MISS ROSE DAVIS' VOLUME ON STEPHEN DUCK INTER-NATIONALLY ACCLAIMED

Miss Rose Davis's recent volume on the life and works of Stephen Duck, the thresher-poet and precursor of Burns, has won much favorable comment in this country and in England. Professor Craigie of Oxford says: "Miss Davis's very thorough study is of interest as showing how certain types of poetry can be more or less successfully cultivated by unoriginal poets;" and Professor Moore Smith of Sheffield finds the book "attractive."

Many American scholars praise it. testifies to "a most favorable impression," and says that it shows a mastery of accurate scholarly method and of effective pre-Maine "has good reason to be proud" of such a publication. Dean Bouton of New York University finds it "entertaining." Professor Mackenzie of Washington University declares it "an extraordinary piece of work for a Master's thesis-good enough to serve in a great many universities as a doctoral dissertation"-an opin-Kaye of Northwestern. Congratulations have also come from Professors Tatlock and F. N. Robinson of Harvard, Professor Nason of New York University, Pro-sor Gott of Tufts, and others. Miss Davis took her bachelor's degree from Columbia in 1922, came to Maine as instructor in English, worked for her M.A. under Professor Draper, and took her degree last June with the study of Stephen Duck as her thesis. The volume was issued from the press this January.

Approximately 500 people saw Maine defeat Bates in a dual track meet in the Indoor Field Saturday afternoon, 651/3 to 511/3. According to the papers Bates was going to win. She had a strong group of men lined up for the meet, among them Wills, Rowe, Wakely, and Wood. But the proverbial dope-pail was upset, and Bates lost. Rowe of Bates, was the highpoint man of the meet, chalking up three firsts and a third, or 16 points, for the red and black men. Torrey and Hammond tied for individual honors for Maine, each earning eight points. Two records for the Indoor Field were broken, the shot put and the pole vault. Sam Thompson, Maine, heaved the 16 lb. weight 43 feet and 1/4 of an inch. In the pole vault, Capt. Hobson did twelve feet, eight and 1/2 inches. He tried for an even thirteen feet, but was unsuccessful. With Allie Wills, the Bates star, in the mile run and the 1000 yard run, there was not a doubt as to who would win them. Wills made The motto seems to be, "every boy a the best time in America last year for the sharpshooter," but there are several little mile run, in the collegiate division. promptu cheering sections will spring up in various sections of the crowd. Often school alumni who are now students, but Mary Reed, Orono, '29, was toastmistress. quite often also these sections are made up of jokers who get together to "razz"

Were it not for the fact that we are the hosts, we could often justify this "razzing" in the case of unsportsmanlike playing or in the case of a large school giving a small school a merciless drubbing. But since we are the hosts we must display only a passive interest. And if we play and not for teams.

This sounds somewhat like senseless or even obvious advice, nevertheless, certain students persist in this jeering. With the result of few supposedly humorous jibes being carried back to the high schools and townspeople to be interpreted as insults.

The housing of these athletes also presents problems. If every fraternity could pick its own guests everything would run smoothly. But even though the coach is a fraternity brother or the high school has a number of alumni in one house, shifts must often be made for the convenience of everyone. In such case there is no reason why the team "wished" on the fraternity should not be shown the same hospitality.

Incidentally, the fraternities deserve much credit for shouldering the expense and responsibility of entertaining these visiting athletes. Were it not for the fra ternities, an interscholastic tournament would be almost an impossibility.

CORRESPONDENCE

This is respectfully submitted to the Editor of the Maine Campus, for publication if he will permit.

The purpose of the article is to express ment, and amusement of many students and professors of the College of Agriculture provoked by the patronizing and uninof their profession in the editorial re-

It is not intended as a "slam" on the Campus, which I believe is one of the best of college newspapers. Neither is it intended as an insult to students of the other colleges, whom I believe to be capital fellows and well informed in their lines. Ardron B. Lewis

Dear Mr. Editor:

May a humble and hard-working student of Agriculture borrow the ears of the men who inspired the editorial which appeared in the Campus for February 17 entitled That Cow?

On the last page of the Mid-Week Pictorial for March 3 there appears the picture-or shall I say portrait? of Side Hill Ormsby Segis, of Seward, Illinois. She, like Pauline Hengerveld Shepard, is a mere cow; but here she is, gentlemen, intruding her superb-though bovine-form among "Art."

Don't snicker, gentlemen! The editorial referred to the apparent incongruity of the mention of a cow's name in the same column with "Literature." Now both terms-'Literature" and "Art"-are capable of many grades and shades of meaning; and I feel that any amplification of the term "Art" to include the contents of a pictorial magazine is surely no greater than the broadening of the term "Literature" reformed attitude adopted toward a triumph | quired to give it proper application to what is printed in any college newspaper.

Concerning the cow in general, I say that her improvement has done more to remove the "disagreeable features"whatever they are-from farm life than has the introduction of the automobile and radio, loudly acclaimed. From what source came the money that purchased the radio? Does the farmer procure running water, electric lights, farm machinery, and education for John and Mary by means of the radio and automobile? Yet a well selected herd of cows scientifically managed may bring all of these. If, gentlemen, all our modern improvements were listed in the order of their usefulness, the modern cow would occupy a high place.

In regard to the use made of the word "rusticity," let me say that the quality it (Continued on Page Five)

On the other hand, we read of an obscure southern university being raised into national prominence by the gift of many millions, so that it may more efficiently train and educate the men of tomorrow. This example is similar to that which Rochester, Chicago, and others, to say nothing of the liberally endowed western state universities, enjoy because of the faith which individuals have in the place which a college occupies in the maintenance of a progressing society. Evidently we have here a most striking example of that peculiar Americanism, individuality of opinion. To observe differences of such national character and importance, leads one to the inclination to scrap and regard as ridiculous the shallow statements of notoriety-seeking persons whom success has smiled upon, or discourage the much needed and benevolent practise of investing funds for the solution of future problems. Our friend, the manufacturer goes on to say that he finds college men suffering under the impression that the world consists of pink teas, revolutionary economic problems devised by him and which should be immediately applied if the world is to continue to function, short office hours, mind you, OFFICE hours, so that golf can be played without other demands upon time, and such further foolishness which the cheap fiction writer would have us believe constituted the life of the idle rich. Probably he speaks the truth insofar as he has only met this type, and we do not deny that such a type exists. But why should this man accuse thousands for what hundreds do? He must know that in the business world one man can be crooked but that doesn't make the rest of the business world crooked. At least we hope not. ### He harnesses words to help sell electricity

"OH, ST. PATRICK was an engineer," lustily caroled the senior engineers at Wisconsin in the spring of '16. But to E. L. Andrew, St.

Patrick has become the patron saint of merchandising and advertising as well.

Andrew liked engineering and had an excellent record in his work. But even in his high school days, he had been interested in writing. And that interest grew as he wrote for the annual, was successively editor and business manager of the Wisconsin Engineer, and was advertising manager of the Engineers' Famous Minstrel Show. He received his degree fully determined to harness words to help sell electricity.

At that time railroad advertising fascinated him. There was romance-and adventure -in the great tangle of tracks spread across the continent. So he applied and was accepted for a place in the Westinghouse Graduate Students' Course, hoping some day to do railroad advertising.

"What's the future with a large organization?" That is what college men want to know, first of all. The question is best answered by the accomplishments of others with similar training and like opportunities. This is one of a series of advertisements portraying the progress at Westinghouse of college graduates off the campus some five-eightten years.

A month after he started the course he was made an instructor. For six months he had classes in the morning-then was free all afternoon to browse through the Westinghouse plant and learn those things that have made him valuable in the direction of Westinghouse advertising. But that's getting ahead of the story.

Andrew left the educational department to be a requisition clerk handling requests for literature on Westinghouse irons, fans, toasters, percolators. Here he got his first glimpse of merchandising electrical appliances-an activity that was soon to rank with railroad electrification, marine engineering and the other important branches of the Westinghouse business. Andrew grew up with this development. He was one of the men who organized the merchandising section of the advertising department, which has remained under his charge since that time.

But his activities have been wider than this. Because of his understanding of both electricity and advertising, he was made assistant to the advertising manager, giving particular attention to national advertising. With the growth of the merchandising department, sales promotion also came under his charge.

Today he is manager of the sales promotion section of the merchandising sales department, head of the merchandising section of the advertising department, and assistant to the advertising manager.

To engineering graduates interested in technical writing and advertising, Westinghouse offers an opportunity for realizing ambitions to the full.

Message to the Seniors from the American Library Association

For four years you have been learning to use books-the fundamental tools of education. Are you now going to stop reading, as some men and women do, for two, perhaps five years, and then suddenly wake up to the fact that when your reading stopped your education stopped also? Or, are you going to make your reading, and therefore your education, a continuous, life-long process?

Most of you, next year, will be within hailing distance of a public library. Libraries are increasingly aware of the fact that they are the university of the man who has ended his formal education. More and more they are making special provision for the serious reader.

The Reading with a Purpose series published by the American Library Association is one of the new tools provided for this purpose. These are little forty-page booklets written by such men as Vernon Kellogg, Lorado Taft, William Allen White, Alexander Meiklejohn, Edwin E. Slosson, Frederic L. Paxson, and Samuel McChord Crothers. They briefly introduce a subject,-psychology, biology, painting, or whatever it may be, and then recommend six or eight readable books which will give a rounded view of the Coach Kanaly's yearling track team emerged victorious last Friday evening in their debut against Bridgton Academy in the Indoor Field. When the last gun was fired and the final count taken the score stood 85-14. The meet was exciting even though the score might indicate otherwise. Four records were broken; one by a Bridgton specialist and three by freshmen who excel in their pet events. Joyce of Bridgton cleared the bar in the high jump at 5 ft. 111/2 inches, breaking the old record by several inches. Lindsay, the freshman sensation in the mile, ran a pretty race, covering the distance in 4 minutes 3645 sec. The other two records went to former Hebron performers-Harding and Files. Harding cleared the vaulting bar Quartet in the pole vault at 11 ft. 6 inches while Files broke "Rip" Blacks old record in the 12 lb. shot with a heave of 47 ft. 11/4 in.

Many of the events were walkaways for the freshmen but when the Bridgton competitors could not give the leader sufficient competition one of his teammates pushed him so that he was forced to do

Consequently good times were turned in in all the running events as were good distances and heights in the field. Several of the freshmen took two first places but Jones managed to squeeze out a tie for third in the high jump and this along with a win in both hurdle events gave him high point scorer of the meet.

STUDENT CONFERENCE AT POLAND SPRINGS

Two hundred delegates of New England universities and colleges, including twenty from the University of Maine, are to meet at Poland Springs, March 11-13, for a Student Conference, conducted by the Y.M.C.A and the Y.W.C.A.

Several well-known speakers are to be present. These include: Miss Rhoda Mcthe lane and adjust his target, amidst their numberless sweaters, hopped off and Culloch of the National Y.W.C.A.; Mr. Henry P. Van Dusen, instructor at Union Theological Seminary; and Mr. Arthur Reigh of China. It is planned to hold forums on current topics. These include: Mexico and the United States, under the direction of A. E. De Los Marteros of Mexico; and Association Methods, under the joint leadership of Katherine Ashworth and Phillips Elliott, student secrehave to be content with an occasional lucky with a yule log. ### and the joy-friend... Prince Albert

WHEN my father was in college, "Put that in your pipe and smoke it!" was considered snappy conversation. I'm ready to take this old line literally when the talk centers around Prince Albert. Because P. A. makes two of what I like in a pipe.

All wise-cracking aside, P. A. is the money when it comes to deep-down satisfaction in a smoke. It's got everything! Cool as the trail of the ice-man across the kitchen. Sweet as vacation. Fragrant as a pine forest.

Think up your own similes. You'll write them all in the column headed "Superlative Degree" when you learn the joys of a jimmy-pipe and Prince Albert. If you don't know this grand old smoke, come around to my room and I'll give you a load.
