MUSICAL CLUB TRIP

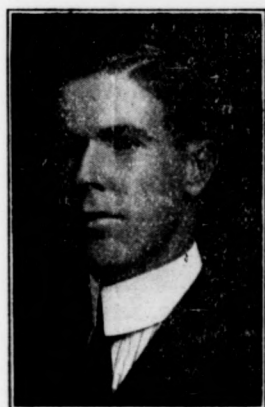

Concerts given in Milo, Greenville and Guilford

A successful and enjoyable trip was taken by the Musical Clubs last week to several towns on the Bangor and Aroostook Railroad. The Clubs left Orono Wednesday afternoon, giving a concert and dance in Milo that evening. While Chase's Hall, in which the concert was given, is rather small, the audience was large enough to make the concert financially successful.

Thursday morning, teams carried the men to Milo Junction where the train was taken for Greenville. As the Clubs did not leave Greenville until the following afternoon, opportunity was found by all to visit the various mills on the shore of Moosehead Lake. The most exciting feature of the trip was the "hold-up" of several members of the Clubs between Greenville and Greenville Junction. It was not only realistic but real and successful. The concert, given in Shaw's Hall was very favorably spoken of.

The trip was terminated by a concert in Guilford, Friday evening. Here was found the most enthusiastic audience during the trip. Dancing was enjoyed till a late hour to the music so excellently rendered by the Musical Club orchestra. Saturday morning the clubs returned to the University.

The program given during this trip is as follows;

LITERATI ENTERTAINMENT

Concert given by the Musical Clubs

The Literati held its first entertainment of the year in the lecture room of the Library, Tuesday evening, January tenth. An excellent concert was given by the Musical Clubs, at which a large number of the members of the organization, Faculty, and others were present. Although a warm appreciation of the talent and conscientious training exhibited in each selection was shown, the hit of the evening proved to be the singing of "To the Fairest College" from the University song book.

The two readings by Alden Chase, '12, manager of the clubs, were well received and a pleasing number was a selection from Madame Sherry rendered by a quintet composed of R. W. Davis, B. Haskell, P. W. Thomas, W. F. Wilson and F. J. Morrison. As usual, the singing of the Stein song by the entire Club made a fitting close to an interesting program.

The men taking part in the concert were: Morrison, Fulton, Jones, Davis, Whittier, Fitch, Wilson, Smith, Phinney and Wood, 1911; Chase Garland, Woodward, Haskell, Lilly, Gould, Bowdoin and Newell, 1912; Brewer and Littlefield, 1913; Hodgkins, Hanson, Grace, Brown, Cobb, Thomas and Parks, 1914.

Basketball practice was held last week by the seniors on Tuesday; the Juniors on Wednesday from half after six to eight, and the Freshmen from eight to ten; the Sophomores on Thursday evening.

SENIORS FIRST

The second set of class basketball games was played in the gymnasium on Friday evening when the Seniors swamped the Juniors by the score of 47 to 22, and the Freshmen pulled off a victory from the Sophomores with the score of 23 to 11. Interest ran high in the Senior-Junior game because the two teams were just even in the standing of the series. The Juniors set the pace early in the game with organized cheering and the other classes soon followed suit. The first half of the game was close and exciting, with the Juniors playing much the better game. The half ended with the Juniors leading with 15 points to the Seniors' 11. The Seniors came back with a rush in the second half, however, and turned defeat into victory with the prettiest team work seen on the floor this year. With a burst of speed and clever shooting by Nason and Scales, the Juniors were swept from their feet for a few moments, and the Seniors were not slow to take their advantage and put the game out of danger. The Juniors played a hard, scrappy game all through, however, and with the weeks which they have ahead of them for practice, the next contest between these two classes looks good.

The Freshmen outplayed the Sophomores from the start, although neither team showed a great deal of team work. The Sophomores were only able to shoot two baskets during the entire game, most of their points being made on fouls. The Freshmen were more fortunate, getting several baskets from long, difficult shots. Stevens and Abbott played well scoring all the Freshmen's points between them.

"TWELFTH NIGHT"Rehearsals Announced—Season to Begin in March

Prof. Daggett, the coach of the Masque, has announced the rehearsals for "Twelfth Night" extending up to the time that the season will probably commence. Six or seven weeks remain for the preparation of the cast. A number of members were measured for their costumes Saturday in Bangor. The management has decided to rent no costumes this year, and as soon as the few remaining parts are settled the costumes will be made.

A feature of the play this season, which will be both educational and interesting, will be its presentation at the Junior Week performance, in Bangor, and elsewhere as far as possible, on a Shakespearian stage. Never before has this been attempted by the Masque, and the simplicity of the scenic effects, resembling to a great degree the stage upon which Shakespeare's plays were presented, will add much to the attractiveness and success of the comedy this year.

The schedule of rehearsals is as follows:

BIBLE STUDYThe Course Begun with a Two Hundred and Seventy-Five Enrollment

Under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Bible study classes have been started in nearly all of the fraternity houses, and in Oak Hall, for the most part under Faculty leadership. Up to date, about two hundred and seventy-five men have enrolled for the twelve weeks' course, and it is hoped that this number will increase before the work stops in the spring on the last Sunday before the Easter recess. Records of attendance will be kept of all of the classes, for the purpose of ascertaining which has shown the greatest interest, beginning Monday, January 16, 1911.

The course of study to be pursued is more or less optional to the class or the leader, courses being offered in Bosworth's Study of the Life of Christ; Jenk's Social Significance of the Teachings of Jesus; Talamon's Studies in the Life of Jesus; and Cook's Introduction to Bible Study.

PORTLAND ALUMNI DINEPres. Aley and Mr. Winslow at Banquet Saturday Evening

The Portland Alumni, too, are alive, and Saturday evening the West End Hotel was the scene of one of the most enthusiastic of the several alumni banquets that have been held this year. At the tables were seated nearly all the Maine men within reach of Portland, and they made a goodly number when gathered together.

For the first time the Alumni in the western part of the State had the pleasure of meeting and hearing President Aley. Another guest of the association was President Winslow of the Board of Trustees, who also made an interesting speech.

John Wallace, '13, is enjoying the company of his pet dog which he brought from Portland on his return from the holidays.

Charles D. Damon, '14, has left college but expects to return later to enter the Law School.

EDITORIAL.

The tailor says that "Clothes make the man," and the old adage is, "Clothes do not make the man." While we recognize the business-seeking qualities of the first and rightly regard the latter saying as more truthful, it is not to be denied that tidiness in dress is a more or less important factor in one's appearance nowadays. The old idea that the employer looks at the man and not the clothes still holds; yet the business and professional men of today, as types of a better civilization, pay more attention to their own personal appearance than did their forefathers, and so they instinctively expect a young man to be groomed according to the circumstances in which he claims to have lived.

The man who has had the advantages of a college education they expect to make a different appearance from the one who has not had those benefits. The employer who is familiar with college men has, perhaps unconsciously, a certain standard by which he measures them. In this general size-up the manners and tidiness of the man hold no mean place. Some of us may scoff at this idea, yet when we are pinned down to it, we can only acknowledge its truth. Else why, when we are looking for a position, do we take care not to appear in an office in some city in a flannel shirt and muddy shoes? It is because we know, as well as any college men, what that standard is and our own self-interest constrains us to come up to it.

There, however, our pride ends. As students in the University we fall considerably below the standard of appearance which the general public expect college men to meet. This fact is due to nothing but our carelessness and indifference. If we have not pride enough as individuals to have a care as to our appearance on the Campus and when we go out of town, we should not forget—poor is the man that would—that we are representative Maine men. We are to be gentlemen always, and we are to remember that the gentleman is a person well-groomed and of good manners.

It must not be understood that this is an exhortation to Maine men to live beyond their means or attempt to be the "sports," for which some colleges are famous. Such men are not necessarily gentlemen more than are we, and perhaps they do not possess the qualities of manhood that characterize Maine men. What we need is less indifference as to our personal appearances; it will be worth much to us as a student body and as individuals. This is a matter which may well be taken up by the fraternities, and a greater pride should be felt by their members as representing their chapters.

Every college has its troubles with student politics; it seems to be an evil which no student body is able to eliminate completely. Here at Maine they frequently appear, and every time that, as a result of fraternity "deals," a good man is turned down for a poor man, not only are the services of the better man lost for the position, but much bad blood is created. Consequently every possible means should be taken to expel class politics from elections, and these efforts will at least have the good result of minimizing them.

First, however, where is the breeding ground for this spirit of swapping votes and "pulling together"? It seems right to assume that it is in the nominating committees. These, at least during the first two years that classes are in the University, are little more than bodies of men representing each of the fraternities, who sit in meetings, suspicious of each other, and wait for their men to be nominated by those members with whom they have made previous arrangements. Then each man goes back to his fraternity house and makes more or less comment upon the action of various men on the committee.

At present it is regarded as anything but modest and politic for a member to nominate men of his own fraternity. Yet he takes care that their names shall be put up by the delegates from some friendly house. Right in this exchange of nominations lies the origin for much of the evil of class politics.

Is there any remedy for this condition? Of course, it is but natural that a fraternity should desire to have its members nominated for office. Then why look askance at the practice of having the fraternities nominate their own men? To adopt that method is one step—and a long one—toward eliminating politics from class elections. It should become the custom for delegates to place their own men in nomination, and for every office each member of the committee should have the opportunity to nominate one or more men, after which the number desired could be obtained by voting out in committee some of the candidates. It would be for a fraternity's interest to see that it did not try to gather in all the offices and that only capable men were nominated.

The call to indoor baseball practice will be issued to battery candidates directly after registration and to others about the middle of February.

Pres. Aley Gives Talk on James Whitcomb Riley

At the urgent request of Prof. Gray, President Aley spoke before the freshman English class last Friday, at eleven o'clock. He chose for a topic a dissertation on James Whitcomb Riley, who, in the words of Senator Beveridge, is the most famous of all Indiana's noted writers.

Riley was born in a small country town in Indiana in the beginning of the past century. He was taught by an old soldier, Captain Harris. One day, while passing the long hours at school in drawing pictures on his slate, he looked up to find his teacher watching him. When he tried to erase the drawing, Captain Harris caught his arm and said, "Don't do it, Jim, it's good." He was told to stay after school that day. With those words of praise ringing in his ears, he made the hours glide quickly by. After school, Captain Harris gave him, upon promise of great secrecy, a copy of Ivanhoe to read. The promise of secrecy helped to interest him in the book and he read it all through. This, Riley claims, was the beginning of his rise. As a mark of his gratitude for this act of kindness, Riley afterwards addressed a beautiful sonnet to his old schoolmaster.

Riley's rise was now rapid. He grew confident and, realizing that he had merit, he made himself famous by a ruse which gained him the attention of all the critics of the country. He obtained a copy of an old book and wrote in it, in faded ink, a poem to which he gave the title "Leonanni." He signed the initials "E. A. P." to his work and turned it over to a newspaper, saying that he had obtained it at a bookstore in a small town in Virginia. The town was one of Edgar Allen Poe's favorite haunts and the papers throughout the country claimed that one of his works had been discovered (for Riley's style was much like Poe's). When the truth became known, Riley was immediately recognized as a great poet.

This is the story of the rise of a world-famous poet; the soldiers' poet; the author of "nonsense" rhymes; the sublime poet; the people's poet. None but Eugene Field was such a poet of childhood as he.

The committee of the Senior Class which has under consideration the advisability of adopting a recognition badge, is desirous of having members of the class submit designs. Any drawings should be accompanied by the specifications as to size.

WEDNESDAY LECTURE

Prof. Thompson Lectures on Romanticism

Prof. Thompson delivered his second lecture Wednesday afternoon in the Library, taking as his subject "Romanticism," which was the reaction from the "Storm and Stress" movement upon which he lectured the week before.

The Romans conceived the idea of conquest and of organization through the medium of the law. To them, society was an organism into which a man was born to a fixed social position from which he had no redress. The Germans, on the other hand, believed in individualism. To them, organization was nothing, for they admired patriotism.

The antique idea was that of the Greeks; the classic, a fusion of the Greek and Roman ideas; the Germanic, however, was the reverse of all this. Art was, to the Germans, characteristic of the individual. It was the expression which, with the inner thoughts of the writer, was Germanic individuality or Romanticism. John Fichte gave the romanticists their idea of an ideal when he denied the reality of all external things and Schilling was in accord with them when he said: "The mind is invisible nature and nature is the visible mind."

It was Napoleon Bonaparte who brought out the second, the national element of romanticism. At Heidelberg, the patriotic element was then introduced. The doctrine of Hegel, who was an idealist and who believed that the only thing in the world was the human race, brought on the decline of romanticism which took place in 1820.

The reasons for its decline were due to the fact that:

1. It was a philosophic movement and could not deal with the real issues of life.
2. It tried to idealize life.
3. It substituted mysticism for reality.
4. It turned its back on questions which it should have solved.
5. It did not realize the necessities of the German.
6. It was a visionary literature.
7. It taught men to hate the world.
8. It lacked great men.
9. It confused art.
10. It was driven out by political movements.

The drama and lyric poetry of the period were weak; the novel was well developed; the essay was best of all though its style was poor. We find, however, that the period gave the Germans a fine translation of Shakespeare, valuable folklore, a system of literary criticism and a nationality established through the influence of Napoleon.

ECONOMICS CLUB

Officers Elected—President Alely as Speaker

On Thursday evening the following slate of officers for the Economics Club was elected for the ensuing year: president, Everett H. Maxcy of Gardner; vice president, Arthur W. Benson of Wellesley, Mass.; secretary, George R. Woodberry of Beverly, Mass.; treasurer, Sumner Waite of Portland; Faculty member, Professor Robert J. Sprague. A short business meeting was held and at adjournment Pres. Alely gave a talk on the political conditions in the state of Indiana. He stated that one of the great differences between Maine and Indiana was the fact of the large number of appointive officers in the former and the large number of elective officers in the latter. In Maine only two officers are elected, namely, the Governor and the State Auditor, while in Indiana there are from fifteen to thirty public officials elected. This of course gives large powers to the western voter, but it makes it difficult to place the responsibility.

In the West they use a rather pure form of the Australian ballot, thus making it rather difficult to vote anything but a straight ticket. The politicians are much against the "split ticket" so they endeavor to make the process as complicated as possible, however, the people are becoming more educated and are gradually breaking away from the straight ticket and voting for the man whom they desire.

In 1908, Dr. Alely was made Superintendent of Public Education in Indiana, which is a position which carries a great deal of responsibility. The Superintendent of Education is the chairman of the Board of Education and has supreme charge over education in general. Thousands of teachers have to be examined, licenses made out, and about eleven thousand manuscripts to be graded. Not only this, the superintendent of public instruction must give proper legal advice and have charge of the letting of contracts for text books which are given out for five years.

FRESHMAN NOMINATING COMMITTEE

The Freshman Nominating Committee met Friday noon and nominated eight men for the committee on the Military Ball, five of these to be elected by the class at its next meeting. Those nominated were: P. W. Thomas, R. F. Crocker, F. S. Jones, H. P. Adams, F. Lewis, C. E. Swift, A. B. Hayes, C. F. Whitney.

CIVIL SMOKER

Interesting talks by Instructor Kauffuss, Ingham, '11, and Jacobs, '12, on Wednesday Evening

The Civil Engineering Society held its January smoker in the Library, Wednesday evening. H. W. Ingham, '11, gave a talk on oil surfacing of highways. Mr. Ingham has been connected with such work for the Massachusetts State Highway Commission and his talk was very instructive. Mr. Kauffuss spoke of the reorganization of the municipal engineering departments in the city of Boston. He reviewed, also, a few engineering problems, giving some opinions expressed in the past, which seem quite amusing in the light of present experience. L. W. Jacobs, '12, gave a summary of the important engineering work which is now in progress. The meeting was well attended and a very general discussion followed each of the papers.

FARMER'S WEEK

Several speakers already engaged for week of March 6

Farmer's Week will occur this year from March 6-10. The program is not yet sufficiently complete for publication, but some of the speakers are already engaged. Among these are: Mr. John P. Buckley, State Commissioner of Agriculture, who will address the opening meeting, Mr. Bradford Knapp, who speaks Tuesday evening, and Dean L. H. Bailey of Cornell, who speaks on Country Life Problems on Thursday. President Aley, of the University will also address the opening meeting. Negotiations are under way with other speakers from outside the state, but they have not progressed far enough for announcement.

It is planned to make the exercises better and more valuable than ever before, and a large attendance is confidently predicted.

Y. M. C. A. MEETING

Talk by Prof. Thompson

The regular meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held in the Library last Thursday evening. Prof. G. W. Thompson was leader and gave an interesting and helpful talk to the students.

HORTICULTURAL CLASS

E. W. Morton, '09, Gives an Interesting Talk on His Work in the West

E. W. Morton, '09, gave a talk to the horticultural students last Wednesday, describing the work of the Como Valley Land Co., of Darby, Montana, with which he has been connected for the past two years. This company owns about 2,000 acres of apple orchards. The land, which was practically worthless a few years ago, has been irrigated and planted with the young trees. At the age of five years, an acre of the orchard has a value of about 500 dollars. The various methods used on this work formed the basis of a very instructive talk.

Mr. Morton returns to the West the last of this month. J. I. Travis, '10, will also be connected with this company after the first of March.

AGRICULTURAL CLUB MEETING

Address by Prof. Gardner

The Agricultural Club held its first meeting since the recess last Wednesday evening. After a short business session, Prof. Gardner addressed the meeting on, "The Home Orchard." He took the viewpoint of the farmer who wishes to produce sufficient for home use, and gave valuable suggestions as to varieties and arrangements. The meeting was well attended by both the short course and regular men.

SOPHOMORE DEBATING TRIALS

W. F. Maddison, G. C. Clark and S. P. Danforth to Debate Against Freshmen

Last Wednesday evening the Sophomore Debating Team which is to meet the Freshman team on March 14th was selected. The question debated at the meeting was: Resolved, that there should be no discrimination between the Chinese immigrants and the immigrants of other nations. The judges were Professor Gray, Professor Thompson and Mr. Prince. The men whom they finally selected to represent the Sophomores were: Walter F. Maddison of West Lynn, Mass., George C. Clark of Portland and Stephen J. Danforth of Foxcroft. These men have had more or less experience in debate and they are expected to render a good account of themselves when they debate against the Freshmen.

ROUND TABLE

Reception given to Mrs. R. J. Aley

The Round Table of the University of Maine held a reception in honor of Mrs. Robert Judson Aley in the Library, Tuesday afternoon, January 10, from three until six o'clock. The affair was largely attended, a large number of those present being from out of town. The reception was held on the lower floor, the club room and the reading rooms being used.

The guests present numbered about two hundred and were received by Miss Colvin, first vice-president of the Round Table, Mrs. Stevens, second vice-president, and Mrs. Aley.

Refreshments were served in one of the reading rooms. The tables were presided over by Mrs. Fernald, Mrs. Estabrooke, Mrs. Briscoe and Mrs. Caroline Morse, who were assisted by a number of members of the club.

Those present represented the women students, Alumni, members of women's clubs of Orono, officers of the Federated Women's Clubs of Bangor and Oldtown, wives of the members of the faculty of the Bangor Theological Seminary, matrons of the fraternity houses, women teachers of Orono High School, and ladies visiting members of the University faculty.

The affair was a most brilliant one of its kind. The committee in charge of it was: Mrs. J. N. Hart, chairman, Mrs. P. L. Bean, Mrs. C. W. Easley, Mrs. C. B. Brown, and Mrs. J. M. Bartlett.

VESPERS

A Truly Wonderful Story Told by Prof. Clark of Bangor Seminary

The speaker at last Sunday's Vesper Service was Prof. Calvin M. Clark of the Bangor Theological Seminary, who gave a very interesting account of the Passion Play at Oberammergau. He had the privilege of being present at the play in 1900 and at two presentations in 1910 and his account was in substance:

It is impossible to say when the first Passion Play was given but it was started many years ago. The text of the play was written by monks in a nearby monastery and was first staged in the church. The church was soon filled to overflowing and a stage was erected in the churchyard. The presentation thus progressed down to the latter part of the 18th century. In 1635 there was a great pestilence throughout Germany and it finally reached the village of Oberammergau and in the midst of the death dealing scourge the peasants went to the church. They there pleaded with the Lord to drive out the terrible pestilence and promised that if this was done, they would celebrate the Lord's Supper every ten years and so the modern Passion Play received its start.

In preparing the scenery, staging of the play and the costumes, no expense is spared. The music is the best of its kind and there is a trained chorus of thirty-eight. Everything connected with the mechanical and artistic part of the staging is arranged to perfection. This is most remarkable when one considers that all the work of staging, costuming and acting is done wholly by the village peasantry.

In 1830, came a pastor educated in German universities, and as the play had gradually drifted into boorishness and brutality he set about to rewrite the play and introduce purity and intellectuality into it. The result of his labors is a work of dramatic literature and is a model of its kind. The orchestral score and all the music was written by the village schoolmaster, who was so educated in music that he could take the play as written by the pastor in the difficult German dialect and write music thoroughly adapted to it.

The play is given from eight to twelve and from one forty-five until five forty-five. At the beginning the speaker, a principal actor, delivers the prologue and he speaks all the parts which are necessary to explain some of the scenes. The prologue leads to the first great division of the play which depicts the triumphal entrance of Christ and succeeding events up to his arrest in the garden. The second part begins with Christ's trial and ends with his condemnation and the third was crucifixion, which is followed by two short scenes showing the resurrection and ascension.

Prof. Clark delivered a really wonderful story which was very interesting and much appreciated by the audience.

BOSTON POULTRY SHOW

R. E. Jones and C. J. Dunlap Compete for Maine

At the Boston Poultry Show last week Maine was represented by a team of two men, R. E. Jones, SC., of Pelham, N. H., and Clarence Dunlap '12, of Farmington, in the picking and judging contests. In these Maine won first and third places respectively against teams from Cornell and Gwelph. Prof. Brown of the Poultry Department declared himself much satisfied with the work of the team.

RELAY TRIALS

Indicate that Strong Team will go to Boston
Feb. 11

The first of the weekly trials for the men who are trying out for the relay team which is to run against a relay team from the University of Vermont at the B. A. A. Meet, February 11, were held Saturday afternoon. The team this year will seriously feel the loss of Fortier, Cook and Littlefield, who graduated last June. Hart, '11, Waite, '11, Walker, '11, and Deering, '12, of last year's squad and a large number who are out for the first time are working hard to bring the team up to the standard that it has held at B. A. A. meets of past years.

The following men were tried out Saturday: Hart, 50-4, Waite, 48-4, Ingham, 49-4, 1911; Lancaster, 52, Deering, 48, Hinckley, 51-3, Parker, 51-3, 191-2; Hamlin, 54-3, McAlary, 50-4, Simpson, 55-3, 1913; Patterson, 52-4, King, 54-3, Johnson, 53-1, Jones, 53-3, Ferguson, 54-4, Hall, 54-1, Gerrish, 53-1, Peters, 52, Morse, 52, Daniels, 52-2, Harvey, 51-2, St. Onge, 51-1, Martin, 51, Walker, '11, and Schrupf, '12, ran their trials on Monday afternoon in good time.

Coach Smith is working the men well and they are in good shape, considering the time that they have been out. On Saturday of this week Coach Smith plans to give the men trials run in the form of actual relay races, between teams chosen from among the men who are out. This new method promises to be interesting as well as beneficial.

ATHLETIC BOARD MEETING

New Subscription Methods—Numerals Awarded

The regular meeting of the Athletic Board on Tuesday evening proved both important and interesting. On the recommendation of the treasurer, Mr. Gannett, it was voted to ask the members of the Athletic Association to sign subscription papers for the amount of their dues instead of having the classes vote to pay as a body as formerly, and further that 15% reduction be allowed on all subscriptions paid on or before April 1, 1911. It was voted also that coupon books be issued for admission to athletic contests instead of the regular season ticket, each coupon to be marked for the contest for which it is intended and each member to be required to show the proper coupon at the gate. It was voted to create the office of assistant treasurer, the holder to be a student appointed by the treasurer and chairman of the Athletic Board, and the position to be recommended as a college honor.

The managers of the different departments read contracts for the contests for the spring and fall, and much of the evening was spent in discussing and voting on them. It was also voted to send Director Wingard to the banquet of the Boston Alumni Association as a representative of the Association. A committee on amendments to the constitution was appointed. The awarding of "M" certificates was approved for all those who were entitled to the "M", according to the by-laws of the Association in force last spring, from the date of the organization of the Association in 1893 up to the time of the acceptance of the revised constitution in 1910.

The committee on numerals reported the awarding of numerals to the following men on account of work in the Pumpkin Meet: C. L. Allen, R. A. Power, J. A. Tabor, W. E. Murphy, R. W. Wetherbee, A. F. McAlary, C. C. Jones, L. B. Rogers, E. W. Jennison, G. R. Wescott, L. C. Smith, Mgr., 1913; A. A. St. Onge, Capt., F. A. Morris, P. H. Martin, C. E. Twitchell, E. L. True, C. W. Fenderson, E. M. Hall, P. W. Thomas, E. M. Hodgkins, A. L. Coyne, Mgr., 1914. The board also voted to award numerals to L. E. Houghton, '12, and R. A. Power, '13, for their work in the interclass marathon race.

The board adjourned at a late hour for a special meeting on Jan. 16, as there was much important business left untouched. The board this year is doing a work unequalled in the history of the Association and each member deserves the appreciation and hearty cooperation of every man in the association for the faithful service that they are giving.

Coach A. N. Smith believes in one shower and many rubs each week.

Men are urged to come out for the 100 and 220 yard dashes; it is the opinion of Mr. Wingard that these races will decide the Intercollegiate Meet.

All B. A. A. men will be run on time every Saturday afternoon from two to five.

Training has started for all relay men whose time for the 390 yards is less than fifty seconds.

Many of the alumni have contributed generously to the fund for the improvement of Alumni Field and all the classes except the Freshmen have contributed to the fund.

There are seven freshmen working for assistant manager of track. These are: Adams, Ferguson, Getchell, Haskell, Howley, Fowler and Bray.

DELTA TAU DELTA RECEPTION

Reception given Friday in Honor of Mrs. Winnifred W. Haggett Followed by a Dance

Gamma Nu Chapter of Delta Tau Delta gave a reception last Friday evening in honor of their new matron, Mrs. Winnifred Haggett of Bath. In the receiving line were President and Mrs. Robert J. Aley, Dean and Mrs. J. N. Hart, Clarence F. Doore, and Mrs. Winnifred Haggett. Pullen's orchestra of Bangor furnished music during the evening. After the reception the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. The guests present at the dance were: the Misses Mary Kelley, Rebecca Chilcott, Nora Shatford, Ida Gartley, Hazel Delano, Francis Stevens, Verna Giberson, Dorothy Clement, Gertrude Oak and Liela McAvey of Bangor; Daisy Tower, Marjorie Lindell, and Lottie Brewer of Bar Harbor; Hazel Davis, Geneva Rose, and Madeline Burroughs of Rockland; Mae Eales of Vanceboro; Bertha Wade of Farmington; Gladys Larabee of Gardiner; Myra Wood of Livermore Falls; Luzetta Stearns, Millinocket; Ruth Stinchfield of Danforth; Hazel Mariner of Milford; Ethel White of Orono and Maud White of Foxcroft.

PRISM BOARD BUSY

First Section Gone to Printer—Grinds and Pictures Wanted

The editors of the 1912 Prism have just completed their work on the first section of the annual, and it is now in the hands of the printers, the Bangor Co-Operative Printing Company. The board will have no time to rest, however, as there is much other matter to be prepared, which must be at the printers' within the next few weeks.

Editor Chase and Manager Spear and their assistants have the book well planned out. The binding will again be in leather, but instead of a flexible cover like the Prism last year, the cover will have a board back. The paper will be of a very light green tint. Various other features will also be introduced to make the book this year distinctive.

As usual there is an urgent call for grinds, photographs, and drawings. In order to have a grind section in which every "knock" will make a "hit," the editors need to have a voluminous supply of material, instead of having to use all that is passed to them.

ALUMNI NOTES

R. P. Stevens, '98, Successful Electrician

We are indebted to the trade journal of the J. G. Brill Company for the following article:—

Ray P. Stevens, president and general manager of the Lehigh Valley Transit Company was born April 3, 1877, at Eastport, Maine. He prepared for college at the Ellsworth High School and Eastern Maine Conference Seminary at Bucksport and in 1898 graduated from the University of Maine with the degree of B. S. in Electrical Engineering. During the period he was attending school and college he conducted a general electric and contracting business in Ellsworth, equipping many of the large summer hotels at Bar Harbor and vicinity. After finishing at college he went to work, first for the Bell Telephone Company and then for the General Electric Company at Lynn, Mass., at the same time living in Boston and taking post-graduate work at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His first electric railway connection was in Everett, Wash., where he practically built a new system. Before he was done he was persuaded to manage the railway and lighting properties in Everett, and under his capable management the earnings doubled in less than five years. He next went to Auburn, New York, as general superintendent of the Auburn and Syracuse Electric Railway Company, where he remained two years. During this short period he made so notable a record that he was offered the presidency of the Lehigh Valley Transit Company, which controls nearly 150 miles of electric railway, as well as considerable lighting property in southeastern Pennsylvania. At that time the company was yearly showing a large deficit; now it is earning enough to pay a 4 per cent dividend on preferred stock.

Mr. Stevens, at the time of his election as president was undoubtedly the youngest railway president in the country. Since then he has been twice in the position of president of the Pennsylvania Street Railway Association.

Abel P. Wyman, '07, and Miss Florence M. Sleeper, ex-'05, of Milford, were married on Wednesday January eleventh.

E. L. Baker, '03, is associate chemist in the New York Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, N. Y.

C. W. Bartlett, '01, is with the General Electric Company in the principal office at Schenectady, N. Y.

A. G. Bennett, '06, is superintendent for the Canadian General Development Company, with headquarters at Montreal, Canada.
