High School Contestants Speak Here

Fifty-seven Schools To Send Entrants For Contest

MEDALS FOR PRIZES

Maine Students To Assist With Preliminary Competitions

By Sherley Sweet

Representatives from 57 secondary schools from all parts of the state will take part in the annual University of Maine Speaking Contest, to be held here tomorrow.

The contestants will be guests of the University during their stay here from Thursday evening to Saturday morning. They will be tendered a banquet in the Memorial Gymnasium at 12:00 Friday, at which President Hauck will welcome the entrants to the University. To speak on the same occasion are Hope Ashby, for the All-Maine Women; Sargent Russell, for the Debating Society; and Thomas Houghton, for the Student Senate. Other guests will be Dean Paul Cloke, Dean Edward Allen, Dean Arthur L. Deering, and Dean Olin S. Lutes.

The preliminaries will be held in Stevens and North Stevens Hall at 2:30 p.m. The contest is divided into four divisions: serious reading, humorous reading, declamation, and extemporaneous speaking. Because of the large number of contestants, each division will be divided into sections, A, B, C, D, and E. One contestant will be chosen in each section to represent the division in the finals, to be held in the Little Theatre in the evening at 7:30. The cash prizes of previous years have been dropped, and individual medals will be given instead. First prize will be a gold medal; second prize, a silver medal; and third, fourth, and fifth prizes, bronze medals.

More than 100 University students will take part in the judging, and assist in the time-keeping, scoring, and so forth, for the preliminaries. Professor Mark Baffey will be chairman for the finals. Judges for the finals have not yet been announced.

The general subject for extemporaneous speaking will be "Spain and the Revolution." Each contestant will be allowed to draw three subjects and choose one from a list previously compiled by three members of the faculty. One hour and a half will be the time allowed for preparation in which the facilities of the University library will be available for reference work. Speaking time for the extemporaneous speakers will be from five to seven minutes; for the other divisions, eight to ten minutes.

The first place winners in each division will speak over WLBZ at 11:00 a.m. Saturday.

Serious Reading—Section A

2:30 p.m., Room 17, North Stevens

Chairman: Barbara Corbett. Timekeepers: Estelle Lawrence, Margaret Peaslee. Judges: Mary Archibald, Barbara Whittridge, Ruth Kimball.

Preliminary Registration Begins May 3 For Arts

The preliminary registration for the fall semester in the College of Arts and Sciences will begin on May 3 and end on May 15. All students other than seniors graduating in June are asked to register. If a student plans to attend another institution, a note to that effect will be made upon the registration card.

All freshmen are to report on April 30 and May 1 at the office of the Dean to register for appointments with their freshman advisers.

Sophomores who have not already done so are to see their sophomore advisers and indicate their preference for a major field, and thereafter see the head of the department concerned.

Juniors are to report to their major advisers.

Masque Presents Desert Drama As Final Production of Season

Marion Hatch Enacts Feminine Lead, Gabby Maple, Clark Kunev Depicts Leading Male Role In Sherwood's 'Petrified Forest'

By Marguerite Bannigan

"The Petrified Forest," a drama in two acts by Robert Sherwood, whose "Idiot's Delight" won him the 1936 Pulitzer Prize, was presented by the Maine Masque last night in the Little Theatre as the final production of the season. The second performance of the play will be given tonight.

"The Petrified Forest," like Sherwood's "Reunion in Vienna," is a play of contrasts and comparisons. The author casts together in Black Mesa a group of people representing several types, and impartially, but vividly, brings out their different characters and philosophies.

The opening scene, showing the conversation of two telegraph linemen, portrayed by Herman Billings and Harland Verrill, of the blustering Jason Maple, depicted by Prof. Mark Bailey, and of the filling station assistant, Boze Hertzlinger, played by Wallace Gleason, establishes the atmosphere of mental restlessness which dominates the entire play. The rambling reminiscences of Gramp Maple, played by Robert Cail, the resentful protests of Jason, and the arguments of the two linemen clearly indicate the contrast between the America of yesterday and that same country of today.

Gabby Maple, convincingly portrayed by Marion Hatch, is a spirited, romantic, and ambitious girl, who is utterly incongruous with the arid monotony of her desert home. She is interested in literature and art, and wants to go to France to improve her painting and to gain experience.

Boastful Boze Hertzlinger, former football hero, who makes love to Gabby, stands out in marked contrast to the cynical Alan Squier, ably played by Clark Kunev. Squier is interested in Gabby's ideas and he encourages her ambitions, but he realizes that even if he does let himself love her, he has no money, no ambitions—nothing to offer her. He recognizes that he has outlived his usefulness. He can help Gabby only by dying. She can then have his insurance on which to go to France and realize her dreams.

Duke Mantee, capably played by Dewing Proctor, is the ruthless, laconic leader of a gang of desperados and, like Squier, represents obsolete rugged individualism. Mantee's bandits, played by Laurens Parkman, Earl Carlson, and Robert Bramhall represent disrespect to the law. The sheriff and his deputies, roles taken by Robert Hussey, Samuel Crowell, and Edward Hayes, who poke fun at the Vigilantes, played by Prof. Mark Bailey, Parker Troland, and Richard Quigley, make up the law element.

Mr. and Mrs. Chisholm, portrayed by James Martenoff and Lucille Epstein, are materialistic, worldly people, opposites in character and personality, and totally bored with each other. Paula, the Mexican cook, is colorfully depicted by Barbara Whittridge, and Joseph, the Chisholm's chauffeur, is played by Byron Sibley.

B. C. Track Team To Oppose Maine

Bay State Team Favored To Take Maine Bears Here Saturday

By Bob Atwood
Campus Sports Reporter

The University of Maine's track team faces the toughest assignment of the year when it meets the high-flying Eagles of Boston College here Saturday afternoon.

Boston College, presenting one of the most powerful small college teams in the east, is going to take the title "high flying" very literally. It has almost certain winners in every race and if it is to be defeated, it must be done through overwhelming supremacy by Maine in the weights.

Boston's only weak spot is in these field events, and even this weakness does not extend into the shot-putting. It is in the shot that Maine fans will see one of the best performers in the country, and by far the best in the east, in the person of Dimmie Zaitz whose better than 50 foot heaves have dominated all opposition in New England track circles for the past two years.

Another brilliant star, Zeimetz, was an interscholastic champion and was timed in 10 seconds flat in the 100 a number of times during his prep school days. His teammate, Kelley, is another 10-second man although he has run second to Zeimetz in every meet.

There is a possibility that Zeimetz may not compete because of muscle injuries, but outside of losing a 23 foot broad-jumper, this should not handicap Boston greatly as they have another sprinter, Cady, a former Boston schoolboy champion, capable of running a close second to Kelley. Johnny Murray, Maine's hope for the century, has thus far failed to round out to last year's form, and even if he does, he will still have his work cut out for him.

The 440 finds Sid Hurwitz the underdog for the first time this year when he toes the mark with Gill, the long striding eastern champion who runs under 50 seconds consistently. Gill has one of the longest strides in track, covering nearly ten feet each time. It is likely that the battle for second place will be hotly contested as B. C. has Allan, another exceptional quarter miler entered in the same race.

The array of power does not stop with the shorter distances. On the contrary, the half-mile will be strictly a Boston event. Arthur Cox, former Massachusetts Interscholastic 880 champion, and his teammate, McKee, run under two minutes. McKee will also compete in the mile where, if pressed at all, he can do about 4:30.

To quote Coach Chester Jenkins, "This will be a battle of the field events against the running events. Boston College is apt to take first and second in every one of the flat races. It all depends on how my weight man show up."

Outside of the field events Maine has only one sure winner. Johnny Gowell will compete in both the 110-yard high hurdles and the 220-yard lows. McFarland of B.C. is a very fair hurdler and may press Gowell to record time. Gowell is expected to win the broad jump if he is not hampered by the muscle injury that kept him from the last of the indoor season.

Applications Are Due Junior Month Student

The committee for choosing the 1937 delegate for Junior Month is now ready for applications from junior girls who are interested. The Family Welfare Society of Boston invites one girl from each of several New England colleges to study social work in Boston for one month from June 21 to July 17 with all expenses paid. Applications may be made to any of the following committee members: Dean Edith Wilson, Philip Brockway, Elizabeth Ashby, Madeline Frazier, Josephine Snare, Elizabeth Story, and Carol Stevens.

Each year the girl who is chosen as delegate goes to Boston to live for the month in the Elizabeth Peabody Settlement House on Charles Street. During three days of each week carefully selected social institutions are visited and lectures on such subjects as the use of tests in vocational guidance, the theory of social case work, and mental hygiene are attended. The remaining days of the week each girl is assigned to a district office of the Society from which she is sent out alone to do actual case work. The week ends are spent in the country on house parties, at which the girl is a guest of friends of the Welfare Society.

Last year Carol Stevens was the delegate from Maine.

HAUCK WILL SPEAK

Music Will Be Furnished For Evening Formal By Bob Richmond

Governor Lewis O. Barrows '16 will be the principal speaker at the annual Junior Week Assembly tomorrow morning at 9:30. The tapping of next year's Senior Skulls will occur directly following the assembly.

Philip Rogers, president of the junior class, will preside at the assembly and introduce President Arthur A. Hauck, who will present the Governor. Other platform guests will be the officers of the junior class, Francis Smith, vice president; Elizabeth Drummond, secretary; and William Thompson, treasurer; and John P. Williams, the chaplain.

Governor Barrows, who is making his first appearance at his alma mater since his inauguration as chief executive, was the president of his class in his junior year at the University, and was president of the Interfraternity Council in his senior year. Like his predecessor, Governor Brann, he is a member of the social fraternity Beta Theta Pi.

He prepared for a pharmaceutical career at the University and after being graduated entered the drug business with his father in his home town, Newport. For several years he served as town treasurer and later was elected a member of the Governor's Council on which he served for three terms.

In 1935 he was elected by the Maine Legislature as Secretary of State to serve under his fraternity brother, ex-Governor Brann. As a candidate last fall on the Republican ticket he defeated another Maine graduate, F. Harold Dubord, for the gubernatorial office.

In the evening the Junior Prom will be held, with Bob Richmond's 13 piece "Cavalcade of Modern Rhythm" from Boston providing the music. Featured with Bob Richmond's orchestra is Madeline Gary, former musical comedy and radio star, who will play. Three members of the orchestra are girl musicians. Bob Richmond, director of the band, is a baritone who specializes in novelty rhythmic arrangements.

William Veague, chairman of the prom committee, is keeping most of the plans for the fourth big formal of the year a secret.

It is known, however, that there will be a low ceiling of blue with silver stars shining on it.

University Is Host To College Teachers

The annual meeting of the New England Association of College Teachers in Education is to be held at the University Saturday, May 8, according to a statement made today by Dean Olin S. Lutes.

The visiting members of the Association will attend lectures of which the general theme is to be "Methods and Procedures Used in Teaching Courses in Education," given by several men and women who are prominent in the field of Education in New England. They will also make a tour of the campus and will be entertained by the University at a banquet held at the Tarratine Club in Bangor, Saturday evening.

During the afternoon session of the meeting, Professor Arthur O. Norton of Wellesley College and Professor Ava H. Chadbourne of the University of Maine will speak on "The History of Education," while Professor R. A. MacDonald of Bates College and Professor E. A. Shaw of Tufts College will give lectures on "General Methods in Education." General discussions are to follow both lectures.

Arthur A. Hauck, President of the University, will be the initial speaker at the banquet and will introduce Mr. E. E. Roderick, Deputy Commissioner of Education, of Augusta, who is to address the Association on "The Certification of Teachers."

At the evening meeting of the group Professor P. Roy Brammell of Connecticut State College and Professor A. Monroe Stowe of New Hampshire University are to lead the discussions of the Principles of Education and Educational Sociology, respectively.

DEPRIVING THE NEEDY

The Campus understands that those on the NYA pay roll at the University are not earning as much as they had anticipated—and the reason apparently is that numerous students who have little need for relief, who would be able to attend college even if they were not working, are now earning money through the NYA. The administration had planned that the needy student should have the opportunity of making $15 a month. The Campus knows that needy students thus far this semester have not had this opportunity and that as a result many of them must be suffering serious financial embarrassment.

It is late in the year to speak of this matter, but perhaps some good still may be done by urging that students who do not need NYA help to remain in college should give up their positions immediately. The person who is not in financial straits is in a very real sense doing an injustice to fellow students when he continues to accept NYA funds which otherwise would go to those in need. NYA jobs today mean to many students the difference between a college education and no college education. Those who under these circumstances cause the diversion of funds from indigent students, are doing tremendous harm, and in all decency they should cease working for the NYA.

Mr. Philip Brockway, placement director, is, in this issue of the Campus, issuing a notice relative to the submission of applications for NYA jobs next year. The Campus hopes above all that those who have committed the injustice during the past year of doing NYA work when it was not absolutely necessary for them to do so, will not repeat that error next year.

THE LEGISLATURE ACTS

The Maine legislature, after struggling for weeks over various tax proposals, finally acted in the early hours Sunday morning by enacting a one per cent retail sales tax. A few hours later the legislators departed for their homes, not quite sure as to the sort of reception they ought to anticipate. For weeks they had heard denunciation of the sales tax as a tax on poverty, and it was only because forces even more powerful had prevented adoption of the income tax that the sales tax was finally approved.

But there is still a chance of killing the measure. Our august legislators, anxious, as always, to observe the principles of democracy, decided that the tax should not go into effect until approved by the voters at a special election to be held August 16. Not satisfied merely to provide for a referendum, however, the legislators tied up the tax measure with the old age pension and education legislation, so that the voters will have the opportunity, by rejecting the sales tax, of at the same time nullifying this legislation.

This consideration will very likely bring about a favorable vote on the sales tax. Whether the tax could be passed if it had to stand on its own legs is a debatable question. Certainly in other states than Maine it would not have the slightest chance. The depression brought too many such taxes and the consumer has learned too well what they mean. He has learned to demand the income tax as a better way of obtaining revenue. If the sales tax does go through in Maine, the legislators will have to answer for it in a short time, when the people have had a taste of the tax.

BRINGING CIVILIZATION TO THE CAMPUS

News from various colleges of spring uprisings makes us realize at this time the progress that the University of Maine has made in becoming more civilized. Many students, of course, remember the good-old-days when freshmen and sophomore classes stopped, the mob ruled, and prison haircuts were the fashion, but how many would like to go back to the old days when there was no central heating, and you had to break the ice out of the wash basin to wash in the morning. We may regard persons as sissies when they don't get their fun out of physical combat and have to rely more on their wits, but that is probably due to the fact that it is harder to use our heads than our hands. The days of the slapstick comedy may have been good, but real humor seems to have come to stay and certainly appeals to more people.

The Campus therefore extends its congratulations to those who have replaced aimless activity with constructive and guided energies and with wholesome sport and humor. The Campus also appreciates the work that is done each year by those who contribute such a large part of their time to making "Maine Day" a great success.

Leona Runion and Ruth Gray, both freshmen, will debate against the women's team of the Rhode Island State College on the electric utilities question Thursday, May 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the Little Theatre.

They will oppose the question: Resolved that all electric utilities should be governmentally owned and operated. This will be their last debate of the year and is the first girls' debate to be held here on the campus this year.

The same question will be debated with the Aroostook State Normal School by a freshman boys' team made up of Joseph Glasser and Harold Brody. This debate will probably take place May 5.

By George Weatherbee

Decline and Fall, by Evelyn Waugh, relates the adventures of Paul Pennyfeather, a young man who was sent down from Oxford because, through no fault of his own, he lost his trousers at a college reunion. Being perfectly innocent throughout, he gets into one trouble after another. He teaches at a fantastic boys' school in Wales, falls in love with a rich and lovely woman who, it turns out, just before the marriage ceremony, is engaged in a trade of rather dubious repute. The League of Nations investigates, she runs away and Paul takes the rap. He is fortunate, however, in coming under the prison regime of Sir Wilfred Lucas-Dockery who studies his psychology and gives a remedy: walks around the yard with another prisoner during which the two are to talk on "approved topics, history, philosophy, public events, etc." "Talk, you two," shouts the warden. "That's your instructions. Talk." He finally manages to get out after dying from an appendicitis operation, and the last we see of him, he is back at Oxford, with another name and a moustache, studying for the ministry, joining the League of Nations and attending lectures on the Polish plebsicite.

To make the acquaintance of the Welsh band who quite inappropriately played hymns at a school sports day and then refused to go on because Lady Beste-Chetwynde began to smoke a cigarette, to enjoy the fun poked at everything which comes into Waugh's head from the man who had been in "the scholastic profession long enough to know that nobody enters it unless he has some very good reason which he wishes to conceal" to Otto Silenus who once filmed "a movie of great length and complexity of plot—a complexity rendered the more inextricable by the producer's austere elimination of all human characters, a fact which had proved fatal to its commercial success," to zip along with the dialogue (sample below) is sheer fun.

Dumb with terror Paul went into his own classroom.

Ten boys sat before him, their hands folded, their eyes bright with expectation.

"Good-morning, sir," said the one nearest him.

"Good-morning," said Paul.

"Good-morning, sir," said the next.

"Good-morning," said Paul.

"Good-morning, sir," said the next.

"Oh, shut up," said Paul.

At this the boy took out a handkerchief and began to cry quietly.

"Oh, sir," came a chorus of reproach.

"you've hurt his feelings. He's very sensitive; it's his Welsh blood, you know; it makes people very emotional. Say 'Good-morning' to him, sir, or he won't be happy all day. After all it is a good morning, isn't it, sir?"

This is the kind of a book to read on lazy spring afternoons. Nothing is serious, not even the satire. The publishers thought it was shocking. Waugh doesn't think so, but warns the reader to "please bear in mind throughout that it is meant to be funny."

To Give Nursing Courses University Summer School

Nursing teaching and supervision and public health and school nursing duties will be treated in the courses in nursing education offered at the summer session of the University opening on July 6. With clinical facilities at the University infirmary and the Eastern Maine General Hospital available, the courses receive the endorsement of the Maine State League of Nursing Education.

Florence R. Parisa, instructor in Nursing Arts, School of Nursing, at the University of Minnesota, will in one course analyze nursing procedures and methods of instructing in them. In another course she will discuss both ward administration and ward teaching.

Mabel M. Brown, director of school health work at Reading, Mass., will offer a course in public health organization and health education in rural communities, discussing also such topics as health laws, group teaching, educational publicity, and use of statistics in reports. She will also give a course on problems in public health nursing such as lay committees, co-operation among social agencies, and inadequate incomes and family planning.

Open to graduate nurses, the courses are adapted to the proposed new curriculum of the National League of Nursing Education.

A new way to kill time has been invented by students at Northern Illinois State Teachers College. They draw a circle representing a clock and hands. At five minute intervals they ink out the sections around the dial. At the end of the hour it is completely filled. (A.C.P.)

Campus Headlines As They Were

By Richard Pippin
15 Years Ago

April 26, 1922

The first thing that struck our eye in this paper was a picture of Bananas III. Bananas, after having served Maine as mascot since the Maine-Bowdoin game in 1919, was retired by Death. Naturally, the campus was mournful, for Bananas had been a good mascot.

This headline had us guessing for a time—"Maine Debaters Succeed in Defeating N. H. State."

Maine took the negative side of some deep, dark, secret subject and won the debate. The story was over a full column long. A complete description of the debate was given—forcefulness of language, et al., but no mention of the subject debated! Good journalism, that. The reporter added a human touch to the story by revealing that two of the Maine debaters were lost in the Balentine of New Hampshire State, Congreve Hall. Habit?

We ran across an editorial bemoaning the fact that the freshmen were too fresh. Were the freshmen "Problem Children" then? The editor of the day said "The Frosh actually speak to girls; they never speak to upperclass men unless spoken to." They even gave their opinions when uncalled for. "The Owls," the editor continued "should do something about these fresh men." The so-called good old days again!

Fifteen years ago the Maine Masque actually "went places," as indicated by the glaring headlines—"Maine Masque Play Has Successful Trip." The troupe played seven towns throughout this part of the state. A special performance was given at the Augusta Hospital.

10 Years Ago

April 28, 1927

To appreciate this issue of the Campus, one must read it. It was called "The Maine Confession." Pictures of open coffins graced the front page; headlines proclaimed that the managing editor "Turned on the Gas"; the business manager gave a financial report with a note that he was now sure of returning to college the next year; the symbol of the Campus Board was a prize bull and the motto for the board—"The Bull Is Mightier Than the Bullet."

Along with the nonsense was an article about Dr. Patch, who leaves the University this year. The headline was—"Dr. Patch to Study Insects in England." She went to the famous Rothamstead Experiment Station to study aphids common to England and the United States.

5 Years Ago

April 27, 1932

The headline "Crabbers Impinge Profs. Thru State" startled us. It seems that, in the past, course crabbing was a popular and perplexing sport for undergraduates. It was disclosed at a meeting of English professors of the state that the only problem all colleges had in common was that of course crabbing. Bates claimed to be the least bothered, while Colby claimed that her students were so afraid of being

HUGH MOHR

Begs to differ with those who consider a pun the lowest form of humor. A pun is not a form of humor.

Caught some queer ones at the Soph Hop. Saw old friend Chester Field of Eta Beta Pi treading the stately measures with Rose Bush, Omega Omicron Omigosh luminary. Took occasion (Ah, were only the evil of the day sufficient thereunto!) to remark that Chet seemed to be the busiest man that ever walked on fourty feet—two of his own and two of his partner's.

Remembers when they used to give high ranks in the College of Agriculture. Ah, yes, those were the good old A's!

Reflects again on the mysteries of the English language, noting that sighcology might be spelled that way, but it isn't; while psychology might not be spelled that way, but it is; and we can't even get N. Webster & Co. to compromise on cycology.

Believing that many students still remain uninformed on certain fundamental definitions, herewith starts a list of said definitions:

Psychology: A study of the mental processes of people, animals, and college students.

Music: Some object to formal instruction in music, but this is fundamentally sound.

Mathematics: Arithmetic made complicated; since the depression, however, the rule of three has been reduced to the rule of two.

Animal husbandry: Livestock matrimony.

Economics: Theoretical economy; we have long since stopped attempting the real thing.

called course crabbers that they phoned their ideas rather than speak in class.

Last week we mentioned that Maine's first graduate planned to return to his Alma Mater. This week we got somewhat of a shock to read—"11,000 Volts Kill First Maine Grad." During a wind storm, some high tension wires fell on a wire fence. Mr. Gould's son was standing near that fence. When the wires struck the fence, the younger Gould was instantly killed and his body burst into flames. The father, aged 80, forgot about the wires in his attempt to rescue his son's body. Mr. Gould was instantly killed.

The epidemic of house-breaking was raging then as now. Six fraternity houses were entered. The loss was about $250—mostly in cash.

We were recently told, at assembly, that the present generation knows too much about the present and not enough about the past. Five years ago it was the exact opposite, according to the editorial "Are You Guilty?" Seems that the younger generation never is right—Oh well.

To the Student Body:

Maine Day has become one of the customs of the Maine campus. It affords that excellent opportunity of extracurricular activity for student body and faculty at the same time.

I know that this year's chairman, "Pat" Hutchings, and his hard working committees will have the same willing co-operation and support regardless of outside attractions afforded by a college holiday, that the committee was given in 1935 and 1936.

Process-Aging Prevents Tongue Bite

Edgeworth Guarantees that Process-Aging Prevents Tongue Bite

TONGUE BITE is the bane of pipe smokers. We guarantee that Edgeworth will not bite the tongue. The use of the finest Burley tobacco will not prevent tongue bite. It's the processing that does it. As every tobacco expert knows, pipe tobacco can be rushed through the plant and save big sums of money. It is pipe tobacco, but it is not Edgeworth.

Our method is Process-Aging—a process as vital as the aging of old wines. There are twelve required steps, each under laboratory control. It takes 4 to 7 times as long as might seem necessary. But in no other way can we guarantee that Edgeworth will not bite the tongue.

We ask you to try it under our money-back guarantee. If Edgeworth bites your tongue, return it and get your money back. You can't lose.

NOTE: There are three kinds of Edgeworth for you to choose from:

- 1—Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed—a cool, long-burning tobacco preferred by seasoned smokers.
- 2—Edgeworth Plug Slice—for the smoker who likes to crumble the tobacco in his hands until it's just right for him.
- 3—Edgeworth Jr.—the same tobacco also Process-Aged, but cut for a milder, more free-burning smoke.

Please accept 50¢ Gold Plated Collar-Pin for only 1¢ when you buy Edgeworth. Merely send inside white wrapper from any tin of Edgeworth with your name and address and 1¢ to Larus & Bro. Co., Dept. 405, Richmond, Va.

Phi Kappa Phi Sponsors Recognition Day, May 12

Phi Kappa Phi, national honorary fraternity, founded at the University of Maine, is sponsoring the assembly to be held May 12, Scholarship Recognition Day, in Memorial Gymnasium.

The band will play for all senior honor students, those averaging above 3 point, to march to their seats, followed by President Hauck and the guest speaker, Dr. George Vincent.

Names of all prize winners and about forty scholarship awards will be read.

The guest speaker, Dr. Vincent, was president of the Chautauqua Institution, 1907-1915, and has been honorary president since 1915. He was dean of faculty of Arts, Sciences, and Literature at the University of Chicago, 1907-1911; president of the University of Minnesota, 1911-1917; president of the Rockefeller Foundation of New York, 1917-1929.

Dr. Vincent will also speak at the Phi Kappa Phi banquet Tuesday evening, May 11, in Colvin Hall, following the fraternity initiation which takes place earlier in the evening.

When Mary Ellen Chase entered the University of Maine in 1904, there were but twenty-one women, six of whom were in the freshman class.

Frosh Trackmen Defeat Deering

Husky Ed Mitchell and Bob Atwood led the University of Maine freshman track team to a hard-fought 72-54 victory over a surprising Deering High School aggregation Saturday afternoon. Because of the muddy outdoor track, the duel was held in the field house.

Mitchell, the sensational Old Town Indian boy, won the shot put, the discus, the javelin, and placed second in the hammer throw. Atwood finished first in the 100-yard dash and the broad jump and was second in the 220-yard dash.

Don Smith, Maine's New England freshman cross country champion, raced to victory in the 880-yard run in 2:00-2:05 minutes, remarkable time for a first-year man. It was the first time that Smith had covered the distance in competition.

The leading Deering performer was Sherwood who earned firsts in both hurdles and a third in the javelin.

During the discus event, Robert Stewart, a freshman, was struck in the knee by a discus when the platter slipped from Deering's Mulroy's hand and went hurtling into a group of spectators, among them a number of girls.

Summary:

100 yard dash—Won by Atwood (M); 2nd, Fuller (D); 3rd, Loring (M). Time 10 1/2 sec.

Mary Wright, Madge Stacy Leave for W.S.G.A. Convention

Mary Wright, recently elected president of the Women's Student Government Association, and Madge Stacy, recently elected secretary, left Wednesday to represent the University of Maine at the annual Women's Student Government convention at Rhode Island State College.

The convention program, which extends from April 29 to May 1, includes meetings, a banquet, dance, and entertainment by the Rhode Island State students. Mary Wright will give a three minute speech at the banquet. Each year the site of the convention rotates, being held at the University of Maine last year.

Dr. Robert H. Fernald, dean of the Towne Scientific School of the University of Pennsylvania, a graduate of the University of Maine, and son of the former President Merritt C. Fernald, died unexpectedly of a heart attack, Saturday night, April 24, according to a dispatch which has just come to the University.

Dean Fernald, who had achieved outstanding success in both the engineering and educational fields, graduated from Maine in 1892 in the department of Mechanical Engineering.

Morris Sullivan, naturalist, of Acadia National Park, and graduate of the University of Chicago, spoke upon natural life and excursions there in a lecture sponsored by the M.O.C. last Wednesday evening, at Coburn Hall.

Mr. Sullivan illustrated with technicolor pictures of the scenery, wild animals, birds, and flowers, which are part of the new national park near Bar Harbor. He spoke about the excursions for visitors to different parts of the park, and boat trips around the harbor.

"A job of reporting is a job of selecting," Reginald Coggeshall, assistant professor of English and director of University publicity, said to a group of Campus reporters Friday afternoon.

"A reporter should not be a stenographer. He should get the essence of a story, presenting that angle which will interest his readers most," Mr. Coggeshall said as he told the reporters various ways to improve their stories.

The Eagles are coming... The leading athletic event at the University this week will be the invasion of a powerful Boston College track team Saturday. Exceedingly strong in the running events, the Boston team is favored to defeat the Bears.

In addition, many of Maine's track athletes plan to attend the Junior Prom, and a track man needs his sleep in order to be in best form. This same Junior Prom promises to put a damper on what was to be the best race of the year—the 440-yard duel between Sid Hurwitz and Boston College's Dick Gill.

Hurwitz, state intercollegiate champion at this distance, will be in attendance at the junior formal, and consequently will not be in top condition when he matches strides with the flying feet of Gill.

Gill, it will be remembered, ran wild in the 600-yard run two years ago in an indoor meet here, and since that time he has improved considerably. He narrowly missed making the Olympic team last summer.

Maine's only hope, as Bob Atwood has told you in his article, rests in the weight events, but even here the Bears must concede the shot put to Boston College. Dimmie Zaitz, an Olympic performer, will have little or no competition in the latter event.

New England trip... Bill Kenyon is faced with a peculiar situation this week as he leads the University of Maine baseball men on the annual New England trip.

In past years, games on the New England trip were more or less expected to be lost, for the trek was really for training purposes. This spring, however, the University meets New England conference rivals, and every contest counts in the conference standings.

Kenyon, therefore, is on the spot. Although his nine has had only three days of outdoor practice, he must make a presentable showing in order to finish high in the league.

Tab... The freshman tennis tournament started Wednesday... We again repeat our warning to discuss and hammer throwers. At the freshman-Deering meet last Saturday, serious injury was averted by the narrowest of margins on two occasions. BE CAREFUL. BE CAREFUL... The varsity, tennis, and golf teams go into action next week... State track meet a week from Saturday... Don Smith certainly went to town in the 880-yard run last Saturday. Two minutes and two-fifths seconds is, indeed, remarkable for a plebe...

Rumford, Portland To Race Freshmen

The undefeated Maine freshman track team may run up against their first snag when it meets the combined teams of two of the most powerful high school teams in the state, Portland and Rumford.

The meet will be run along with the Maine Varsity-Boston College struggle on the outdoor field here at Orono Saturday afternoon.

It is rather unusual that this contest should bring the two best high school sprinters in the state together as teammates, and not in their usual role of opponents. Bob McGlone, of Portland, and Ed Hachey, of Rumford, are both capable of times in the 100 and the 220 that compare favorably with college marks. Little else is known of these two teams as to their all-around power except that Rumford has an exceptional high jumper and a good hurdler.

Ed Mitchell, who last week scored 18 points against a strong Deering High team, should be able to repeat these victories. Don Smith can be counted on to win the half mile and the mile, too, providing he enters the latter event.

Maine is still weak in the hurdles and in the quarter mile as shown by last week's

To Be Peace Panel Discussions At Little Theatre on May 11

Alice Lerner and Sargent Russell will represent the University of Maine in Peace Panel discussions on "National Security through Isolation or International Co-operation," in the Little Theatre at 7:30, May 11.

Similar discussions, which will be held in 21 New England colleges, will be presented at the other Maine colleges on the following dates: April 26 at Bowdoin, April 27 at Bates, May 10 at Colby.

Dr. Rising L. Morrow, a faculty member of the host college, will serve as chairman at Maine. The discussion here is sponsored by the M.C.A. and the International Relations Club.

Bob Atwood and Dick Dyer are the leading sprinters for the yearlings. Jack Littlefield, weight man, pulled a surprise when he placed second in the broad jump with a leap of over 19 feet against Deering. This gives Maine two capable broadjumpers in Atwood and Littlefield.

Rich and Weaver are up against one good vaulter from Rumford, and Reynolds in the high jump is in the same situation. Jack Dequine is a strong contender for a first in the mile.

Frosh To Open Against Higgins

The freshman baseball season will start Saturday with a game against Higgins, Coach Bill Wells said today.

Among the players who show promise are Doc Gerrish, catcher, and Ron Dyke, second baseman. The pitchers are "Lefty" Powers, Ray Bond, and Red Marston.

The squad of 26 men is divided into two combinations. The lineup for the first team is:

Gerrish, catcher; Kane, 1st base; Dyke, 2nd base; McNeal, short stop; Steeves, 3rd base; Hamilton, right field; Wilson, center field; Johnston, left field.

The lineup for the second team is:

B. C. TRACK MEET

Al Bell, national intercollegiate javelin champion, and Ed Sherry should bring in a first and second for the Pale Blue.

Bell threw just inches short of 190 feet last Saturday at Springfield, and Sherry, with a mark of 167 feet, may beat out DePass of B.C. who threw 162 at last week's Harvard Relays.

Maine has two pole vaulters, Leonard and Hardison, both evenly matched and both capable of 11 1/2 feet or better.

Harold Webb and Bill McCarthy should take a first and second over O'Connor, the Catholic school's best high jumper. McCarthy holds the college record of 6 ft. 2 1/2 in., and Webb is very often the winner over his teammate with jumps of better than 6 feet.

The discus will find Zaitz and Dominick throwing for the Eagles, with Dyer and Kelly for Maine. A Maine sweep is looked for in the hammer with a number of Maine men having had better throws recorded than Dominick. Dyer, Mayo, Ireland, and Fox will heave the 16 lb. hammer for Maine.

Golfers Prepare For Busy Season

Bill Wells, coach of the Maine golf team, is fairly optimistic over the prospects of his 1937 cluster of mashie wielders who open a five match schedule against Bowdoin College at Brunswick on May 7.

Two veterans of last year's campaign, Gerald Stoughton and Stuart Bryant, will compete again this year. It is around these two that Coach Wells hopes to build a winning team. Paige West, one of the best golfers in college, will not be available because of scholastic difficulties. But Wells is looking to several promising freshmen to supply the needed punch. Ed Merrill, Hank Piorowski, and Larry Burney are all capable of shooting in the high seventies and better. Bill Patterson and Bill Copeland complete the squad working out at the present time.

The construction of a driving range in back of North Hall has made a good place to work out, without the expense and bother of travelling to a golf course every afternoon in order to keep in shape. The squad is using the Orono Golf Club's course to practice on at the present time, but will play all the matches over the much longer and more difficult Penobscot Valley Country Club.

The schedule includes two matches with Bowdoin and two with Colby on a home and home basis, a state tournament to be held at the Penobscot Valley C. C. on the 24th and 25th of May, and a possible representation of one or two of the best men at the New England Intercollegiate, to be held in Massachusetts this year.

Application blanks for the Pale Blue Key Scholarship may be obtained from John Gowell, Ted Curtis or Coach Chester A. Jenkins. They must be returned before May 6. All freshmen who have earned their numerals are eligible to compete for the scholarship.
