RULES CONTINUE AS SOPHS BEAT FROSH IN ANNUAL CONTEST

Class of '36 Cleans Up Field Events But Sophomores Gain More in Runs

By taking every first place but one in the running events, the sophomore trackmen, led by Chick Shea and Ken and Erney Black, succeeded in overcoming an early frosh lead piled up in the weight and field events, and emerged the victors, 74½ to 60½, in the annual inter-class cinder classic held at the Armory last Saturday afternoon. As a result of the sophomore victory, freshman rules will be continued until the flag rush, January seventh.

Chick Shea turned in the most brilliant performance of the afternoon, taking first in the hundred and two-hundred yard dashes, and tying with Sleeper for first in the high jump. Collette collected the most points for the first year men, winning the hundred yard low hurdles, and the shot put. Other high scorers in the meet were Drummond and the Black brothers for the sophs, and Thompson, Roberts, and Huff for the freshmen. Huff, though he was nosed out by Shea in the finals of the century, made the best time of the afternoon for that event in his first trial heat.

No records were broken and few thrills were provided the spectators in the meet. The only upset came when Ken Goddard, sophomore hurdler, after leading his heat all the way in the hundred yard low hurdles, slowed down a few yards from the tape, having mistaken a white chalk line for the finish. Two frosh runners swept by him, and he was eliminated from the finals of the event.

Summary:
100 yard dash—Won by Shea, '35; second, Huff, '36; third, Foster, '35. Time, 10 5-10 seconds.
220 yard dash—Won by Shea, '35; second, Huff, '36; third, Goddard, '35. Time, 22 3-5 seconds.
440 yard run—Won by K. Black, '35; second, O'Connor, '36; third, Cole, '35. Time, 52 3-5 seconds.
880 yard run—Won by K. Black, and E. Black (tie), '35; third, O'Connor, '36. Time, 2 minutes 5 2-5 seconds.
1 mile run—Won by Drummond, E. Black, and Marsh (tie), '35. Time, 4 minutes 51 2-5 seconds.
1½ mile run—Won by E. Black, Barstow, Briggs, and Drummond (tie), '35. Time, 7 minutes 57 2-5 seconds.
45 yard high hurdles—Won by Goddard, '35; second, Goulette, '36; third, Sargent, '36. Time, 7 4-5 seconds.
100 yard low hurdles—Won by Collette, '36; second, Cole, '35; third, Sargent, '36. Time, 12 4-5 seconds.

Owls Go in for Barberism in a Big Way As Frosh Replace Rules with Romance

The old adage of "The older they get, the harder they fall" seems to apply, ever increasingly, to the admirers of the fair coeds among the ranks of those clad in green ties and blue toques. Each owl meeting brings forth an ever-increasing number of violators, and last week was no exception. The owls, as usual, gave their visitors a warm reception and a complete tonsorial treatment—as evidenced by the number of split paddles and the many locks of golden and black hair that are missing. An interesting feature of last week's get-together was that Massachusetts and Connecticut were well represented, the former sending five and the latter two representatives, while the ole pine tree state failed to have a man before the distinguished tribunal.

The first prodigal son was one whose dandruff had been causing so much misery that he decided to remove his toque in hopes that fresh air might remedy the situation. The owls tho't differently, however, so now—dandruff or no dandruff—he will give up the fresh air treatments, and go back to the dear woolen headgear. While he did not receive any severe chastisement, he did furnish a lot of entertainment, and revealed a surprisingly good set of vocal chords—especially in his rendition of the Stein Song.

Next in line came a lad whose wise attitude and fondness for co-eds had incurred the wrath of the owls. He received only a mild and non-irritating paddling, but was the recipient of a perfect hair-cut—even Franky Frankenstein would be envious of him.

Another coed fiend came next. He was paddled and also received a most thorough and decorative Hindenburg clip. And then, in marched the honorable class-president, Johnny Adams, who had also been out in pursuit of the coeds, and had had quite good luck—until the owls took up the chase. Johnny, however, received the admiration of all present by his straightforward manner, and the way in which he took his medicine. More than one paddle was heard to splinter.

OFFICIALS ARE BACK FROM HUB MEETING

President Boardman and Ted Curtis Attended Meeting On Collegiate Athletics

President H. S. Boardman and T. S. Curtis, Faculty Manager of Athletics, returned Sunday from Boston, where they attended the annual meeting of the New England College Conference on Intercollegiate Athletics. President Boardman has been president of the organization during the past year, while Mr. Curtis was secretary-treasurer.

They left Friday noon in the president's car, attended the conference Saturday, and returned to Orono Sunday. The meeting was held at the Boston University Club.

The N.E.C.C.I.A. is composed of five colleges: University of Maine, University of New Hampshire, Massachusetts Agricultural College, Rhode Island State College, and Connecticut Agricultural College. The main purpose of this conference is to bring about a closer cooperation on the part of the New England colleges in the maintenance of high standards of eligibility and in the administration of intercollegiate athletics.

PICTURES MADE AT M.C.A. BUILDING

Please note carefully the exact time of your group appointment, and the board would be most grateful if you would appear at the M.C.A. building on time, carefully dressed. Entire groups are inconvenienced by individuals who are late, or fail to appear.

Also, it will be noted, we are calling a few groups a second time, because first pictures were incomplete, and for other similar reasons.

KAY SMALL TO PLAY TITLE ROLE TONITE IN MASQUE'S DRAMA

Curtain Rises on Ibsen's Play At 7:30 in Alumni. New Set Constructed

The curtain rises on the Masque play Hedda Gabler, by Henrik Ibsen, this evening at 7:30 in the university chapel.

Kathryn Small, who appeared with the Masque last year in Holiday and Ladies of the Jury, has been selected by Professor Bailey to play the title role. The male lead, the part of George Tesman, Hedda's bookish and uninteresting husband, will be taken by John Willey. Herschel Bricker, of the Public Speaking department, will play the important role of Eiler Lovberg.

A new set of scenery is being constructed for the play. This will add to the effective staging of the drama, as it conforms with the special requirements of the plot.

BARKER SPEAKS IN BROADCAST SERIES

Takes as Subject "Fallacies Of Protection." Gold Standard Next

David Barker was the speaker Friday night in the weekly series of talks given by the Department of Economics and Sociology each Friday evening over Station WLBZ at 7 o'clock. Mr. Barker's subject was "Fallacies of Protection," and dealt with economic theory and the tariff.

Next Friday night, Prof. W. W. Chadbourne will be the speaker. He is to treat in two successive broadcasts the question of the gold standard and depreciated currencies. Following Prof. Chadbourne, the next speaker in the series is to be Henry Stetler of the Department of Economics and Sociology. The addresses are to treat of current economic and social problems, and the material to be covered in subsequent talks is to be announced.

Initiate 28 Coeds In Home Ec Club

Twenty-eight girls were initiated into the Home Economics Club on Wednesday evening at Merrill Hall. They were: Seniors: Helen Clements, Louise Hill, Doris Smart, Alicia Tracy, Dorothy Findlay, Alys Grua, Marion Ladner, Dorothy Murphy. Juniors: Natalie Birchall, Ella Blanch, Dorothy Davis, Louise Milliken, Mabel Robinson, Claire Sanders, Beatrice Cummings. Sophomores: Ruth Barrows, Estelle Blanchard, Marjorie Church, Elizabeth Crowley, Isabel Freeman, Etta Grange, Joanna Harris, Marion Hilton, Clara Hodson, Florence Kaminsky, Frances Knight, Ruth Libby, Margaret Young.

After the initiation, Stanley Painter, State Horticulturist, gave a demonstration on Christmas decorations. Later, a Christmas party was enjoyed with Marj Moulton acting as Santa Claus.

Reese, Stearns, Johnson as Polo Riders Win Costume Awards at Penny Carnival

It was, by all means, the best stag dance held this year. What was, you ask? The Penny Carnival, of course! So many clever costumes have not been seen for many a moon as were gathered at Alumni Hall last Friday evening at eight o'clock to dance to Perley Reynolds' orchestra. Attics certainly must have been raided for weeks to find some of the decorations the young ladies wore, not to speak of the men.

Although it was far from looking like a jail they tagged and stamped everybody who entered with the words, "Department of Physical Education, Women." When they ran on some of the dancers' hands, the stamp was placed on the forehead, and someone remarked that she thought it was funny one frat had so many pledges.

The dance started off with a grand march, and everybody immediately entered into the spirit of the affair. There were six big features. The first was the Orono Harmonica Band, and rarely has there been seen such a merry, versatile bunch of "young 'uns." The second feature was U. of M.'s renowned quartet, who sang many rousing numbers, chief among them, "I've Been Working on the Railroad." Then, no barn dance is complete without some sort of a contra dance. Out of the mêlée it was hard to discover whether the dance was a Boston Fancy or a Lady of the Lake.

Most of the Freshmen had been dying to see the Norman Lambert, who plays so charmingly over the radio at WLBZ. So the young gentleman played on his pledges.

MAINE'S HEALTH DURING DEPRESSION IS DUE TO BUSINESS MANAGEMENT

Campus To Have News Broadcasts

The Campus will begin a series of weekly news broadcasts over Station WLBZ of Bangor next Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. The broadcasts will be designed to give the people of the state a view of the life and activities on the campus of their University. The opening broadcast next week will be a fifteen minute program of news, but it is hoped that in the future it will be possible to extend the program to a half hour of news and music, using local talent.

Memorial Gym Is Being Built by Alumni Ass'n Not University

Splendid business management and a very conservative expansion policy has saved the University of Maine from feeling the full effects of the depression, as was shown by the recent report to the Association of Land Grant Colleges of the United States at its meeting in Washington. President H. S. Boardman was the chairman of the committee that made the study of conditions and Dean Olin S. Lutes of the School of Education of the University made the report.

Far-sighted policies of the administration kept the University from entering into elaborate building programs as was the case in most of the state institutions in the boom period following the war, and as a result the University has never been completely up on its building program and has never had actually the buildings that its student body justifies. As a result of its conservative building policy the University has been able to save enough during the past four years to build the two wings to the arts and sciences building, Stevens Hall, that are now under construction. The trustees decided to build at this time in order to take advantage of low material and labor charges and as a further means of giving employment to those who needed it, in so far as this building could employ them. Aside from the saving in actual money which building at this time brings, the erection of the two wings meets a pressing need in the work of the University since the accommodations for the work of the College of Arts and Sciences has been little more than fifty percent of what was actually needed. The money for the erection of these two wings has been saved by the administration from the millage tax, in accordance with their promise to the state to save from this tax the money necessary to build new buildings without calling on the state for such funds aside from the tax.

Statements were recently made that the University had not felt the depression at all and that it was able to build not only the wings to the building mentioned but to start the erection of the gymnasium unit of the Memorial field house. As a matter of fact the administration of the University has nothing at all to do with the erection of the gymnasium as far as monetary costs go, since the alumni of the University have been contributing for several years to the fund from which this building was to be erected. In view of the cheapness of material and labor, the alumni association of the institution felt that this gift to the University should be erected now and work was accordingly started. The University, however, is not spending a dollar on the gymnasium and

Curtis, Crossland Go to Alumni Ass'n Meetings

Aroostook County and Hancock County Alumni Associations held their annual meetings last week. University representatives attended and addressed both sessions.

Theodore Curtis, faculty manager of athletics, and C. E. Crossland, alumni secretary, attended the Aroostook County meeting which was held in the Caribou High School. Mr. Curtis discussed "Athletic Policies," and Alumni Secretary discussed "Relationship of Alumni to the University." Mr. Curtis also showed over 1000 feet of films of various athletic events. An interesting feature of the meeting was brief talks by a Caribou High School sophomore, Giberson, who won second place in the National High School Cross Country run and by his coach, Harry L. Richardson, class of 1930.

A record attendance of 84 was on hand for the Hancock County annual meeting which was held in Trenton Grange Hall. The event started off with lively singing of Maine songs followed by a chicken dinner. Talks were given by Alumni Secretary Crossland; Faculty Manager Curtis; A. L. Deering '12, president of the General Alumni Association and Director of the Agricultural Extension Service; Coach Fred Brice, and former president, Dr. Clarence C. Little. The program ended with an old fashioned dance. The meeting was regarded as one of the most successful alumni meetings held in recent years.

Plans are under way for an evening class in drawing and painting to be started here soon. Guy Rainsford, Jr., Boston portrait artist and former holder of the Boit Scholarship at the Museum School, Boston, will conduct the class. Those wishing to join are asked to communicate with Mr. Rainsford at 16 Harlow St., Bangor, or leave their names with Edward DeCourcy, Editor-in-Chief of the Campus.

Past The Limit

Missions given initiates by fraternities have gone beyond the limit of common sense this year to the point where they have lost their humor and have become a nuisance. One of the most serious missions, which was probably a part of an initiation, was the taking of rabbits from the old horticultural building behind the experiment station. The rabbits which have disappeared were infected with contagious diseases, and if they are kept at fraternity houses it is possible that some students may become infected.

For three successive nights fraternities sent out musicians to serenade the campus between the hours of 1:30 and 5:00 a.m. This was also a nuisance for obvious reasons. Local farmers have lost numerous small animals. No doubt the fraternities expect to return the animals, but it is highly possible that poor care taken of them while at the fraternity house will result in the death of the animal and a financial loss to the farmer.

Some of the men sent out on missions have been forced to enter other fraternity houses for signatures or for certain articles or trophies.

This is a problem for the Inter-Fraternity Council's immediate attention. Probably most of the initiations have taken place already, so nothing can be done about the matter this year, but the Council should make a "treaty" for the future which will prevent "borrowing" articles from other fraternity houses, and will work for the safety of people outside the college.

If fraternities must send men out on missions who not have them use originality and common sense so that the initiates will get the benefit of their mission, but the rest of the college will not suffer from it.

its erection does not reflect a state of prosperity.

During the past four years the faculty of the institution has been increased by ten percent while the student body was increasing by more than thirteen percent. For the present school year the faculty was actually decreased to meet conditions created by the depression without a corresponding decrease in the student body. The budget of each unit of the institution was decreased by five percent for the current year which necessitated heavier teaching loads for the faculty members—increases to already heavy loads.

The income of the University has not suffered so much decline as other institutions because of two factors: first, the mill tax law, which was adopted in 1929 early in the period of the depression, has stabilized the income of the institution and removed the question of its support as a troublesome problem from the legislative program; second, the tuition of students has been increased within the period of this depression and this again has helped maintain the income thus far. A decrease, however, is possible this year from the mill tax due to decreased valuation of property in the state and such a decrease would affect the University directly.

The report of the committee at Washington showed that most state colleges and universities had received from their respective states increased appropriations during the years of prosperity ranging as high as 300 percent, the average for the eight year period from 1920-1928 being ninety-five percent. Such institutions have naturally felt the depression more than Maine, but they likewise felt the advantages of prosperity more than Maine.

The statement has been made that the

Arabian Prayer Keeps Colvin Lassies Awake

Everyone has night-mares but when night-mares turn into reality "something is rotten in Denmark."

One night last week the girls in Colvin Hall were awakened from deep sleep by the screaming over and over again of these words: "Oh, Allah, give us rain. Our crops are dying; our families are starving. Oh, Allah, give us rain—RAIN—RAIN."

At first some thought they had gone crazy, and that they were in the coo-koo house at Bangor. One girl thought she had died and passed beyond (she must have been a heathen!). After lying still—petrified—spell bound!!!—etc. for several minutes a few of the more courageous ones began to investigate. On the lawn a dark gruesome figure was bending over, kissing the ground and then stretching its arms to heaven. At the same time the screaming—screaming—hollering—whatever you call it—continued. The pathetic part of it comes now.

The innocent inmates of Colvin Hall were entirely helpless. They had no way of stopping the disturbance. Forty-eight girls in a mob would probably have been sufficient but they are not allowed out of the dormitory at such a late hour. Oh my, no! They'd certainly have furnished him with the rain he was praying for but all the windows in Colvin Hall have screens on them. Now here is the irony of it all. The poor fellow was waiting for three lights to appear. Only two had flashed on. Why didn't he tell the girls?? The climax, conclusion, aim, purpose, and endeavor of this perambulating epistle is this: The girls of Colvin Hall suggest that, if in the future, the Phi Gam's must send them midnight visitors, they, at least, leave Allah out of it. None of the inmates of said dormitory profess to be heathens and besides the psychological effect is terrible.

teachers at Maine have not suffered a decrease in salary as a result of the depression, which is true. It should be said, however, that salary levels at Maine were much lower than the average in other states, and even though most states have had to reduce their salary scale materially as a result of the depression these salaries are still higher than at Maine due to the fact that increases here have been few and rather small.

In general, the policy adopted at the University has been that of rigorous economy with retrenchments wherever they could be made without seriously endangering the efficiency of the institution. If the University of Maine had followed the rule of most state universities during the period from 1920 to 1929, of building numerous buildings, increasing salaries yearly, and laying out large sums in equipment, it would beyond doubt be feeling the depression now as seriously as any institution in the country. That it has not felt this is due to the excellent management of its finances by its board of trustees, president, and business management, and further to the fact that its educational policies have been as closely watched as its finances. There has never been any rapid expansion at the University either in equipment or in student body. It has been the policy of the institution to make changes and improvements only when the money was available for such indications of growth. Its careful laying by of part of its income from the state each year is responsible for the wings to Stevens Hall which are now under construction, and which will meet a real need at the University. Every effort has been made by the administration to conserve its energies and goods. Only ten of the forty-two land grant institutions in the country have found it necessary during the past three years to increase their teaching loads—one of this number is the University of Maine.

CHRISTMAS ASSEMBLY TO BE HELD MONDAY

Next week's assembly will be a Christmas program, held Monday at 9:45 A.M. The University string trio will render selections, and the University chorus will sing Christmas songs.

Ruth Hamor '34, will sing some French carols.

Old Timers Appear For Carnival In Horse'n Buggy

One horse and one wagon appeared on campus last Friday afternoon. Seated upon this wagon were one lady and two honest-to-goodness hicks. These country creatures were peddling apples. "Apples!" they cried, "Ni—ce red apples, a penny a-piece. Step right up, gentlemen, and buy your gals an apple!" They had arrived for the Barn Dance and hoped to make a little "egg money" on the side.

Dolled up in the riggist clothes, the lady looked like a John Held, Jr., drawing of the gay eighties. One of her escorts wore old patched overalls, and fairly reeked of the barn yard; the other had adorned his great-great-grandfather's best suit and thought he'd make a hit with the co-eds. What a fine opinion they must have had of our University, to come to a party in such garb!

These abnormal creatures drove nonchalantly past every house on the grounds, selling their wares. They even tried to stop for a visit at the Kappa Sig House. And what a welcome they got! When that famous Kappa Sig trumpet blared forth, poor old Bess lost her self-control, and horse, carriage and baggage went rattling down the street.

And what do you suppose? These creatures that we thought were just in from the farm were none other than Marj Moulton, Marj Smith, and Dixie Dickson, with Marj Moulton as the Missus and the other two as the gay country swains.

FRESHETTES NOW WEAR GREEN HAIR RIBBONS

Because the Mount Vernon freshmen's caps mysteriously disappeared during the week-end, the Eagles have substituted broad bows of green ribbon, to be worn until the caps are found or returned.

VOLLEY BALL RESULTS

The results of the Volley Ball games played over the week-end were:

"chest-protector," as the master of ceremonies. Roy Gavin introduced him.

Then came an extremely funny novelty dance. A scarecrow was given to a fellow, and the point was to get rid of it. So everybody ran around in a hurry, the poor scarecrow not being given a choice as to partners. The dance went on at a quick pace, no one keeping very good time in their effort to steer clear of that scarecrow. Finally the scarecrow was left dangling on the arm of Kay Wormwood at the end of the dance.

And whom do you suppose got the prize for the best costumes? The A.T.O. "Polo Riders"—Sam Reese, Lew Stearns, and Carl Johnson. And where, oh where, did those boys get those intriguing costumes—berets, Tux coats, basketball trunks, chorus girl legs, and riding boots.

There were many notables present—Abbie Sargent, Sam Reese, Jean Captaine, Miss Lengyel, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace, Miss Rogers, Perley Reynolds' orchestra, the refreshment booth, an elephant, plenty of cobwebs, a hayloft, some pigs, and a dog. What more can you ask?

Miss Lengyel and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace were chaperons.

CAN THOSE COSTUMES have indicated that they were gentlemen, those two creatures who were riding around the campus last Friday in a buggy? Imagine it. The two would-be gentlemen made the lady of the party drive. And did you notice our burly policeman keeping his eagle eye on where they parked that rig?....Congratulations to the haberdasher who succeeded in selling a new hat to Mr. Moreland....What is it about Hallgren that makes the fair young hearts palpitate?....And have you noticed the head-dress worn by the inmates of Mount Vernon since yesterday afternoon? What is this, St. Patrick's Day?....We wonder whether Milt MacBride ran into a cellar door to get that darkened lamp on the left side of his face....It has been rumored that the state board of barber commissioners are going to draft the Sophomore Owls to assist them in their work. Those lads sure did a horrible job last Thursday....After noticing the number of headlights coming from behind the Armory these nights, we have come to the conclusion that the building is serving as a swell wind-break....No doubt Doc Foster will be the next Democrat to be elected post master of Bucksport after the stirring and inspiring orations he delivered in front of the Book Store Monday morning....When, oh when, is Jack Farnsworth going to get rid of those corduroys....Someone asked if the Kappa Sig party Saturday was a dorm dance because there were so many freshmen there.... What is the political significance of the fact that Cadet Colonel Horatio Alger Alley is taking one of the candidates for honorary lieutenant colonel to the military ball tomorrow night?....And then there is the story of Whitin, Douglass, and Solomon who went to church Saturday night before going to a party....We note that Stubby and Merrita are still that way about each other....And is Don Corbett becoming a social lion? Oh, is he? The motto of the freshmen about the dormitory is becoming, "When in doubt about a date, see Corbett"....We have a sneaking suspicion that it wasn't only for the studio's benefit that Roy Gavin's picture was put on display at the selling room of the M.C.A. building....And what's this about Kak (Feetsball) Aldrich and Win Cushing?....Who let the cats out of the bag after those Theta Chi pledges had spent so much time capturing them?....And did Ruth Libby and Ruth Todd blush when they became the victims of those initiates who were ordered to kiss all the co-eds who entered the Book Store Monday morning?....John Sealey is God's gift to women, but remember girls, he's only a freshman....Why don't those Kappa Sigs let Chipman sleep at night so he won't be falling asleep in class?....And hast thou heard of the Balentine co-ed who thought she smelled onions and ran to the fire-escape to see if there was a Phi Gam approaching?....And we have had it brought to our attention that there are more girls who haven't yet received invitations to the military shin dig than there were at this time last year....Consider the lil freshman who took his girl to Bangor in a car and after passing two red lights had the embarrassment to have his car stall....Just imagine Mel (Flash) Means left his sweetheart all alone in the libe all day Sunday....And who is the boy with the high heels who is stealing one of the foresters' sweethearts?.... Oh, those three dear boys including Sam Reese who went to the Penny Carnival dressed as gentleman basketball players....What becomes of Pete Talbot between Friday nights and Monday mornings?....Dick (high jump) Gaffney is being attracted by a head of fiery red....So little Carl quit the Masque play because he couldn't do his own interpreting of his part. Nice going, Carl....We nominate for our own roll of honor for this week, Mary Scott, who is our idea of what a co-ed should be....And we nominate for oblivion, the dope who invented the idea of keeping the whole campus awake just to initiate a couple of measly sophomores.

First Aid for unbroken joints

How to keep silt and sand from clogging telephone cable ducts was one problem put up to engineers at Bell Telephone Laboratories. No known method of joining sections of vitrified clay conduit effected a seepage-tight joint.

With scientific thoroughness, telephone men made many tests under service conditions. They devised a bandage of cheese-cloth, waterproof paper and mortar. Easily made and applied, this mortar bandage is tight against silt and sand. It prevents clogging, greatly simplifies the installation of new telephone cables and the removal of old ones.

Through solving such interesting problems, Bell System men work steadily nearer to their goal—telephone service of highest possible efficiency.

humans than any other known chemical." In Canada, each province has its own laws regarding liquor.

In Ontario, the government tried the plan of selling good beer only, at cost, hoping that this would eliminate the difficulties. It is shown that the consumption of beer increased 75%, of spirits, 80% and a comparative increase in wine, and in the total amount of liquor consumed, there is shown an increase from 2,551,000 gallons to 5,230,000 gallons, proving that the more people get, the more they want!

Concerning United States prohibition, he said and proved by illustration that in two studies, one by Irving Fisher, of Yale, and one by the U.S. Department of Justice, each found the average consumption at present, by the average citizen, to be only one-third of the amount previous to the prohibition law.

In Ontario there are no advertisements of liquor and the sale is not forced, yet the amount used has doubled.

Later in the evening refreshments were served, and everyone participated in the brain-racking "Ghost" game. At a late hour the group disbanded, and the professors escorted the co-eds to their respective domiciles.

Those present were: Prof. and Mrs. Dow, Prof. Wood, Prof. Guyer, Miss Elizabeth Ring, Miss Katherine Wood, Margaret Fowles, Violet Morrison, Evelyn Pollard, Blanche Henry, Charles Wakefield, Frank Waterhouse, Charles Lampropoulos, and Donald MacCormick.

CHRISTMAS HANDICAP IS WEEK END TRACK EVENT

Track Club Will Award Medals To Winners In All Events

With entries still being made for the annual Christmas Handicap track meet, to be held this week-end in the Armory Gym, the final plans propose a schedule of field events for Friday afternoon and the track events for Saturday.

All handicaps are to be worked out by Coach Jenkins, according to records established in the past. By this means, it will be possible for those of little or no experience to compete with those of greater ability, without sacrificing their chances of winning.

The Track Club in order to promote more interest in track athletics, is awarding medals for the first, second, and third places in all events. This organization also awards annually a fifty-dollar scholarship to some member of the freshman class who shows promise in track athletics.

but Johnny can take it. He also received a clipping, but with short hair to start with, the results are not as bad as might be expected, and Adams is more than equal to the occasion.

Next on the list was a woman-hater, charged with general poor attitude. He was paddled, but escaped without a haircut, due to the lack of evidence to properly prosecute the case.

The last victim was transformed overnight into a most charming and seductive little freshman. After being warned about his attitude, his beautiful locks were shorn of their beauty, and also of their length. Then, outfitted in a dress, skirt, and other necessary articles of feminine wearing apparel, he paraded the campus 'til relieved by superior authority. He was seen, however, at the track meet with not only a long dress, but also with quite a long face after the announcement of the final score.

The actions of the freshmen during the past month have incurred the wrath of not only the owls, but also of the Skulls, and plenty of penalties will be meted out before the green ties are finally taken off, never to be worn again; and the ensuing owl meeting should bring forth a number of amusing results—that is, amusing to the upper classmen, but not so funny from the freshman's viewpoint.

SPORTS SPIELS

By BOB BERG

An activity which has been gaining rapid prominence here at the university in the past few years is Winter Sports. A colorful, fascinating sport, it has met with great approval and interest by the student body as indicated by the large turnout of candidates. This season, nearly thirty-five aspirants answered Coach Ted Curtis' first call for snowbirds, and they are getting into condition until the first snowfall by taking track workouts.

Winter Sports offers those not interested in either basketball or track an excellent opportunity to indulge in a healthy, vigorous sport and also participate in actual competition. Coach Ted Curtis always sends a team to Lake Placid Carnival at New York and to the Dartmouth Carnival at the Hanover College. Last year, the Pale Blue snowbirds placed third in both meets, as "Win" Robbins broke the two mile snowshoe record in the Dartmouth Meet. Following these carnivals, the Curtis coached team successfully defended its Winter Sports state championship here at Orono last year by defeating Bates in a close dual affair.

There seems to have cropped up much misunderstanding lately concerning the eligibility of athletes who have played for another institution. The rule governing this violation at Maine is as follows: No person shall be eligible to represent his institution in any intercollegiate athletic contest for one year, including a full season of the sport during which he violated the rule, who, during the college year, has engaged in any athletic contest not connected with his institution. Students violating this rule shall not be permitted to participate in any intercollegiate contest from the time of the violation, and for one full year following the close

A.T.O. WINS INTRAMURAL TOUCH FOOTBALL TITLE

Playing in the mud of Alumni Field on Sunday afternoon, Alpha Tau Omega won the Intramural Touch-Football title by defeating Sigma Alpha Epsilon three first downs to one. A.T.O.'s passing attack was the outstanding feature of the game and the greater part of their attempted passes were successful, thereby giving them the verdict. S.A.E. also resorted to a passing game but they had little success as the score indicates. Carl Hand was the outstanding player for A.T.O. and Swen Hallgren for S.A.E.

Captain Wear of the military department, announced that about thirty-five of the forty-five girls signed up for the rifle team reported for the first practice, Monday.

Twenty of the girls, chosen for their skill, will be retained for the team. Practice will be on Mondays, Thursdays, and Fridays, at 1:30-4:30 P.M. of the athletic season in which the offense was committed. If the student is ineligible at the time of the violation of this rule, this penalty shall commence at the time the previous disqualification is raised. Any further violation of the rule by the same student will make him completely ineligible.

An exception to this rule states that: Institutional authorities may permit a student to participate in the regular alumni games with his preparatory school teams.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL AT SCRIMMAGE STAGE

Two Weeks Left Before First Game of Schedule

With only two weeks of practice left before the first freshman basketball game, Coach Kenyon has been trying out various combinations of men in an effort to select his starting quintet.

The question of eligibility of players has been bothering the coach, as the scholastic status of several promising candidates seems to be in doubt. Despite the threatened loss of these players, however, Coach Kenyon expects to put out a winning team, as he has about seventy men to choose from.

Fifty-eight men have reported for boxing instruction to Coach Red Hagan. Others are expected to sign up soon in order to be in the best of shape for the boxing tournament and tryouts this winter and spring. Classes are being held at 4:10 every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday in the gym.

After putting his squad through more than a week's training in the fundamentals of the game, the frosh mentor has begun to divide the men into teams, and send them through practice scrimmages. He will continue to do this until he makes his final selections.

As in previous years, the present squad will not be cut, and, in as far as possible, every man will be given a chance to play.
