should not feel resentment if they are requested to take seats in the rear until the second act. A due amount of consideration for the rights of others will go a long way towards eliminating any difficulty.

FRATERNITY SCHOLARSHIP

In the last issue of the Campus there appeared an article in regard to the scholastic average of fraternity men throughout the country. In this article Alvan E. Duerr, chairman of the scholarship committee of the Interfraternity Conference, made the statement that the scholastic rank of fraternity men throughout the country is higher than that of non-fraternity men.

Statistics compiled at the University of Maine show that the average of non-fraternity men is considerably higher than that of fraternity men. This unhealthy condition is evidence of a lack of attention paid to studies by the fraternities at Maine.

The remedy for this situation lies within the hands of the fraternities themselves. If the houses were to place a little more emphasis on scholarship, Duerr's statement would hold true on this, as on other college campuses.

CORRESPONDENCE

Editor of the Campus
 Dear Sir:

Being much interested in the coming Masque play, rumored to be an outstanding war drama, I have stopped several times to figure out what campus personages will be selected to portray the characters in this great undertaking.

I was quite astonished in discussing this play, to find the large number of men who wish very much to have a role, but who refuse to try out on the grounds that they would not stand a chance. They claim that the cast, if it is not already chosen in the mind of the one making the selection, will be before the tryouts are held.

Some upperclassmen point to certain incidents in the past, in which new candidates have been overlooked or if given a chance to tryout, were entirely disregarded, regardless of their ability. In the estimate of some, the time for tryouts is too short as it does not give one a chance to study a part, thereby giving those who have seen the play or know something about it a great advantage. Others think that the search for candidates is not extensive enough.

Wherever the catch may be, it remains that a very low percentage of those having dramatic ability have appeared in Masque productions. It seems quite probable that there is plenty of talent that has been overlooked.

Hoping to see the most talented and fitting characters in the coming produc-

BOOK REVIEW

"New York"
 By Paul Morand

The December choice of the Book League of America is written by a French author, Paul Morand. This is the first of his books to have a wide appeal for Americans. Perhaps the reason is that it is about that city so familiar to every American—New York.

Paul Morand likes New York. He admires its size and the people inhabiting it—the only race in the world which in his opinion, is not living on a past reputation, and has succeeded in reorganizing itself since the war. New York to Morand is an open book which may be read by all who care to learn its contents. Morand has visited New York many times and his book shows a keen understanding of both the apparent and hidden facts of Manhattan.

There is an abundance of subtle humor contained within its pages. Morand states that if one sees a very pink, restful face in New York it belongs to a corpse nine times out of ten. He also makes the absurd statement that one may bathe at Coney Island in the nude.

In its entirety "New York" is an interesting and pleasing book—the insight it affords one into the heart of the world's greatest city is valuable.

tions for the benefit of the Masque as well as the audience.

I am,
 Yours sincerely,
 A dramatic enthusiast

GIRLS' BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS

The opening of the girls' basketball season called out a large group of both veterans and beginners. According to the new system of women's athletics at the University, competition will be between teams composed of girls from all of the four classes. The freshman and sophomore classes turned out the largest number of representatives at last week's practices. The number of juniors and seniors who appeared (most of whom were varsity members last year), proved that those classes have no inclination to accept the background of oblivion.

Manager Vitolia Lobikis is arranging for two varsity games to be played at Orono and the completion of these games will mark the end of all women's varsity intercollegiate activity at the University of Maine.

Since there is to be no freshman team this year, the freshman girls are expected to figure prominently on the group teams.

PHYSICS DEPARTMENT RECEIVES NOVEL GIFT

The Bell Telephone Laboratories in New York City recently sent to the Physics Department a bar of permalloy, 35 inches long and 5-16 inch in diameter, that has rather wonderful magnetic properties. If this bar is held with one end pointing down it will pick up small pieces of permalloy ribbon, but if the bar is held horizontally east and west it will not pick them up at all. In other words when the bar is held in the magnetic field of the earth and parallel to the field it is magnetic. When it is held in the earth's magnetic field and at right angles to the field it is not magnetic.

This material is representative of a long list of alloys, which these laboratories have developed in the last ten years, with magnetic properties radically different and better than any materials known before. It is made of very pure iron alloyed with very pure nickel. The different proportions of nickel and iron and the different heat treatment given the different alloys seem to be the important things in their manufacture.

2. Papa Cow in sixth stall; those with red flannels beware.
3. The hay is for mules; don't be an one.

One of the features of the evening was the conveying of the Balentine maids to the party. Six husky lads took the reins of the old hay wagon and bravely started out. Alas for the curve around Oak Hall. Wagon and maids all in a heap. The trainers for the Hop were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bray with Warren Blocklinger as chief jockey and Dave Barker as Milk Maid.

DEAN CHASE SPEAKS ON VIRGIL

Dean Chase spoke on "The Fourth Eclogue" at the General Lecture hour Wednesday afternoon. Dean Chase brought out the significance of Virgil's prophecy of the coming of peace and the return of the golden age for man. Virgil predicted that this period of peace and prosperity would be ushered in by the birth of a child. As Dean Chase explained, the later Christian Church interpreted this as a prophecy of the coming of the Messiah, and consequently recognized Virgil as a Christian poet.

SCREEN

A secretary is a famous Russian beauty, an engineer is a Cossack general, and a bond salesman is a youthful scientist.

And all are actors.

It happens in Paramount's talking film production of "The Virtuous Sin," arriving Friday, Dec. 12 at the Strand Theatre. The three people so itemized, are Kay Francis, Walter Huston and Kenneth MacKenna.

Although the three are established screen players and saw success on the legitimate stage, it is curious that none of them started out in life to do stage work.

Miss Francis, who is cast as the Russian woman who tries to gain her husband's release from the army, began her professional career as a stenographer. Her mother was formerly Katherine Clinton, actress, and did not want her daughter to take up a stage life.

So Miss Francis entered a secretarial school in New York and learned type-writing and shorthand. At the completion of her course, the mother gave her a vacation trip in Europe. When she returned, she had decided upon a stage career and thus began it. A number of stage parts brought her into talking pictures.

Four years of Huston's life were spent in engineering work in Missouri. When a boy, he had become a good practical engineer and this brought him a position in charge of the city water and electrical plants at Nevada, Missouri. From there, he went to St. Louis where he managed the Union Electric Light and Power Company's Charles Street plant. A desire for a stage career, caused him to throw aside his success as an engineer and begin work on the vaudeville stage. Twelve years of two-a-day brought him to Broadway and, after he had starred for a number of plays, he was drafted into talking pictures.

MacKenna had never considered the stage as a possible career until it came to him. Graduated from Columbia, he started his life as a broker on Wall Street. For three years he followed a business life until an opportunity came to appear in an amateur play. He was intrigued by his part and did so well that he received an offer to become a professional actor.

It was all a matter of luck. A certain play was badly in need of a certain type of leading man. MacKenna happened to be that type. He took the part and from that time until today he has never played anything but leading roles.

MAINE MASQUE HOLDS MEETING

Dec. 3rd the Maine Masque held a meeting at Tri Delta House. New members were elected and will be announced between the acts of The Passing of the Third Floor Back. The following was made a by-law of the Masque constitution:

Freshmen who have fulfilled the requirements for Masque membership can not be pledged to full membership until the spring pledging, but they will be eligible for associate membership.

The committee on Chapel improvements gave a report of a very unsatisfactory conference with the treasurer of the University, and the business manager and stage manager were delegated to take the matter before the executive board. Raised seats in the Chapel will add only to the enjoyment and comfort of the stage's patrons—no small matter, but of less importance perhaps than the urgent need of a fire-escape from the back stage. Few people realize the exact situation as it now stands. The night of every play, not to mention rehearsals, twenty or more people are packed into a small room no larger than the stage below, with only a narrow trap-door and rickety stairs for exit. All about, and below on the back-stage is extensive wiring for various lighting effects, burnt matches and cigarette-stubs—plenty of opportunity for a little carelessness—followed by a dangerous fire. That there has been no fire to date is no good reason for refusing to consider the need of a fire-escape.

"My wife has lost her power of speech," said the harrassed henpeck.

"Just see that she doesn't have any sudden fright," advised the doctor, "she might get it back again."

DUKE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MEDICINE Durham, N. C.

Second period	8:55-9:40
Third period	9:50-10:35

91% of the energy we use demands VALVES

"Eighty-seven per cent of the energy we use in our daily life... heat energy as well as mechanical energy, exclusive of that produced in our own bodies and brains... is derived from the hydrocarbon chain, coal, oil, and gas. Water power yields 4%, firewood 6%, work animals 3%."

GEORGE OTIS SMITH, U. S. Geological Survey

Take away the 87% of energy now extracted from coal, oil, and gas... and we would be back in the year 1855... the year Crane Co. was founded. Take valves and fittings away, and we would be deprived not of 87 but of 91%. For from water power as well as from coal, gas, and oil, energy is almost never extracted in the modern world but valves and fittings enter into the process.

It is significant that the history of Crane Co. and the history of modern utilization of natural energy, cover almost exactly the same period. Many years ago, Crane metallurgists and engineers began the development of piping materials for each new need as it appeared. The years since have seen every Crane resource... research, engineering, production... devoted to supplying materials that would keep the road to progress open.

What Crane has learned and the materials that it has developed will be of vital interest to you after you leave school. Let us send you the story of research in piping metals, "Pioneering in Science."

The Senate next discussed the question of Caswell, recently elected President of the Freshman Class, who is now ineligible. Discussion arose concerning whether the defeated candidate should automatically become President of the Freshman Class or the vice-president should temporarily hold the position until the president became eligible. A resolution was passed that the vice-president of the class should occupy the position of presidency until the president became eligible.

It was next announced to the members of the Senate that it had been decided to award junior managers of Freshman basketball the same letter that is awarded the managers of varsity sports. It is believed by the Senate that the work done by the managers of Freshman basketball is equivalent to that done by other managers of athletic teams. It was felt that the numerals awarded the Freshman team would not be a fit award to junior managers as recognition of their services.

It was also decided that the AMA is to be awarded to the defeated assistant managers of athletic teams, in recognition of their services. This plan was carefully considered by the Athletic Board before it was decided to offer this suggestion for approval of the Student Senate. Previously, the AMA was worn only on track suits and had no particular significance. It is hoped by the awarding of this letter to men worthy of recognition for their services that this award may gain prestige as being a type of minor sports letter on the campus.

What Is Oil?

Mankind, in general, regards a treacherous banana peel underfoot as the pinnacle of slipperiness. Just another case of prejudice tho; because oil, such as used to lubricate electric machinery, would give him a farther and faster ride than the best banana skin in the country. No one knows just yet what makes oil so oily, but Research Engineers are hot on the trail.

Scientists have long known that oil makes a good lubricant—but soap suds, or steel on ice, is better if slipperiness is the only aim. Despite the profound technical knowledge of the twentieth century, man does not know exactly what makes oil oily. Ordinary chemical and physical tests merely check the uniformity of oil shipments, but tell nothing of the lubricating value.

A group of scientists, isolated in a building of their own, have been stalking the answer to "what makes oil oily," for the past few years. Unlike tasting a pot of porridge for seasoning there is yet no test nor instrument that will tell the answer. In the past to determine this elusive property the lubricant was placed in service until the oil wore out—i.e. lost its oiliness. Researchers getting to the roots of the problem, finally devised machines for measuring this slippery property—they can tell the degree of "oiliness"; but just what makes one oil more slippery than another is still a worrisome question.

Crude oil, as it comes to the laboratory from wells scattered throughout the world, is tested for oiliness and then broken up into its chemical elements. Tedious comparative studies are made of samples which behave exactly alike except for oiliness; doggedly striving to find what makes the difference. It is not the degree of refinement of the crude oil—the same commercial oils are much more refined than others. If oils are too pure they become water white (like the widely advertised Nujol) and lose their lubricating usefulness.

A person on ice skates rides on one of the best lubricating surfaces known. The almost effortless propulsion is possible because the weight of the skater melts the ice under the runners and he scoots along on a film of water, not ice. Little globules of water cling to the steel runner, another layer is on the surface of the ice, leaving a free layer of water in the middle which gives almost frictionless movement of the skates.

In electrical rotating machinery, an oil film surrounds the moving shaft and acts like the water film under the skate runner. Tny globules of oil adhere to the revolving journal, other oil molecules stick to the babbitt bearing and the load rides merrily on the free film of oil in between.

Automobile bearings need only a small fraction of a thousandth of an inch oil film; large electrical machines require an oil film about .0012 inches thick—the same part that $\frac{3}{4}$ " represents in a city block. Measurement of the oil thickness in big electrical machines shows that the shaft wanders about in the oil film very curiously, climbing up one side and slipping down the other. Tho microscopic in size, the film is always thick enough to keep the metals from direct contact. Trouble begins as soon as the film is ruptured and the metals touch, which happens sometimes due to minute imperfections in machined surfaces, misalignment of shaft and bearing, and warping of the bearing shell by excessive heating.

Never stingy, Nature has been exceedingly open handed in her gift of oils—vegetable oils are widely used in cooking, animal oil glistens from sleek black hair; and mineral oils produce our gasoline. Vegetable and animal oils are more oily and therefore the best lubricants; but their family tree makes them more susceptible to oxidation when in service. Straight mineral oils, preferably with a paraffine base, last longer as a lubricant despite their lesser degree of oiliness. Like a sprig of mint in tea to enhance the flavor, soap is sometimes added to mineral oil to bolster its lubricating properties.

Oil leads a tough life, however. For instance, machinery on shipboard must be well lubricated. The boat crosses the equator and a month later is anchored in Alaskan—he oil must never become so soft it will run away nor too hard to become useless.

AERONAUTICAL CLUB MEETS

At a meeting of the U. of M. Aeronautical Club last Tuesday night, the following officers were elected: T. A. Knowlton, Pres.; K. D. Wilson, Vice-Pres.; H. G. Davis, Sec.; alternate, H. W. Stevens, T. Baldwin, Treas.; alternate, A. C. Mercier.

The club has at the present a membership roll of twenty-six students and one member of the faculty, and a large number of students have signified their intention of joining. Several faculty members have expressed their willingness to lecture and advise on aerodynamics. An interesting program is being prepared for the next meeting, which will take place on Tuesday, December 16.

Junior write-ups must be in before December 15, if they are desired. Please address them "Prism Box 12."

All Junior pictures must be taken before Christmas vacation. If any other photographer than Klyne, Maine Studio or Adams is used, please have the cut sent in. All seniors who desire an addition to their list of activities please place them in the same Prism box.

up from last year's freshman team, ought to provide some competition in this event.

In the quarter mile, newcomers from the last yearling team include Robert Pendleton, Don McKiniry and George Scott. Raymond Wendell, a junior, is getting his strength and should do much better in the half-mile jaunt. Steve Mank is back in togs and ought to make Wendell step to keep out in front.

Harry Booth, a duplicate of Bud Lindsay, of the Lindsay-Richardson duo who were national intercollegiate cross-country champions last year, is a sophomore and with Ronald Austin are the only ranking contestants in the mile. Bud Brooks and Everett Gunning, co-captains of the cross country squad and with James Fuller will be the entrants in the two mile event. Brooks and Gunning are both much improved after operations for appendicitis. Both were good as harriers.

In the hurdles, Arthur Lufkin did well last season on the low barriers, which was his first year at the game. Bill Stiles is back in form after breaking a small bone in his foot last spring. Philip Yerxa and Gilbert Robertshaw are in training.

Norman Webber, Alton Alley, and Sam Calderwood, will enter in the shot put. In the discus, there are Clifford Curtis, Bud Humphrey, Lester Fickett and Larry Sweetser.

Bill Jensen, who reached the semi-finals of the javelin at the New England last year, is back and is favored over Ward Cleaves, who has had trouble with his back, and Fickett. Webber, Fickett, Humphrey, and John Gonzals, a sophomore, comprise the hammer throwers.

Four sophomores have the limelight in the pole vault. They are Freeman Webb and Phil Havey, who are capable of twelve-foot lifts, and the McMichael twins, Albert and Alfred. George Cuozzo, Harry Burnham, and John Branch, who was out of school last year, are in the high jump. Only two have shown anything in the broad jump, Lovell Chase and Arthur Warren.

The present freshman class has some good material for next year's varsity, which this year is going thru a period of downward fluctuation after a stretch of four good years.

"Masque" Presents J. K. Jerome's Drama Tonight in Chapel

All are in a great tangle, when a stranger appears in response to a sign for a new boarder. Soon, just his appearance alone seems to have a gratifying effect. He shows each one just what they are in true form and how they are only deceiving themselves. Little by little he slowly changes the bad ideas of each and sets them on the path that leads to higher ideals.

The play is based on a prologue, the play itself, and then an epilogue, all three scenes being laid in the same room, but with the atmosphere undergoing a distinct change. The Masque is sparing no pains in this Christmas production and Professor Bailey has cast the play to perfection. Besides Mr. Bradstreet, several well known actresses such as Misses Cousins, Campbell, and Lyon, appear, being supported by many newcomers who are sure to prove instant successes on their first appearance behind the footlights. The remainder of the cast is composed of Messrs. Reed, Porter, Brockway, Mosher, Bearce, and Brown, and Misses Nason, Clark, and Morrison.
