Maine Harriers Trim Mules by Perfect Score

By Erwin Cooper

Maine's Pale Blue harriers ran to a one-sided 15-46 victory against the Colby mules over the varsity course at Orono last Saturday. Maine compiled a perfect score as six Maine men finished before the first Colby man broke the tape.

Bill Hunnewell and Red Clifford, Maine's two crack harriers, did not run in the meet but ran a time trial instead. Starting with a one-minute handicap, Hunnewell finished in front of Ohler and Mowatt, who tied for first in the meet. Both Clifford and Hunnewell ran the course in faster times than their mates.

Sawyer, Hart, Hersey, and Troland, all of Maine, finished ahead of the first Colby runner.

Coach Jenkins is priming his charges for the defense of the New England Cross Country Championships at Franklin Park, Boston. Hunnewell, present New England title holder, will defend his crown. Chief contender will be Hank Zamparelli of Northeastern University, National 10,000 meter Champion, and member of the United States Olympic team.

Rhode Island State, which finished two points behind Maine last year, has five of last years' team back and, therefore, is the favorite to annex the team prize. Maine's

Co-eds To Hear Vocational Talk

Miss Florence Jackson To Address Women On Two Day Visit

Women students of the University will have the opportunity not only to hear Miss Florence Jackson, Vocational Counselor, lecture on November 9 and 10, but also to participate in round-table discussions on occupations selected because of the interest which the girls themselves indicated in them. More than half of Miss Jackson's time during her two-day visit will be devoted to round-table discussions and to individual personal interviews with upper class students, according to Mr. Philip J. Brockway, Placement Director.

It is hoped that the discussions and interviews will personalize the vocational talks and help individual students solve their own vocational problems, Mr. Brockway indicated. Active participation in such a program, he said, should be far more valuable to the individual than just a general lecture. With this end in view, the committee in charge, under the direction of Dean Edith Wilson, has included in Miss Jackson's program twelve half-hour round-table discussions each covering an occupation in which several students indicated an interest. Each discussion will be led by a student interested in the subject who will be asked to prepare a brief analysis of the occupation. Miss Jackson will then discuss the occupation from her point of view and lead a general discussion.

For the general assembly talk by Miss Jackson at 10:00 a.m. on November 9, all women students will be excused from classes. For participation in round-table discussions, which conflict with classes, permission to attend should be requested in advance from the instructor. Attendance will be taken at all round-tables and those attending will be excused from class.

The entire program of Miss Jackson's visit is as follows:

chances are not very encouraging, as the Pale Blue has not a well balanced team. However, there is a possibility that George Sawyer, who has been improving lately, will show his class. Hart, another sophomore, may also return to form.

The team will go to Bowdoin on the football special Saturday and will leave after the game for Boston.

The Sophomore Eagles will sponsor a stag dance Friday night. The Maine Bears will furnish the music.

Hey, Mister--What's the Score?

By Bill Saltzman

Campus Sports Editor

The University of Maine football team is 17 points better than Northwestern's mighty gridiron force, conquerors of Minnesota and rated as the outstanding college eleven in the country the past week—that is, by comparative scores.

It's very easy to figure it out, if you have the patience to delve through numerous team records. Just follow us along, and you, too, will see that our Bears should be rated better than powerful Northwestern.

Maine defeated New Hampshire 27-6, which makes Maine 21 points better than the Wildcats. Now, New Hampshire lost to Boston College by a 12-0 score. Maine is, therefore, nine points better than the Eagles.

B. C. took Providence College by a 26-0 tally, which if you know your mathematics, gives the Black Bears 35 points over the Rhode Island institution. Providence lost 21-6 to Holy Cross, which, in turn, trimmed Carnegie Tech 7-0. Maine is, therefore, 27 points better than Carnegie Tech.

Are you lost? Well, don't worry; we're nearly finished. Carnegie took a 21-7 trouncing at the hands of Notre Dame who is, then, 13 points behind Maine. Since Notre Dame knocked off Ohio State 7-2, the University of Maine is 18 up on Ohio State.

Northwestern was able to defeat Ohio State by only a 14-13 score. Maine, therefore, is 17 points better than Northwestern!

Which just goes to show that comparative scores don't mean a thing.

GLUE ON HIS FINGERS: "Smokey" Joe Hamlin, stellar varsity left end, who has been on the receiving end of many of the heaves of Fran Smith and Dow. He should prove a thorn in the side of Bowdoin on Saturday.

Maine Bears, Undefeated In State Competition, To Meet Bowdoin Saturday

Armistice Day Lecture Planned

Assembly Program Is To Feature Prof. Bonn, Noted Economist

A general assembly will be held on Armistice Day, Wednesday, November 11, in the Memorial Gymnasium at 11 o'clock. Professor Moritz J. Bonn will give an address, probably on the subject "The Haves and the Have Nots."

Professor Bonn is Lecturer in Economics at the London School of Economics, and is one of the most distinguished men in his field. Formerly he was Rector of the Handels-Hochschule of Berlin; during the period of the war, 1914-17, he was Visiting Professor successively at the Universities of California, Wisconsin, and Cornell. At the close of the war he became an adviser to the German government on reparations questions, which position he held during the years 1919-21. He spoke at the Institute of Politics at Williamsstown in 1924 and has frequently been heard at the Geneva School of International Studies. He has lectured frequently at the colleges and universities of this country and has been pronounced a man of remarkable ability, perfect in the use of the English language and thoroughly familiar with the international situation.

The assembly committee plans to have Professor Bonn address a faculty luncheon and conduct at least one seminar for students and faculty in the social sciences. The aim of the committee is to have visiting lecturers stay for a period of several days rather than just for the period of the lecture. This plan should lead to worthwhile opportunities to answer questions raised by the lecture, and to a valuable interchange of ideas in discussion groups.

Engineering Award Given to University

A civil engineering scholarship in the award of which preference will be given to natives of Maine, has been added to the student aid fund at the University as a result of the bequest of David E. Hathorne, of Woolwich, and the gift of his widow, Mrs. Carrie E. Hathorne, according to the announcement made by President Hauck.

The scholarship will bear the name of the donors' only child, Philip R. Hathorne of the class of 1923, who was drowned at Fish River Falls, Fort Kent. The principal of the prize fund is $7000. Mrs. Hathorne adding a gift of $2000 to the $5000 bequest of her husband, who died in Florida last February.

Following graduation, Philip Hathorne spent several years in the far west and in Alaska, returning to the east in 1928, when he entered the employment of the International Paper Company as a civil engineer. He was working on an engineering project at the time of his death.

Hathorne as an undergraduate was a member of the student civil engineering club and won his numerals on the freshman track team.

In announcing these gifts, President Hauck paid tribute to the donors of this fund and stated that the scholarships would be especially helpful since they are to be given to needy and deserving students, so many of whom are finding it difficult to finance their college education under present conditions.

NOTICE

All students who are interested in the John M. Oak Prize Speaking contest which was originally scheduled to be held on November 19 should see Mark Bailey, professor of public speaking, at once.

Because only three students have signified intentions of competing, the date of the contest may have to be changed.

This contest is to be an annual affair, made possible by a bequest the University received from John M. Oak, of Bangor, an alumnus of Maine. Prizes of $25, $10, and $5 will be given to winners.

Rules of the contest can be found in the October 22nd issue of the Campus.

Bricemen Will Make Strong Bid for State Crown

POLAR BEARS STRONG

Fran Smith May Be Able To Play; Reidman Has Injured Knee

By Bob Cullinan

The University of Maine makes its final bid of the 1936 season for supremacy in Maine football this Saturday when it journeys to Brunswick to face the Bowdoin Polar Bear in the deciding game of the State Series. With both teams undefeated in state competition and a record crowd present, the battle promises action of the highest calibre, threatening to surpass last years' memorable duel.

Although figures might give Maine a slight advantage, no one is taking any stock in them. Last year Bowdoin was the heavy favorite, and yet was lucky to escape with a tie. The two teams first met back in 1896 and since then have played 39 times with Maine winning 22, losing 12, and tying five.

Since Fred Brice has been coaching Maine teams, however, the Black Bears have lost only twice. But with the coming of Adam Walsh, the Polar Bear has ceased to be a pushover. Maine is the only team that a Walsh-coached combine has yet to defeat. Wesleyan and Williams, two of the strongest small college combines in New England, have both fallen in the past two years, and Maine alone stands up.

Walsh has a host of good men to pick from this year, some of them leftovers from last year, and others up from the freshman ranks. It is hard to pick a star from the backs, as they all have had a hand in the scoring and yard-gaining. Last week it was Dave Soule, a streamlined speedster, who turned the tables on Bates. The week before, Johnny Frye went well against Colby, and so on.

Two sophomores who have had much to do with the success of the team are Benny Karsokas and Oakley Melendy. Bobbie Gentry, who showed the fans some real speed last fall in the Maine game, and Ara Karakashian, a hard hitting fullback, are again in the lineup.

In the line, there are nine men who faced

Service Emblem Is Awarded R. H. Fogler

Raymond H. Fogler, of Chicago, vice president of Montgomery Ward and Company, and prominent alumnus of the University of Maine, was honored during Homecoming by the award of the Alumni Service Emblem in recognition of distinctive services to the University and the General Alumni Association.

Mr. Fogler '15, a native of Rockport, Maine, has been active and interested in alumni affairs of the University ever since his graduation. In spite of business responsibilities and success he has held many positions and participated in many activities of the Alumni Association. He was formerly president of the New York Association, for four years president of the General Alumni Association, and a member of the Alumni Council twelve years. He is a member of several committees in the work of the alumni. Since his graduation he has returned to the campus for University and alumni events year after year in spite of his distance from the University.

After graduation from Maine, Mr. Fogler attended Princeton University for graduate work, receiving an advanced degree. In 1917 he returned to the University to become executive secretary of the Extension Service in the College of Agriculture. Two years later he joined the W. T. Grant Co., then a small organization of about 25 stores. Working up from the bottom, Mr. Fogler grew with the growth of that company until nine years later he was appointed to the important position of director of personnel and real estate. In this capacity he became known as one of the leading personnel men in the country.

In 1932 Mr. Fogler was offered a position with Montgomery Ward Company as vice president in charge of retail organization. This position gave him direct responsibility for the co-ordination and management of over 500 stores. He now holds the position of General Manager of Operation.

Pink Elephants

After its second consecutive stinging defeat in national elections, the Republican party is in a decidedly embarrassing position. After the overwhelming defeat of the party in 1932 many were asking, "What's going to become of the Republican party?" The point which they wished to drive home was that after such an overwhelming setback the Republicans never again could recover lost ground or occupy the position in national affairs that they formerly had held.

Now, four years later, there are more who will ask the same question and predict the same future.

It must be frankly admitted that the Republican party is distinctly out of character in the role of a minority party—and particularly as a minority party facing such tremendous opposition. Just what its future will be, however, will depend largely on the course of action or inaction that it takes during the next two years. It must continue the aggressive rebuilding of its structure begun under the energetic supervision of John D. M. Hamilton, it must uncover new leadership of greater strength than it has shown in recent years, it must find a new issue to appeal to the people and must take an unequivocal stand upon it.

It is of no avail whatsoever to recite the causes of the New Deal victory or to bewail the one-sidedness of the vote. Now is the time for the party to begin looking forward.

Should the Republicans lose morale in defeat and return to unorganized assaults on the administration, the time might be ripe for the creation of a new party. That is why so much depends on its future course of action.

For the time being it is on the spot. It is doubly embarrassed. Lo, the pink elephant!

"SO THE PEOPLE MAY KNOW"

By Joe College

What's the hurry... You're too young to vote! Oh, I see, you're just old enough to vote this year... and so Pierce, over at the Registrar's office, signs many absentee ballots—(he's a notary public) but he never asks what's in them; nor do the smug students tell! Republican-Democrat-Communist, who knows? By the time Old Joe gets this here letter handed in, it will be all over with—except for the funeral or the triumphant procession—according to the way you look at it... Well, one momentous thing has happened in the last four years, and that's the tap-room-fad! Joe heard the other night about a couple young fellows who asked for a couple drinks... "Go away," the bartender said to them, "We can't serve eighteen-year-olds!" "We aren't eighteen!" cried the two (sophomores); "Why, we're 20 (twenty) years old!" "Sorry, you must be 21 or over!" *tse! That's kinda tough to hear on Homecoming Night, don'tcha think?

(Speaking of ball games, look out for Bob Allen escorting Edna Louise Harrison, the beautiful, to the Bowdoin game)... and while we're on the subject of celebrities, let Joe tell you of the co-ed who saw a man walking on the campus lawn. Now she knew that people weren't supposed to walk on lawns, so she called "Hey, get off there!" And the man turned around! Guess who? Presy!... And the boy (working in the Make-up Department of the Masque, get it?) left the rehearsal simultaneously with a girl in the cast, da-tata!... Richard M. Boyer, junior, was escorting a matron (of a girls' dormitory) to the movies and back. Old Joe College picked up the trail of two would-be private detectives who followed Richard to and from the show, up the farm road, and around and around... And did you know about "Brother and I," the Higgins twins? One of them has taken a tumble for Frances Smith, but like Tweedledee and Tweedledum, Joe can't figure out which one it is!... My, my, Helen Philbrook certainly uses her lungs at a football game, and so does Friend Jim Bean... and must Libby Doble always hug Bob Lavery whenever Maine makes a touchdown? It doesn't seem quite fair to Bob... Have you heard the present ruling of the cheerleaders, by the way? It is as follows: Dotie Davis, the cutest; Libby Doble, most active; Lucille Bell, most vocative!—or should we say provocative!

Bears To Face Bowdoin on Saturday

the Black Bears. Four of them are ends, all of them weighing in the vicinity of 170 pounds. They are Dave Fitts, Ed Curran, Andy Cox, and Fred Newman. They are all juniors, groomed last year to fill the vacancies left by the graduation of Will Manter and Joe Drummond.

The two largest boys on the squad are playing tackle. One of these, George Griffith, is one of the leading candidates for All-Maine honors. He tips the scales at 185. His running mate is Dan Healey, a 200 pounder who has seen varsity action for the past two years. At guard are Harold Ashkenazy and Dick Clapp. The former was All-Maine last year and at the rate that he has been going will probably repeat.

Bill Burton, 145 pound bundle of dynamite, will probably start at center. The Polar Bears may be without their captain, Buck Sawyer, who was injured in the Bates game. His loss would seriously weaken the Brunswick cluster, inasmuch as he is about as fine a kicker as there is in the state.

The Maine picture, however, is not too dark. Fran Smith, the "Blond Bomber," will be back in the game, and with Jim Dow will double the trouble for Bowdoin. Smith's absence was very noticeable last week against Colby, since it caused a shaking up of the backfield, and this was nearly disastrous. The NEA feature service printed an article early this week about the record of a Marquette passer who had completed 37 tosses out of 73 attempts, and called it the best average in the country. But Smith has a record of 39 out of 65. Dow winged 12 out of 23 successfully last week, two of these resulting scores. In the last five games, 11 of Maine's 12 touchdowns came from passes.

The condition of Ernie Reidman remains uncertain. Whether his knee would heal enough to permit him to play Saturday was not known at this writing. His substitute, Linc Fish, was also a casualty, getting a front tooth broken. Another on the sick list was Pete Mallett. He has been suffering a throat infection and an injured leg. The rest of the squad, however, is set.

The lineup will probably be the same one that has started all the State Series games so far this year. It will have Smoky Joe Hamlin at one end and aggressive Seth Williams at the other. The play of these two has been a sight for sore eyes. Both are exceptionally fine pass receivers, better than average defensive men, and good blockers in the bargain. They would make an ideal All-Maine combination, and their work this coming Saturday will probably make or break their chances.

In the tackle positions will be Wally Gleason and Nolan Jackson. These two have been constant thorns in the sides of their opponents this fall. Both are big, and should cause Bowdoin plenty of trouble. At the guard berths will be Dewing Proctor, place kick artist, and either Reidman or Fish.

Pat Hutchings will probably start at center. This man, in spite of his lack of weight, has been one of the strongest defensive players on the team. All year long the announcer has been yelling on about three plays out of five, "Tackled by Hutchings."

The backfield will probably have Fran Smith, Rod Elliott, Jim Dow, and Pete Mallett starting. Elliott is the second highest scorer in New England, being two points behind Barney Marcus. On the basis of their work against Colby, Phil Rogers and Ralph Beisel ought to get another chance to display their wares. Rogers, especially, ran with the will to get ahead. His carrying on a reverse was very good when the line enabled him to get beyond the line of scrimmage.

A special train will carry Maine rooters to the scene of activity and if it is anything like the specials in the past, it will be well worth the price to make the trip.

Rhodes Scholarship Candidates Are Named

ment is made for two years in the first instance with the possible third year for those whose record at Oxford and plan of study make such an award advisable.

The University students, with candidates from other Maine colleges, will make up a group from which the state committee will select two, who will appear before the District Committee, which, in turn, is to choose the four boys to represent the New England states at Oxford.

During the last 7 years of Big Ten competition, Purdue has won 28 games, lost 6, and tied 2 for a percentage of .777.

OFF TO BOWDOIN

If weather permits, the power house whistle will be blown at 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning in order that all students planning to take the special train to Bowdoin may meet with the band and cheerleaders in front of Hannibal Hamlin Hall. The entire student body will then march to the train in body.

Neither Here Nor There

By Bill Cumerford

This is just me starting off—Neither Here nor There! In my recent wanderings I have found many interesting events of late—in regard to that scholastic rating—did you know that the first string football team has a scholastic rating in the line of 2.9 and a backfield rank of 2.7? The team average appears to be about 2.3! Not bad at all. By the way—did you notice how much spirit that freshman crowd had at the game Saturday? They were way ahead of the cheerleaders! Why can't the upperclassmen follow their example for once?

Reversing the idea—a little poem that drifted into my cranial regions recently, dedicated to the frosh from the upperclassmen:

As you are now
So once were we
As we are now
So you will be
So prepare your studies
And follow we.

This is the time of the year when assignments get so far ahead of the student that he is forced to begin pursuing his studies.

This sounds like pretty fair EVOLUTION:

When a freshman quotes a great man, he calls it a quotation.

When a sophomore quotes a great man, he believes it's a swell original thought.

When a junior quotes a great man, it's an allusion.

But when a senior quotes a great man—that's an illusion.

Your correspondent is forced to comment upon the speed of many four wheeled vehicles on the campus lately. There is no doubt of its being EXCESSIVE and UNREASONABLE! For the sake of our safety here at Maine, be sensible about it. Reading the essay "And Sudden Death" should have helped many of our wild drivers, but common sense and a little head-work will do more good than any amount of astounding literature.

It is here! The new Jubilee Model Casey Copper Coffin! Streamlined, Turret Top, all-copper coffins are presented to the public today. In six delicious colors. See our models in one of our conveniently located show windows—in fact, try one on our 30-day trial. Let the wife and kiddies get in and see for themselves how comfortable and sturdy it is—sleep in it over night and you will leave for work the next day—a new man!

For you chemists:

A little green chemist,
On a summer day,
Some chemicals mixed
In a little green way;
And now the green grasses
Tenderly wave
O'er the chemist's
Green little grave.

(Auburn Plainsman)

I like to ride on a bus because it goes so fast, and the faster it goes the less scenery I see, and the less scenery I see the better I like it because scenery is green and it looks like spinach and I don't like spinach, and if I liked spinach I would eat it but I don't like it so I don't eat it.

(per H. Kassel)

As the hot water turns to steam we go along, noting that a Maine student is like a kerosene lamp:

He is not very bright,
Smokes,
Usually gets turned down,
And often goes out at night.

Nevertheless, furthermore, and therefore—we drift along, seeing you—Neither Here nor There.

University Placement Committee Meets To Plan Year's Program

The members of the Alumni Placement Committee of the University of Maine met in joint session with the Faculty Placement Committee at 4:10 Friday, October 30, in President Hauck's office to discuss plans and programs for the more effective placement and vocational counselling of University of Maine students.

The members of the Alumni Placement Committee are appointed in advisory capacities to represent as wide distribution of types of occupations and also geographical location as possible. The appointment of this committee this year is an important step forward in the work of placement, being designed to give officials of the Placement Bureau and members of the Faculty Committee the point of view of the business man and the employer. This year's plans of the Faculty Committee of the Placement Bureau were outlined to the Alumni Committee and discussed from the point of view of these prominent business men.

The Faculty Placement Committee which has functioned ever since the beginning of the Placement Bureau consists of the President, the Deans of the University, and several members of the Board of Administration. The meeting last week was the first time that the committees have met in joint session.

Maine Defeats Colby, 14-7, in Closing Minutes

By Bill Saltzman

Campus Sports Editor

"Never give a sucker a break," said Barnum, the great circus magnate, once. Apparently, the University of Maine Black Bears had never heard of this saying, for Colby received more gifts last Saturday than did the Dionne quintuplets on their birthday. And Colby, too, was evidently ignorant of this adage, for all they were able to attain out of these numerous breaks was one touchdown.

But, while the Black Bears might never have heard of Barnum, they certainly did know a break when they saw it.

With the score tied 7-7 and with less than two minutes remaining in the contest, Seth Williams recovered a fumble on the Colby 25 yard line for Maine's one and only break of the entire game. On the very next play, Jim Dow tossed a short pass to Rod Elliott who, eluding three or four Colby men, danced his way to a touchdown and a 14-7 victory for Maine.

It was a hard fought contest throughout. Although lacking the color of the Bates game, the melee had plenty of thrills, starting with Washuk's touchdown run in the initial period for the lone Colby score and climaxed with Elliott's brilliant dash in the closing minutes for the winning six-pointer.

The Bricemen earned 11 first downs to only four for Colby; outrushed the Mules 145 yards to 103 yards; gained 167 yards through forwards as compared to only three yards for Colby; and were in Mule territory nearly all the game.

Especially outstanding was the play of the two Bear ends, Smokey Joe Hamlin and Seth Williams. They tackled fiercely, blocked well, and their pass receiving was extraordinary. It has been a long time since such an exhibition of end play has been shown on Alumni Field.

Washuk was the shining Colby light. Like Marcus who was the whole Bates eleven, Washuk bore the brunt of the Mule attack. He was fast, shifty, and elusive. He was a capable punter and passer, and his defensive work was highly commendable. It is, indeed, unfortunate that his glory was somewhat dimmed by his fumble in the closing minutes that set the stage for the Maine touchdown.

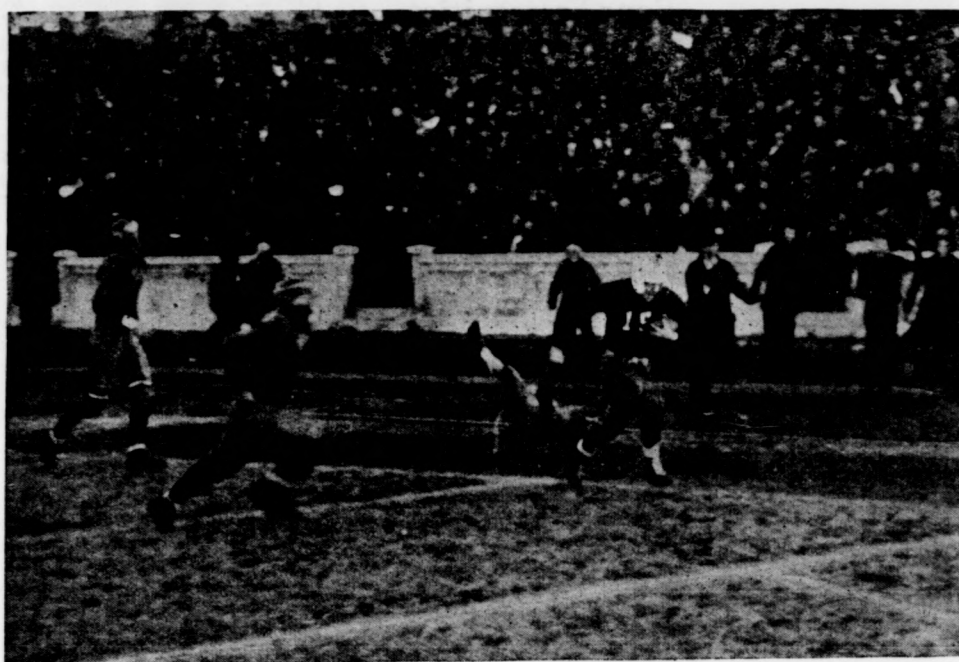

But, the forgotten man was Aroostook Jim Dow, the veteran Maine halfback who took over the injured Smith's passing duties. Dow was pretty much on the spot, but he came through with a brilliant exhibition of passing. Out of 24 passes that he threw, Dow completed 13, which isn't bad in any league. Of course his forwards were not so accurate as those of Smith, nor were they so easy to catch, but they did do the trick.

Colby drew first blood near the end of the first period. With the ball on the Colby 28 yard line, Bill Chapman, Maine right halfback fumbled. Thompson, Colby guard, recovered to present Colby with one of its many breaks.

Stan Washuk, on the very next play, sneaked through left tackle and raced 28 yards for a touchdown. Elliott chased the Colby speedster but was able to tackle him only over the goal line. Chapman, the right halfback, slipped and was out of the pursuit while Mallett, fullback, was taken out by some Colby man.

Washuk kicked the extra point and the score was now 7-0 in Colby's favor.

It was all Maine the second half, although Colby did receive a break immediately upon the opening kick-off. It was a short place kick and the Mules recovered the ball on Maine's 35 yard line. After

Roddie Elliott turns in a sensational 22 yard run to score a touchdown and bring a Maine victory in the closing minutes of the Colby game

Washuk had lost four yards in two plays, his pass was intercepted by Dow who carried it back to the Maine 35 marker.

Mallett hit right tackle for five yards. Failing to gain, Maine punted to the Mule 18 yard line. Washuk again could not make any headway for the Colby team and punted back to the Maine 48.

Despite a 18 yard Dow-Williams pass, Elliott was forced to kick and the ball traveled over the goal line. Colby booted back and Maine had the ball on its own 41 yard line.

Then the Maine offense struck swiftly and unexpectedly. Rogers ripped 10 yards off his own left tackle. A short pass from Dow to Williams brought Maine down to Colby's 29 yard line. Rogers again crashed through for two yards.

After two incomplete passes, Dow suddenly clicked on a heave to Williams. The Maine end snared the ball on the 17 yard line, twisted away from two would-be tacklers, and ran 10 yards for the Maine six-pointer. Dewey Proctor, calmly place-kicked the extra point to tie up the ball game.

It seemed, as the contest slowly dragged into its final stages, that the melee would end in a tie. Both elevens were trying desperately for the winning point with Maine having a wide advantage. At the beginning of the fourth quarter, Maine, through passes, worked its way down to the Colby 20 yard line.

Dow skirted around right end for three yards, but the Colby line held in the next two plays. On the fourth down, Dewey Proctor attempted to kick a field goal, but the ball went short and wide.

Colby took the ball on the 16 yard line, but was forced to punt to the Maine 45 yard line as the Bear barrier broke through to down Washuk for losses. After an exchange of punts, Maine took the ball on the 48 yard line.

A shovel pass from Elliott to Hamlin netted 8 yards. It seemed as if Maine was destined to score. But a lateral from Hamlin, who had received a pass from Dow, was fumbled and Colby recovered on its 32 yard line.

Tom Yawinski, Colby's great back who had been on the sidelines because of an injured leg, entered the game. Hitting the line like a bullet, Yawinski smashed through for three yards. On the next play, however, Hamlin broke through the line and chased the Colby star who was planning to pass back to the two yard line. Yawinski intentionally threw away the ball and Colby was penalized 15 yards.

Elliott returned Washuk's punt to the 36 yard line. Dow to Hamlin was complete for 16 yards, and Maine was on the 20 yard line. But here again Colby's luck asserted itself. Maine was penalized 15 yards for illegal use of the hands, and Elliott was forced to punt.

Four plays later came Maine's one and only break. Washuk fumbled on his 25 yard line, and Seth Williams, who had been playing a peach of a game, recovered for the Bears. It was a real break, and Maine proceeded to make the most of it.

Elliott received Dow's three yard pass and dashed 22 yards for the winning touchdown. Proctor's place kick was good.

By Bill Saltzman

Highlights of the Maine-Colby contest ... Page Burt L. Standish. Page Ralph Henry Barbour. Page Harold Sherman. Page all writers of sport fiction, for here is a finish to a game that would do justice to even their imaginations. We refer of course to that rousing play that won the melee for Maine in the closing minutes ... A pass from Dow to Elliott, a shifty run by the elusive Canadian halfback—and the Bears defeated the Mules 14-7 ... He who laughs last, laughs best. All afternoon Colby had been receiving the breaks, but suddenly in the closing minutes, Washuk's fumble was recovered by Seth Williams to set the stage for the winning touchdown ... Where was the Colby mule? We mean the mascot, of course ... Maine had Bananas present, although by proxy in the shape of a stuffed cub ... Colby's head cheerleader was the best that we have seen in three years ... Maine won the football game, the cross country meet, and the band contest ... A great cheer arose from the Colby stands during the half when it was announced that Bates was leading Bowdoin ... Among the spectators present were Governor Louis Brann and Governor-elect Lew Barrows. Brann, incidentally, predicted that Maine would win the ball game ... Although Tom Yawinski was in the game for only a short time, he displayed remarkable speed (towards his own goal) ... Said a Colby fan, watching the Maine runners make a clean sweep in the cross country meet: "Gosh, Colby must have run the wrong way" ... Joe Hamlin seems to have cinched his All-Maine end post ... One mustn't, however, forget the brilliant play of Seth Williams. Brice claims that Williams and Hamlin are the best end pair that he has had in the last 15 years. And there have been some remarkable performers during that period, too ... Franny Smith watched the game in street clothes ... Here's hoping that he can play in Saturday's game ... Most emphatic incident of the game: Williams pounding the turf with his fist after slipping upon receiving a pass.

All roads lead to Brunswick this Saturday. It is an ideal situation, a situation long dreamed by gridiron fans. Bowdoin vs. Maine for the state championship. What could be more perfect, especially since our Maine Bears will trim Bowdoin? We'll be seeing you there.
*****

Predictions ... Bowdoin, good old Bowdoin, crossed us again. If it had not been for those cursed Polar Bears upsetting our prediction for about the 'tenth time, we would have had a perfect score. Oh well, our Bears will knock all those peculiar notions out of Bowdoin's head.

But enough of that, for we have great news for all students and members of the faculty. We're going to give everyone a chance to predict this week. Yes, sir, yours truly is going to refrain from his half-baked prognostications, and let you, you, and you try your hands at this fascinating game.

ONE BUCK (in other words, one dollar) will be given to that person who predicts the nearest scores of the Colby-Bates and Maine-Bowdoin melees. All predictions must be in by Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Put them in either Box 69, the Maine Campus Box, Alumni Hall, or hand them to the editor, the sports editor, or any member of the editorial board of the Maine Campus.

A dollar isn't bad pay for a few minutes' fun. The editorial board will be the judges, and everything will be on the up-and-up.

So, send in your predictions. Don't be scared. The winner will be announced in next week's Campus. All right, gang, shoot 'em in.

P.S. We would especially like to hear from the co-eds.

PURE...and of finer texture than most anything that touches your lips...

We all agree on this... cigarette paper is important. For Chesterfield we use the best paper that we can buy. It is called Champagne Cigarette Paper. It is made from the soft, silky fibre of the flax plant. It is washed over and over in clear, sparkling water.

A lot of the pleasure you get in smoking Chesterfields is due to our using the right kind of cigarette paper. Chesterfield paper is pure, and it burns without taste or odor.

Chesterfield

They're Milder and They Satisfy

Remember this... two things make the smoking quality of a cigarette—the tobaccos and the paper. The Champagne cigarette paper on Chesterfields is tested over and over for purity, for the right burning quality. Another reason why Chesterfield wins.
