Duty of all Students to Boost Maine this Summer

Prospective High School Athletes Should be Encouraged to Come Here

At this time of year, there are probably many high school graduates who are seriously considering entering some college. Why not encourage them to come to the University of Maine. We could try to advertise our college as much as possible during this summer vacation.

There are many people in this state who do not realize what a large college Maine is or what a beautiful campus we have. It is the duty of every student who has the welfare of the University at heart to tell these people what a wonderful institution we really have, and what advantages and opportunities it offers to those who attend it.

We are asked to recommend the courses and to say the best we possibly can about them. If there are courses which are not up to the highest standard do not dwell on them but talk of those which are good.

Maine will also be judged as much by the attitude of her students as by the favorable things they say. Our actions this summer will reflect on the University. High school students especially will judge the college by the attitude of its students. Live up to the Maine spirit and prove to other people that the University of Maine is a worth while place to attend.

Never in its history has the U. of M. needed a boost more than it does now. It needs good, energetic young men and women who will not only do their best at college but will be and do their best at home or wherever they are this summer and always so that they will show themselves true sons and daughters of dear old "Maine."

You say that you love "Maine." Your eyes shine, you stand as straight as a soldier when you hear the Stein Song played. You get out and cheer the teams on to victory. You go if you can to Bowdoin or to Colby to see the boys play. That is right and good. Why should you not do this? Is not "Maine" the best school ever? You get a good time out of this. You do it because you love to or think that it is your duty. You do it because the others are doing it, perhaps. These things count but there are other things that count too. What you are and do at home counts.

Try to interest some of your young friends that you know would do credit to "Maine" to come here. Speak a good word for the college. Tell how much it has meant and still does mean to you. Enumerate the wealth of opportunity.

U. of M. A. A. Decides To Support Girls' Athletics

Numerals to be Awarded in Tennis This Year

At a recent meeting of the U. of M. A. A. it was voted in favor of girls' athletics and of awarding class numerals to the winners in the girls' tennis tournament which is being played this week. The board also signified its support of further enterprises in girls' athletics next fall.

The last meeting of the board was held Monday evening, May 31, and letters in baseball were awarded. The recent election by the student body of the members of the A. A. board and of the managers of the different forms of athletics for next year was protested before the board and it was decided that the election was unconstitutional on the grounds of being held later than the first week in May, which is specified in the constitution as the time of election annually. The election will therefore take place next fall.

"This is a hard family to deal with!" pointed the piano. "Miss Tessie pounds me every day for an hour or two!"

Good Tennis Played During the Tournament

Woodman, Maine's Star. University Loses by Small Margin

Some very good tennis has been played here during the past week in the tennis tournament. Woodman, with only a week's practice showed up especially well. Maine lost out in the finals in the singles by only a small margin.

The following is the list of scores: Singles 1st Round
Woodman, Maine; Woodman, Bates. Won by Woodman, Maine—9-6, 6-1, 8-6.

Kirschbaum, Bates; H. Bishop, Bowdoin. Won by H. Bishop, Bowdoin—7-5, 6-2.

Partridge, Bowdoin; Gow, Colby. Won by Partridge, Bowdoin—7-5, 6-2.
Trafton, Maine; D. Smith, Colby. Won by D. Smith, Colby—6-2, 6-3.

Doubles 1st Round
Merrow-Woodman, Maine; Roberts, Lesieur, Bates. Won by Bates, 4-6, 8-6, 6-4.

Avery-Trafton, Maine; M. Smith-L. Bishop, Bowdoin. Won by Bowdoin, 6-2, 6-3.

Gow-Smith, Colby; Woodman-Woodard, Bates. Won by Colby, 8-6, 5-7, 6-3.

Hatch-Black, Colby; Partridge-H. Bishop, Bowdoin. Won by Bowdoin, 6-0, 6-2.

Semi-Finals Doubles
Roberts-Lesieur, Bates; M. Smith-L. Bishop, Bowdoin. Won by Bates, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Gow-Smith, Colby; Partridge-H. Bishop, Bowdoin. Won by Bowdoin, 6-1, 7-5.

Semi-Finals Singles
Woodman, Maine vs. H. Bishop, Bowdoin. Won by Woodman, Maine, 1-6, 6-1, 6-2.

Partridge, Bowdoin vs. D. Smith, Colby. Won by Partridge, Bowdoin, 6-3, 6-3.

Doubles Finals
Roberts-Lesieur, Bates; Partridge-H. Bishop, Bowdoin. Won by Bowdoin, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

Finals Singles
Woodman, Maine vs. Partridge, Bowdoin. Won by Partridge, 8-6, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4.

General Pershing To Be Guest at Saturday Exercises

An Unusual Program Should Induce Students to Stay Over

The senior stalking about the campus with his cane, reminds the undergraduate that Commencement Week is at hand. The various committees, whose work deserves great praise, have outlined a program that can make any college "sit up and take notice."

Especially interesting are the events scheduled for Alumni Day, Saturday, June 5. The annual Class Frolics will undoubtedly be as entertaining as ever. Besides the surprise stunts of 1905, 1910 and 1915, a game will be played between the varsity and alumni nines.

The Alumni will be honored by the guest of the nation, General Pershing, and a party of twenty-eight. He will be received at the athletic field at 5 P. M. At the close of the Class Frolics he will deliver an address to the alumni, seniors and friends.

Another speaker for the day will be Mrs. Milton D. Noyes '74 who has signified her intention of coming back to the university after an absence of forty-six years. Mrs. Noyes is one of the two surviving members of her class and the first woman graduate of the University.

To make the whole affair a success, the committee for Commencement Day has been able to secure the services of the Bangor Symphony orchestra, composed of twenty-four (24) pieces. Music lovers will find a rare treat in the exceptional program offered by H. M. Pullen, conductor of the orchestra.

The following are the selections:

Girls To Be Represented In Athletic Association

Tennis Tournament Scheduled for Next Fall

The girls of the University were pleased when they received the notice that from now on they are to be included in the Athletic Association. Effie Weatherbee '21, Hope Perkins '22 and Eleanor Rodgers '23 were sent as representatives of their classes to consult with a committee composed of "Squirt" Lingley, "Dad" Woodman and Coach Rider. At this meeting it was decided to start tennis immediately this spring in order to have inter-collegiate next fall. They also touched upon plans for basket-ball, hockey and perhaps track for next year. The classes then held meetings to elect tennis managers. Effie Weatherbee was elected by '21, Minnie Norell by '22 and Evelyn Thomas by '23. There is to be an interclass tournament during the week of May 31st. The following were elected to decide on the number of points to be required for letters or numerals and also to design a letter:

Emilie Kitter '21, "Billie" Bisbee '21, "Polly" Miller '21, Ethel Packard '22, Françoise Barrett '22, Martha Chase '22, Eleanor McCusker '23, Marie Hodgdon '23, Ardelle Cooney '23.

The girls hope next year to have a court of their own, because at present they have to go on a schedule for the boys' courts. They are very grateful for the use of the courts, but cannot help but feel that they are inconveniencing the boys, who certainly should enjoy the use of their own property.

Finals Test Disposition Rather than Scholarship

The Usual Crabbing about Finals
Seems to be Less Persistent
This Year

It takes something more than ordinary to chase the smiles off from a Maine man's face, but the one magic "sesam" that works with them all is "finals." Just say "finals" to a Maine student and you will see the most painful expression a show manager could wish. There is some strange spirit abroad this year. The old gloom jinx of final times seems to be in hiding. He hasn't had a look in so far. Some people have tried to crab from a point of principle, but they have given it up as miserable work. It isn't natural to crab when the campus is bright with green grass and blossoms. Even the weather has been laughing all the week. Finals are a better test of a man's disposition than of his scholarship. It doesn't help any to crab. If the profs could be crabbed into tenderness there might be some sense in growling but who ever knew a tender prof? Don't try to drag out that old gloom jinx. He knows his place and it isn't on Maine's sunny campus. Finals might be worse and summer is coming so why worry? It's wonderful weather.

Little bits of wisdom,
Larger bits of bluff,
Make our profs all ask us
Where we get that stuff.

Maine won from Colby in base ball at Waterville Monday in a fast, well played game by a score of 3 to 0. Maine bunched her hits well while Colby's hits were made at a time when they did not mean a run. Both Jowett and Klain pitched good ball. Jowett struck out 5 while Klain struck out 3. Captain Waterman played excellent ball, making three good hits and handling six infield balls without an error. The infield of both teams played excellent ball and the game as a whole was snappy and well played.

University Band Pays Expenses of Its Trip

Androscoggin Valley Alumni Association Proves to be Good Host

When a man or group of men does a good act to another man or group of men it is a kindly thing to let the doer know it is appreciated. So let it be with the Androscoggin Valley Alumni Association of the University of Maine. These men were the doers and those unto whom it was done were the members of the University of Maine Band. This organization was desirous of doing their part in the track meet held at Lewiston May 15. Usually they could have accomplished this by taking a collection from the student body. Instead of doing this however, through the cooperation of the Androscoggin Alumni Association they were able to put on a concert and dance in Lewiston City Hall to pay their expenses and net a good profit for their entertainer on May 14.

The Association had charge of lodging and feeding the band members while they were in Lewiston and from the accounts of those who availed themselves of the accommodations they were splendid.

It is true that the Alumni got a profit for their cooperation but to whom will that gain come eventually? To the University of Maine. It was not a personal gain. It was to carry on the work which the Alumni have so finely established, to make Maine better known than she is, to make her a college where men and the best of men will want to come and do the same thing when they graduate.

It is the spirit of the affair which deserves commendation, that wonderful feeling of college loyalty which prompts a body of Alumni to make the advertisement of their university possible and effective.

Can it be hoped that more Alumni Associations will do something of like nature next year and perhaps through this same means make a state trip for the band possible?

Phi Mu Girls Enjoyed Annual Dog Bat Tuesday

Last Tuesday night the girls of Phi Mu held their usual spring "dog bat" on the river bank near Stillwater. All the members were present and had a pleasant time roasting their dogs over the fire, finishing with doughnuts and coffee. After the "eats" singing was in order to the accompaniment of the ukeleles. The patronesses, Mrs. Hart and Mrs. Huddleston were guests and also four alumnae: Gladys Merrill '15, Ruth March Fairbanks '17, "Jo" Mann '19 and Madeline Moore '18.

All Who Can Should Stay For Commencement

Alumni Should not be Expected to Return to a Deserted Campus

Commencement with its exercises and festivities is almost here. Soon, the campus will be crowded with visiting alumni, many of whom will come from long distances to visit their Alma Mater. For some, it will be the first time they have been back for many years. They must be impressed with the growth of Maine.

This year it is especially important to boom Maine and to advertise her extensively. Of course, the alumni are the best advertisers of the institution, and thus it is very important that they be most favorably impressed with the advancement and condition of the university. What will they think if they return to a deserted college? The most favorable impression can be produced only if they find many activities going on, if they can enter into the college life, and if they can be carried back to the days when they, too, were bur-

Editorial

We are hearing a great deal at present about "Maine spirit." One way in which to show true "Maine spirit" and "pep" is by taking pride in preserving the beauty of our campus. Everyone loves the campus and we know that none other in New England can surpass it, yet owing to the carelessness on the part of a few students our beautiful green lawns have been terribly marred by paper. In passing along some of our walks one would think that the whole student body had been having a hare and hound chase. Dim-sighted hounds, too, could easily follow the trail. In several cases we have seen letters torn into bits and thrown upon the grass. Such an act is inexcusable and shows decidedly a lack of pride and the true Maine spirit on the part of the one who so thoughtlessly does this. You would not throw your waste paper in this way upon your own lawn. Why do it here? Maine is your college home and should receive the same consideration as you show at home. You don't want people from the other Maine colleges saying "They have a pretty campus at Maine, but the students don't take any pride in its appearance." Show your Maine spirit by not throwing paper upon the lawns yourself and by reproving others when you see them do it.

A Co-ed

If the university's repair crew gets out of work this summer a bill board in the vicinity of the waiting room would be a big help. At present, the end of the waiting room is used and as the door occupies half of the end the space is very inadequate. The M. C. A. advertise their movies there. College associations and clubs put up posters of their various activities. There are always posters of dances in Bangor, Orono, Stillwater, and Old Town. The churches tack up their invitations on the waiting room and all the college games and all athletic contests are posted there, too. A bill board for that purpose would be more adequate and if placed under the trees it would be sufficiently sheltered and conspicuous.

Is it true that the college student has a poorer use of the English language than the high school graduate? The other day a bunch of fellows were talking and one of the fellows slipped up on a little sentence construction. It gave the sentence a funny meaning and the bunch gave him the laugh. So in a half apologetic manner he confessed that his use of the English language was not as good now as it was when he graduated from high school. Nearly all the rest accepted the apology by admitting that the same was true with them.

If this is true does the fault lie with the fellows themselves or with the English Department? We believe it is the English Department. The fellows lose interest in the course before they have taken it a month. The first thing that is sprung on a freshman is to write a five hundred word theme on a question that he could answer with four words. The papers come back marked D, E, or F, a nice reward for their first attempt (generally the only faithful attempt made during the whole course). But if the papers are as bad as that then the standards of ranking should be lowered until something has been taught them.

We know of one instance last fall that a freshman copied a short story from a magazine and passed it in. It came back cut to pieces, marked "Very poor," and had to be rewritten. A few days later that student went to the instructor for a conference. The instructor talked steady for about five minutes telling the student how poor his sentence construction was, how very unclearly he expressed himself, and so on. Then he dismissed him. It did the student no good whatever and it was an awful opinion of the instructor that that student had after that.

We overheard he remark the other day that an English instructor kept a co-ed half an hour on a conference. Knowing the co-ed you couldn't blame the instructor but the conference failed to improve the co-ed's knowledge of the English language.

Another interesting incident happened late last fall. One of the freshmen had just received his prep school paper, edited by the student body and supervised and corrected by an English professor formerly of Dartmouth. As a theme was due he copied one of the stories from it and passed it in to his English instructor. It came back with a grade of D and severely criticized. A few weeks later one of the seniors copied the same story and passed it in to the head of the department. This time it came back with a grade of A. But just to show that we are not alone with our troubles we are copying a clipping taken from a Wisconsin paper.

SOPHS HAVE LAFF ON TWO PROFESSORS

This explains why two sophs on the hill now smile when they meet their English instructors.

Monday night the first soph stayed out late, got home "too early" to compose his Tuesday's theme, so clipped a treatise by the president of an eastern university and handed it in.

The manuscript came back marked "Poor, can stand a lot of improvement!"

A few weeks ago the other soph handed in a 1,200 word theme for the semester. He got a "con" on the masterpiece, but sent it to a well-known magazine and yesterday received a check for 25 real dollars.

"It may not be art, but it must have the makin's of literature," said he as he set up the drinks:

The freshman class has the wrong idea of itself. Among its members, as it would seem, can be found the men that own the campus, the men that run the campus, and the men that have put the entire university on the map. We will admit that there is a lot of pep in the freshman class and that there are a lot of good members. But the activity of the class is not in the right direction.

Right after the new standing as regards hazing was taken and the freshman's safety was assured, members of that class were seen smoking on the campus, wearing sweaters, walking with co-eds, and with hats of their own choice or with no hats at all. Rather than take the advice of men that have been here three or four years and even of the alumni, they have preferred to follow their own whims. And rather than observe and follow the example of the classes above them, they have followed their own line of reasoning, which in many cases showed no reasoning at all. Last fall when Maine won the football championship the whistle was blown for about five minutes. But for a big occasion like the rope pull this spring the whistle was blown for half an hour.

Many times when there has been work which it was customary for the freshmen to do upper classmen have had to do it. A number of freshmen who have athletic ability enough to represent Maine on some of her varsity teams have fallen so low in their scholastic standing that they will be ineligible next year. We hope that those who return to be sophomores next year will bear in mind that it requires work as well as play to go thru college and show a few well directed efforts.

Do not forget to give the glad hand to the alumni this Commencement week. Remember that you will soon be among that number and will be coming back to find almost all strange faces in the places where now you see your friends. Make them feel that you are glad to have them here. If there is anything new here that you can show them or tell them about get busy and do it.

To the Alumni who are returning to the University for this Commencement we wish to extend a most hearty welcome. We hope that you will feel at home just as you did in the old days when you were students and as you stroll along our shady walks, tarry in familiar rooms, chat with your old friends of well remembered events or renew acquaintances with your old classmates that you will feel yourself transposed to the old Maine that you used to know, that pleasant memories will crowd themselves upon you and that once again you will feel that pleasing thrill and tingle, and awe for this noble institution that every freshman feels when he first steps upon the campus and realizes that he is a Maine man.

We wish to assure you that, although there have been many changes during the past few years, although many old customs and traditions have died away or have been placed in the background to satisfy the demands of the times, the Maine of today is the same Maine of thirty and forty years ago and Maine men and women of today have the same aspirations, the same ambitions, and work for the same ideals as did you in your undergraduate days.

We realize that much of the progress and advance which has been made in the University has been due largely to the efforts of the alumni. We appreciate this fact because we are the ones who have benefited most by your labors, and when we have joined the ranks of the alumni we will profit by your example and place our shoulders under the burden which you have so untiringly borne for so many years. You have proved to us that the phrase, "Once a Maine man, always a Maine man," is true and we will continue to make it good. The University of Maine is your home. Use it as such.

Practice of Thrift Is Of Vital National Importance

College Students must Realize the Value of Saving Money

In a recent statement to college men and women on "Thrift," Dr. M. L. Burton, president of the University of Minnesota, says that any student who recognizes the unescapable implications of the whole process of education and future leadership in thought and action should be preparing himself to become an ardent advocate of the necessity of thrift.

That preparation is being made available through cooperation of college men and educators with the plan for systematic saving and safe investment in War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates inaugurated by the Savings Division of the Treasury Department.

"Why should the student of today be prepared to become after graduation a leader in his community in spreading the gospel of thrift?" asks Dr. Burton. "Unless other persons had been both productive and thrifty, no adequate educational facilities would now be available for the education of the present student generation. These splendid institutions have been organized, maintained and equipped out of the savings of the past.

Moreover, the average student at the present moment is a non productive member of society. The community in effect says to him: 'We value education so highly that temporarily we are willing to release you from the normal obligations which devolve upon every healthy citizen to be self supporting and agree to provide for your needs.' Society can make this marvelous offer only because others not only have believed in but have actually practised economy.

"It goes without saying that a university trained man should be a leader in his community in all movements calculated to benefit the people as a whole. It seems quite obvious then that any student who recognized the unescapable implications of the whole process of education will be preparing himself to become an ardent advocate of the necessity of thrift. Since the only way to save is to save first and then spend the remainder, the student will practice thrift on a small scale while in college. run to show their pep and come out for the team as freshmen are not allowed to compete in the National's. In our own State Meet, Bates is a strong contender and Maine will have to work hard to bring home the bacon.

Capt. Barnard is giving his undivided efforts to get together a winning team. As a nucleus Capt. Barnard, Raymond, Herrick, A. E. Wilson, W. O. Wilson, McLaughlin, Pease and Cohen of last year's team are out. It is too early in the season yet to ascertain the value of the new material as there are over fifty men in the squad. In order to make competition more keen, Coach Preti is planning to divide the squad into two teams and run races over the regular course.

President Alej began the University year by addressing a few remarks to the student body. He explained that chapel would be voluntary due to the increased student body and the small and inadequate seating capacity of the chapel.

Coach Baldwin and Frank Preti also spoke. Coach Baldwin gave out a few of his plans for developing a winning football team. He strongly urged all athletes to keep eligible throughout the year.

Members of the faculty wishing to subscribe for the "Campus" for one semester send fifty cents to Stanton Glover, Sigma Chi House. Those wishing to subscribe for both semesters send one dollar.

Lewiston Paper Comments Favorably on Our Band

The City was Certainly well Pleased with its Appearance

The University has reason to be proud of the Band, which crowned its year's work Friday night, May 14, in Lewiston with a concert and dance. The Lewiston Journal published the following report in the Saturday issue:

U. OF M. BAND CAPTURED LEWISTON

Khaki-Clad Musicians from Eastern Maine Heard to Fine Advantage Flag-Draped Hall

The University of Maine has a corking band! This was the unanimous opinion of all who attended the pop concert and dance given by the Cadet Band of that college Friday evening. It was a sort of gala evening for the college people and their friends, many of whom had arrived in town to be here in readiness for the intercollegiate track meet on Saturday.

All the flags and bunting were gotten out in honor of the band in khaki and City Hall glowed from floor to roof with red, white and blue, while patriotic emblems greeted the boys on every side. The floor space was cleared for the dancing to follow the concert program and the balcony was barely commodious enough to hold the audience, which extended the boys the warmest of welcomes. The affair was given under the auspices of the Androscoggin Valley Alumni Association of the University and all arrangements were made by their committee, headed by Timothy D. Bonney and Harold Cooper, whose guests the band members were at a banquet preceding the concert.

There is nothing amateurish about the University of Maine Band. It is a band which has got right down to business and become accustomed to the training and team work and rigid discipline of army service. For this is the same organization that went across with the boys from Maine. At least it is the same with only such changes in personnel as have been necessary to fill vacancies left by the boys who have completed or abandoned their college course. And they played with true military spirit and precision and dash under the directorship of C. C. Swift.

In time, accent and big, full tone this organization leaves little to be desired. Their inspiring marches and college songs received rousing applause. The band of twenty-five men is remarkably well balanced and all are accomplished players. They are favored by an unusually good piccolo, whose big musical tones at once attracted attention. His work was particularly effective in Lincke's Idyl, "The Glow Worm," which was one of the most enjoyable numbers on the program.

Their work did not cease with the concert. The full band played for an order that lasted until midnight and furnished such music as the dancers seldom enjoy. Everybody had a good time and many of the young people followed the band to Union Square where it formed with the U. of M. students and gave the college cheers and songs, ending with the "Maine Stein Song."

Mr. Cooper of the committee, commenting upon this write-up in a letter to Director Sprague, says: "Everything mentioned is true. The concert and dance music which the boys put on was certainly the best I ever heard and everybody was high in praise of the work that night." Speaking of Swift, leader of the band, he says, "He handled his men like a veteran and they certainly obeyed him and worked with him in fine shape. They put in the concert and dance every bit of music they had in them, and in closing I will say that it was a great success and you have every reason to be proud of your band boys."

As an added feature Raymond Simonds, noted tenor soloist of the New Old South Church of Boston, will render an excellent repertoire of songs. The concert will be held at chapel. It commences at 7.30 P. M. and ends at 9.00. Tickets will be one dollar.

The last affair of the day will be the Hop which follows the concert. The gymnasium will be decorated with Maine colors. Each fraternity is to have a booth. Refreshments will be served and music for the dance will be played by a picked team of the Symphony.

Practice of Thrift is of Vital National Importance

the fundamental realities of the problem of thrift. Just now America presents an awful spectacle. Never before has there been such a riot of expenditure and orgy of extravagance as now. We need to revitalize in some form the splendid old New England practice of thrift."

Entering the World Electrical

THE graduate of today enters a world electrical. Gathered from the distant waterfalls or generated by the steam turbine, electric power is transmitted to the busiest city or smallest country place.

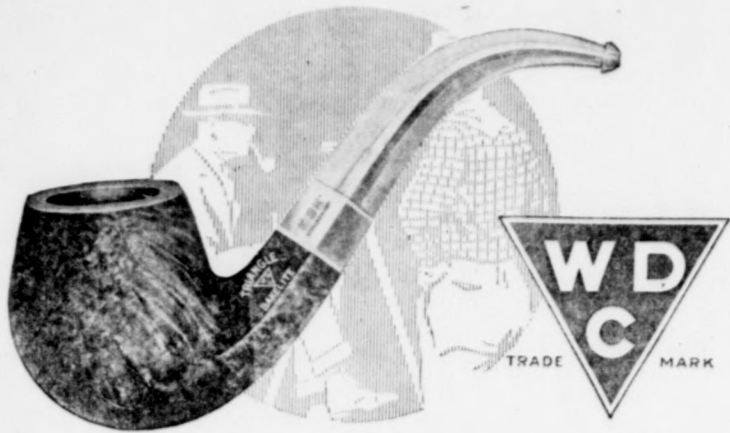

Through the co-ordination of inventive genius with engineering and manufacturing resources, the General Electric Company has fostered and developed to a high state of perfection these and numerous other applications.

And so electricity, scarcely older than the graduate of today, appears in a practical, well developed service on every hand.

Recognize its power, study its applications to your life's work, and utilize it to the utmost for the benefit of all mankind.

University Wins in Baseball From Both Bowdoin and Colby

led by the Bangor High School band. The Maine band was also on the field and between the two bands the spirit was never allowed to lag for an instant. The game was close but there were frequent errors by both sides and a rather loose game as a whole. Bowdoin showed very little "pep", eleven men being struck out by Watson. There were three home runs during the game made by Doherty, Waterman and Walker.

Bowdoin made three runs in the first inning. Doherty made his home run in this inning.

Maine came to the bat in the last of the first with a handicap of three runs. Sargent was walked and Waterman made his home run. This left the score 2-3.

Bowdoin scored again in the third inning on Doherty's hit and a slip up by Waterman.

In the fifth inning after Rusk and Waterman were walked P. Johnson drove a ball thru Cook which brought Rusk and Waterman home. This made the score 4-4. Walker was walked in the sixth and came home on Watson's hit. Morrell made a hit for Bowdoin in the eighth and scored the final run for Bowdoin. After one down in the eighth Johnny Walker whaled the pill to right field nearly to the fence making home before the ball had hardly been started home. This was the last hit of the game and the winning run for Maine.

Watson pitched steady ball and shaded Walker of Bowdoin. Watson fanned eleven men giving but one free pass. Walker fanned six men walking seven.

portunities open to one here. Tell the facts. Do not make up a fairy story about things that you know do not exist here. There are enough good and true points to stress. Look around you now. See your beautiful campus. We once heard a woman say that had visited the campuses of nearly all the New England colleges that she had seen nothing to compare with the one here at Orono.

Another thing that you should do if it is possible is to use your influence if you have any (and you should have some if your course here is doing for you what you ought to be letting it do) with some of the influential men at home, the state representatives, and senators. Mention to them the needs of the university. Do not step up to them and say, "We shall be awful sore down to the U. of M. if you do not vote for that appropriation next January." That will never get a man. He will think you are a little upstart. Try to make him see of what benefit the U. of M. could be to the state if it were furnished with sufficient funds. Casually mention how crowded the classes have been this year because of a lack of teachers. A great many more boys and girls of the high schools of Maine are planning to come here next year. Ask them if they want these young people to be disappointed and turned away from their state university to which they have a right to expect to go just because the school can not afford to equip itself to accommodate them. The University of Maine is for the people of Maine and it should be put up to them in that light.

Do not forget to do your part. Do not say to yourself, "Well, I guess Bill will speak to folks about it and what I should say would not make any difference." It is up to you. Answer the challenge!

A Co-ed

All Who Can Should Stay for Commencement

dened with finals in engineering or co-education.

It is up to the undergraduates to hang on for a few days longer, to stay and attend Commencement. Though of course, many are anxious to go home as soon as possible, yet what will a few more days matter, considering the greater gain.

This is the last appeal to your Maine spirit. It is not an appeal to do something unpleasant, but one to have a good time, for really, Commencement is an event long to be remembered. If you have never seen one, here's your chance to do so while you can enjoy it. If you have seen one, you don't need to be told of the pleasure in store for you. Unpack those trunks, get out your "glad rags," be prepared to have a good time, and boost Maine.
