THIS issue of the CAMPUS has been designed with a view of giving to the alumni a record of the brilliant work accomplished by the football team, this fall, and the prospects and outlook for another year in this important branch of our athletics.

ALTHOUGH we failed to win the annual football game from Tufts at Medford, November 20, the game put up by the team was a creditable one and gave the alumni, a big crowd of whom saw the game, a chance to see of just what stuff the team was made. The members of the 'varsity came home enthusiastic over the treatment that they received while in Medford and report that the game was a remarkably clean one.

THE result of the season's work by the football team is most gratifying to the alumni, to the undergraduates and to all who have the interests of our University at heart. Credit is due the members of the team for the many sacrifices that they have willingly made that a good football team could be turned out — a team capable of winning a majority of victories, and a team that could rightly be recognized by any institution in the country as a worthy antagonist.

The accomplishments of the team this year have taught us many things; that we should not only strive to win from teams representing Maine colleges, but that the gates have been opened and the way made to seek honors in fields larger than the confines of our own State.

In years previous, when a team representing this institution played Harvard or any of the big colleges, the one object in the mind of everyone was to strive to hold the opposing team down to as low a score as possible, not entertaining for a moment the idea of trying to win; that was considered out of the question, something beyond reach. To-day, through the evolution of time, things are somewhat changed and the team realizes that it is not so much inferior to the "big" teams and that scores and victories are no longer impossibilities.

What does this mean to us? Simply that in football as in other departments of the curriculum we are keeping pace with the rapid strides of a University that is large and is growing larger — of an Institution that a comparatively few years ago was unknown and which now is winning not only football victories but the recognition of the universities of the country.

TWO years ago last fall the announcement that John Wells Farley, Harvard, '98, had been engaged as a coach for the football team was received by the students in a matter-of-fact way — without any great show or manifestation of delight. There was of course much satisfaction expressed by those who knew Farley's record and had followed football closely; but as for the majority of students, they did not appreciate the good fortune that had befallen the University of Maine.

But what a contrast, when last fall the same announcement was made; what a silent ovation Mr. Farley got in the hearts of each one of us, for then we realized for how much that stood.

It is needless for us to say that the "work of Coach Farley this year was commendable" or that "the work of the team reflects great credit upon Mr. Farley," etc.; such expressions are too commonplace and do not half express our deep and sincere appreciation of his efforts. The season's record stands for itself, we all know, only too well, how much we owe Coach Farley; it is a debt that we never can pay.

Now, to rob the past season's work of much of its pleasure, comes the thought that we are to lose the one who has been such a factor in our athletics, for Farley has decided to give up coaching and settle down to the legal profession. While at Maine, it was not his success as a coach alone that won him the many friends that he has in this institution and who feel that in his departure they have sustained a personal loss. No, it was his genial personality, his frank and thorough good fellowship that caused us to cultivate his acquaintance and later learn to love and esteem him.

In later years as we read of his achievements in his chosen field, as we are certain to do, we will be able to exclaim, "Why, that was our old football standby at Maine, 'Mike' Farley — a coach, a gentleman and a friend."

THE following editorial which appeared in a late number of the Bangor Daily News has been severely criticised by a Waterville correspondent, evidently with a leaning toward Colby; and who, through his prejudice, fails to comprehend the subtle sense of humor contained in the article:

The most gratifying fact regarding the remarkable progress made by the University of Maine of late is that the students have won their way to the very front among Maine colleges in athletics. It may be that men who can wrestle and run and fight if need be, are not exactly the style of youths which fond mothers and sweet Sunday school teachers like to see turned out. Meantime, we note with pleasure that the average youth who is good at athletic sports is generally at the front in his studies—a vigorous mind going with a vigorous body—so in the end we have nothing to take back when we do a little pardonable bragging about the physical prowess of the young men at the University of Maine. It is not our purpose to “rub it into” the other colleges of Maine, but most of us can remember back six to ten years and can recall the time when the burly lads from Bowdoin and Bates and Colby objected to playing with the students from Orono, and when they were pressed for a reason they said that Orono was too far away, adding in an undertone that the down east school had no players worthy for men to contend with, and saying as an aside that Orono was nothing but a place for educating farmers in the art of growing turnips and garden truck.

It is claimed now that the talk was nothing but boyish bravado, such as anyone would make about a rival team, but when Bowdoin sent back word to Orono that it was too far to go just for the sake of beating an aggregation which could not put up any fight, the chaps meant what they said. They believed that because the Orono school was new and in a measure very raw, it could never become dignified enough to merit the attention of the older colleges. But Orono has outlived all the scorn and neglect which have been heaped upon the school in the past. The so-called “farmers” and “hayseeders” are not so “far away” as they were ten years ago. In fact the University of Maine football team has demonstrated that it is pretty “nigh,” and that it would have been better for the rival colleges to have had a few “farmers” as undergraduates. But the young men at the Orono school can afford to be generous. They have shown themselves so far ahead of their opponents that the University of Maine now stands in a class by itself, the only college in Maine which has athletes capable of coping with Harvard and Yale and Princeton. As for the other Maine colleges, let them fix up some dates with high schools and academies, and when they have been in practice for a few years, it may be that the University of Maine will give them a show, if there are any open dates from other and more important engagements.

HON. L. C. SOUTHARD HONORS THE TEAM

In Boston, Friday evening, November 20, at Hotel Lennox, there was assembled as loyal a band of Maine men as ever got together. The occasion was a banquet given by Hon. L. C. Southard, '85, in honor of the football team and substitutes and at which the following were present: Hon. L. C. Southard, '85, Mr. H. S. French, President Boston Alumni Association; Lazelle, President General Alumni Association; Prof. R. K. Jones, President Fellows, Coach Farley, Carlos Dorticos, '03, Ira M. Bearce, '04, Captain Bailey of the football team, and the following members of the 'varsity and substitutes: Bean, Wood, Sawyer, Learned, Ricker, Reed, Taylor, Thatcher, Parker, Bearce, Collins, Shaw, Downing, W. Bearce, Matheas, Kingsland, Banks.

After doing credit to a fine menu, chairs were tipped back and cigars lighted and, with Mr. Southard presiding, a number of toasts were repsonded to.

By way of introduction, before announcing the speakers, Mr. Southard spoke of the good feeling that exists between the old and the young — Harvard and Maine, as shown by the fact that at the game that afternoon at Medford there were many Harvard men present cheering lustily for Maine. After a few more words the toastmaster introduced Mr. Chase, manager of the team.

Mr. Chase said that he had some severe charges to prefer against Coach Farley, the first was the appropriating by the said gentleman of a "large amount of Maine spirit." The speaker then in a few well-chosen words presented a loving cup to Coach Farley in behalf of the students of the University of Maine. The cup bore the following inscription:

Presented to
J. Wells Farley
as a token of the esteem in which he is held by his friends, the members of the University of Maine Athletic Association, 1901 — 1903.

For once in his life Farley was completely surprised; he could not have been taken off his guard on a football field, but here it came so entirely unexpected that the big man was unable for a few moments to utter a word. It was in this brief period of suspense that his friends fully realized how big a place John Wells Farley has in his heart for the students of the University of Maine. As Farley himself said, it was impossible for him to half express his feelings of appreciation.

He then spoke of the changes that have taken place at Maine since his first visit there, both in the Maine spirit and in his own feelings. That he had come to have great feelings of respect both for Maine men, now willing to make sacrifices for their college which formerly they were unwilling to undergo, and for the students and for the team. Said Coach Farley, "If the present state of enthusiasm continues, the future greatness of the University of Maine is assured."

President Fellows, the next speaker, spoke of the prominence that has come to the University. That it is now beginning to be recognized by the other colleges of the country as a factor to be reckoned with.

Other speakers were Lazelle, '87, who spoke of the changes that have taken place in the University during the past few years; Carlos Dorticos, '03, who spoke from the standpoint of the recent graduate and who said that the alumni were well pleased with the work of the team this year; Captain Bailey, as representative of the football team, and Prof. Jones, as representative of the faculty of the University and whose speech elicited much applause.

There was much enthusiasm shown throughout the evening and plenty of cheers and songs.

TRUSTEES MEET

The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of the University of Maine was held Tuesday, November 24, at which every member was present.

In addition to the regular routine business, much of importance was done, but which will not at present be made public. One of the most important things done at the meeting was the naming of the experiment station, together with the new wing which is now completed, "Holmes' Hall of Agriculture," in honor of the memory of Dr. Ezekiel Holmes, the first secretary of the Maine State Agricultural Society, founded in 1855. It was indirectly through Dr. Holmes that the University of Maine was founded and his last labor "was to appear in 1865 before the Legislative Committee and advocate the establishment of the agricultural college."

The University of Maine chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity was given permission to build a chapter house on the campus, as soon as it sees fit.

STUDENT SELF SUPPORT

With a view of obtaining information for the circular on Student Self Support, issued periodically by the University of Maine, President Fellows gave a talk in chapel recently urging upon the students the necessity of aiding the college in obtaining the information desired and the influence such information has in inclining students towards the University. The following circular was given out to be filled out and returned to the secretary :

The University desires to learn from information supplied by the students themselves to what extent they are supporting themselves by their own earnings while in college. The information requested will be considered absolutely confidential, and will be used, if published, without names of students and in groups of statistics. This information can be of great assistance to the University in the revision of its circular upon Student Self Support, and in directing the many applicants for work to occupations in term time and in vacation periods. Therefore the earnest co-operation of the entire student body is asked; all students who have earned money for the defraying of college expenses are asked to answer the questions given below :

1. (a) What kinds of employment were you able to secure while a student at this University? Indicate vacation employment and term employment. (b) Where was this employment?
2. (a) By what means were you able to secure employment? (b) What employments seem always open, what open frequently and what employments are temporary?
3. (a) How much money did you earn, exactly or approximately? Indicate not as a sum total, if it is possible to indicate by employments. (b) How much of this did you have to earn?
4. (a) How many hours a day did you devote to this employment during term time? (b) How many days or weeks to vacation employment?
5. (a) Did you find that the necessity of paying a portion or all of your own expenses interfered with the efficiency of your college work? (b) What proportion of your own expenses do you believe you have earned? Indicate if possible by college years.

LOCALS

R. E. Mullaney, '03, is making a short visit at his home in Bangor.

There are many cases of sickness among the students at present, although fortunately none of them are proving serious.

L. C. Bradford, '04, and P. E. French, '05, were officials at the Bangor-Brewer High school football game, Thanksgiving day.

The Oak Hall students gave a very enjoyable dancing party in the dining room adjoining the Hall, Saturday evening, Nov. 21.

The freshman team should be congratulated for the fast game of football it put up against Brewer High school, November 21.

The students were given a cut in chapel exercises last Thursday. This is the first cut that has been given for nearly ten years.

The proofs of the names of the students for the new catalogue were posted, last week, for corrections to be made if necessary.

The picture of the football team of this year is an extra good one. They can be obtained at Chalmers for seventy-five cents each.

E. O. Sweetser and C. W. Bowles gave very interesting talks on the "History of Bridges" in a recent meeting of the Junior Civil Society.

Juniors taking civil engineering have completed the survey of the dummy railroad between Orono and Stillwater, and are now draughting the same.

President Fellows attended a meeting of the executive committee of the Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools of the State, held in Waterville, last week.

The new long catalogue of the University of Maine for 1903-1904 has been received from the printers and will be ready for distribution, this week.

William Murray, of Buffalo, New York, a graduate of the class of '99, and later an instructor in the electrical department, was on the campus recently.

At a meeting of the freshman class, Nov. 23, a constitution was drawn up and accepted. The election of class officers was postponed until after the Thanksgiving recess.

Dr. M. C. Fernald gave a lecture recently to the class in meteorology in which he gave an account of observations taken at the University by him during the last twenty-four years.

On the evening of Nov. 27, the Conversation Club met at the home of Prof. Harrington. The meeting was led by Prof. Walker, and the subject was "The Labor Problem."

W. W. Stetson, State Supt. of Schools, addressed a meeting of the trustees, November 24, and his short talk in chapel on this same date was much appreciated by the students.

At a recent meeting of the Association of Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations held in Washington, D. C., President Fellows was elected secretary of the college section.

The speakers at the regular meeting of the Junior Electrical and Mechanical Society, Nov. 23, were B. M. Cowan and B. H. Chatto. Their subjects were Arc Light Manipulation and Street Lighting.

The "waiting station" that mysteriously appeared on the north end of the campus directly after our victory over Bates and which has been waiting ever since, was burned Tuesday evening, before the recess.

On the evening of Nov. 13, the sophomores received their well-earned and long sought for peanuts amid much cheering on their part, but we are sorry to say very little scrapping on the part of the freshmen.

On Dec. 1st and 2nd, all students taking an agricultural course will go to the State Dairy Meeting at Dover. On Tuesday evening, a banquet will be held at which Professors Hurd and Gowell will speak.

The returns are being received by the secretary to inquiries sent out for the purpose of making up the alumni list. An Alumni Record is published every second year with the regular issue of the faculty reports.

On Nov. 28, Prof. Hurd addressed the Village Improvement Society of Orono in the Town hall on the subject of "School Gardening," a matter of much importance, but which as yet has not been considered to any extent in this State.

One of the most interesting exhibitions of interclass football ever seen on the campus for some time took place Tuesday afternoon, November 24, in which the freshmen were defeated by the sophomores by a score of 15 to 0.

The outlook at present is that a new fraternity house will be erected this spring that will be a big addition to the houses that now adorn our campus. The Sigma Alpha Epsilon are planning to build, although as yet a site has not been chosen.

In spite of the fact that we dropped the game to Holy Cross, it was in the main regarded as a victory and a large delegation occupied the middle section of the orchestra at the Opera House that night and gave the citizens a taste of student enthusiasm.

G. T. Stewart, '04, K. A. Sinclair, '04 and A. R. Small, '04, spent the Thanksgiving vacation working on their thesis which is a thorough survey for the location of a railroad connecting Austin Island, Pushaw village and West Old Town; a distance of about seven miles.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Athletic Association, J. W. Crowe, '05, was elected manager of the track team. The principal subject before the track committee at present is in regard to a coach for the coming season, as yet no one has been secured.

One of the principal events of the next fortnight is the Sophomore Prize Declamations which take place on the evening of Dec. 4, in the chapel. After the declamations a dance will be held in the gymnasium, the music for the same will be furnished by Pullen's Orchestra.

Headed by the band, nearly three hundred students armed with torches, red fire, and fire works paraded through Orono to the station where they gave the football team, about to leave for Massachusetts to play Tufts, the best send off that has been accorded a similar team for a good while.

A call had been issued for all candidates for the basketball team to report for practice at the gymnasium, Tuesday evening, December 1. The manager requests all who are interested in this branch of athletics to get out whether experienced or not and assures that there will be something to do for all who show up.

Friday evening, November 20, was "Maine night" at the Bangor Opera house and although unfavorable reports came down from Massachusetts, over one hundred students occupied the middle section of the orchestra and sang, cheered and applauded as though Maine had not been defeated by Tufts that afternoon at Medford.

At a meeting of the sophomore class, held Tuesday, November 24, it was voted to hold a dance at the close of the exercises of the Sophomore Prize Declamation contest, with the music to be furnished by Pullen's orchestra. A committee to make the necessary arrangements was drawn up as follows: R. E. Lord, W. H. Burke and C. P. Goodwin.

At the regular meeting of the Deutscher Verein, Nov. 18, Prof. O. F. Lewis gave an interesting talk upon the subject, "Crossing the Atlantic." The talk was given in Coburn Hall and was illustrated by means of the new stereopticon recently received at the University. At the conclusion, the members adjourned to the Mount Vernon House where a business meeting was held and refreshments served.

In the new edition of "Who's Who in America," mention is made of the following members of the faculty of the University of Maine: Pres. G. E. Fellows, Prof. M. C. Fernald, Prof. W. M. Munson, Prof. J. S. Stevens, Prof. C. D. Woods, Prof. K. P. Harrington, Prof. J. H. Huddilston, Prof. G. A. Drew; from the School of Law, Dean W. E. Walz, Judge L. A. Emery, Mr. A. P. Wiswell and Mr. Chas. Hamlin.

The students greatly appreciated the decision of the faculty in granting the petition to extend the Thanksgiving recess to Tuesday, December 1, at 7.45 A. M. This allowed the students from Washington and Aroostook counties, who returned home to spend Thanksgiving, a chance to return Monday instead of Saturday, as on these railroads there are no Sunday trains and the vacations would necessarily have to be cut short.

A letter was recently received by the secretary, from the National Society of Colonial Dames in Maine, calling the attention of the women students to the annual prize offered by them. The prize is known as the Mary Floyd Neely Memorial Prize, and is given to the woman student in history who shall compose the best essay. The prize was won last year by Miss Lillian Norton of Bates college, her subject being "The Life of the Maine Indian."

Dr. John B. Peters, who is giving a course of Bond Lectures in the Bangor Theological Seminary, spoke to a crowded house in the University Art building, Nov. 18, on the "Relation of the Bible to Modern Thought." Dr. Peters is a graduate of the class of '83 of Yale and was the first man to propose intercollegiate football. He called a mass meeting and as a result a challenge was issued to Harvard. During the last few years Dr. Peters has conducted a number of archaeologist expeditions into the Holy Lands.

It will be remembered by the older students at the University that an attempt was made a few years ago to establish a Greek letter society known as the Theta Epsilon. At that time the attempt was not wholly successful and the matter was dropped for the time. This fall, through the efforts of the ten remaining charter members, the chapter has been revived and established upon a firm basis. Several new members have been added, regular meetings are held, and Theta Epsilon has become an established society at the University of Maine.

Among those from the University of Maine who witnessed the Harvard-Yale game at Cambridge, Nov. 21, were the following: Dr. Fellows, Mrs. Fellows, Prof. Jones, Mrs. Jones, C. G. Chase, A. G. Taylor, P. L. Bean, F. R. Reed, A. Wood, Kingsland, W. J. Ricker, J. H. Sawyer, F. E. Learned, H. P. Downing, E. F. Bearce, W. Shaw, A. W. Collins, E. A. Parker, H. T. Thatcher, C. L. Bailey, F. A. Banks, R. Matheas, M. R. Lovett, G. W. Carle, W. B. Alexander, J. L. Paige, F. D. Southard, R. P. Wilson, I. M. Bearce, W. D. Bearce and R. Bird.

The 'varsity football team with substitutes left Orono, Wednesday evening, November 18, for Massachusetts where at Medford, Friday afternoon, it played Tufts, being defeated by a score of 11 to 6. While in Massachusetts the team stopped at Woodland Park hotel, Auburndale, the same hotel at which the Yale team put up before the game with Harvard at Cambridge. The following men were taken on the trip: Beane, Wood, Sawyer, Learned, Ricker, Reed, Taylor, Bailey, Thatcher, Parker, Bearce; substitutes, Shaw, Collins, Matheas, Downing, Kingsland, Banks. As the game with Tufts completed the season, the team broke training Friday. Most of the members of the team returned Sunday afternoon, while others came back later.

ALUMNI

R. B. Manter, '96, and C. H. Farnham, '97, are engineers on the construction of a new railroad in China. Previously, Mr. Manter was supervisor of a province near Manila, and Mr. Farnham was assistant city engineer of Manila.

'88

Mr. Reed is engineer in charge of the construction of the new electric railroad in Manila.

When we consider that Manila is a city of 200,000 inhabitants, it is evident that Mr. Reed has a responsible task.

Mr. Scribner is Chief of the Bureau of Agriculture in the Philippines.

'98

Elmer D. Merrill is Chief of the Botanical Laboratory in the Bureau of the Government Laboratories at Manila.

'03

Carlos Dorticos, who has entered the employ of the General Electric Company, at Providence, has been sent to Brockton where he is now located.

ATHLETICS

FOOTBALL REVIEW

The football season just passed has indeed been a successful one for us, and now that it is ended and we have won all of the games with colleges in this State, it might be well to consider a few of the many factors which have contributed to our success.

In the first place we have had a large squad of men out regularly so that plenty of good material was always at hand. In the second place we have had a strong team. In the third place we have had a good coach. In the fourth place the student body has supported the team loyally at all times. Too much credit cannot be given those men who have been out with the squad, rain or shine, working hard all the season without the slightest chance of making even substitute on the 'varsity. The spirit they have shown is highly commendable; it is the true Maine spirit that is winning us victories every day. We cannot write the list of those who have won laurels for us without including the names of such men as Kingsbury, Downing, Banks, Burleigh, Matheas, Crowe and many others.

To the hard conscientious work of Coach Farley is due, in a big measure, the success that the team has attained this season. At the beginning of the season, the team was considered weakest in the line; but so skillfully did Farley juggle the men around, trying first one man then another, that at the end of the season we had a defence that could not be beaten, at least in this State. And it was not alone on the defence that the line was strong, but on the offence as well. In the back field there was a big hole left by Dorticos, the king of football players in Maine, and a new man had to be developed. Bearce seem to fill in this place about right, although handicapped during the middle part of the season by a bad sprain which he got over in time to help in the undoing of Bowdoin. Thatcher came along at just about the proper time, proving a happy find at left half. Captain Bailey was of course at quarter and "Jud" at right half, and under Farley's polish Maine turned out a back field of ground gainers, each man being particularly well adapted to his position.

This year for the second time in the history of Maine athletics we battled against Harvard at Cambridge and only too proud are we of the excellent showing made by the team in holding her down to six points obtained in the first two minutes of play on a run away dash around Maine's end. After that the team awoke and succeeded in gaining more ground in this half than did the Crimson.

Although for a short time the effect of this virtual victory at Cambridge had a somewhat demoralizing effect upon the team, after the Colby-Maine game the trance was forgotten and the men were apparently awake once more. Bates and Bowdoin died on the same tune, 16-0.

Then came the game with Holy Cross in which we were much more frightened than hurt and although we aroused ourselves in time, we failed to arouse the over stimulated senses of the referee who succeeded by the frequent application of penalties in reducing our scoring aspirations until in the fast gathering twilight we fell — not defeated, but disappointed.

A trip to Medford on November 20, failed to do more than give the alumni a chance to air their pent up enthusiasm, which they did loyally.

But taken all for all it was a glorious season the most successful in fact that has ever happened in the history of the University of Maine.

AN ALL-MAINE ELEVEN

Now that football in Maine is over the only thing that remains to close up the season of 1903 is the selecting of the All-Maine team — a theoretical eleven based upon the opinions of coaches, players, ex-players and unclassified "experts," and this year the diversity of opinion is as great as ever.

These team makers are apt to be partisan, according to the section of the State and the nearness of some of the Maine colleges; and with one or two exceptions the so-called experts exhibit a reckless disregard for consistency, and slate men for star positions which those men have never played. On some of these teams tackles and backs are changed promiscuously and in some instances there is much straining to get a position for a popular man who has no right to it.

In selecting an All-Maine team the CAMPUS has considered it but fair to all concerned to take the consensus of opinion and the team which is given below is agreed to by the Lewiston Journal, the Bangor Daily News and it appeared, last Sunday, in the Boston Globe:

FOOTBALL

TUFTS 11, MAINE 6

The football season of 1903 is over, and although closed by a defeat at Tufts, has been eminently successful. To be sure, there is always an undue sense of disappointment felt in losing the last game of the season, but after all the Tufts game was of no more importance than the Bates or Bowdoin game. Besides the defeat at Medford was no disgrace; Maine played the game as they always play, for all there is in it. If, as the papers would hint, the men were not in perfect condition or were put at a disadvantage by the strange grounds, or if one of the thousand other excuses possible would hold good, why then theirs is the greater praise for the showing made. But the Maine players would be last to offer any excuses,—Maine knows how to win; she also knows how to lose. Everybody who saw the game will tell you that the team lost while fighting. No team of quitters would have scored in the last part of the second half with a score of 11-0 against them and several substitutes in the line-up. It was fight from the kickoff 'till the final whistle and, as it proved, an uphill fight against odds a trifle too great. On the offence the Tufts backs were heavy and fast, very fast; the interference was excellent; their ground-gaining power was helped by quarterback runs and they were favored by what little luck there is in the game. The good showing made by our opponents on the defence may be attributed to the strength of their secondary defence. Time after time the Maine backs cleared great holes in the line only to be met by the secondary defence and stopped. Take it altogether Tufts was one of the hardest propositions met this year.

Among the large gathering at the gridiron in Medford was a large number of Maine alumni who occupied stands on the east side of the field and were loyal to the old College till the end. President Fellows, Mrs. Fellows, Mr. and Mrs. Jones and quite a delegation from Maine helped cheer the team and joined in introducing our new Indian war cry into Massachusetts. All expected a hard, interesting game and they were not disappointed for the game was hard, interesting and in many ways spectacular.

Parker started the game by kicking off to Tufts. The Maine lads held the first two plays and then came one of those peculiar incidents which so often have a decisive result in a football game. Tufts tried a quarterback kick. The ball bounded down the field close to the side lines, bouncing erratically, with Bailey and several Tufts men in pursuit. On a high bound, as the ball was going outside, Bailey just managed to touch it, while a Tufts player secured it after the ball had rolled beyond the ropes. The ball was brought out and given to Tufts who was now 20 yards nearer the Maine goal. A few yards gain; again the blue line held and the ball is punted to Bailey, who, by pretty dodges, manages to bring it back several yards.

Now Maine has her first chance to try her offence. Three center plays with a plunge by Bearce netted eleven yards and then by a close decision Tufts is given the ball on downs, but the Medford players only make first down once when they are penalized 20 yards for holding. A fake punt tried at this time resulted in a loss and the ball was punted to Bailey. Again Maine tried her ground-gaining abilities, getting about 12 yards before being forced to punt.

It was Tufts ball and the signal was given for an end run, which resulted in an 8-yard gain. Profiting by this experience the end was tried once again and a Tufts halfback went tearing down the field, just escaping Bailey and plunging across the goal line with Taylor close at his heels. Since the angle for a goal was a hard one, a successful kickout was tried and Prince kicked the goal.

Tufts kicked to Bean and during the rest of the half the ball remained near the center of the field, changing hands several times. The most brilliant play during the latter part of this half was a 25-yard run by Parker.

The second half opened with the score 6-0 in Tufts' favor, but our players were still hopeful and the faithful old "grads" still cheered and talked of Maine's famous second-half form. But our hopes were dashed by an attack which differed from that of any other team met this fall. This last half was in the main spectacular, end run following end run and quarterback tricks following each other in quick succession.

Tufts kicks off and Bearce, by brilliant running behind fine interference, brings the ball in 15 yards. Parker, on the first play, surprises his opponents by a 15-yard run; but shortly afterward, having failed to make her distance, Maine is obliged to give the ball up on downs. Then follows a series of end runs varied by a few plunges through the line and the ball soon rests within Maine's 5-yard line, but it takes three downs of the hardest kind of playing before the ball is finally pushed a bare six inches beyond the goal line and the score stands 11-0 in Tufts' favor. Prince fails to kick the goal.

Tufts kicks off, but after two downs Maine is forced to punt, and the blue line holding in their turn, the ball changes hands once more. Another punt, a fumble by Tufts and it is Maine's ball. Now the champions of Maine show their best form, although Thatcher and Parker have been forced to retire in favor of Shaw and Collins. Bearce makes the most sensational run of the game and one of the longest runs of the season. An end run of 10 yards advances the ball to Tufts' 50-yard line. From here Bearce takes it over, breaking through the left of Tufts' line, dodging or throwing off several would-be tacklers, outrunning his interference and safely depositing the ball behind his opponent's goal line. Bean, with his usual ease, kicked the goal and Maine lines up to kick off.

With the score 6-11 and darkness coming on, Maine supporters are cheered by a ray of hope; an accident, a long run in the fast-gathering dusk and the Medford players are tied or defeated. Maine's substitutes play like veterans but the chance to score never comes; rather the Tufts quarterback, favored by the difficulty in following the ball, makes three end runs netting 40 yards gain. having stopped several certain touchdowns is injured while tackling a Tufts halfback and forced to retire. Banks takes Bean's place at right end while Bean takes Bailey's place in the backfield. But time is slipping by as Tufts is thus forcing her way up the field and shortly after Bailey's retirement the whistle sounds and the game is over. Tufts has won after the hardest kind of a game and Maine's football season for 1903 is brought to a close.

SOPHOMORES 15, FRESHMEN 0

On Tuesday afternoon, November 20, the big crowd of students that braved the piercing north wind that swept down the field were treated to one of the best exhibitions of interclass football that has been seen on Alumni field for many a day. The sophomores swept the freshmen down the field in front of them and just before the shades of night had settled down over the field had piled up fifteen points to their credit.

Both teams were composed of members of the squad, men who have been out regularly this season and the contest was fully as sharp as had been anticipated. On the sophomore team was big Tom Reed, he of the 'varsity, who captained his team in veteran style and the success is to a big measure due to him and his great ground gaining abilities. Substitutes Banks, Downing and Bearce helped even out a team that rather surprised the followers of the game, since that the betting was chiefly on the freshmen and some are said to have even offered odds on them. However, we can safely say that if the freshmen had all played the game the way their captain, Matheas, played it there would have been a different crew at the bell rope in Wingate Hall after the game,—perhaps.

Although the field was covered with two or three inches of slush and mud, the game at many times being a wallowing match, both sides showed plenty of fight that made the contest anything but uninteresting.

The sophomores won the toss and chose to receive the kickoff. Lunt kicked to Bearce on the 5-yard line, who brought it in 25 yards. Chiefly by line-bucking the sophomores rushed the ball steadily down the field to the freshmen's 2-yard line where the latter team held twice and it looked as though the sophs would be held for downs, but on the next play Reed drove through the freshman left tackle for a touchdown. Campbell failed at a goal.

The teams changed goals and the freshmen chose to receive the kick-off. Reed kicked a slow one along the ground which was gathered in by Burleigh on the 40-yard line. The freshmen were thrown back on the next play and on the following failed to get the required distance and punted to Banks on the 40-yard line. A fumble gave the ball to the freshmen on their own 27-yard line. Here the freshmen limbered up and made the best showing for offensive work during the game, Gilmore and Lunt getting good gains around the sophs left end and through the line. In this manner the ball was brought to the center of the field where the sophs held and the freshmen were obliged to punt to Burk on the sophomore 20-yard line. Burk caught the ball which he brought in 20 yards. A fumble gave the ball to the freshmen in the center of the field where time was called. In the next half the sophomores scored two more touchdowns by line-bucking chiefly. The summary:

before the latter team lined up against Bangor for the "rubber" game, and returned victorious having won the game by a score of 12 to 0.

The result was rather a surprise to both sides. The freshmen were without Captain Matheas, who was with the 'varsity at Cambridge, and did not expect to do much. However, the team was made up of football players, fast and in good training, many of them having been up against the 'varsity this fall. Kierstead, Lunt and Stone were the stars of the college aggregation while Kingsbury of Brewer seemed to be most prominent for the high school lads. Brewer received the kick-off and started in well working the ball up the field. The college men held and Kiah tried a drop kick which went just a trifle wild. Brewer kicked out and '07 got the ball working it steadily down the field, Ridge taking it over on the old-fashioned quarterback double-pass. Reed kicked the goal. Score, '07 6, Brewer 0.

The touchdown in the second half was made in a spectacular play. The college team was held and Lunt booted the ball. It went high and far, a full 65 yards. Sargent was in a fair way to get it but Kiah made a try for it. Meanwhile Burleigh came down the field like a deer, scooped in the ball and carried it over for a touchdown, Reed kicking an easy goal. Score, '07 12, Brewer 0.

Brewer by good runs by Kingsbury, line bucking by the backs and a neat quarter-back kick worked the ball to '07's five-yard line. The college men braced and Brewer made but three yards on two downs. Kiah then tried a quarter-back run but the play was smothered and Lunt standing behind the goal line punted the ball out of danger. Brewer started it back but time was up before they had made much progress.

It is not often that a football team has the distinction accorded it that has the now famous "Honey Eaters" of the second floor of Oak Hall.

Prior to Nov. 20, with the exception of "Walter Camp" and a few other football experts, the merits of the team were unknown.

They have now demonstrated clearly their right to be placed among the foremost teams of the country and the manager, "Stag" Trafton,

The story is quickly told in the following scores. On Nov. 14, we met the strong team of the second floor and defeated them easily 10-5. On Nov. 14 we condescended to play the "Devils" of Spearins' Inn defeating them by the same score. It was the first time this fall that either team had met defeat. Space will not permit individual mention—that would require volumes.

As a team the work was perfect, the linesmen always getting the jump on their opponents, and frequently throwing their man back for a loss of from three to six yards. The line-up given below includes many men found on the All-Maine team. Our supporters are looking forward to a brilliant season in the fall of 1904. The line-up:
