BASKETBALL MEN MUST REPORT TO KANALY AT ONCE

ONLY THREE LETTER MEN TO BE IN 1924-25 SQUAD

All candidates for the basket ball team must report to Coach Kanaly for cross country training this fall, for Coach Murphy is starting the basket ball season with the beginning of the school year. All men who intend to play this year should see Coach Murphy immediately if they wish to have a chance when the games start.

This new policy has been adopted in order to have the men in the best possible shape when the actual practice starts. The team has been slow at the start of the season in the past, and this early training is primarily to eliminate this fault.

Many veterans were lost by graduation last year and these gaps must be filled from the last year's freshman team. While there are some good prospects among the 1927 cluster, it will be quite a task to fill the shoes of "Ollie" Berg, "Louie" Horsman and "Crabby" Newall. Only three of the ten who won their letters last year are with the team for the coming season. These are Captain "Mac" Lake, "Tubby" Everett, and John Mason.

The big games this year, as usual, will be with New Hampshire. These two games have become the main objective of our basketball season. During the past two years Maine has won two and lost two to New Hampshire.

A trip into Canada is under consideration at present. If this materializes it will come during the Christmas vacation. More home games are on the schedule this year and it is hoped that the student body will give the team their full support.

The men who have started the cross country schedule are: Captain Lake, Everett, Olson, Shea, Johnson, Curran, Humphrey, and Soderberg.

MR. RICHARDS SPEAKS ON LIFE IN ENGLAND

Last Friday night the first of a series of lectures by the English Department was given by Mr. Richards in Coburn Hall. His subject was "English Life and Customs of Alfred's Time." Lantern slides of costumes, homes, weapons, coins, ornaments, and ships of the Anglo-Saxon people, as shown by crude drawings and reproductions of tapestry, provoked a great deal of merriment among the students. The next lecture of the series will be given two weeks from Friday by Dr. Ellis on "The Condition of England after the Norman Conquest."

Points of interest in Mr. Richards' lecture follow:

No Trench Digging For R. O. T. C., Glover Says

There will be no trench digging this year for University of Maine students who are taking the required course in military science and tactics. Maj. G. Barrett Glover, in command of the R.O. T.C. unit, has announced that this form of instruction, which on rainy days is nothing more than punishment, has been done away with.

Army authorities, he said, have decided that there has been altogether too much emphasis placed on that form of the military art. Trench digging, they believe, was used in the World War only as a result of unusual conditions.

FRESHMEN BOW TO HEBRON 11

Fumbles Costly In Saturday Afternoon Game

The University of Maine Freshmen were defeated by the fast, heavy team representing Hebron Academy, at Orono, Saturday, by the score of 10 to 0. Although defeated, the Freshman Team showed great form at times, and early in the second period worked the ball well into Hebron's territory. The game was rather slow due to frequent penalties and loose playing on both sides.

Hebron scored early in the first period, when, after a Hebron man had recovered a Freshman fumble, Hobbs, playing left halfback for the visitors, scored a field goal.

Early in the second period by a series of rushes by Buzzell and Osgood, together with a completed forward pass, the Freshmen had placed the ball on Hebron's 22 yard line, only to lose it by a fumble.

During the last few minutes of play in the third period by means of a long forward pass, Hebron carried the ball to the Freshman 1 yard line. On the first play in the final period Adams, Hebron's colored fullback, dove through the line for a touchdown. Hobbs kicked the goal. Score, Hebron 10, Freshmen 0. Hebron's final tally came a little later when a Freshman fell on the ball back of his own goal for a safety. The game soon ended, the final score being Hebron 12, Freshmen 0.

WOMEN STUDENTS HOLD MASS MEETING

On Friday, a mass meeting of the Women's Student Government Association was held. According to regulations, the president, Arlene Besse, read the Constitution to both the new and the old girls. Class representatives to the Governing Council were elected as follows: Senior, Helene Douglas; sophomore, Florence Gushee; freshman, Ruth Thompson.

The Constitution of this Association is being made over to meet the approval of the faculty and the Dean of Women, and until this is done, no handbook of the rules and regulations will be issued.

At this meeting, Grace Murray was elected the Freshman Class representative to the Women's A. A.

COURSE IN "ART IDEALS" OFFERED

Art Ideals is a new two hour course given this semester by Prof. Huddleston, Tuesday and Thursday, seventh hour. The purpose of the course is to throw light on cultural America and to stimulate a broader interest in art appreciation particularly as affecting the public mind and reflecting national spirit. To attain this end, lectures will be given on the relation of the Fine Arts to national culture and spirit with the idea of presenting a background for the appreciation of the architecture, sculpture, and painting of America.

Only within the last 20 years has the value of the arts as agencies for developing and fixing public opinion and ideals met with any general recognition in the United States.

The text book for the course is The Significance of the Fine Arts, published in 1923 by the Committee on Education of the American Institute of Architects. In addition each member of the class will be expected to develop a special topic relating to the history of American Arts.

TRAINING TABLE REAL NECESSITY SAYS SAM CUTTS

BELIEVES GRID MEN SHOULD GET TOGETHER EVERY NIGHT

By C. J. Cutts

Varsity Quarterback

Maine's football squad has been sadly handicapped this fall by the lack of a training table. For the past three years, the team has had a training table at Hannibal Hamlin Hall. This year, lack of funds is said to forbid it.

How the lack of funds can be used as an excuse is hard to see by the football men. In former years, each man paid a certain sum himself for the meals. That is, if he was a fraternity man, the fraternity handled the affair and paid, or very nearly paid, for the meals. Why can't this be done this year?

Maine's football men need a training table. Not entirely for the wholesome food that they get there, but for the benefits derived from getting to (Continued on Page Four)

RIFLE CLUB MEETING

There will be an important meeting of the Rifle Club at 1 o'clock Friday noon in Alumni Hall. This meeting is very important because officers for the coming year will, at this time, be chosen, and the schedule will be considered. All men interested in the Rifle Club should make it a point to be at this meeting. Remember—1 o'clock, Friday, Oct. 3, in the Chapel.

Barber Shaw O.K.'s The Safety Razor

"The less who come in for a shave, the better we like it." So said A. W. Shaw in answer to a question put to him in his barber-shop in Coburn Hall.

The reporter had asked, "What, do you think, has been the effect of safety razors on your business?" He had thought the only benefit possible would be perhaps that the scarred and maimed who had trusted these razors, in desperation would turn at last to Mr. Shaw for safe and sane shaves.

"We have so many who want hair-cuts, that a mere shave is a nuisance," Mr. Shaw went on. "The safety razor has our blessing."

MAINE ROMPS OVER RHODE ISLAND 37-0

University of Maine outclassed Rhode Island State College in every way in the opening football game of the season this afternoon, piling up 37 points and keeping the Rhode Islanders far from its own goal line.

Rhode Island appeared like a green team, sadly in need of practice, and had no offensive, while the Maine backs played a rushing game that had Rhode Island entirely demoralized.

From the first kickoff, Maine showed its superiority and smothered Rhode Island so that it was inside of 30-yard line but once and then when it recovered a fumble Maine's whole attack was based on smashing line plays, with only a few end runs and but little attempt at overhead football.

On its first march Maine took the ball from Rhode Island's 20-yard line across the field to the five-yard line, from (Continued on Page Three)

ANNUAL HARE AND HOUND CHASE HELD

About 100 girls from Balentine, Mt. Vernon, and North Hall dormitories hiked Saturday morning to the stand-pipe on the Hare and Hound Chase given by the Y. W. C. A. The Hares led the Hounds a merry race by marking roundabout trails and placing placards at various points along the way, commanding the Hounds to do ridiculous stunts.

Arriving at the picnic ground, the girls enjoyed their "eats," hot dogs, doughnuts and coffee. After a general "sing" of college and popular songs, at 1 o'clock the crowd returned home invigorated, happy, and ready to be eager spectators at the football game.

DEBATERS LINE UP FOR FIRST PRACTICE

Although two of the promising members of last year's debating team at the University of Maine have left college, Manager Frank Hussey of Presque Isle is arranging a schedule and Prof. Bailey and Alvin C. Eurich of the department of public speaking are beginning to groom their orators for intercollegiate contests.

Edward Curran of Bangor and Charles Evans of Portland are missing from the squad, but the University still has Charles W. Campbell of Gray, Robert Haskell of Bangor, John Behringer of Elmhurst, N. Y. and John McCobb of Orono, all of whom showed up favorably last year.

Ten freshmen have reported for practice and have received reading assignments. At a meeting next week, the debating association will be reorganized and there will be discussion of possible questions for debate. It is possible that the Soviet Government will be the question discussed by the Maine debaters this year.

The first regular meeting of El Circulo Espanol was held Tuesday evening, Sept. 23 at Fernald Hall. A practise initiation was held in view of the coming initiation of members. A program of the next meeting was read. The remainder of the evening was spent in playing games.

Energetic men and women are helping pay their college expenses by various ways on the campus. It is early in the year, but numbers have applied to the University administration for permission to sell articles of clothing, tobacco and confectionery.

SOME "TEND" STORE

The best known way of making money on the campus is conducting a so-called "store." Every dormitory and fraternity house has its own emporium, and it is a mighty popular place the entire year. For it is here that the men and women satisfy their desires and cravings for sweets, smokes and chews.

A store is conducted in the men's dormitories and probably this is the best paying proposition of them all. It is possible for a good business man to clean up between three and four hundred dollars a year. The goods are kept in a carefully locked trunk when the store is closed. The energetic fellow will arrange his affairs however, so that most of the time he can attend to business and get the gang to buy of him.

WOMEN HAVE STORES

The women also have "stores" in their dormitories and they are as popular as those of the men. Candy is sold in abundance as is chewing gum, but tobacco does not occupy the large place as in the (Continued on Page Four)

MAINE MEN ACTIVE IN ELECTRICAL WORK

Twelve University of Maine men are members of the big team of eight hundred college graduates who are tackling telephone and radio problems in the research laboratories of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Western Electric Company at 463 West Street, New York. Their investigations cover a wide range; while one group makes studies of human speech and hearing, another is at work on improved telephone and radio apparatus, and still others are studying the habits of flying electrons. Of these men, 35 can write "Ph.D." after their names. Their subjects of specialization were physics, chemistry and mathematics and 7 are graduates of the University of Chicago, 5 of Princeton, 5 of Johns-Hopkins, and 4 of Yale. One man holds the degree of Doctor of Science from the University of Manchester, England.

Students Like Society Dramas Best—Owen

"Society Dramas are the most popular pictures we show," says Mr. Owen of the Strand Theatre. "These pictures draw nearly all the women and half of the men because of the alleged instructive value that they carry."

In speaking of movies in general, Mr. Owen says that there are four big types, namely: the "Society Drama," the "Western Thriller," the comedies, and the melo-dramatic serials. Each type of picture has its own following of students; popularity falling in the order named.

Pictures such as "The Ten Commandments," "The Covered Wagon," and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" are well attended but can not be classified.

EDITORIAL

"Three things the reporter must bear in mind: First, facts, not rumor or gossip, are wanted; second, the relation of these facts, each to the other, is to be sought; third, the relation of these facts to the reading public is to be established."

From Essentials in Journalism
Harrington and Frankenberg

M

Students and Reporters

News writers are much maligned. Professors allege that they treat facts "cavalierly," conservative business and professional men protest against the practice of emphasizing the spectacular and neurotic aspects of human life; and those who advocate social reform say that all journalists kowtow to big business.

In a measure, all of these charges are true. In the haste of preparing copy for immediate publication, errors are made. Newspaper men give prominence to the mistakes and misfortunes of human beings because there has been great interest in such details ever since our Simian ancestors descended from trees. The founder of the Standard Oil Co. gets more publicity by giving away nickles on his birthday than Dr. Little would gain by distributing dimes every Sunday.

Any indictment against the press can be backed up with facts, and an equal number of facts can be submitted in refutation. But whether or not we are pleased with newspapers as they are today, we can all learn something from the newspaper methods of investigation and presentation.

The reporter, like the college student, is striving to arrive at the truth, rejecting the irrelevant and the false. The reporter finds certain sources of information carefully guarded. The student finds them all wide open. His problem is one of selection.

Like the reporter, the student studies his facts and attempts to develop a proper perspective and a sense of proportion. If the student fails to see the relation which exists between the facts he has assembled, he flunks an examination. If the reporter blunders over the same problem, he loses his job.

The reporter does not determine the relation of his story to the general public. An editor scans it and decides whether it shall be smeared across the first page or tucked under a department store advertisement.

Some college students stop when they come to the third problem. They gather their facts, write their stories, and depend upon instructors to tell them what it all means. Until they can comprehend the significance of the items they collect, they will be reporters, doing errands for some one else.

Animadversions On Hogs

The hog, released from his pen, leaves his mark wherever he goes. He has no respect for the garden plot, the veranda rug, or the family washing. He tramples on them all.

Society learned long ago that it is advisable to confine the hog behind a high board fence. That is our protective reaction against his delinquencies. We forget sometimes that there are human hogs whose offenses against civilization make the mischief of a wild boar seem inconsiderable. The reference is to the nimble fingered ladies and gentlemen who underline sentences and write in the margins of library books.

The student derives a certain pleasure from reading a book undefiled by pagan hands. To find new truths well expressed gives him an agreeable sense of discovery, makes him feel for a moment that he is learning something some one else has missed.

But if the "meaty" passages of a book are underscored with heavy graphite marks; if arrows point to them from the margins, much of the pleasure of discovery eludes the reader. And if he happens to find such puerile nonsense as "If my name you wish to see, look on page 123," he leaves his task with a dark brown taste in his mouth, reflecting on the baseness of mankind.

The Rubbing Room Is Scene of Great Activity

The rubbing room in Alumni Hall is the scene of great activity after football practice every afternoon. The air hangs heavy with the odor of iodine and rubbing liniment, and Trainer Wallace is usually present, giving aid here and there about a bruised limb or a strained muscle.

On the rubbing tables lie several weary aspirants for grid honors, while the manager and his assistants work over them, kneading and slapping their tired bodies. Varsity and freshman players mingle, commenting on the afternoon's work.

But empty stomachs and voracious appetites call and will not be denied. Shortly groups of men, once more in their campus attire, hurry away to supper and another football day is over.

R. W. Laughlin '22, completed a three months' course in the Testing Department of the Schenectady Works of the General Electric Company, last summer, and was assigned to the Production Department at the Lynn Works of the Company, as a student engineer.

Mc—My uncle has arms like Venus De Milo.

He—Why, Venus didn't have any arms. Me again—Neither has my uncle.

Kenneth L. Cyphers—Senior Civil Engineering Class has returned to college after spending the summer with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company at East Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Cyphers has been preparing himself for work in the hydro-electric field and in order to become more familiar with the electrical practices as they apply to power plants arranged to spend a part of his vacation on the manufacturing of generator and control equipment.

Sailing West to India

SINCE the days of Christopher Columbus men have felt the call to "sail due west to find India." In an organization like Westinghouse, such pioneering spirits find happy haven as research engineers. Their every thought is a question—every energy bent to discover new and more effective answers to baffling problems.

Immediately Westinghouse began to build alternating current machines of high voltages, for example, the problem of insulation became acute. For thirty-five years high voltages and insulation have formed an endless chain of problems. As voltages have been increased, improved insulation has been demanded. As insulation has been bettered, voltages have been still further increased.

One striking contribution of Westinghouse research engineers has been the perfection of an entirely new insulation material—Micarta. Possessing many of the qualities of metal, paper, fiber, mica, gum, rubber, Micarta differs in radical respect from all of these.

It serves industry indirectly as improved insulation material, and also directly because of superiorities when used for gears, propeller blades, and the like.

Only the imagination can set a limit on the field for the research engineer—or for an organization that centers around him.

"Bill" Wilson, New Secretary, Will Put the M.C.A. On the Map

"I want to put the M. C. A. on the map. It has been more or less of a good laugh for the past few years, but from now on the organization is going to make itself felt in every activity."

The speaker was "Bill" Wilson, successor to A. B. Clark as Secretary of the Maine Christian Association. A reporter engaged him in conversation as he sat in one of Estabrooke Hall's made-over rooms and gazed rather longingly, it seemed, at the walls and floors, which still seem barren of furnishings.

When you meet "Bill," or Mr. L. C. Wilson, as he signs his checks, and become better acquainted with him, you will be inclined to believe that he will accomplish his purpose. He is rather quiet, without being taciturn. Also, he can say the right thing at the right time, as he demonstrated at the Freshman Reception.

He has had much experience in Y. M. C. A. work and his duties have taken him to many foreign fields.

"Bill" was graduated in 1911 from the Y. M. C. A. College at Springfield, Mass., and also attended Oberlin College at Oberlin, Ohio. In 1911 he entered Y. M. C. A. work in Texas, and was there two years. In the summer of 1913 he went to China, via Europe and India, arriving at Shanghai in the late autumn of the same year.

For three years, Wilson was secretary of the National Y. M. C. A. Commission in China, with headquarters at Shanghai. His work covered twelve provinces, and obliged him to travel a great deal over this territory. He spent one year in the Chinese Language School in Peking. This school is maintained for the benefit of missionaries, Y. M. C. A. men, diplomats, and business men, who wish to learn the Chinese language. There were over 300 students in the school at that time.

From Peking, he went to Tokio, Japan, where for two years he acted as general secretary of the Chinese Student Christian Association. In Tokio there were 5000 Chinese students.

Wilson came back to the U. S. then and was here from 1919-1922 as Personnel Secretary of the International Y. M. C. A. Commission. His business was to enlist young people from the colleges for foreign service, some to be supported by the Y. M. C. A. and some by the government.

In 1922, "Bill" went back to Europe and was at Geneva, Switzerland till the spring of this year. During that time, he travelled throughout Europe and the Near East.

From Geneva, he came to Orono, and we think he is here to stay, as the freshmen of a year ago so rashly painted on the fence.

HANDICAP MEET COMES NEXT WEEK

The annual handicap track meet will be held next Monday and Wednesday, October 6 and 8 at 4:15 P. M., under the auspices of the track department. Handicap track meets have been very successful in the past, both as a practical measure in posting the coach on the value of promising material, and as an element of fun and interest to all track candidates, who however, do not enjoy themselves any more than the spectators, these latter always waxing enthusiastic at the usually hard fought contest.

A handicap meet is, of course, theoretically a contest between perfectly matched opponents, and in practice it approaches this ideal, as the judgment of the coach, who assigns the amount of handicap, is surprisingly accurate.

But the unexpected invariably happens, and some formerly insignificant freshman who has been struggling to do the 220 in 35 flat, comes to the fore and stays there, and with only the open track and the fast approaching tape before him, stretches those traditionally long and skinny legs, and before the varsity men can overcome their handicap, crosses the finish line and becomes the red blooded manly hero of the entering class.

This sort of incident is typical of what may be expected at the meet next year. Coach Kanaly is greatly encouraged by the showing of the squad. The coach wants every student who either suspects that he has athletic ability or has a desire to place the team on a higher plane, to turn out and at least give himself a fair trial.

Many Maine Students Are Paying Their Way

case of the men's "stores."
 Selling clothes is another popular way of getting spare change. Inmates of fraternities and dormitories are accustomed to seeing huge trunks left at the doors and shortly afterward an enterprising salesman appearing and displaying his wares. Every article of clothing that the college man needs is shown. Suits, overcoats, shoes, hats, socks, underclothes, sweaters, ties and golf hose are disposed of with promptness and in great quantities throughout the year. A salesman realizes large commissions on his disposals and has an opportunity to meet nearly every one in college besides.
 Besides selling different articles enterprising students find it possible to earn in other ways. The manager of the check room at gym dances 'cleans up' huge profits for one evening's work.
 BUSINESS "BUM" IN BEAUTY PARLOR
 In looking over the permit files in the University office the interesting fact that two coeds are running a beauty parlor in one of the women's dormitories appears. An interview with the girls was rather disappointing however, as they regretfully admitted that business was poor and they rather thought that their sex doubted their ability along their advertised lines.

The University frequently has work by means of which students benefit greatly. Raking and mowing lawns in the spring is a source of income to many. The waiters jobs in the men's and women's dormitories are very acceptable and mean much to the needy boy or girl.

Not a few students are earning by instructing others. We find student instructors in the departments of mathematics, history, biology, French, chemistry, physics, English and forestry. These students are paid by the hour and they find it pleasant and profitable work.

A few of the women are able to find employment in the University library. Their duties consist of tending the desk, arranging volumes and answering questions concerning books that students desire.

A few students are working their entire way through college. Teaching seems to be the most popular way of doing this. Usually a year at college is taken and then the student goes out and teaches in some high school for a year, repeating this performance until he receives his degree.

VACATION EMPLOYMENT

Many of the men and women find employment in the summer time by working in hotels as waiters, clerks, porters, bell boys, and bookkeepers. This gives the student a pleasant change as well as financial gain.

Christmas vacation finds hundreds of students working on mail trains and in postoffices, assisting in handling the heavy mails that appear then. College people are preferred by the government for this work and are well paid.

A careful review of the University shows that nearly every student earns at least a part of his expenses. Some are harder pressed than others, but as a whole the University of Maine student body is keen on raking in the coin and is a thrifty bunch.

gether after practice and talking over the work of the afternoon. Here is where coaches Brice and Murphy are able to explain better the defects and errors made by the men in the preceding afternoon and they are also able to illustrate their points by blackboard talks. This is the place where a study of the rules of the game takes place. Every man is given some question to solve each night and here is where the rule book comes into play.

Now anyone can see that a training table is essential to a winning football team. There seems to be a lack of the old spirit this fall or the Maine Bears would surely have their training table. If Maine does not win the State Championship this season, there will be a lot of kicking from the sidelines, but it won't be the team's fault. Every man will be in there giving his best, which will be little enough.

that Rome's supremacy was over. To them Rome was glorious. Christianity was eagerly accepted because it seemed to them a road to Rome.

"By Alfred's time a changed environment had produced stolid farmers and tradesmen; no longer thrived the spirit of adventure that had carried them to Britain. Piracy and pillaging was over. This placidity is shown by the fact that after a victory over the Danes, they left the latter in possession of the field while they went home to milk the cows. Alfred even had to hire Frisian pirates to man his navy.

"The structure of society was changing. A nobility gradually emerged. The thanes were men of leisure. Hunting, hawking, drinking, and boasting were their chief sports. Eating was a community affair. It was considered a disgrace to dine alone. The meals were at 9 A. M., 3 P. M., and an uncertain hour in the evening, followed by a drinking bout lasting till an even more uncertain hour of the morning."

It—Has any one commended you on your driving?

His—Yes, one guy made a short remark.

It (once more)—What did he say?

His (once again)—Twenty dollars and costs.
