North Yarmouth, March 13, 1911.

First Annual Report of Cemetery Commission.

The Cemetery Commission of North Yarmouth present the following report:

The Commission met April first for organization, Charles R. Loring was chosen chairman and James Lawrence clerk. Have held three regular and one special meeting during the year.

The Commission have expended for general improvement at the Crockett's Corner Cemetery, $24 95, total expenditures for all purposes, $95 41.

We note with pleasure a strong sentiment throughout the town for better care and general improvement of our cemeteries, also a desire on the part of lot owners to increase the beauty of their lots.

$260 00 has been donated for perpetual and special care of lots and quite a number have expressed a desire to donate sums of money for that purpose in the near future. It is the wish of the Commission that lot owners would not delay making provision for special and perpetual care of their lots and thus secure present as well as future care.

The Commission recommend a new fence be built at the Bowie Cemetery also some general improvements, and we think for this purpose and for general care and improvement of all the cemeteries in town would ask for an appropriation of $150 00.

Respectfully submitted,

C. R. LORING, Chairman of Commission.

COMMENT ON THE SCHOOL STATISTICS.

No important changes in school attendance are shown by the statistics of this year. In some cases the number registered has increased while the average attendance has remained about the same.

One of the most gratifying conditions disclosed by the statistics on school attendance is the high percentage of persons of school age in town who have attended some school during the year.

In many towns sixty per cent of persons of school age attending schools of all kinds is regarded as making a very satisfactory showing. Our records prove that a small fraction over seventy per cent of such persons have attended school at the town's expense during some portion of the past year.

Neither of the men appointed last spring as truant officers, qualified for the position, so that one means of keeping the school attendance at a high average was lacking, and in some of these schools a greater irregularity in attendance resulted than might have been the case under other conditions. But on the whole, as is shown by the statistics, the attendance has been very fair.

The expense of instruction in the schools since an increase in the price of teachers' board throughout the town became necessary on account of the prevailing high prices, your Committee decided to raise the wages of all the teachers accordingly, and an increase in the cost of instruction for the year has resulted.

An examination of the financial report will show that in addition to the increase in the cost of instruction the conveyance of pupils has been somewhat more expensive than during the previous year. The increase in these directions together with an error in the estimate of the amount of money that would come to the town from the State through the additional "mill tax" has resulted in the overdrawal of the Common School account to some extent; but in spite of this, with the money now due from the State on account of high school tuition, an unexpended balance of nearly $150.00 is shown in favor of school appropriations.

To this amount may be added as an asset two-thirds of the money expended for high school tuition since the first of last July, which will increase the present resources of the schools to over three hundred dollars.

It may be well here to add that in recommending the amount to be raised for the support of common schools for the ensuing year, the school committee has planned to provide practically the same sum of money for them that has been provided under the old law for the past few years.

TEACHERS.

As in the previous year several changes in teachers have taken place in your schools, some through resignation and others on account of a desire of the school officers to produce more satisfactory results in school work.

When the advantage of employing a satisfactory teacher in the same school through consecutive terms or years is considered, these frequent changes are to be regretted; but there is no advantage in retaining the services of a teacher whenever it becomes evident that there is failure to meet the requirements of the situation in any marked degree. While, in some instances, the changes made have been quite satisfactory, in others the results have not justified the appointment of the candidate to the position.

In most cases, however, this should not be attributed so much to the faults of the unsuccessful teacher as to her inability to cope successfully with the conditions of a particular situation; for in some cases, at least, teachers who have proven uniformly successful in other schools have failed to meet the requirements of the positions to which they have been appointed here.

Probably no class of schools present greater difficulties to the teacher, or require a higher order of ability in some directions than does the large rural school, especially when containing elements of insubordination and disorder—a condition which is not always confined to the schoolroom.

The school spirit of a community often exerts as strong an influence upon a school as the teacher; and when this is not exerted in the right direction the teacher, at best, has an up-hill road to follow.

I believe that most teachers make an honest effort to teach successful schools; and I am sure that, in general, they have the sympathy, if not the assistance, of the parents; but if this should more often be made evident to both teachers and scholars, there would be less need of blaming either for the lack of success in school work.

TEXT BOOKS.

The text books of the town are in good condition and are well adapted to the needs of the pupils.

No changes have been made during the year and new books have been purchased only as the needs of the schools required them. The appropriation of last year has fully met the requirements and there is a small balance in favor of the account.

SUPPLIES AND APPARATUS.

The usual supplies have been furnished for the schools and paid for from the contingencies.

In view of the great advantage of having the schools well supplied with uniform material for school work it would seem that a definite sum should be provided for this purpose and the Committee recommends that $25.00 be raised by the town for the purchase of material under this head for the coming year.

If this is done, one or two of the schools can be supplied with much needed wall maps; and a beginning can be made of providing cabinets of weights and measures for each of the schools, to the end that the pupils' work in some directions, at least, may become more practical by actual contact with the objects and values of which the text book treats.

SCHOOL HOUSES AND REPAIRS.

Although no extensive repairs have been made in any part of the town every building in use has come in for its share of attention and the appropriation is somewhat overdrawn.

The largest item in these expenditures was incurred by providing all of the buildings with door and window screens. As the fall term of school usually opens in August and many of the children at the different schools eat lunches at the school house, the swarms of house-flies which have been attracted to the buildings by the food and infested the rooms until late in the fall, have proven a nearly unendurable nuisance, if not a positive menace to the health of both pupils and teachers.

The screens have largely abated the trouble from these pests, though lack of watchfulness in the teacher and carelessness in pupils have, in some cases, rendered the screens of little advantage.

Both the doors and window screens have remained on the buildings through the winter. It would be much better and more economical in the end to provide racks for storing them in the entries or other parts of the building during the winter and spring months.

The unfortunate accident to the chairman of the School Committee in the early fall prevented carrying out the plans formed for grading the lot at the Buxton school, a piece of work most urgently needed both on grounds of appearances and economy.

Aside from this no extended outlay for repairs will be needed for next year and the amount recommended by the Committee ought to be sufficient to keep the school property in an excellent condition.

SCHOOL MUSIC.

As for several years past the school music has been under the direction of Mrs. John M. Hamilton.

On the whole good progress has been made in this subject and the work has been satisfactory; but occasionally a teacher will prove either unable or unwilling to do the work required of her in this direction and little progress will result. But, on the whole, the director has had the hearty cooperation of the teachers and the greatest harmony has existed.

Under proper conditions, school music is a subject from which the child derives satisfaction as well as benefit and should form a part of the curriculum of all public schools. We think that these conditions exist in the schools of North Yarmouth.

IN CONCLUSION.

Excellent schools are not the result of accident or of a single favorable circumstance, but usually follow from a combination of favorable conditions, so that once a school has fallen into an unsatisfactory condition from any cause whatever, this combination must again be found before satisfactory results will follow from the work there.

As has been stated in previous reports, the teacher is the most important factor in connection with school work. But the teacher is usually not the only factor in the making of either a good or a poor school, for there are other conditions which must be favorable to produce the former or unfavorable to produce the latter result.

A peculiarity, however, in this connection is that when the teacher proves generally satisfactory, these other conditions assume a favorable aspect; but from any cause whatever the teacher fails to satisfy, just as in other walks of life one man meets with the highest success surrounded by the same conditions that causes another to fail.

But eminently successful persons are seldom met and their services come high when found, whether they are teachers or preachers, so that we must usually try to be content with the services of those who are less brilliant but more within reach of our limited means; and if we are wise, we will try to arrange the conditions so that such persons may be of the greatest possible advantage to us.

Now a great deal is required of the teacher in the average town. This is especially true in this town where the arrangement of the schools and the standard of instruction required, make it especially difficult to procure satisfactory teachers at the salaries paid.

Of course when a teacher fails to govern her school after every expedient has been employed; her services in it are of little value to any one, but where such conditions have not existed, the aspect of these conditions change and their influence begins to be exerted in the wrong direction.

There is no advantage in trying to bolster up a poor school with commendation or praise that does not belong to it; but much good results from refraining from unjust criticism and hasty condemnation, especially in the presence and hearing of pupils, and from honest endeavor to render conditions as favorable for the teacher as possible.

While in some parts of the town there has been uninterrupted and very satisfactory progress in school work throughout the year, in others the results have not been all that were expected or hoped for. Causes for these conditions may be drawn from the preceding statements, but are not confined exclusively to any one condition or set of conditions.

Undoubtedly there are teachers who will be successful under almost any circumstances. Work done in the schools of the town during the past year has been worth all that was paid for it, and in some cases a good deal more.

At this point I want to speak of the very successful work now being done by the high school pupils of the town. From all the schools they are attending come the best reports of their preparation for the high school course and their success in pursuing it.

This speaks well both for the work of the town schools and the ability of these students.

In closing I desire in behalf of the teachers and their pupils to thank the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of Walnut Hill and especially its president, Mrs. Britt, for the ready and valuable services rendered by them in making our Annual School Rallies possible and contributing so much to their success.
