EDITORIALS.

THE one absorbing question on the campus now is, "Where will the 'Junior Prom' be held?" At a class meeting Monday the class voted to hold the promenade in City Hall, Bangor, but on Tuesday the class was informed that there had been a vote taken by the faculty that hereafter the junior promenade should be held on the campus.

The situation is very peculiar and no doubt both sides have good reasons for their opinions. The members of the class feel that the 'Prom' is a strictly class affair and that as a large majority wish to have it in Bangor, it should be held there, claiming that the facilities on the campus are not adequate for such a function. On the other hand, it is found that last year the faculty voted to have the 'Prom' held on the campus and the fact that they have so decided, should, it is thought, influence the members of the class to hold it here.

Everybody in college is desirous that the promenade be as successful as it always has been, but the results of any controversy over the matter should be carefully weighed before too much is decided upon. It would be better for both parties to yield than for there to be any ill-will generated between the students and faculty over the matter. In other words, the interests of the college should be considered before class spirit, prestige, rule or personal desires.

"MAINE" is becoming noted for her college spirit, and justly so, for she has backed her athletic teams and they have won. She will back her coming teams and we may predict that she will have a full share of the victories.

Each student is proud of what last season's football team did; he is proud of the beautiful campus and of the new gymnasium with its fine and complete equipment. But do we not feel that this spirit of pride is in a measure shattered when we see the carved numerals and marks which deface the walls of our buildings, and can we not imagine what will be the judgment placed upon us by visitors? The opinions which they form of us because of these pranks are to our discredit, and yet these pranks are for the most part thoughtless acts. Thoughtless, because it is not creditable that any fellow who stops to consider the result will continue, for certainly he would do nothing of the kind in his own home. In a great many cases it is a desire to show class spirit or some streak of brightness, and although we believe most heartily in class spirit and wisdom, we are not assured in the least degree that these capers are true exhibitions of spirit or of knowledge.

The reflections of the public will not come upon the faculty or upon those in charge of the buildings but they will come upon us and so it rests upon us to remedy the conditions and as soon as we feel that we have done this, then we may proclaim lustily our spirit for "Maine."

Since the recent meeting in the chapel there has been a marked improvement along this line and it is a gratifying result of the sentiment of the student body and it is hoped in the future when anything of this nature presents itself that it will be settled in the same satisfactory and quiet manner.

IN the last issue of THE CAMPUS there appeared an article under the local department of the Law School relating to the various political organizations that are at work there, and took the opportunity to print the following:

"The rivalry between the three different organizations is so intense that the Jefferson Democratic Club has gone to the extreme length of electing to honorary membership an alumnus of the school (1902) and one of the prominent real estate agents of this vicinity, who for years has been, and now is, one of the strongest Republicans of eastern Maine, P. H. Dunn, Esq., of Brewer."

The article went on to state the opinion of Mr. Dunn in regard to the matter as if an interview had been held with him. Since its publication it is found that the writer intended to cast some reflections on the club and reported that which was absolutely untrue. At this writing the editor does not know whom the author of the article is but every means will be taken to find out and see that an apology is made.

The secretary of the Democratic Club has received a letter from Mr. Dunn and he says:

"I am not a Republican, never have been and never will be."

It is regretted that any individual, whether a member of THE CAMPUS board or not, has taken the columns of the paper to put forward his own interest or to throw "mud" at other organizations. The paper has not been, and is not to be, the instrument of any society, organization or individual and any attempt to make it such will not be tolerated. The paper is devoted to the interests of the University, including by that the University proper and the School of Law, and when it cannot serve that purpose it will cease to be published.

IT has been proposed to have a general calendar printed in THE CAMPUS from issue to issue and also posted on the bulletin board. In order to make this reliable the help of those who have the different social events in charge must be given. The necessity of such a scheme is very evident from the present demand for dates and a well-kept bulletin would aid very much in this regard.

J. V. Cilley is general manager of the Ferro Carril Argentino del Norte railway. The company is soon to begin the construction of an ariel rope tramway to join the present terminus Chilecito with the rich mining district up the Tamatina mountains. When finished it will be the longest and will reach the highest altitude of any wire rope in the world. The distance from Chilecito to the mines is twenty-two miles and it will rise 1.9 miles reaching 15,000 feet above the sea level.

In a letter received from Mr. Cilley recently he expressed his great desire to be back to Maine again and is planning to visit college during commencement on his visit to the United States to attend the St. Louis Fair. Mr. Cilley inclosed a liberal check for the athletic association. His address is, Cruz del Eje, Province of Cordoba, Argentine Republic.

Howard E. Stevens of Bluehill who recently returned to his home from Chicago was on the campus one day last week visiting friends. On leaving Orono, Mr. Stevens went to Pencoyd, Pa., where he is to take charge of the construction of the material for a steel bridge which is to be built across the Mississippi river at Thebes.

The bridge, which is to be built by the Ralph Modjeski Construction Co. of Chicago, will be one of the largest in the country and will cost about $3,000,000 when completed.

Mr. Stevens is a member of the Chicago Alumni Association of the University of Maine and reports it to be in a flourishing condition.

It is the intention of this association to establish a University of Maine Employment agency in Chicago to assist the graduates desirous of obtaining positions in the western states. Mr. Stevens says that the U. of M. graduate in the engineering departments need not be without employment in the West, for Maine boys are always in demand.

Mr. Stevens will be at 109 Rochille Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., for the next few months.

Dana T. Merrill, 1st Lieutenant in the U. S. regular army, having served the required three years in the Philippines, is now stationed at Fort Douglass, Utah.

THE PRISM.

The work on The Prism is progressing very rapidly and the book is fast becoming a reality. The photographs are in the hands of the engravers and a good part of the proof is at the printers.

Like all other college enterprises, this one must receive the support of the students to make it a success. Not only have the editors got to work hard but every student in college and a majority of the alumni should aid by adding their names to the list of subscribers. A complete file of The Prisms will form a most interesting source of information of our college life and should be owned by everyone.

The following letter has been sent to the alumni:

ORONO, ME., Feb. 1, 1903.

DEAR SIR:—

The 1904 Prism will soon be ready for distribution and we solicit your aid in encouraging and developing this department of the University of Maine.

The Prism has kept pace with the rapid growth of the University and to-day stands high in character and completeness. This year, the book will be larger and in every way better than that of former years. The number of drawings will be increased nearly one-half, the courses will be given more careful consideration and the other departments will be correspondingly increased. As usual, there will be pictures and cuts of the various fraternities, clubs and musical organizations.

A special feature of The Prism, this year, will be the athletic department. During the past year, as every alumnus already knows, Maine sprang into the lead, winning the intercollegiate championship of the State in all three branches of athletics. This is certainly a proud distinction and one that deserves more than passing mention. The book will contain halftones of the track, baseball and football teams with cuts of their respective captains.

There will be a biography of President Fellows and other contributions to the literary department by prominent members of the faculty.

As usual there will be the customary amount of jokes and grinds; but it is the purpose of the board of editors to see to it that no malicious or objectional grinds on members of the faculty be allowed to enter The 1904 Prism.

The printing and binding will be better than before and the book will be delivered at a much earlier date than in former years.

We intend to make this issue of The Prism number 500 copies and in order to do this we need your subscription.

Very truly yours,

THE EDITOR.

Address,

J. H. SAWYER, Mgr., Orono, Me.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON DANCE AND BANQUET.

The Maine Alpha chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon gave an informal dance in the gymnasium, Friday evening, February twentieth, which was a thoroughly enjoyable affair. About two hundred couples were present and the dancing continued until nearly midnight. The gym was tastefully and comfortably arranged with couches and cozy corners; and the orchestra, which was placed in the centre of the floor, was surrounded by potted plants.

After the reception Pullen furnished music for an order of thirteen dances, and judging from appearances his efforts were appreciated. Light refreshments were served during the evening.

On the following evening the chapter held its third annual banquet at the Penobscot Exchange, Bangor. Many of the alumni of the chapter were present and the occasion was to them a most pleasant reunion. An elaborate menu was discussed, songs were sung and the evening ended with the following toasts:

Fraternity,	R. M. Conner
Co-Education,	S. M. Small
The Alumni,	D. L. Theriault
Our Freshmen,	M. R. Lovett
Honors in the Fraternity,	J. W. Crowe
Past, Present and Future,	L. M. Swasey
C. G. Chase officiated as toastmaster.

BETA THETA PI "DORG."

On Friday evening, Feb. 20th, the Association of New England Chapters of Beta Theta Pi held its 22nd annual dorg at the Hotel Brunswick, Boston, Mass. The "dorg" was perhaps the most successful in the history of the Association, and the reception and banquet were graced by the presence of Gov. John L. Bates, the guest of honor of the evening, but in every sense of the word a "brother" to every many of the 200 present, for it was the Governor of the commonwealth who was instrumental in instituting the early chapters which have given the fraternity the strong hold which it has today in the colleges of New England and the East.

At a business meeting held in the afternoon, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, the Hon. Harrison Hume of Dartmouth; Secretary, Norman Gunderson, Brown; Treasurer, Fred K. Dyar, Amherst. The business meeting was followed by a reception which continued until 7.30 o'clock, when began the march to the banquet hall.

The after-dinner exercises were presided over by Chaplain G. A. Crawford, U. S. N. (retired), who introduced as the toastmaster of the evening, Justice John T. Blodgett of the Rhode Island Supreme Court. Gov. Bates was introduced as the first speaker of the evening. He spoke very feelingly of his connection with the fraternity and at the close of his speech was very warmly applauded by the vast number present. Other speakers of the evening were Dr. C. Vey Holman, of the University of Maine, the Rev. W. W. Bustard of Boston, and Hon. Harrison Hume. Sanford C. Dinsmore '03, represented the University of Maine chapter at the gathering, several of the more recent alumni also being present.

DEUTSCHER VEREIN.

The regular meeting of the Deutscher Verein was held at the home of Pres. Fellows, on the evening of Feb. 17. The program consisted of a short talk by Prof. Huddilston on "Art Collections of Germany." During the evening light refreshments were served and German games enjoyed.

At this meeting the semi-annual election of officers was held, resulting as follows: President, C. S. Chaplin; vice president, Miss L. P. Copeland; secretary, R. R. Drummond; treasurer, A. W. Sprague; executive committee, Dr. Lewis, Miss Frances Webber, T. F. Taylor.

FRANK O. JOHNSON, JR.

Word has been received of the death in Schenectady, N. Y., of F. O. Johnson, Jr., University of Maine, 1900.

He died on Feb. 15, as a result of a surgical operation which unexpectedly settled in his throat, causing a disease akin to diphtheria.

"Sammy," as he was commonly called, was born at No. Berwick, Me., where his parents live at the present time. He prepared for college at Berwick Academy and entered the University of Maine in the class of 1900. Owing to sickness in his senior year, he was obliged to leave college, and after a sickness of about a year, he entered the testing department of the General Electric Co. at Lynn, Mass., leaving there to enter Harvard, where he studied for one year in the Lawrence Scientific School.

In June, 1902, Mr. Johnson was married. Mrs. Johnson died in August after a wedded life of less than three months. Her death was a great blow to Mr. Johnson and he never recovered his old-time vivacity.

Last September, Mr. Johnson entered the testing department of the General Electric Co. at Schenectady, where he was employed at the time of his death.

In college "Sammy" was best known for his activity in the musical clubs, and his efforts were in a considerable way responsible for their early successes. He was a charter member of Omega Mu Chapter of Phi Gamma Delta, and his death will be mourned by all who knew him.

NOTICE.

When the article was written a short time ago in regard to candidates for THE CAMPUS board, nothing was said about a member from the Law School. It is thought advisable to have the same system apply to the School of Law, the member who passes in the best material being chosen for the coming year. All articles should be sent to the Editor, No. 311 Oak Hall, not less than five days before time for publication.

Dana L. Theriault, Esq., who is practicing at Fort Kent, was in town during the past week, having just returned from Augusta, where he was called to attend one of the Legislature Committees, in the interests of up-river lumbermen.

John F. Dolan, Esq., is one of those men who decide to practice his profession in their native towns, and so far has no reason to regret his decision, notwithstanding the old saw: "Every man is a prophet, except in his own country." Mr. Dolan, has offices on Hammond Street, Bangor.

LOCALS.

Hon. Andrew Peters Wiswell of Ellsworth, Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of Maine, was the guest of Alpha Chapter of the Gamma Eta Gamma Fraternity of the Law School, at a reception and supper given in the chapter rooms Friday night, Feb. 13. Chief Justice Wiswell has been a member of the fraternity for about one year but Alpha Chapter's first opportunity of administering the obligation incumbent upon honorary members of the fraternity, came on Friday night, at the conclusion of his lectures before the Law School on Evidence. The reception and supper afforded great enjoyment, and the chapter members listened with interest and pleasure to an address by their distinguished guest, in which he gave utterance in his cordial manner to encouraging words and fraternal sentiments.

The Law School has four sturdy aspirants for positions on the 'varsity baseball team: Violette, Maine's best catcher of last year; Bryant and Hight of the junior class, and Lancaster of the class of 1905, who was pitcher for Gardiner High school during two successful seasons.

The next moot court case will be held Monday afternoon, P. M., March 2. It involves a question of suretyship. A. A. Lang for plaintiff; T. R. Geary, for defendant. W. W. Buckley, justice.

A fine crayon portrait of the late Walter G. Mansur, has been purchased by the classes and now hangs in the library of the school.

BANGOR, ME., Feb. 26, 1903.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CAMPUS:

DEAR SIR:—Permit me to state that the allusion to me and my election to membership in the Jefferson Democratic Club, of the U. of M. School of Law, published in THE CAMPUS, was an unwarranted dealing with sacred topics. The writer is evidently an infant in the writing of humorous articles, else he would have hesitated before he charged, in a University of Maine publication, a U. of M. graduate with having stultified himself. I can pity the unfortunate author of the article when a realizing sense of his error begins to dawn through the foggy envelope of his intellect.

Yours very respectfully,

PATRICK H. DUNN.

Athletics

BASEBALL.

Our prospect for a successful season at baseball is at present, of course, only a matter of conjecture and it is impossible as yet to say whether or not our team will be stronger than that of last year. One thing is practically certain, however, and that is that we shall have to meet on the diamond this year about the strongest lot of teams that the Maine colleges have ever produced.

We shall undoubtedly have a good fielding team and we know that our pitchers are "comers;" but shall we have a good batting team? It is safe to prophecy that the team that wins out this year among the Maine colleges must have some first-class stick artists in its cast. If we can produce them our chances are good, if not, our chances are decidedly negative.

The candidates have turned out regularly and have begun to get a little form under the instruction of Capt. Mitchell. Coach Rudderham is now here and his arrival should give a stimulus to the practice. A good schedule is being arranged for the second team so that there will be something doing even after the first team is chosen.

The members of last year's team who are on deck are: Towse, '03; Larrabee, '05; Mitchell, '05, (Capt.); Collins, '05; and Violet from the Law School. Chase and Strickland, members of the varsity team of 1901, who were out of college last year, are coming out regularly. Several freshmen are showing up well, among them Kendricks, McDonald, Tarbox and Frost.

The first trip will be taken about the first of April, when several games will be played with Massachusetts college teams. Following is the schedule for 1903:

BASKET BALL.

COLBY, 14; MAINE, 11.

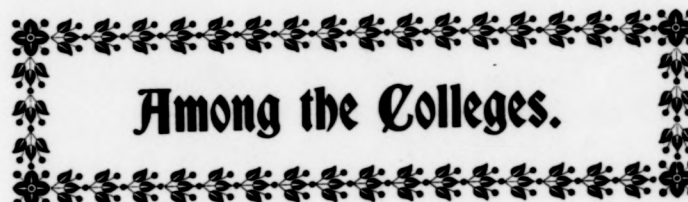

Maine met with her first defeat of the season when she ran up against Colby in the latter's gymnasium in Waterville. The game was an intensely exciting one and a very clean one. There were very few fouls called and they were evenly distributed. The gymnasium and baskets were very strange to the Maine team and here is where the game was lost. Maine excelled in team work and Colby excelled in shooting baskets. In the first half Colby had a little the better of the argument and piled up twelve points to Maine's six. Colby did some good playing and had good luck at the baskets. In the second half things were different and Maine had things pretty much her own way and if she had been able to put the ball in the basket instead of all around the rim, would have won. With thirty seconds to play, J. Teague threw a pretty goal from past the center of the hall. The whistle blew soon after and a very interesting game was over. In the last part of the game with the score 12 — 11 in favor of Colby and Maine continually shooting at the baskets, the crowd was kept on the anxious seat. Line-up:

MAINE.	COLBY.
Soderstrom,.....r. f.....	J. Teague
Huntington,l. f.....	Allen
Ellstrom,c.....	Lewis
Abron,.....l. b.....	Bartlett
Haley,r. b.....	W. Teague

Goals from field—J. Teague, 4; Allen, Lewis, Huntington, 2; Soderstrom, Abron. Goals from foul line—Ellstrom, 3; Allen, 2. Referee—Mitchell. Umpire—Dr. Frew. Timer—Glover. Time—20 and 15 minute halves.

The basket ball team met with its second defeat of the season on Friday night, at Dover, by a score of 24 to 18.

Among the Colleges.

The new head coach for the crew at Harvard, is F. L. Higginson, Harvard 1900, and captain of the winning '99 crew.

A question that is arousing much interest among college men at the present time is the one of shortening the academic course from four to three years. Pres. Hopkins of Williams, Pres. Harris of Amherst, and Pres. Tucker of Dartmouth, have taken a rigid stand against this policy.

The Alpha Tau Omega fraternity offers a prize of fifty dollars for the best essay of not over three thousand words on the subject, "The effect of the Fraternity on American College Life." The competition is open to any student, whether a fraternity man or not, pursuing a course leading to one of the recognized degrees in an American college or university. For particulars address H. W. Pitkin, 521 West 23rd. Street, New York City.

The business management of Northwestern University, has if current exchange is to be credited, evolved a novel plan of sending out a drummer through the territory about the university to solicit attendance. It is rumored that this barker is to be equipped with a stereoptican outfit and will exhibit views of the CAMPUS and buildings in order that prospective students may be won over.

The proposition of increasing the number of yards to be gained from five to ten yards in three downs is being agitated among the western colleges. The object of such a change is to increase open play and decrease mass play.

Horace Newingham has been engaged to coach Colby, in baseball this spring and there is no doubt but that Colby will have a strong team.

An all America football team as proposed by Caspar Whitney in the January Outing, is as follows:—Shevlin, Yale, and Bowditch, Harvard, ends; Kenney, Yale, and Bunker, West Point, tackles; Boyers, West Point, center; Glass, Yale, and Warner, Cornell, guards; Rockwell, Yale, quarterback; Chadwick, Yale, and Barry, Brown, halfbacks; Graydon, Harvard, fullback.

Cornell has just been visited by an epidemic of typhoid fever and several deaths have resulted from it and about two hundred students have been stricken down with it. The cause seems to be in the drinking water and this is to be remedied.

Pitcher Coakley, formerly of Holy Cross, has signed with the Philadelphia American League team for 1903.

Harvard defeated Yale at a close and spirited hockey match at St. Nicholas Rink, New York. The score was 3 goals to 0.

The victory of Amherst basket-ball team over Brown last week was the fifth consecutive victory for the team.

Capt. Towne of Bates has signed to play with New Bedford of the New England League, but will not report until after June 1st, as he graduates this year.

Sockalexis, the Indian ball player, formerly of Holy Cross, has been released by Lowell, after a year's trial.

Bowdoin is being visited at present by an epidemic of mumps.

C. B. Rafferty of Pittsburg, Penn., has been elected captain of the Yale football team for the season of 1903. This means that E. T. Glass, the much talked of guard, will not play on the team next year.

The Colby catalogue is out, and shows 21 members on the faculty and 195 students.

Walter Camp, is to receive $3000 for his services as athletic advisor.

Frantz, the former star first baseman of Harvard, has been barred from playing this season. He played on a professional team a few years ago.

Arthur Duffy, did not appear at the B. A. A. meet on account of illness.

Coach Murphy, has visited Exeter and tried to persuade Capt. Brill and Hooper, to choose Yale. It was Murphy who induced Hogan to go to Yale after he had taken his Harvard examination.

Columbia University is about to introduce a course of automobile engineering.

The prospects for baseball at Harvard are very bright. Head coach, ex-capt. Wendell, has a very large and promising squad out every day. Among this number are nine men who have won their "H" in baseball, and Wendell is the only 'varsity man who graduated last year.

Dr. Frew, physical instructor of Colby, has resigned and is to study medicine at the University of Vermont. In the resignation of Dr. Frew, Colby loses an able instructor and a promoter of clean athletics.

The 17th annual meeting of the New England Intercollegiate A. A. was held last Saturday, at Copley Square hotel in Boston. The colleges represented were New Amherst, Bowdoin, Brown, Dartmouth. M. I. T., Tufts, Trinity, Williams and University of Maine. A change was made in the reckoning of the points. The points will be reckoned as follows:—First, 5; second, 3; third, 2; fourth, 1. The following officers were elected, President, A. T. Foster, Amherst, Vice president, F. J. Quirk, Williams; secretary, J. T. Maynard, Dartmouth; treasurer, T. E. Jewett, M. I. T.; executive committee, W. E. Wilder of Bowdoin, F. J. Quirk of Williams, and C. S. Allen of Brown.

Some Interesting Customs of Rural England

WALTER M. EBY, '01 PHILALETHEAN

AS I recall the experiences of four years in O. U., many familiar sights pass in panoramic vision before me. Most important of all are the faces of those with whom I played and learned, and under whom I studied. First, in my vision, I see the discouraged members of the brass band as they puff and blow, trying to prepare "Lucretia Borgia," or some other fantastic selection, for the annual concert. Next I see the Koncert Kalliope Klub, with men, some very tall and others very short, but all singing with bewitching vivacity a song that I cannot quite make out, but I think it is "Rolling Down the Bowling Green." The old baseball players, in their suits of blue, and the sinewy, scraggy, football team then go by, holding high the irrepressible Yellow. Now the energetic Philaetheans pass along, two by two, as though society were just dismissed, shouting with deafening enthusiasm, "Down with the Olympians and William Jewell," but with special emphasis on the last two words. And following, still in line, I smile to see twenty-five or more standard bearers holding aloft the banner of Truth, on which glistens the unfathomable motto, "1901, Kai Ni Ka." My joy is too great, and with uncontrollable excitement I call out each one by name, from romantic Adams to mischievous Welsh, and receive a cheery response from all. Now, all is hushed and quiet, as though something unusually momentous is to happen—and behold! there comes to my enraptured gaze the worthy faculty of O. U. and I turn my eyes from face to face as I readily recognize them, one by one. First, I notice, because of his size, Big Professor Parker, with cheeks distended and face all flushed, blowing terrific blasts on the big bass horn. Then comes one with boots so shiny that I suddenly raise my eyes to the dapper mustache above, and recognize behind its dark shroud the disappointed face of my old Greek instructor—Professor Harmon. He seems still to remember my unsatisfactory lessons in syntax and Thucydides. Next in order, I see Professor Fitch, who, with a warm smile, holds out his hand and says, "What an idea-r," the accent on the "r." And finally, as though effectively to culminate my happy dream, I behold, walking together, and with measured tread, noble Professor Ward and ingenious Dr. Riggs. As they pass, I overheard the remark, "We'll have no hocus pocus about it," and then Dr. Riggs blinks at me from behind his twinkling eyes, as if to say, "This is the prize-winner of our whole big show." The vision gradually fades from my view, and I hear myself shouting from the depths of my sympathetic mood, "A hearty greeting to you all, and my very best wishes for the institution which nurtured and developed us all—virtuous O. U."

My vision over, I take my pen, scratch my thoughts to arouse them and begin to write an article for the society number of The Campus.

In telling of my trip abroad last summer, I realize that very inadequate and unsatisfactory, must be such a short account as the space here allotted to me, permits. That my story, then, may not be too general, I decide not to follow our rambling itinerary, not to speak of the historical spots we visited, nor of the sights we saw, but to confine what I say merely to observations made while we were wheeling through the country whose customs are most like our own—that of England.

There were three of us: Eames, my room mate and second year law student, Emerson, a class-mate, and I, myself, representing the states of Massachusetts, Vermont and Kansas.

Our bicycle luggage was light; a bicycle rain coat, a change of clothing and toilet articles, our diary books, and a repair outfit, that was all. As we mounted our wheels the first thing to draw our attention, was the roads.

All throughout England the roads are everywhere well macadamized and hard as rock, so the second day out of Liverpool we reach the English Lake region, having made a day's run of seventy-two miles, as easily as one makes a run of twenty miles in Kansas. The roads are all fenced with hawthorn hedges, or brick or stone, and consist of many curves and hills, and on every hand were fertile meadows, smelling sweet with new mown hay. In the distance, the mountains of northern England loomed up before us, and grew nearer and nearer every succeeding hour, until we found ourselves in the midst of them. To our right the soft hills and dreamy mountains rose in gradual receding terraces, layer upon layer, like an immense pyramid of nature, covered with green, velvety grass, and without a rock to mar the unity of the scene, save the protruding peaks of the highest mountains, in the extreme depth of the picture.

At short intervals, all along the narrow roads, were small stone houses, of sombre hue, which, with their dark, thatched roofs, seemed appropriately designed to cuddle into the encircling arms of luxuriant mother verdure. Bare, wooden buildings, covered with glaring shingles, as we have everywhere in America, would appear flat and incongruous, indeed, amidst such a setting.

As one rides leisurely along, every half hour or so he comes upon Bicyclist's Rests and Tea-rooms. Little need one perish from excessive exertion or from thirst. Then, too, there are the English inns, dainty little piles, which always come in sight just when most needed. They carry a line of drinks with sufficient variety to satisfy the most fastidious of thirsty travelers.

The names of these little inns seem to be taken from whatever has given the locality notoriety—whether an unusual animal or circumstance. For instance, the names of some we passed were, Black Horse, White Horse, Black Bull, White Bull, Cross and Keys, Hare and Hounds, Bull and Stirrup, Eagle and Child, Adam's Ale, and the like. And almost invariably there is a large picture hung upon a pole at the corner of the inn, or else placed just above the door, to illustrate pictorially the name of the inn.

It was often after nine o'clock before we ended our day's ride, for in early summer twilight hangs on until 10 o'clock. Usually we would be cared for at the first place we stopped, but several times we inquired at three or four inns before finding beds enough for the three of us. Having made arrangements for lodging, we would continue:

"How much for breakfast?"

"Plain breakfast, a shilling; ham and eggs breakfast, one and six."

"What do you include in a plain breakfast?"

We learned always to ask what was included in a meal, with price quoted, for otherwise, when we had eaten and called for the bill, extras were added. If we objected, they would say we had more than a regular meal and must pay for it. At times we were charged extra for butter, for tea and for additional servings of bread. So if there is any need to be economical, it is best to learn beforehand just what is included in a meal with quoted price.

Usually, however, a plain breakfast consists of bread and butter, orange marmalade and tea. In the country this seems the common morning meal, but as we found it pretty light on which to begin a day's wheeling, we ordered ham and eggs.

The menu is the same all over England. For dinner count on roast beef, with bread and butter, and orange marmalade, and occasionally, boiled potatoes. Supper is cold, much like our Sunday evening lunches, and always includes orange marmalade. Never is a meal set in England without it. The butter is never salted, and often is served spread on thin slices of bread. When bed-time came we were tired enough to appreciate good beds, but everywhere we found them as hard as a floor. The headboard, however, was often thickly padded, so sometimes we were tempted to upset the bed and sleep on the headboard. It seemed strange never to find a lamp in England. Candles are used instead.

The inn-keepers usually were women, and they not only charged extra for food, as I have already stated, but they charged us also for the washing of the bed-clothes, for care of the bicycles over night, and for hundreds of such little things, until we never knew what our bill would be until we paid it. This is why it is always best to inquire with some minuteness into the rates in advance.

The principle drinks are ale and beer, and every evening the bar-rooms are filled with jolly, singing drinkers, who make the place a sort of bureau of information. On the continent, as well as in England, it is hard to get water to drink, for in England the most common drink is ale, in France, it is wine, and in Germany and Holland, beer. Europeans believe water causes indigestion. In upholding this theory, an Englishman, in talking with us one afternoon at Oxford, said: "The other morning I saw two American ladies eat a hearty breakfast of ham and eggs and immediately afterwards each of them poured down on top of it a glassful of cold water. How do you think that mixed?"

The women in England are hard workers, and do many things American women would not think of doing. An English lady, recently returned from America, told me she thought it the duty of a wife to black the boots of her husband, that she had always done so, and furthermore, that she considered it beneath the dignity of a gentleman to do such a thing for himself. "No man in England," she continued, "would lower himself so much as to push a baby-carriage, as in America, for if he did, at once he would become the laughing stock of the town." At the inns, the women always shined our boots, tended bars and prepared the meals, as well.

As regards prices and nominal wages in England, they are lower all round than in the United States, but the labor is less efficient. The cost of a shave, for instance, is two pence (four cents), and a hair cut sixpence (twelve cents). But everything connected with the English barber shop is secondary. The chair is merely a large arm chair, with a large block for a foot rest. When they shave one they raise up a straight head block, bend back the head to fit it, and begin their butchery. They pull out the whiskers by the roots, they scar the neck with the clippers, and chop off the hair quickly and carelessly, the only end being to get your money and another into the chair as quickly as possible.

The shoes of the country people are worth noticing. They have thick leather soles, either filled with hob-nails the size of a small horse-shoe nail, to keep them from wearing out, or else fitted with a sole and heel of iron, much like the shoes we put on horses, only lighter. So when the children run down the hard macadamized roads the noise is like a continuous volley from a company of militia.

When passing, in the street, they turn to the left, and not to the right as in all other countries.

While in Liverpool we observed a way of advertising, new to most of us. Six men were slowly marching along in orderly file, each encased between two large boards fastened together at the top with hinges of leather, and reaching from the shoulders to the ankles. On these boards the glaring advertisements were posted in large red letters. The way the men were rigged up reminded me of the little paper dolls my sister used to have, the suits of which could be changed at will by slipping them on and off the head.

In London two-story cabs are used instead of street cars, and are always on the jog, seldom stopping, and making the passengers get on and off while still moving. In this country we are always cautioned not to get on or off the car while it is in motion, but in London no less an organization than the London Humane Society posts about such notices, as this:

"Passengers are earnestly requested not to stop the cab while getting in or out, for the strain of starting is severe on the horses."

Many other interesting customs took our attention, but my paper is already long, and I must bring it to a close. Had I the time, and space, I would enjoy telling you more of English ways, as well as interesting customs on the continent. At present I only wish to say that in three months we rode twenty-three hundred miles on our bicycles, and came back delighted with Europe, but with a greater reverence for our own country than had we not mingled with the people of Europe.

* Written for the Ottawa Campus of Ottawa University at which Mr. Eby was a student for two years.

ART GUILD.

There is, perhaps, no phase of our college course which is any more neglected as a whole than the knowledge of ancient art, sculpture and painting. The average engineer graduating from college is almost entirely ignorant of the works of the great painters in the old countries. It is generally considered that a knowledge of these subjects are not necessary for the education of an engineer, which may be true in one sense but not wholly so. A general knowledge of the history and development of the world as taught through these sources is essential to every well rounded education and is a source of great pleasure to those who have studied them.

The Art Guild was started a little over a year ago and has grown very rapidly. The meetings were first held in the Mt. Vernon House, but during the summer of 1901 the present building was remodeled and has been used for that purpose since September of that year. The growth has been very remarkable and now we have a collection of pictures and paintings which is excelled by few in the New England colleges.

During the past two weeks the collections have been nearly doubled by the purchase of a large number of paintings by Prof. Huddilston during his trip abroad. The paintings were gathered from Berlin, Leipsig, Dresden, Munich, Florence, Rome and Venice, and contains reproductions of works of all the best artists of the different ages. There are about thirty large colored paintings the size of the original and framed in an appropriate manner. This group was purchased mostly in Germany.

In addition to this there are a hundred smaller colored reproductions arranged in order to represent the different schools of art and painting. The collection includes about twenty five hundred photographs, engravings and half tones of art and sculpture so arranged as to represent the historical development of art and to teach the student the rise in art and sculpture.

With the additions, there are now sixty or seventy framed pictures from the best artist. Many of these pictures are furnished with frames of special design making them very attractive and adding much to the beauty of the Guild.

The collection has grown so rapidly, that instead of vacant places upon the wall, the available space is all taken and the necessity of more room for the Guild is not far distant. It is impossible to present to the students the magnitude and value of this department of our college work but it may not be out of place to say that the building is for the use of all the students and is as free and open to all as the library or reading room. Up to the present time but a very few of the students have taken advantage of the opportunities offered them by this department and it is hoped that in the future the Guild will be a place of attraction to many. The building is open every Wednesday and Saturday from 2.30 to 4.30.

EDITORIALS.

WHEN the fire whistles blew on Monday night giving the alarm of the burning of the College street school the students on the campus thought by the position of the flames that it was one of the professor's houses, and the natural thing for an unorganized body happened. They all ran off to the fire, leaving the fire equipment to about a half dozen more thoughtful men, who, after much trouble and loss of time, got out the hose cart and succeeded in drawing it as far as the Mt. Vernon House hill where it stuck in the mud. It is doubtful if it would have been of any use if they had been able to reach the fire owing to its great distance from water, but that is not the point. It is the principle displayed. Consider the unnecessary destruction which the lack of organization would have wrought had it been one of the faculty's houses. We should take a lesson from this incident and see that an organized fire company is formed. If a fire should break out on the campus we would be at its mercy under the present conditions owing to our distance from any town provided with a well-drilled fire company. Therefore we should consider ourselves a small town and get together for we have material enough as far as men go to organize a company as good as any in the State.

It is customary in small fire companies to have regular meetings and the members are paid a small sum to attend and take part in the hose practice. If the proper fire company cannot be organized otherwise, the college should resort to this plan and pay a small sum to encourage the work.

WE have many reasons to be proud of the showing made along athletic lines by our various teams and especially in regard to the improved financial condition up to the present time, but the reluctance on the part of some of the students toward paying their athletic subscription for the spring term is a cause for a good deal of comment.

The income from athletics has been increasing in the past few years. The growing popularity of the university has drawn larger crowds and better guarantees, but this has been accompanied by an increase in the number of games played and a wider range in which to play and thus bring the college to the front. Two years ago it was impossible to get a game of baseball or football with Harvard. To-day we not only play Harvard at Cambridge, but Harvard's second team comes to Bangor to play our team. A Harvard undergraduate was on the campus this week and was running over with praise for our football team of last fall.

Now what does this all mean? Simply that the small amount which each one has paid during the last two or three years has brought good returns and has done more towards making the University of Maine known than is possible in any other way. Shall we by withholding our small subscription lend our influence to check this growing popularity or shall we have an interest in the affair and enjoy the results of successful athletics?

When we take into consideration the amount paid for the games and deduct this from the athletic subscription, it is found that we each pay a very insignificant amount. When we take into consideration also the satisfaction of being one of the supports of the different teams and the feeling derived from doing our duty, we have much to influence us to do our little part.

Freshmen as well upper classmen are greatly benefited by and enjoy athletics, but the present state of affairs shows an increasing tendency on the part of the freshmen to shirk their share of the expenses. The subscription papers recently going the rounds were singularly free from the signatures of lower classmen. Perhaps it is because the freshmen are, as a whole, less capable of paying. If so, all right; we commend their frugality, but it would seem as if they were deluded by that old impossibility—getting something for nothing.

How many freshmen while at home boast of the victories of Maine's athletic teams, but how few are willing to support these teams? Maine spirit is not confined to standing on the side lines, cheering a victorious team, but in denying a few of the unnecessary pleasures in which we are so apt to indulge, for the sake of making that team victorious. The band and the cheering are all right and are necessary in their place but there would be no place for them if the subscriptions essential to a winning team were not forthcoming.

Freshmen, your class is the largest. You should be leading and not following in the matter of providing for Maine's athletics.

The first general announcement of the university of Maine Summer school will be out very soon.

Athletics

INDOOR MEET.

The second indoor meet will be held March 28th, in the gymnasium. There is a large squad out from all of our classes and it is planned to make it as far as possible a class contest. The program will be as far as possible similar to that of last year. The event in which the classes will compete will be the 25-yd. dash, high hurdles, low hurdles, high jump, pole vault, short put and relay races. The high kick will also be introduced as a part of the program. In addition there will be a bar drill by the freshmen, high and broad diving, tumbling, and pyramids. There will also be a basketball game with some strong team. It is hoped to be able to arrange a game with the Dover and Foxcroft team or a third game with Colby.

The indoor meet last year was considered a great success and it only needs the support of the students to make this one equally as good and profitable.

At the meeting of the officers of the Maine Intercollegiate Athletic Association held at Waterville, Saturday, March 7th, it was decided to hold the annual spring meet at Brunswick. According to consecutive order customarily followed out by the association, the meet would naturally have been held at Waterville this year. Colby, however, owing to losses suffered by a recent fire and various athletic apparatus destroyed and damaged, did not feel equal at this time to the undertaking of such a proposition as the responsibility of the Maine Intercollegiate meet. Bowdoin voluntarily offered the association the use of its many adequate resources and the conclusion was reached that they should be accepted. The date of this meet has not yet been settled, but in all probability it will come either the Friday or Saturday of the week just preceding the holding of the New England Intercollegiate meet at Worcester. The officers for the Maine meet chosen last Saturday were as follows:

One of the most interesting games of basketball ever played at the university was played Saturday evening, Feb. 28, between the freshmen from Colby and those at the university. Both teams were very evenly matched and it was good, clean basketball from start to finish. The Maine boys had a little the advantage by being accustomed to the floor and baskets. Both teams had varsity players in the game and little choice could be made as to which side played the better.

During the first half Colby had the better of the game but in the second half the Maine team rallied and caught up, the score being 13 to 13 at the end of the second half.

Owing to a misunderstanding the manager neglected to see that official scorers were appointed and a dispute arose over the score. The teams returned to the field and played off the tie, Maine succeeding in scoring the first goal, making the score 15 to 13. The Maine team was very sorry that any question arose over the score and offered to forfeit the game but the Colby team would not accept, preferring to let the score stand as it was.

For Maine, Aborn played a fast game and did some fast work breaking up plays. For Colby, Teague distinguished himself, playing a star game and put up a fine exhibition of basketball. Owing to the stormy weather there were but a few out, but a good deal of excitement prevailed throughout the game.

The following is the line-up:

MAINE '06.	COLBY '06.
Paige, lf	rf, Teague
Owen, rf	lf, Willey
Wilson, c	c, Coombs
Aborn, lb	rb, Abbott
Worcester, } rb	lf, Briggs
Carver, }

Goals from field—Briggs 3, Aborn 4, Willey 2, Abbott, Carver, Paige, Wilson. Goals from foul—Abbott and Coombs.

Music was furnished by six pieces of Pullen's orchestra which was at its best.

COLLEGE MEN IN DEMAND.

College men who are in a position to know say the demand from employers for young graduates to begin work this summer with a view to learning the business and working their way upward is unusually large. In fact at present it seems to exceed the supply. Hapgoods, of 256-257 Broadway, New York, a concern which makes a business of finding right men for right places and right places for right men, is having difficulty in securing enough 1903 graduates to supply the demand. One large manufacturing concern in the West wishes Hapgoods to furnish twenty-five bright young college men to begin work in its offices about July 1, and offers splendid inducements to men who are willing to start at the bottom of the ladder. Seniors thinking of entering commercial or technical work should write for booklet.
