OVERSEERS OF THE POOR REPORT.

There have been two persons supported by the town for the entire year, Rufus B. Richard and James H. Marston. The first of the year we found some trouble in obtaining a suitable boarding-house for J. H. Marston without paying a higher price than we had formerly paid, but finally contracted with Cora B. Dolloff to board him for $3.75 per week.

The price paid per week for board of R. B. Richards at the Insane Hospital at Augusta, is $2.50 per week, exclusive of clothing.

In February we received notice from the Overseers of the Poor of the town of Rockport that (Lydia), or Lizzie Ellen Meserve, daughter of Vincent and Ellen A. Meserve, had been found destitute in that town and in need of immediate relief, and that the same had been furnished her on account of the town of North Yarmouth.

We immediately notified the overseers of the town of Rockport that Lydia or Lizzie Ellen Meserve had no legal settlement in this town, and that we should pay no charges on her account, and have heard nothing from them since.

No. 1. Miss Carrie T. Whitney, teacher. Miss Whitney needs no introduction to the citizens of the town, as she has been a teacher here for a number of years. As a characteristic of her schools, the recitations were prompt, accurate and brief.

No. 2. Mrs. E. M. McIntire taught this school. The most harmonious feeling existed between teacher and pupils. She is an energetic, enthusiastic and progressive teacher.

No. 3. This school has been under the instruction of Miss Ada L. Morrill. Miss Morrill is a first-class teacher, and the work accomplished was very satisfactory.

No. 4. Miss Elsie M. Dolloff, teacher. This was Miss Dolloff's first experience in teaching, but she showed wonderful ability in her work. The pupils made marked progress in their studies. On account of a case of scarlet fever in the neighborhood, the winter term was in session only eleven weeks.

No. 6. Miss Ineze C. Page, teacher. Miss Page represents the modern method of teaching which tends to make individuals rather than machines. The pupils were taught to be respectful and courteous. The school was very fortunate in securing such efficient services.

No. 9. The spring and fall terms were taught by Miss Adelaide Hodsdon. Miss Hodsdon was very earnest in her work and showed much tact as a teacher. Was exceedingly sorry that she was unable to continue through the year. Dr. D. N. Woodman commenced the winter term but was obliged to resign on account of professional duties. Miss Bertha L. Dolloff finished the term, and the result of her work was very gratifying.

REMARKS.

TOWN SYSTEM.

Larmartine says: "There are epochs in the history of the human race when the decayed branches fall from the tree of humanity, and when institutions grown old and exhausted, sink and leave a space for fresh institutions full of sap, which renew the youth and recast the ideas of a people." Although we have had the town system for only a year, yet it has already demonstrated the wisdom of its promoters. Like every new undertaking, its inception presents seemingly insurmountable difficulties which time and experience will remove. This system is by no means an experiment with others. Before the legislative act of 1893, many towns voluntarily adopted this system, and it has fully shown its adaptability for the advancement of education. It gives the several schools uniform length; more economical, more efficient management; better schoolhouses and appliances; skilled and experienced teachers.

During the year the pupils in No. 5 have been transported to No. 6, and the consolidation has proven very satisfactory. The uniting of small schools makes the pupils more enthusiastic and progressive.

SCHOOLHOUSES.

During the summer a new schoolhouse was built. The plans and specifications perhaps, called for an excessive appropriation, but the committee felt that not a dissenting voice would be raised if a building was erected which would be a pride to the town, and an improvement in our educational facilities. The design did not demand, especially, architectural beauty, but convenience and adaptability to the needs of the school. The lighting, furniture, heating and ventilation, are according to the most improved methods.

I would earnestly recommend that a new schoolhouse be built in No. 4 during the present year. The old house is in such a dilapidated condition that it endangers the health of the pupils. If a new building is constructed a change in location is desirable as the present site is unsuitable.

Since education is compulsory, as it should be, it is our duty to provide healthful accommodations for the pupils.

I would also recommend that modern school seats and desks be furnished to those schoolhouses which have not already been supplied.

TEXT BOOKS.

Never in our educational history has there been published so much progressive and instructive literary matter as at the present time, and which tends to round out and complete a proper development. In our rural schools the common course of study soon becomes monotonous and tedious when pursued exclusively year after year. During my term of office I have endeavored to introduce into our schools supplementary work which, while being interesting and instructive, would not at the same time interfere with the regular school work.

Teachers and school committees have a great opportunity for presenting to pupils such instruction as shall give both stimulus and guidance in the formation of character and conduct of life, and to the highest ideals of true citizenship.

Section 1702 of the Political Code of California, is worthy of mention and adoption. "It shall be the duty of all teachers to endeavor to impress on the minds of the pupils the principles of morality, truth, justice and patriotism; to avoid idleness, profanity and falsehood; and to instruct them in the principles of a free government, and to train them up to a true comprehension of the rights, duties and dignity of American citizenship."

Appreciating the worth and importance of this law in our educational system, I introduced during the year, Thayer's Ethics of Success and Dole's American Citizen, the objects of which were to impress upon the minds of the pupils these fundamental principles.

One great reform in the methods and matter of education, is the introduction of elementary science-teaching, which cultivates in the formative period of a child's mind a taste for scientific study, and the application of simple principles to the wonders and beauties of nature. Pupils who formerly perceived only meaningless objects in nature, now learn to find "tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, sermons in stones, and good in everything." For a preliminary book in this study, Nature's Stories for Young Readers was introduced, as a supplementary reader.

At the present time much attention is called towards humane education. The fear of punishment, or even punishment itself, has utterly failed in lessening cruelty to dumb animals; and whether future generations will be more humane is a question of education. This can be accomplished by impressing upon the receptive minds of children lessons of love and kindness to the lower animals. A series of humane publications were introduced, to be used under the direction of the teacher, either on a library plan or for schoolroom reading.

From observation, I came to the conclusion, that an extended course in bookkeeping was time wasted in our rural schools, and for all those who wished to pursue that study I substituted Shaw's Business Forms, which gives the practical forms and examples of common every day transactions.

There is a strong movement in favor of making a universal change in writing books, from the customary sloping style to the vertical style. The reasons to justify this innovation are, that the vertical is more legible and compels the pupil to assume an upright position.

The English Classic Series, which are in every school, should be continued and renewed. These are potent factors in cultivating and forming in the minds of the pupils correct expressions of speech. "I may avow," says President Eliot of Harvard University, "as the result of my reading and observation in the matter of education, that I recognize but one mental acquisition as the essential part of the education of a lady or gentleman—namely, an accurate and refined use of the mother tongue."

It would be advisable that a change be made in our histories and geographies for a later edition.

TEACHERS.

With but one exception, each school has had the same teacher through the year. With competent teachers, continued instruction is of the utmost importance. Pupils are subjected to a great injustice by frequent change of teachers.

Towns that cannot afford to support a free high school should, at least, give aid to those pupils who are qualified. The expense would be small, as the state contributes for such a purpose.

As the retiring member of the Committee, I wish to express my gratitude to all those who have approved of my suggestions, and rendered such valuable assistance in the performance of my duties, and in the future, although my connection with the schools will be more indirect, yet I shall always take a deep interest in their educational welfare.
