Refugee Student Tells I. R. C. of Recent Crisis

First-hand impressions of French and English public opinion during the recent European crisis were described by Klaus Dryer, German refugee student at Colby, who was in France and England last summer, at the meeting of the International Relations Club held last Thursday evening in the S.A.E. house.

The realization that they were not adequately prepared for war, plus vivid memories of the World War, are the

Arts Club to Hold Meeting Saturday

The student and faculty Arts Club will hold a joint meeting as part of their programs of fostering closer relations between faculty and students Saturday evening at 8:00 p.m. in the Little Theatre, Harold Gerrish, president of the students' Arts Club, announced today.

The faculty's contribution to the program will be a talk by Dean Edward J. Allen, poetry readings from original compositions by Dr. H. Lloyd Flewelling, and a trombone solo by Dr. Karl D. Larsen.

For the students, Audrey White has some original readings, Mavis Creamer, Helen Wormwood, and Constance Philbrook, the Arts Club Trio, will present several songs. Specialty dancing by Theodore Sobel and Mavis Creamer will conclude the program.

The time of the meeting has been planned so that it will not conflict with the informals scheduled for Saturday evening.

Liberal Club Stages Drive for Refugee

The Liberal Club, at a meeting held Tuesday evening in the M.C.A. building, voted to carry on an intensive two-week campaign to bring to the University of Maine a refugee student from central Europe for next semester.

The campaign will get under way next Monday morning and will culminate in a drive for funds to be held the week following the Thanksgiving recess. During that period, both campus organizations and individual students and faculty members will be asked to support the drive.

The Executive Committee of the Liberal Club will be in charge of the drive on the campus, and will work with the University Administration and the International Student Service in the choice of a student.

After the business meeting at which the plans were made for the drive, the Club heard a brief talk on European events since the Munich Agreement, and their relation to refugee problems. The speaker was Nathaniel Mills, a special student at Harvard University, who has been working with various organizations in the New England colleges on the student refugee situation.

There was general discussion after the talk. Refreshments were served.

Walker and Ellis Win Debate Tilt

George Ellis and Neal Walker, representing the affirmative side of the question, Resolved: that the United States and Great Britain should form an alliance, defeated the freshman team of Beverly Spencer and Roosevelt Susi, who upheld the negative side, to win the intramural debating tournament of the University of Maine last Monday evening.

Earlier in the day, Ellis and Walker, on the negative side, had won over Myer Alpert and Edward Oppenheim to win a place in the finals, while Spencer and Susi had taken over Francis Andrews and Miles Mank.

Because of the great interest displayed by the debaters and the spirited competition, a second tournament will be held sometime next March, open to all students whether they take de-

By Mary Oberly

The forces of time and eternal change are fighting with democracy in its struggle against the totalitarian states, James T. Shotwell, professor at Columbia University, told students at the Armistice Day convocation.

Reputed To Be Our Foremost Living Poet

HOLDS DEGREES

Contributors Club
Presents First
Of Lectures

Robert Frost, generally considered America's greatest living poet, will read selections from his own poetry tonight at 7:30 in the Little Theatre, as a presentation of the Contributors Club. Mr. Frost has twice won the Pulitzer Prize for his volumes of New England verse, "New Hampshire" (1923), and "Collected Poems" (1930).

Born in San Francisco, he moved to the New England of his ancestors at the age of ten. After studying at Dartmouth, and at Harvard, where he excelled in the classics, he was variously a teacher, shoemaker, editor, and farmer.

In 1912, as yet unrecognized as a poet, he took his family to England, where he divided his time between farming and poetry. Living for the first time in a literary environment, he became acquainted with a group of writers which included Lascelles Abercrombie, Rupert Brooke, and Ezra Pound.

New England Life

A Boy's Will (1913), though published in London, was definitely a volume of lyrics. It recalled the author's close association with New England life in his days as a young reporter. This work brought Mr. Frost his first real recognition after twenty years of writing poetry. The publication, in 1914, of North of Boston, a volume also typical of New England, brought even greater acclaim; and in the following year America welcomed home a new poet.

Hovey Scholarships Awarded Students

Three Hovey Memorial Scholarships, given each year to the students in the College of Technology, have been awarded to James O. Williams, Philip Hutchinson, and Harlow D. Adkins, Dean Paul Cloke announced recently.

Hutchinson, a junior in mechanical engineering, also received a Hovey Memorial Scholarship last year as well as the John M. Oak Prize for excellence in public speaking. Except for the first semester of his freshman year, he has maintained an average of 3.00 or above. He is a second lieutenant in the advanced unit of the R.O.T.C., was active in freshman track and football, and has been a member of the junior varsity football squad for the past two seasons.

Williams, a sophomore in chemical engineering, was on the dean's list in both semesters of his freshman year.

Adkins, also a junior in mechanical engineering, is on the rifle team of the University and is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. During his freshman year, he participated in cross country and track and has been active in intramural sports.

The scholarships, made available by a fund of $5000 established in 1932 by the Stone and Webster Corporation in honor of the late Francis J. Hovey, are awarded to students in the College of Technology on the basis of scholastic attainment, character, and general promise.

A scholastic standing of at least three point must be attained to be eligible and must be maintained during tenure. Awards are made by the Dean and the department heads in the College, subject to the approval of the President, with the preference going to students residing in this state.

Masque Cast for "Roadside"

The cast of "Roadside," next Masque production to be staged Dec. 7, 8, and 9, boasts of a collection of Masque troupers who are well known to Maine audiences. Heading the list are Clark Kuney, Robert Cail, and Louis Thibodeau.

Kuney, president of the Masque, has been active in almost every phase of the theatre since his freshman year here, having played the leads in "Bill of Divorcement," "Petrified Forest," and "The Wind and the Rain." The summer of his sophomore year, he joined a professional stock company in New London, New Hampshire, where he played major roles in "Accent on Youth," "Hedda Gabler," and "He Who Gets Slapped."

For the past two years, he has won the Hamlet playwriting contest for the best one-act play. One of these plays was produced by the class in elementary acting here at the University last year.

Robert Cail has also been widely active in the Masque. He worked on scenery for all of the plays his freshman year, played a leading character part in "Petrified Forest" his sophomore year, and last year was stage manager for "First Lady."

Louis Thibodeau is well remembered for his portrayal of private Scott in "Abraham Lincoln" his freshman year and for his subsequent performances. Last year, in "The Servant of

Student Refugee

We understand that our sister college, Bowdoin, is now actively engaged in a campaign to raise funds for a refugee student from Central Europe. That campaign is apparently having great success, and soon Bowdoin will have on its campus a student who has seen at first hand the disorganization and chaos that have come to what was once a great and cultured nation.

The current European situation presents a challenge and an opportunity which we at the University of Maine also should seize. As the Nazi attacks on Catholics, Jews and Protestants alike become more intense, an ever-increasing proportion of fine and intelligent people of all ages will find it impossible to continue life in Nazi Europe. And an ever-larger part of Central Europe is being forced into the Nazi fold by the dilatory tactics of the democratic countries. The refugee situation is one way in which even we who are still students may indicate our opposition to the anti-intellectual and anti-democratic activities of the Nazis and the determination of at least some citizens of the democratic countries to stand firm against barbarism.

But from the point of view of the University of Maine student body, there is even more to be considered than the opportunity to help a victim of barbarism and to indicate our opposition to his persecutors. There is also the benefit to be derived by the University from the presence here of a student of such high calibre and wide experience as these refugee students have. Due to the impossibility of aiding more than a few of the many victims of Nazi persecution, the refugee students who are being brought to this country by the International Student Service and other groups stand high in educational and personal qualifications. They are young men and women of intelligence, and have the ability not only to absorb material that is presented to them but also to do advanced and independent work. Many of them have already done research work. They ask nothing but shelter and facilities for continuing their work unimpeded. And for this small consideration, their potential contribution to society is great. Not only a reputation for charity but also a reputation for holding scholarship in high esteem would come to the University of Maine if we were to invite such a student to come to our campus.

Campus organizations such as the International Relations Club, Women's Forum, Liberal Club, and in fact all the organizations on the campus, would be able to profit in a very tangible way from the presence of a refugee student. The presentation of first-hand knowledge of European affairs would bring home to us, in spite of our somewhat isolated geographical position, the importance and implications of world affairs in so far as these are now tied up with the fate of Europe.

Thus in many ways the University of Maine has much to gain from the presence of a refugee student. All that is necessary is a crystallization of student opinion, awakened by the Munich crisis and the post-Munich excesses of Nazi barbarity. An opportunity for students to express their opinion on the refugee question and to give their support to a campaign to aid a refugee student will soon be presented. We hope that the challenge will be accepted.

When Not To Cut

Last year the administration responded to a desire, supposedly endorsed by the student body, to observe, not only Thanksgiving Day, but also the three days following as school holidays. From the standpoint of the students, this would seem to be a very sensible plan since Thanksgiving day alone does not offer sufficient time for most students to visit home. Coming as it does in the middle of the week, this one-day recess is of little value to the students other than as a brief respite. From past experience the four-day recess seems to be, by and large, well justified.

However, this system seems to have been particularly subject to the abuses of certain and inveterate, and even other less inveterate but conscience-less "cutters." Some logicians might quite possibly construct a case attacking the strictness of the University's policy toward unexcused absences from classes, but even the most narrow-minded student would have difficulty developing a good reason for the professors presenting their lectures to a group of vacant chairs the day before and following each vacation. It is obviously to the advantage of the students that they co-operate with the administration by minimizing their absences immediately before and after Thanksgiving. It would be most unfortunate if we were to return to the practise of the one day Thanksgiving recess.

THE RATTLER

By Al and Don

With so many worthwhile things to do, and prelims to study for, it would be hard to go on, but for the never-failing encouragement of Craig the Tailor (suits cleaned and pressed). He revives us every noon with his hearty greeting and his keen interest in our suitability to go on with it all. . . . Let's go on:

We really went to the library to study, but in the library it was too hot or too cold or something. Besides, we had read all the books and our lifesavers were gone. Our chewing gum was all right, but, you know, tiresome, so we put it . . . somewhere. The coeds were nice, but mostly all gone, on account of no more lifesavers, we guess. Well, anyway, there was one girl left and she didn't want to study either, so we said, "Let's go to the Cabin." She was sort of nice. She said, "I'd love to," so off we went. She had dark eyes that were pretty and lipstick and when we got there we said, "Won't you have a coke or something?" She said, "I'd love to," again and ordered a sundae with all kinds of decorations. We said, "That's no sundae, that's a whole weekend," but she stuck to it and then we knew we should have stayed at the libe and studied.

When we got back everyone was moping around the vic and having a mood. And no wonder because Tommy Dorsey's recording of My Own is supersmooth and My Reverie as impressed by Larry Clinton is equally exotic. Friend Artie Shaw is back on the campus with Begin the Beguine. The title doesn't seem to mean much, but it really is a sander, as the French say. Our new records are swell. Come on over. . . .

We like the movies, too, but, gee, we never get to go anywhere, so if you know of any good ones, just address Becky Hill, care of this column, and she's a good kid and she'll tell us.

You know, the Rattler was almost a shattered column (like the King, remember?) when we discovered that one of us is an old Democrat. Boring from within; that's what it is. Boring. . . .

And this is what happens to personable, popular, and practically perfect undergradmen who seem to have come away without their purse when it's ante time at the Bookstore Bar:

We: Coke.
She: Oke.
We: Broke!
She: Joke!
We: Ouch! (That one doesn't rhyme, but it's the way we felt when we got the hobo's hurry.)

Bye now. See you at the Robert Frost lecture. Don't miss it.

Musical Program Planned For Thanksgiving Vespers

Interview Students For Gov't Position

Artemus Weatherbee and Joseph Lewis were interviewed last Wednesday by Dr. Frederick M. Davenport, president of the National Institute of Public Affairs at Washington, D. C., as prospective candidates for an internship at the Institute.

The Institute is a non-political, self-governing organization created for the purpose of providing practical training in the operation of the federal government to young people whose natural aptitudes and scholastic preparation seem to qualify them for careers in the public service. It was founded in 1936.

Weatherbee, a senior, is a major in history and government. Lewis, a graduate student in economics, graduated from Maine last year.

George Hitchings, a graduate of Maine in 1937, was the first Maine student to be chosen by the institute as an intern. He is now in the Division of Research and Statistics, Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve Board.

Those chosen as interns spend one year in Washington carrying out a supervised program of study and conferences with government officials. During the day they work as regular government employees in various government departments. At the end of a year they are given a chance to receive an appointment in the office in which they are interns.

Don Smith Takes Third Place Honors As Maine Harrier Team Runs Eighth In National Cross Country Contest

Manhattan College Squad Captures First Place

Running against the stiffest kind of competition that could be assembled, Don Smith proved that he is one of the leading harriers in the country by placing third, giving the Maine team eighth place at the 30th National Cross Country meet run at Van Cortlandt Park in New York City last Monday. The meet was won by Manhattan College.

The "Easton Express," who placed fourth in this same run last year, negotiated the distance in 27:12. This is considered somewhat sensational, since Smith has not run against such competition all year.

The team as a whole fared better than last year's harrier squad, which scored 268 points for tenth place, while the current cross country team garnered 216 points, giving them eighth place.

Blue Harriers End Brilliant Season

After winning all meets in New England and placing eighth in the Nationals, the Maine Varsity Cross Country Team concluded its season Monday. Coach Jenkins' boys did even better than expected this year, as they beat New Hampshire, trimmed Colby, regained the state title from Bates, and went on to win the New England Championship.

Led by Don Smith, with sophomore Ken Blaisdell in a supporting role, the harriers improved in every meet. It was this improvement of reserve strength that brought victory, for a powerful and well-balanced squad garnered place points in every competition and won, not only because of the presence of New England's champion, but because there were always four other men on the squad who could place high. It was somewhat of an odd fact that after Smith and Blaisdell had finished, there was no certainty as to which of the other harriers would come home next. All through the season different men alternated in the placing.

Prospects for next year are excellent. Every man on the present squad will return next year. There is also a fine opportunity to retire the eight year New England trophy to Maine next year. The victory this year gave the Pale Blue a third leg on it, and it has been decided that the best showing made next year between Maine and New Hampshire, which also has three legs on the trophy, will decide who will keep the cup.

Individual honors this year go to Don Smith, who placed first in all meets but the National, where he placed third. An interesting fact occurred in the New England meet. Coach Jenkins warned Don not to open up too much because of the terrific heat on the course, which caused several of the runners to collapse. Although he held back a little, Don came within 17 seconds of topping the old record. Under more favorable conditions, there is little doubt that he could have broken the record in that run.

Blaisdell also turned in sterling performances this season, although he was hampered by a cold in several meets. His placing eighth in the New England race assured the title. One has a difficult time picking the most outstanding men from the rest of the squad, because almost all of them stood out in one meet or another. Ehrlbach, Jackson, Meserve, and Whitcher perhaps were best, although Cummings and Butterworth looked good at times.

Letters were awarded to Smith, Blaisdell, Ehrlbach, Jackson, Meserve, Whitcher, Cummings, and Butterworth.

The scores of the meets were as follows: Maine 26, New Hampshire 29; Maine 20, Colby 37; Maine 24, Bates 35, Colby 73; Maine 90, Bates 96, Tufts 102.

Hats off! The freshman-sophomore game ended in a 2-2 tie and was an exciting event, sporting banners and a parade. A lively cheering section prodded the girls on to a good game displaying some commendable pass-work between Mary Cowan and Lorraine Dimitre and adequate support by Eleanor Ward, all of the class of '42. In spite of the tie, the Eagles gave "hats-off" permission at the party held for the frosh in Balentine Sunday night.

A letter has been received from Mrs. Barry who sends her best to all the girls and places her bet on the seniors as the intramural champs.

The tennis ball has been kept bouncing this fall. Those at the top of the ladder now are Dottie Brewer, Jeanette Berry, Virginia Rourke, and Violet Hamilton.

Good weather this year and the early practice under Mrs. Barry has increased the calibre of our hockey material until we really make a good showing on the field. Miss Lengyel hasn't had to hold practice inside all season and Miss Rogers has missed only two afternoons because of bad weather.

NOTICE! This is the last week of outdoor physical education. Indoor archery begins soon and is open only to those who have had outdoor practice.

Big News! The men on campus are seriously taking up field hockey. The Kappa Sigs went in for it in a big way this week-end and were successful in outscoring the junior and senior girls' teams. So excited were they that they even played in the rain Sunday morning. However, the girls wore them down so that they were obliged to rest by alternating goals and even found it necessary to ride back to the house.

Champions! The seniors won the intramural championship by a 4-1 win over the juniors. The juniors and sophomores fought it out to a 1-1 score last Thursday afternoon, and Friday the seniors took over the sophomores 5-1. The season closed with the junior-frosh game yesterday and the sophomore-junior game today.

Louis Harris and Jo Sanborn found the game competitive in more ways than one Saturday!

Attention! Come one, come all to see the Phi Mu Delta try to vanquish the junior hockey stick swingers.

The next issue of the "Maine Campus" will be published December 1.

BEAR FACTS

By Buel Godwin

Those seats behind the backboard, which have not been desirable in the past at basketball games, are to make their debut soon. New glass backboards are to replace the old wooden ones, so plays can be seen from any part of the gym. The new backboards aren't the only new additions you'll see at your first basketball game, there are also to be new bleachers for the main floor.

At an informal meeting of the athletic directors of the four Maine colleges, it was tentatively decided that all football games the latter part of October and during November would begin at 1:30 p.m. instead of 2:30. It gets dark so quickly in November that before the game is over, the players are trying to make passes in the dark, and the spectators miss out on some very interesting plays. It is also very hard to get good movie shots of the plays.

The movies taken this year are already being shown to the alumni from coast to coast. Credit for covering all the games so religiously belongs to Al Bahrt and James "Two-Gun" Ashby. The athletic department more than appreciates the fine work they have done this fall and sincerely hopes they will continue their good work.

The Frosh-Soph track meet is December 3. Both teams are good and competition is going to be stiff. May the best team win. Those men going out for indoor track are expected to report immediately to Coach Jenkins.

At the next meeting of the M.I.A.A., schedules will be drawn up for next year's games and officials will be appointed. The change of time for the late fall games will also be put before the board.

Kent and Pierce won the tennis doubles finals after a hard fight with Cahill and Chamberlain. Kent also won the singles, after a hard fight, from Pierce. "The doubles match was the best and fastest with the best team work I have ever seen since I've been here," Ted Curtis said, "It will take a lot of work to beat them next year."

Ted also said that this fall was the most perfect for football that there has been since he has been here. The only rain we had was to the beginning of the Rhode Island game, and that was only for a few minutes. Not another game was played in the rain, and not once did practice have to be called off on account of rain.

The Freshman basketball team is to have a very attractive schedule this winter. All of their games are to be at home; they will play the leading prep and high school teams. At such times when the varsity and freshman teams play the same night, the freshmen will play at 7:00 and the varsity at 8:00 p.m. The gym floor is to be put in A-1 condition during Thanksgiving recess for the coming games.

Don Smith came in third for the National Cross Country Meet. Billy Smith of Penn State came in first. The Smiths seem to be a pretty fast race. The team placed eighth at the Meet; this wasn't due to not only individual effort, but also to team co-operation.

The Maine team also won the New England track meet this year. The last time they won it was in 1935. If Maine makes the meet showing next year, the Major Frank H. Briggs Memorial Cup will take its place alongside of all the other cups the Maine teams have won since the cups were first given by Major Briggs. Maine has won the cups every time.

Varsity plays its first game the 7th of January with Colby here.

Classes in fencing and boxing under Wally's supervision have already begun, and wrestling is to begin sometime this week. Weight-lifting enthusiasts have been making use of their room on the third floor over Wally's office for some time. Anyone may go there and take a good work-out with the equipment. Great tonic for those jaded muscles.

Aggie Specials To Compete

Students in the two-year agricultural course will enter teams in intramural sports, it was decided at a recent meeting.

Clark Rankin has been elected manager for volleyball.

Ennice Gale has been elected to succeed Dora Stacy as president of the Mathematics Club. Miss Stacy resigned because of the pressure of the other responsibilities.

Plans for this year's meetings will be announced shortly.

Pierce and Kent Team Top Chamberlain and Cahill in 5-Set Match

Best Played Match In Eight Years Says Small

By Bill Chandler

Richard Pierce and Vernon Kent teamed together to capture the Curtis Cup for the University of Maine Doubles Championship. The two sophomores completed their victory march with a hard fought match with James Cahill and Austen Chamberlain.

The match, praised by Coach Small as the best at the University in the last eight years, was played on Friday afternoon until darkness halted play at the end of the second set, with each team having garnered a set. The play in these two sets suggested that the match would last the full five sets, as it did.

Both teams sparked with a variety of shots and smashing overhead net play. Outstanding in the first set was the teamwork of Cahill and Chamberlain, and this steady co-ordination enabled the two seniors to garner the first set and the first taste of victory. Dominating the second set with their individual strength, Kent and Pierce evened the score as darkness set in.

Play was resumed on Tuesday afternoon, when the cold numbed the players but failed to stop the furious action. Erratic at first, Cahill and Chamberlain recovered to take the first set of the day and the lead in the match, two sets to one.

The real battle started in the fourth set; aggressively coming to the net at every opportunity, the two sophomores forced play at a high tempo, but were often set back on their heels by the skillful lobs of Chamberlain and Cahill. Being forced to lob often because of the persevering net play of their opponents, the two seniors were kept continually on the defensive, and Kent and Pierce finally clinched the last two games after a five-all deadlock.

With each of the teams victorious in two of the sets, the tightness of play increased in the nerve-racking fifth and deciding set. Kent and Pierce continued to storm the net in spite of several errors. Cahill and Chamberlain fought them back with calm determination. Finally Chamberlain's serve began to crack, the sophomores angled more shots to unreachable corners from the net and brilliantly went on to win the match.

Although lacking the teamwork of their opponents, Kent and Pierce, who were also the winner and runner-up, respectively, for the Freese Trophy, showed individual strength and were able to win by aggressive tactics and sheer perseverance.

Kent, at the net most every day, excelled with a powerful overhead game. Pierce showed great skill in covering court. The losers should not be slighted; they went down in defeat by the slimmest of margins. Cahill played powerfully off his backhand and made brilliant cross court shots. Until the last set, Chamberlain's smashing service was outstanding throughout the match.

SHOTWELL

"The great work of modern science challenges us to readjust society in an age of change," he said. To make these readjustments within the framework of the democratic state is a challenge to intelligence.

The present dictatorships are forces of historic caliber, and it would be the world's greatest tragedy if those forces were to menace our liberty, Shotwell said. However, present success does not prove totalitarian supremacy.

"Those who think of the triumph of Hitler and Mussolini must remember what has happened to those who used the sword in the past," he said.

Woodrow Wilson made the World War a crusade of democracy against autocracy, he said.

"Cynics sneer at the slogan 'Make the World Safe for Democracy,' but our way of life wasn't safe then and it isn't safe now," Shotwell added.

American soldiers fought for a great ideal, he said. "We must reassert their faith in a time grown cynical, a generation that has ceased to appreciate their sacrifice. They were inspired by a great hope and a great dream."

If the call comes again, under similar circumstances, the United States will respond, Shotwell said.

Present day German militarism is the inevitable result of centuries of fighting on the eastern frontier of Europe, when the Germanic nations stood as the only bulwark against Asiatic invasion, the speaker continued.

"They cherished militarism and bureaucracy, order under strict authority, as the alternative to annihilation," Shotwell said.

After a thousand years of fighting the Slavs and the Turks, eastern Europe is an armed camp with the military characteristics of the frontier. The nations on the border line of Asia never had a chance to develop democratic institutions, he said.

"Servitude is a poor school for free-

His published works include, besides the volumes mentioned, Mountain Interval (1916), West Running Brook (1928), A Further Range (1936), and a play A Way Out (1929). He has also written numerous prose pieces.

dom," Shotwell said. Eastern Europe is without the capable men and the tradition of fair compromise that centuries of democratic training have given the western nations.

"While Germany developed as a totalitarian state, England, free from Oriental threat, progressed in the arts of peace and government," he said. In England developed the common law and the Parliament that gave every man the right to govern through his representative.
