EDITORIALS.

THE football season of 1900 is at an end. As we look backward at all that the existence of the team has brought into our student life this fall, we need but to remember the purpose which underlies the whole system of college athletics, and note to what a remarkable degree this purpose has worked itself out in the University of Maine during the past two months, to realize that far from being a failure, the season has proved one of the most successful that has ever passed into the history of the college.

Of the five games played with Maine colleges U. of M. has won but a single one, which would not seem to uphold the statement just made did the success of a football season depend solely on the results of its games as shown by the scores. But although the prestige which we seek among the neighboring colleges as a result of the work of our athletic teams depends largely upon the percentage of games won or lost, the influences which the existence of such teams in a college exert for the good or evil of the student body are practically independent of that factor. To judge from the experiences of this fall, it would seem as if the best results might indeed come from defeats rather than from victories.

Forgetting for the moment the hopes for a victorious eleven which two months ago were so strong and which have been but partially realized, let us note one of the things which the season has accomplished which will be in the memory of U. of M. men when the scores of the games are long since forgotten. Above all "Maine" has learned that a winning football team cannot exist without a winning spirit, not only on the part of the team itself but among its supporters on the side lines. There could have been no more certain guarantee of the final result of the first Colby game, than the manner in which the whole college resigned itself to inevitable defeat, the minute fortune seemed to favor the visiting team. Is it no sign of progress do you think when a few weeks later the same men crowd the sidelines throughout the whole of an equally disastrous game, keeping up incessant cheering no matter whether "Maine" gained ground or lost, and not losing hope till the last second of play? We believe that the U. of M. of the future will look back at the great awakening in athletic spirit which this season has witnessed and count it of greater value than an unbroken list of victories.

For the men who have composed the team this fall only words of the highest commendation can be spoken. Every man has trained faithfully and played his position to the best of his ability in every game. The weak point throughout the entire season has been the absence of a regular "second eleven" and if fault rests with anyone in particular it is with the men who should have been found every night in the lineup of such a team against the "varsity." We lose but a single man this year by graduation and in view of the lessons which have come from the experiences of this fall, every man should look forward to the season of 1901 with perfect confidence that the results next year will show a grand improvement in the position "Maine" holds in this branch of athletics.

IT was no more than natural, perhaps, after such a condition of confidence had been engendered among some of the students, in the ability of the team to defeat Bates, that the disappointment of the hour should have caused a few of the men to forget the courtesy due to a visiting team. Yet that such a thing did happen during the game on Nov. 3 is none the less deplorable and unworthy of the institution of which these thoughtless persons formed a part and to a certain degree represented.

This college has for years sustained a reputation for clean athletics among her rivals in this state and any act which will tend to impair that reputation should receive the censure of every student. Bates played clean football throughout the game; they were fierce in their attacks to be sure, yet rather than this being a matter for uncomplimentary remarks, we could but wish our own eleven had more of that same quality. It is difficult of course to set a limit to the extent to which the supporters of a team may go in their efforts to help their team to win, but it is certain that this limit is reached long before ungentlemanly remarks are heard from the sidelines or the game has to be stopped because of crowding on the field.

Had the unpleasant occurrences of the day in question been the act of the student body as a whole, we would have good cause to fear for the reputation of our college, but it was due to the thoughtlessness of only a small number of men who we trust will hereafter realize that unsportsmanlike conduct is out of place under all considerations and can but bring discredit upon the institution whose representatives indulge in it.

AMONG the first of lessons which came to the editors of THE CAMPUS as a result of the change, at the beginning of the last college year, from a monthly to a bi-weekly publication, was the inadequacy of the existing method of election to the board. Up to that time the appointment of editors had been entirely in the hands of the faculty, but, owing to the new conditions which attended the publication of a bi-weekly newspaper, it was thought advisable to base the appointments upon the quality of work done in competition for the places on the board and not as formerly upon the general rank and character of the student.

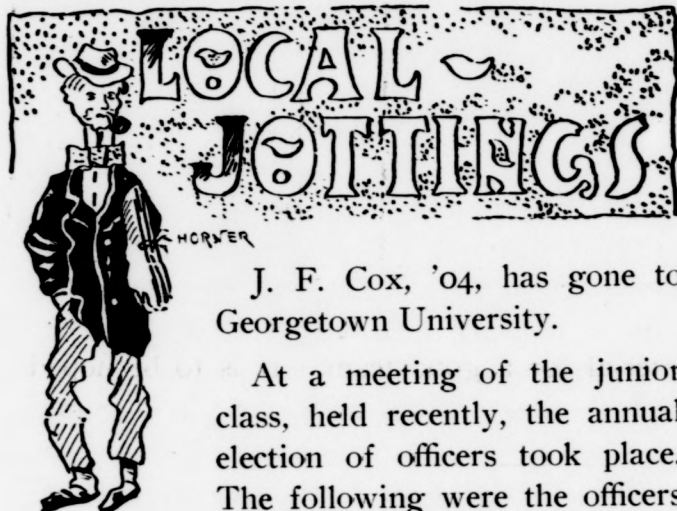

The announcement of this plan resulted in an immediate change of attitude on the part of the student body and its application in the selection of the present board, in a marked improvement in average ability and interest. If the time is ever to come—and we believe that it must come if THE CAMPUS is to keep step with the rapid advance of the university along other lines,—when positions on the editorial staff of the college paper are as earnestly striven for as the positions on our athletic teams, it must be as a result of sharp and extensive competition. This statement needs no proof other than the experience of any number of well-known college publications, in fact, our own experience during the past six months has proved it sufficiently. Such a condition can only be effected by gradual development, but it remains with the student body of today and especially with the three lower classes to determine how great shall be the advancement towards this end this year.

The responsibility for the future success of the paper rests largely of course with 1902, and the lower classes. The men who will be upper classmen next year have already developed ability amply sufficient to insure their share of the responsibility and it is to the present freshman that we shall look especially during the next five months for evidence of the ability and willingness to take their share of the work. That this class possesses an abundance of ability in this line there can be no doubt. Whether those having this ability will be impressed with the imperative need of THE CAMPUS for such men, is another matter. We hope that the members of 1904 will need no appeal to the sense of loyalty, before taking up this work, but that there will grow up at once among the men who have ever done work of this nature or have any inclination for it, a sharp competition for election to the board next spring. Copy in the nature of news notes, sketches of local incidents, and editorials will be carefully considered by the present editors and such as are available printed in THE CAMPUS. The positions on the board of next year will be awarded upon the quality of the copy presented, and upon its amount, in so far as the editors shall judge this a measure of the interest the man takes in such work. The sole restriction to membership is the rule that no fraternity shall be represented by more than two men. We trust that 1904 will add to the reputation for college spirit which it has already established by at once entering enthusiastically into the work of developing some good men to represent the class next year on the staff of the college paper.

THE formation of a new "home" club during the past week shows a move in the right direction. There are now in existence three such clubs at this institution which are seeking to advance the interests of U. of M. in that section of the state, or of New England, from which their members come. There is a very great need of organized effort towards getting good men to come to this university, and it would seem that this need could be most effectively met, by sectional organizations covering the entire state. The advantages of this college will speak for themselves in time, but a great deal quicker and better method is to be found in the personal testimony of an enthusiastic student.

J. F. Cox, '04, has gone to Georgetown University.

At a meeting of the junior class, held recently, the annual election of officers took place. The following were the officers elected: President, A. R. Davis; vice president, F. E. Holmes; secretary, Miss Celia Rice; treasurer, Miss Genevieve Boland; executive committee, Miss Lida Knowles, A. F. Wheeler, W. E. True, N. A. Chase.

E. G. Mitchell, '02, has left college.

The work on the gymnasium has been progressing more rapidly during the past two weeks. The main roof has been put on and is now ready for the slate. As soon as the steel trusses come the roof over the gymnasium will be hurried along and the building finished as soon as possible.

At a meeting of the Debating society, held Thursday, Nov. 1, the following question was discussed: "Resolved, That the present system of taxation is the best that can be devised." The argument was won by the affirmative.

C. W. Margesson, '02, has returned from Passadumkeag, where he has passed the last two weeks surveying wood lots in that vicinity.

F. J. Libby, '96, was on the campus recently where he was entertained at the Phi Gamma Delta House and was initiated into the fraternity of Phi Gamma Delta.

J. D. Buck, '04, has returned from his home at Orland, where he was called by the illness of his father.

At a meeting of the sophomore class, held Nov. 9, the committee for arrangement of sophomore prize declamation was chosen as follows: E. M. Wharff, E. L. Baker, E. A. Porter, R. M. Conner, L. C. Bradford. Carlos Dorticos was elected captain and manager of the football eleven.

Mr. Siff, instructor in mathematics, delivered a lecture in the Congregational church at Orono, Nov. 11, on The Relation of Education to Religion.

A. S. Page, '00, was on the campus over Sunday, coming over to attend the game at Bangor.

The Junior Electrical and Mechanical Society elected the following officers: President, E. J. Bartlett; vice president, A. W. Batchelder; secretary and treasurer, R. E. Russell; executive committee, E. J. Bartlett, A. M. Watson, R. E. Russell, A. F. Wheeler, H. W. Kneeland.

W. E. Barrows was up from Bar Harbor last Saturday.

Miss Perry, '03, has returned to college.

The wind-mill at the north end of the campus has been undergoing much needed repairs.

I. E. Treworgy, '03, has left college for a while and has accepted a position as teacher in a school on Long Island, near Bluehill, Me.

A reception was given to the Bowdoin college football team by the Madockawando club at their club rooms in Bangor Saturday evening.

Alan L. Bird, '00, who is studying law in Houlton, was on the campus Sunday. He came down Saturday to attend the Bowdoin-U. of M. football game.

Quite a number of strangers were on the campus Saturday. Special rates were offered by the B. & A. R. R. to enable upriver people to attend the Bowdoin-University of Maine football game at Bangor and several took advantage of this to come down and look over the college campus and buildings before going to Bangor to the game.

H. S. Martin, '96, was on the campus Friday and Saturday. Mr. Martin has been doing engineering work in southern California the past summer and is at home for a short vacation. He will start west again in about three weeks.

The local chapter of Beta Theta Pi held their final initiation Friday evening, October 26. The initiate was A. G. Taylor. After the initiation exercises adjournment was made to the dining hall, where a banquet was held, after which toasts were responded to by members of the local and visiting chapters and the alumni. A large delegation from the Bowdoin chapter of Beta Theta Pi was present and also a number of the alumni, among whom were A. L. Burnell, '96; H. E. Marks, '98; E. C. Webster, '88; A. P. Webster, '92; E. H. Kelley, '90; R. K. Jones, '86, and N. C. Grover, '90.

Forest Baker of Deering has been visiting his brother, Ernest L. Baker, the past week.

E. I. Davis has returned to college. He has been at work the past summer with Eng. Edgerley on the geological survey of the state.

A new specimen of Ithysamna has been found by Dr. Folsom of Yellow Springs, Ohio, which will be named after the late Dr. F. L. Harvey in memory of the many new specimens he had discovered. Dr. Harvey was an authority on the Ithysamna.

So many studies in the senior year are now given by lectures, that students in that year's work are finding typewriters very handy and almost a necessity in copying so many notes. The latest addition to this time-saving force is The Franklin, which is doing duty at 209 Oak Hall.

A number of the colleges are resorting to the old fashion game of "hare and hounds" to get men out for cross country runs. Why not try it at U. of M.? There is nothing like incentive to get men interested in an enterprise, and ten chances to one a series of races after the above plan with a medal, or any other suitable prize to the winner, would result in sharp competition and it could not help but be a great benefit to the interests of the track team.

Next in order are the class football games. Interest will chiefly center about the freshman-sophomore game, of course, but the upper classes, especially the juniors, have abundant material for a good team. It is to be hoped that a complete schedule of interclass games will be immediately arranged as, aside from the healthful rivalry they engender, there is no better way of bringing to light good material, or of keeping up a widespread interest in the game.

Announcements of the leading features of the Pan-American Exposition, which is to be held in Buffalo, N. Y., next summer, are being distributed to the press. The exposition will be of unusual value to engineering students as the electrical and mechanical exhibits are to exceed any that have been seen in this country. Within a few miles of the exposition is the gigantic power plant at Niagara Falls, which to the technical student would not be the least of the attractions at the great exhibition. Already a number of U. of M. students are planning to attend and some talk is heard of forming a University of Maine party, if such a plan shall be thought to be feasible.

Only the most favorable comment is heard of the game with Bowdoin Saturday. "Maine" played a plucky uphill game all the way through, at times showing elements of strength that surprised even their most enthusiastic supporters. One of the most notable features of the game was the evidence at every interval between play of the good feeling between the opposing players. On several occasions when there was "time out" the men of the two teams mixed up for a friendly chat. After the game people were heard remarking on every side that it was the cleanest game of football they had ever witnessed.

It is rumored that an electric motor is soon to be placed in the well house near the grandstand, as a "booster" for the windmill. There are some people who are glad to hear it.

Mr. Yates, who played quarterback on the Tufts college team the first part of this season, assisted Mr. Burton during the last week of practice in coaching the 'varsity, paying special attention to the backs.

At a meeting of the Massachusetts club, held recently, it was voted to take steps at once towards procuring a reduced round-trip rate between Bangor and Boston for the Christmas recess. It is the wish of the president of the club, S. E. Woodbury, that all those who come from points beyond Boston or who contemplate a trip to that city during the holidays, will hand their names to him at once that a complete list may be procured of those who will take advantage of a low rate, before application is made to the railroad company. It is expected that a $6.00 rate will be granted this winter if as many as forty names can be secured.

The electric lighting station has been in a slightly crippled condition during the past week owing to an accident to the gasoline engine. The porcelain insulating tubes which form a part of the igniter were broken by the constant jar, and a delay occurred before new tubes could be procured. No inconvenience resulted to those who use the lights, as the plant is provided against any emergency.

Several new and valuable college publications have been added to the exchange list of THE CAMPUS this fall. It now contains the periodicals of all the smaller New England colleges and many good ones from colleges of the south and west. Among the most noteworthy of the new additions are "The Tech," published at M. I. T., "The Dartmouth," "The Tuftonian," and "The Wesleyan Argus," all being publications of very high merit.

THE FALL OF 1901.

No small amount of comment has been caused throughout this section of the college world upon the spirit of the two hundred men in this college who took a one hundred and twenty mile trip to cheer their football eleven shortly after it had met with two disheartening defeats. The distance was not so great, nor the result so satisfactory, on Saturday, Nov. 10, but the spirit was there just the same and it is the kind of spirit that is going to do wonders for U. of M. athletics in a very short time. Already definite plans are in operation for the season of 1901 and they assure a season conducted on broader and deeper principles than have ever been possible before. A representative of the athletic association while talking with Bert Waters, the famous Harvard coach, just after the Harvard-Pennsy game, was highly congratulated by him upon his connection with an institution where such a revival in athletic spirit had occurred. Afterward in conversation with Mr. Woodruff, Pennsy's head coach, the same congratulation was extended. It is an open secret that the main purpose of a representative from this college in seeing these men was to discuss the prospects of having a coach for next season from one of the above named universities.

Both of the men consulted were perfectly confident that a winning team could be developed here, the only necessary factor being a coach of long experience, one, as Mr. Waters expressed it, "who not only knows the game pretty well but knows it all the way through."

"In my opinion," said Mr. Waters, "such a coach could do better with men such as you have at your college than where the game was better known, the only thing needed being a willingness of the men to work and work hard."

At present no definite statement can be made as to who will coach Maine next year but the football committee is putting all of its interest into this problem and it is expected that within two months as good a coach will be engaged for next fall as the circumstances will warrant and that whatever institution he comes from, he will be by far the best coach that "Maine" has ever had.

We print in this issue parts of a most interesting letter received from an alumnus in Alabama. We wish that every alumnus who reads the pages of THE CAMPUS might comprehend what it would mean to the students of the university and to those of the younger graduates who are still struggling against adversity in trying to make a place for themselves, if each man, as new successes came to him, would write a similar letter for the pages of his college paper. Aside from the matter of interest—and such letters always appeal to the undergraduates as the most interesting of all alumni news,—there is an obligation involved. Each graduate student can doubtless recall innumerable occasions while he was yet a student at U. of M. when his obligation to the state of Maine, for doing so much towards providing a way whereby he might procure an education, was forced upon him with such persistency as to become one of the unfailing memories of student days. Yet we wonder sometimes as we look over the catalogue of the graduates and note how many of them there are scattered all over the western hemisphere, from whom no news is ever received, if, after all, this matter of obligation to the state, has not been too little emphasized, whether this sense of obligation which must of necessity be felt by every student while in college, does not cease when “Maine’s” sons go forth into other states to win a place for themselves in the work for which the old “Pine Tree State” has done so much to prepare them.

There are in this institution at present upwards of two hundred Maine men, who are meeting the same difficulties that you met, who have the same sources of discouragement and the same distrust of their ability to win success. It is your duty to these men as a recompense for what their fathers have done for you, to give to them the encouragement which the record of your successes must of necessity carry with it.

There are at present over two hundred subscribers to THE CAMPUS from among the alumni, which means that about thirty per cent. of U. of M. graduates are keeping in close touch with their college. Comparison with the showing of other college publications would lead to the inference that in their loyalty to their college paper the alumni of this institution stand well to the front.

There seems to be a wrong impression abroad among the alumni in this section of the country, in regard to the practice game of football which an eleven made up of U. of M. “varsity” men and substitutes played against the Westbrook seminary team, on Oct. 18, in Westbrook. That this erroneous impression should exist is not to be wondered at, since the game was published throughout the state as a regular game by the “varsity” eleven. Just why this widespread publication was given to the game, it is impossible, of course, to guess. But inasmuch as one side of the matter has been exploited so freely it is no more than fair to all who have the interest of this college at heart, to state a few facts relating to that game, not in the nature of an excuse for no excuse is necessary, but that the alumni may better judge of the conditions which attended that much advertised contest. When a proposal was made to Manager Harvey in Portland that his team play a practice game with Westbrook seminary he at first refused as his men were all sore from the hard game against Fort Preble and a number of the best players were more or less severely injured. When urged, however, he at last gave consent on condition that it should be considered only as a practice game and that no account of it should be given to the press. The team he put into the field would appear from the summary published to be much stronger than it really was, as six substitutes were in the line-up, and several of the "varsity" men were playing out of their positions. During the game Coach Burton stood behind the seminary eleven, coached their men, directed their plays at our weakest points and told them where "Maine's" plays were going. No interest was attached to the game until, much to Mgr. Harvey's surprise, a full account of it appeared in the state papers.

A recent issue of the Bangor News contains a letter received by the friends of Capt. Mark Hersey which will undoubtedly interest a large number of U. of M. men, as Capt. Hersey has a wide circle of friends among those who were in college during the time he was military instructor here, and others who have been privileged to meet him during his later visits to the university. He wrote in part as follows:

Yang-tsun, China, Sept. 15, 1900.

I am here with five lieutenants, a surgeon and 135 men, chiefly recruits, with a few old soldiers, picked up from the hospitals below, as a convoy to a wagon train for Tung-chow, the river port of Peking. The 6th Cavalry has just brought the wagon train up from Tientsin—20 wagons—I take it from here on. The cavalry remain here at the railroad crossing of the Peiho and presumably for winter quarters. These are wonderful days. Around us are camped Russians, Germans, French and Italians, but the most interesting of all are the Bengal Lancers. These Indians are handsome fellows and their English officers most congenial. I have spent the morning looking over their outfit. Our four mule heavy army wagon is too cumbersome for this country. The one-horse cart used by all other nations is far better. But our soldiers loom up above them all. Our blue shirts are too conspicuous and all have learned from July 13, to wear the Khaki blouse which is the color of the country. We have the best footgear of any nation here and the best rations and everybody knows, by far the best pay. In camp equipage, we can learn of the German. Von Waldersee arrived at Tientsin, yesterday. The Japs, small and lithe, are the best marchers.

I have not seen a Chinese woman since my arrival in the country. Those who have not been killed or suicided are in hiding.

The destruction of property has been simply appalling. Towns are passed coming from Tong-ku that had held over 100,000 with not a soul in sight and not a house with a roof on. The ruins of Tientsin seem to me larger than the city of Boston with still the major part habitable. The mint there was captured by our forces, my surgeons tell me, and is still so held. We have failed to hold much that is valuable from lack of flags. Those nations whose colors are a strip of bunting or two can make and stick up a flag readily but the stars and stripes are not as readily produced.

I have not been here long enough to have a valuable opinion perhaps but it looks to me that cold weather would render these thousands of homeless desperate though now the docile looking coolie ambles along with his load doing the work of the allied armies. The allies themselves are jealous of one another and the flags of the various contestants for some building of importance daily clash. The "ping" of the solitary rifle bullet fired by some sentinel, probably, was heard several times by our little camp guard the two nights I was in Tientsin. My regiment is scattered along the wagon road to Peking with headquarters in the agricultural hall at the latter place so I am told. I have yet to report there. My surgeon, Dr. Barney, reports much sickness in the regiment. If so my little force will add materially to the number of effectives.

Mr. E. O. Goodridge, '85, has lately been offered the position of chief engineer of the Boston City hospital, which is one of the finest steam heating plants in New England. He has, however, decided to remain in his old position as chief engineer of the power stations at Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill. Mr. Goodridge's first street railway work was at Haverhill where he installed the electric machinery of the Street Railway Power Station and remained as chief engineer of the station. Two years later he was put in charge of the Lawrence power station and in 1899, shortly after the consolidation of the roads as the Massachusetts Electric companies, he was appointed chief engineer of the Lowell and suburban power station at Lowell, the three coming under one division. His address is 82 Canton St., Lowell, Mass.

Under date of Nov. 5, Mr. E. B. Wood, '94, writes as follows:

"I came to Huntsville, Ala., last March to superintend the construction of a 25,000 spindle cotton mill for the Dallas Manufacturing Co. The mill is an addition to their plant and is 328 feet long, 102 feet wide and four stories high. The total length of the building is now 660 feet and the addition is about completed. I am superintending at present the erection of a chimney stack 160 feet high, a cotton storehouse 360 feet long, 105 feet wide and one story high and also 130 houses to be occupied by operatives. I expect to remain here until the machinery is in place in the new plant and also to superintend the construction of a second mill of 10,000 spindles capacity. Although the country is in the midst of a political campaign, it would never be suspected here in Alabama for the vote is always made to read one way for fear of negro supremacy."

THE PASSION PLAY.

One of the most interesting and elevating entertainments that it has been the privilege of the students and the people of this vicinity to attend, was given in the Town Hall, Orono, on Saturday evening, Nov. 10, consisting of a pictorial representation and description of the famous Passion Play at Oberammergau, by Dr. J. J. Lewis, together with character sketches of some of the most striking personalities met during his two weeks' visit at that unique village. Dr. Lewis possessed most admirable descriptive power and carried the entire audience with him through the production of the play. The scenes themselves were superior to any that have ever been produced in this vicinity, and so perfect was the mechanical arrangement that from the introduction of the first character to the last scene of this most wonderful play, the audience was in spirit passing through the experiences of passion week with never a thought of its being artificial.

After the production of the play, Dr. Lewis gave a brief history of that famous religious drama and by means of moving pictures, introduced some of the leading characters as they appear in everyday life. The lecture was attended by a large and select audience from Orono and neighboring towns. The proceeds were donated by Dr. Lewis to the Art Guild connected with this institution.

ECHOES FROM MT. VERNON.

On the evening of Oct. 31 a very enjoyable banquet was tendered the Phi Gamma Society by Mrs. J. A. Knights at the Mount Vernon House. The table, placed diagonally across the dining room, was prettily decorated with pink carnations. With Mrs. Knights presiding at the head of the table and Mrs. E. A. Ballentine and Mrs. J. S. Steward, honorary members of the society, gracing the foot of the table, twenty girls (a rather unusual number in Mt. Vernon House) sat down to a delightful repast. Several alumni were present, including Miss Agnes R. Burnham, Miss Ida Bean and Miss Carrie Green. After they had finished dining, Mrs. Knights, Mrs. Ballentine for the honorary members, Miss Burnham for the alumnae, and Miss Frazer, president of the society, were called upon for toasts and responded in a witty manner. After giving the society yell the girls withdrew to the reception room where dancing was indulged in for the remainder of the evening.

To the extreme delight of the girls Miss Estelle Perry, '03, returned to college Wednesday, Nov. 7, and was heartily welcomed. She has been teaching up to the present time in South Penobscot.

On Nov. 2, Dr. Lewis took a short trip to Boston, where he had the pleasure of witnessing the Harvard-Pennsylvania game.

Last Saturday Miss Maxfield and Miss Perry had the pleasure of receiving a visit from Rev. Mr. Fisher, a former pastor. He stopped over both to bring them news of home and carry back information as to their welfare.

On Friday, Nov. 9, the Mount Vernon House was honored by the presence of Rev. Dr. Lewis, who was the guest of his son, Dr. O. F. Lewis.

ATHLETICS.

As a result of the lack of space in the Nov. 1 issue, the account of the Bates-U. of M. game at Lewiston was cut out by the printers, and the fact was unknown to the editors until it was too late to direct the removal of less important matter. We had no intention of keeping quiet as to the result of the game, as the score,—which, by the way, was 26-0 in favor of Bates—did not represent the relative strength of the two colleges, as "Maine" played a team composed largely of substitutes. The Bates team played a strong game and a good one and won by clean and straight football. It was unfortunate that a complete account of the game was not published, but that it was not was due entirely to a blunder and not to any desire to suppress the record of the defeat.

BATES, 8; U. OF M., 0.

Bates succeeded in making a touchdown, goal and safety against the University of Maine on the Alumni Athletic field Saturday, Nov. 3. This netted Bates eight points and the home team was unable to score. Maine was unable to hold the ball at any stage of the game and only twice in the game was the Bates goal in danger. Bates played a snappy game from start to finish and rushed the ball in great style. Monroe was the star of the game and he always made big gains whenever given the ball.

The Bates line, except in a few instances, was solid as a rock and Maine did not make many gains by bucking the line. Moody, the Bates captain and right end, prevented any large gains at his position. Bates worked a crisscross play very effectively and each time it was a puzzle to the Maine boys which they were unable to solve till the visitors had gained from fifteen to twenty yards.

Maine fumbled at a number of critical points and if this had not been the case, Bates would probably not have scored during the first half. On the whole the home team did not play nearly as snappy a game as they did against Colby the Saturday before. The backs did not go against the Bates line as they were expected to do, and their fumbles lost the game. At several points, Dorticos found holes in the line and went through with small gains. Taylor and Hadlock played their positions well and Hadlock made some fine tackles on his end. Snow played a star game at quarter and showed that he was the right man for the position. Wormell held down his side of the line and Bates found that it was useless to try to gain through him.

The game was clean throughout and very few penalties were given. Bates got ten yards twice for offside play. The crowd persisted in rushing on the field but the Bates timekeeper assumed the responsibility of keeping the howling mass of Maine students off the field and so it was all right. Ned Murray of Bangor refereed his usual impartial game and Harry Watkins umpired in a manner satisfactory to both teams.

Bates won the toss up and Small kicked to Maine's fifteen yard line. Durgan caught the ball and returned it twenty-five yards before he was downed. Maine made a few rushes and lost the ball on downs. Bates tried a few plays but was forced to punt on the third down. Maine made a few gains and Dorticos punted. Bates failed to gain on three plays and were forced to punt. Bates ran down and fell on the ball, and did not lose the ball until Small went through the line for a touchdown. Small kicked the goal. Bates, 6; Maine, 0. Maine kicked to Bates' ten yard line. Bates advanced the ball twenty yards and then was obliged to punt. Maine now worked the ball down to Bates' thirty yard line and Dorticos tried for a goal but failed, losing fifteen yards. Bates continually made her five yards and would probably have made a touchdown on a trick play if it had not been for Hadlock, who would not be fooled by having the interference go around the opposite end and the man with the ball come around his end. This play gave Bates three yards. Bates now fumbled the ball and Maine advanced it fifty yards by a phenomenal end run of W. L. Cole. Maine was unable to gain and Dorticos punted. The ball fell behind the goal line and a Bates man fell on it for a touchback. Bates made a few gains after the kick off and Towne went around left end for thirty yards, running out of bounds on Maine's three yard line. Time was called before the ball was put in play.

In the second half Bates made fierce rushes at Maine's line. Maine held on her own thirty yard line but with the ball she was unable to gain. Bates took the ball and by steady rushes and a few end runs carried the ball to within a foot of Maine's line. Here Maine made a heroic stand and held for downs. Dorticos tried to punt but his kick was blocked, resulting in a safety which ended the scoring. After the kickoff Bates advanced the ball to Maine's fifteen yard line where Maine held for downs and by successive rushes carried the ball to the middle of the field, when time was called. The line up;

BOWDOIN, 38; U. OF M., 0.

Bowdoin met the University of Maine for the first time this season in Bangor last Saturday before a crowd of one thousand spectators. The weather was cold and the field was in poor condition. Bowdoin depended entirely on the weight of her linemen who opened up big holes in the line on every play. The game was clean throughout. Bowdoin was offside continually and was often penalized but soon made up the lost ground.

In the first half Maine came very near scoring. Bowdoin lost the ball on downs on her own forty yard line. Durgan gained fifteen yards round Bowdoin's left end and Dorticos by plunges through the centre carried the ball to within a few feet of Bowdoin's goal line. Durgan was given the ball on the next play and just as he was over the line fumbled and the ball rolled back of the goal line and a Bowdoin man fell on it, resulting in a touchback. This was Maine's best chance for scoring and she lost it. In the second half Maine by steady rushes worked the ball to Bowdoin's seven yard line and then lost it on downs, by a margin of a very few inches.

The result of the game was by no means a disappointment to the supporters of the University of Maine. The rooters cheered just as heartily during the last half as they did at the beginning of the game. It was conceded that Bowdoin would win by a big score but it was just a guess how large it would be. After holding Harvard down to two touchdowns and then winning from Tufts, Amherst and Colby, the latter by a score of sixty-eight to nothing, it was thought before the game that Bowdoin would score nearly forty points against the University of Maine. The Maine boys played a good game except for a number of costly fumbles, and they did not seem disheartened at any stage of the game, but seemed to play their strongest game during the last half. Dorticos found holes in Bowdoin's line which was supposed to be as solid as a rock, and Durgan and Taylor made a few good gains around the ends. Hunt, Gregson and Dunlap made the best gains for Bowdoin, while the work of Cloudman and Marshall in the line was exceedingly good. The line up:
