THE BASEBALL TRIP

MAINE 9; NORWICH, 4.

Maine won its first game of the trip from Norwich University at Northfield last Tuesday, 9-4. Richards pitched a good game for Maine and kept the hits well scattered. The play was loose at times but the Maine team made up for their few fielding errors by their excellent batting, every man making one or more hits. Pond batted out a home-run in the second inning, and from then on it was only a question of how many runs the Maine team would score. N. Scales was taken from the game in the seventh inning with a badly sprained ankle after getting a difficult fly. Phillips was sent to right field, and in the ninth made a three-base hit, sending one man across the plate.

M. J. McHALE
Captain Baseball

VERMONT 4; MAINE, 1.

Vermont University defeated Maine for the first time in four years last Wednesday in the second game by the close score of 4-1. McHale pitched an excellent game for Maine and with good support would have landed a victory. Only three hits were made off his delivery during the entire game. In the third inning Bird was shifted from center field to second base and after this change the Maine team played more consistent ball.

In the ninth McHale opened with a two-bagger to left and Bearce followed with a single, placing McHale on third. Phillips struck out, Johnson sent a hot grounder to the pitcher and McHale scored on a quick slide to the plate. With two men down Bird drew a pass and went to second on the first ball. Kiernan retired the side on strikes.

MIDDLEBURY, 9; MAINE 8.

Middlebury College defeated Maine 9-8 last Thursday in a most peculiar game. The day was cold and raw with fast baseball impossible. Richards pitched for Maine and held his opponents well down until the seventh, when the Vermont team's bunched hits coupled with costly errors by the Maine players, scored seven runs. Maine was retired in their half of the eight in one, two, three order. With the score 8 to 4 against them, Maine made a wonderful rally and tied the score. Bird was first up and was out on a fly to the infield. Phillips batted out his second two-bagger and third hit of the game. Richards singled and Phillips scored, Richards taking second. Smith and J. Scales both hit safely and Pond hit a beautiful three bagger, scoring two men. With Pond on third and McHale at bat, with one out, Fisher came in from center to pitch. Capt. McHale was equal to the occasion and batted a long fly to deep center but Pond scored on the throw in, tying the score. Johnson hit to the infield and was thrown out at first.

In its half of the ninth Middlebury filled the bases and put across the winning run with one man out.

The Maine men made many bad errors which proved very costly.

BOSTON COLLEGE, 8; MAINE, 5.

Maine lost the last game of the trip Saturday, when the team was defeated by Boston College, 8 to 5. Most of the runs of both teams were made in single innings. Maine's chances looked good in the fourth when, with three men on bases McHale landed a three-bagger and scored on a single, but B. C. added four more runs to the two already made when Harrington made a four base hit with bases filled in the fifth.

MUSICAL CLUBS NEXT SATURDAY

Final Concert of Successful Season in Alumni Hall

What has been a most successful season for the Musical Clubs will be brought to a close next Saturday evening with the biggest concert and dance of the year in Alumni Hall. Every one knows that the organizations have been unusually good this winter, and often has the comment been made by those who have heard them that they are the "best clubs in the State." Now, this praise, though undoubtedly deserved, means a good deal, and since no one desires to miss the opportunity of attending such a concert as these clubs can give, there is bound to be a large number present at this last appearance, which will be a sort of a climax to the season.

Manager H. G. Woods, '11, deserves a great deal of credit for the way in which he has handled the clubs this year, and he is working hard to have this concert a complete success, from both

Although the concert itself will be a great attraction, he has not forgotten one thing that always proves a drawing card, and that is the dance which will follow in the gymnasium, for which the University orchestra will furnish the music.

It might well be said that every number on the program will be a feature, but particular atten-

EDITORIAL.

Considerable unfavorable criticism has been heard about the campus this spring of the schedule of the base ball team, and although doubtless not all of the circumstances of its arrangement are known to those who have been giving utterance to their opinions, the expression has been so general that there must be some grounds for it. It is significant that the fortunes of the nine on its recent trip out of the State have been followed with far less interest than in some other years. Why so? The chief reason is that three of the four games played were with colleges with which we have never had athletic relations and which have never been within the sphere of the Maine colleges.

Since we are unacquainted with the conditions calling for such a schedule as has been arranged this season, it must be regarded as the best one that could be made. At the same time, however, it must be conceded that it is poorer than some of those in past years, and poorer than those of the other Maine colleges this year. There must be some defect in the management of our athletics when no better trip can be arranged than one calling for a jump of three hundred miles for the first game, then three out of four games which it makes little difference to us whether we win or lose, and the expense of keeping the team in Boston one day without any game at all. It is not necessary that the schedule be longer, but the games played should be such as will hold the interest of the student body. It is the students who have to support our athletics and their opinions should have some weight with those who have our teams in charge, whether Faculty committees, the executive committee of the Athletic Association, or the managers.

Since the time of Junior Week has been put forward until after all college work will be completed, there will be great temptation for the Freshmen, and perhaps the Sophomores, to pack up and go home. If most of the men in the lower classes do this, it will leave only the two upper classes, or less than half the student body, to take part in what are not in any way class affairs, but which are for the entire University, namely Commencement and Junior Week. The whole student body can make both Commencement and Junior Week much more successful socially and of much more consequence in the life of the University than can half of it.

Unless it is imperatively necessary no Sophomore ought to leave the campus until the last thing on the Commencement program is over. It is quite as important that the Freshmen be here during that time. Yet, to insure their remaining, it is the duty of the Junior class to extend to them all the privileges which are enjoyed by the other classmen. Class affairs may properly be made exclusive, but on occasions when the entire student body should be on the campus and after the Freshmen have ceased to be governed by freshman rules, it is not right to withhold from them any of the pleasure which may be had by the other classes.

IT is the all-round man who makes his way best in the world nowadays, but the fellow who will be the all-round man when he is out of college is not the one who is not socially enough inclined to attend this concert and dance of the Musical Clubs or does not care enough for athletics to witness the meet or the Bates game or at least has not sufficient college spirit to be present at them anyway. If any one of us tends to lead an existence like the shell-animals, it will be well for him to use a little self-persuasion. He will thank himself in the end.

THE campus is beginning to show signs of that beauty which will reach its height about the first of June; the trees are leafing out and the lawns are growing green. Aren't we proud of all this? Well, everybody would say we are, yet across that triangular piece of lawn in front of Wingate are appearing marks which signify that some of our able-bodied students, notwithstanding the pride that, as Maine men, they should possess, cannot resist the temptation to save a few steps by wearing a path across this green. It might make a good bit of news to print some day the names of some of these short-cut fiends.

MILITARY HOP

One of the Most Successful Times were Held by the Freshmen

On Friday evening, April 29th, was held the only distinctly Freshman affair of the college year, the Military Hop. The gymnasium was decorated in red, white and blue crepe and bunting with colored lights and green plants and palms. A portion of the Sophomore Hop decorations of crepe paper were left up and were worked into the scheme very skillfully. Cozy corners were arranged by the different fraternities and the non-fraternity men in a very attractive and pleasing manner.

The music was furnished by the college orchestra of seven pieces and the work of this organization was of the usual high order. The order consisted of 20 dances with four extras.

Major Geo. E. Springer, '10, of the Battalion acted as floor manager and he was assisted by the following aids: Lieutenants Haskell, Kent, Reid; Sergeants Pope, Jennison, Weston; Corporals Weatherbee, Harmon, Savage; and privates MacLauchlin, Smith, and Eales. The committee in charge of the Hop was made up as follows: Major Geo. E. Springer, Capt. Wakefield, Capt. Wright, Capt. Hart, Sergeant Chandler, Sergeant Underhill and Sergeant Sederquest.

Preceding the dancing the three companies gave an exhibition drill in the "gym" which was much enjoyed by the spectators and showed much hard work and rivalry on the part of the several companies.

Company A—Company Drill and Firings.
Company B—Company Drill and Platoon Drill.
Company C—Company Drill and Bayonet Exercise.

THE PRISM

The 1911 Prism Narrowly Escaped Burning at the Printers Last Week.

The 1911 Prism narrowly escaped injury last Thursday by a fire at the plant of the Bangor Co-Op. Ptg. Co., in Bangor, where it is now in press. The blaze was extinguished just as the fire companies came to the scene and 4 forms of the book with 16 pages to the form were piled within a dozen feet of the fire.

The Prism is fast nearing the binder's stage, when it will be sent to the Norwood Press in Massachusetts, which has been chosen to do the last work on the publication. The book will contain about 340 pages consisting of the customary sections of Athletics, Faculty, Fraternities, Musical, Class, Grind and Advertising matter.

The book will be printed on a tinted paper of a special halftone, unglossed finish, especially suitable for books where many cuts are reproduced. The predominating color of ink will be black, but there will be one color plate, the work of Mrs. R. K. Jones. The dedicatory picture of Prof. R. J. Sprague will be in a brown photogravure, printed on a special panelled paper. The cover will be of natural brown, flexible leather with a silk cloth lining.

Meetings of the Board will be held again soon and an effort made to procure a large number of subscriptions.

THE DRAMATIC CLUB

Presentation at Lincoln Friday Predicts a Very Successful Season.

The Dramatic Club made its first appearance, playing "A Pair of Spectacles" at Lincoln, Friday evening, before a packed house. The play was received with enthusiasm and showed clearly the result of the hard work which has been done by the members of the cast during the past month. O. A. Wakefield, as Mr. Goldfinch, and F. W. Pettey, as Uncle Gregory, were the particular stars, and kept the audience in continual laughter while they were on the stage.

While the play was exceptionally smooth for the first production, there were the small flaws which are inevitable so early in the season. The female parts were taken very well. Alden Chase takes the part of Mrs. Goldfinch admirably, with the possible exception that he might be heard to better advantage with a slightly louder and more distinct enunciation. C. H. George, as Lucy Lorimer, is to be congratulated on his interpretation of his lines, but was a trifle ill at ease in his actions. These points will undoubtedly remedy themselves, and at the next production the "girls" should please the most critical.

H. P. Sweetser, as Bartholomew, acted his part particularly well, but a little clearer speaking might improve his lines also. Taking the part of Lorimer, C. C. Johnson delivers his lines in a very clear manner. A more noticeable air of worry might perhaps make his interpretation more convincing. Of M. E. Fassett, as Dick, it is enough to say that he is up to his usual high standard. The other parts, taken by Ernest Lamb, W. H. Andrews and E. E. Chase, are given in a very satisfactory and pleasing manner.

Considered as a whole, the production was a great success and the Club is assured of a highly creditable season.

SECOND "MODERN FARMING SPECIAL TRAIN."

Agricultural Exhibits and Lectures in Western Maine for Two Weeks in June

Believing that the success of the special train which was run through Northern Maine in 1906, exhibiting farm machinery and appliances, warrants another effort among the farmers of the western part of the State, Acting Dean Gardner of the College of Agriculture has made arrangements with the Maine Central railroad to run another train over its lines from June 13 to 25, inclusive. The train four years ago carried almost into the homes of a great number of the farmers of the State the modern agricultural appliances and gave them the opportunity of hearing many beneficial lectures.

That was the first train of its kind to be run in New England and since then several other states have taken up the practice, principally Massachusetts. This will be the second train in Maine and will cover a part of the State not entered on the former tour. It will run over the White Mountain, Somerset, Farmington, and Rumford divisions, the lines from Waterville to Lewiston, and Waterville to Portland via Augusta, as well as the Boston and Maine divisions from Portland to the State line.

The train will consist of four cars besides a coach for the men and perhaps a dining-car. Two of these will be ordinary passengers cars or baggage cars with exhibits pertaining to animal industry, poultry, and veterinary science, and agronomy, horticulture, and forestry, respectively. There will also be two flat cars carrying spraying and general farm machinery.

All of the Faculty of the College of Agriculture will be aboard the train, as well as President Fellows and other men. Three or four stops will be made daily, the demonstrations during the day probably being given from the train itself and those in the evening taking place in halls. The machinery will be so equipped that power can be transmitted to it and complete demonstrations made. Talks on all sorts of agricultural subjects will be given and at least two stereoptican lectures will be provided.

ECONOMICS CLUB

A Real Politician Before the Economics Club

The regular meeting of the Economics Club was held in the Library on Thursday evening, and for an hour and a half the members listened to a very interesting discussion of Municipal Affairs by Mr. Victor Brett, city clerk of Bangor. Mr. Brett spoke with a thorough knowledge of every phase of his subject, but in this talk he confined himself to a few particular points.

First, he took up suffrage, especially in respect to the election of aldermen and councilmen. Then he talked about the election, powers, duties, and privileges of the mayor and his force, after which he explained the working of the police, fire, street, and court systems. As a practical illustration Mr. Brett traced a bill through the city government.

TENNIS SEASON BEGUN

Tournament With Mass. A. C. Junior Week

Besides the State Tournament at Waterville and the play-off for the Southard medals, another event has been arranged by Manager W. O. Haskell, '11, which will be of interest to tennis men in the University, and that is a tournament with the Massachusetts Agricultural College to be played here during Junior Week.

The constant rains for the past week have delayed what might have been very early practice, but the candidates are now beginning work under the direction of Captain G. A. Wallace, '10, and there is plenty of time for them to be in shape before the Southard tournament, which will probably take place in about three weeks. A number of men have signified their intentions to be candidates for the team. Among these are Wallace and Gooch, '11, who competed in the State tournament last year. Wallace is fast in both singles and doubles and Gooch is a steady player. The University loses R. L. Mitchell, Law, '10, who held the State championship in singles for two years until last year, and A. S. Atwood, who did not return to the University this year. Other candidates for the team are J. G. Scales, '10, W. C. Bagg, '10, C. F. Smith, '10, W. L. Gooch, '11, C. S. Cleaves, '12, M. C. Bird, '13, and F. L. Chenery, Jr., '11.

PROF. DAGGETT'S LECTURE

First Lecture Much Enjoyed by Large Audience

Prof. Daggett gave his first lecture in the general lecture course last Wednesday before one of the largest audiences of the course. He took for his subject Dickens and a general summary of his lecture follows:

Dickens came into English literature during a period that was comparatively barren of productivity. The period of the great novelists, Richardson, Fielding and Smollett, had passed and the leaders of the romantic movement, including Scott, were either dead or in the decline of their powers.

To understand Dickens the writer requires an intimate knowledge of his early life. Up to the age of eight years, he had a hard time of life, his family having difficulties in getting enough to eat and wear.

Following this were the unhappy years in London, where the family fortune utterly failed and they took refuge in the Marshalsea prison with the Young Charles, ten years old, put out as a drudge at a blacking factory at Hungerford Stairs.

In considering the construction of Dickens' novels it should be remembered that, at this time, the novel was yet in a formative state of development and that Dickens wrote in a serial form, meeting the demands of his public for a certain amount of suspense and climax and a promise of something more startling yet to come in each instalment.

In Dicken's style are two strains, the one of satire, sometimes merciless and hostile, the other of sentiment strongly humanitarian and blended with pathos. A proper blending of these two qualities produced Dickens at his best.

ALUMNI SUPPORT

Future Scholarship for Athletes

All through the winter the football management for next year has been sending circular and personal letters to Maine Alumni all over the Country asking financial aid, advice, and renewed interest to help out the athletic situation here. The results are gratifying, to say the least. At present the Alumni are coming back well, and the letters are coming in from all sides showing that they are willing and eager to join hands with the student body in putting old Maine at the top and driving her on to future championships.

Two examples will suffice to show the spirit which pervades the Alumni. The Chicago Alumni, although they have not had time to call a meeting for definite action, declare that they have a very loyal feeling for old Maine and promise financial aid for athletics this spring, and the strongest kind of backing all along the line. The New York Alumni answer with a letter full of interest for the conditions back here at Orono. They promise support financially, and in addition, they report that they have a movement on foot to change their present scholarship of thirty dollars to an athletic one. Although nothing definite has been decided, it is probable that the scholarship will be awarded in the future to the football player having the highest average standing at the end of the first semester, providing he has made his "M" for the first time in the year in which the award is to be made. These are only two of the answers that are being received, and the student body may feel intense satisfaction that Maine men, far and wide, are gathering, in spirit at least, to force the fight for better athletics, better standing in the college world, and a larger and stronger University.

MAINE' RURAL LIFE

Prof. Sprague Speaks Before the Agricultural Club

At the meeting of the Agricultural Club held on Wednesday evening, April 27th, Prof. Sprague of the Economics Department, spoke very interestingly for an hour, taking for his subject "Maine's Rural Life."

He said in part: Maine's climate is unexcelled on the Eastern coast for health. It is especially healthy for children although rigorous for old people whose work is in-doors.

For a half century Maine has suffered a great exodus of her sons and daughters to other states. The farms have been neglected and often deserted, but there must come a reconstruction of rural life upon a modern basis.

The countryside needs leaders, the village needs leaders, young men who have ideas, ideals and public spirit. College men are needed for town officers and road builders, as well as farmers.

Cooperation is another needed development of the Maine farmers, which can be used in the purchase of materials and especially in the marketing of products.

Social organization with a spirit of unity is the need of the rural communities today. Religious sectarianism has been the curse of many a country town, and religious unity is the way of salvation. The neighborhood house is an institution well adapted to meet the needs of social unity, in which lectures, musicales, theatricals, games, suppers, dances, clubs and other social events may be held.

Let the churches be bedded in evergreens, our State tree, and the young peoples' societies could do better work than some landscape gardening about these flowerless buildings.

Y. M. C. A. SING SUCCESSFUL

The first University "sing" held Sunday evening on the steps of the Library by the Christian Association was very successful. A goodly number of students was present and enjoyed the singing under the direction of Prof. G. W. Thompson, and the brief informal talk by Prof. Sprague.

The students gathered at six o'clock, the time at which the sings will probably be held this month and after several songs, from the sheets used at mass-meetings as well as from the hymnals, Prof. Sprague gave a very interesting interpretation of the beatitude, "The meek, they shall inherit the earth." The gathering broke up with the singing of the University hymn.

CHAPEL TALK

Prof. Geo. E. Simmons Tells of the Agricultural Extension Work

The chapel talk Friday was given by Prof. Simmons of the extension department of the College of Agriculture, who discussed the problem of feeding America's great population. He said that in thirty years the population of the United States would number 200,000,000 and that it would double every thirty years thereafter. The question is and will be "How shall we feed our population?" Last year the number of beef cattle and hogs for sale was noticeably smaller than in the year before, and if this condition continues the result will be critical. The remedy lies, he said, in the increased activity of the state universities.
