MAINE NIGHT

The observance of Maine Night, an occasion of ever increasing importance at the University, took place Friday evening, Nov. 4. The Bowdoin game coming off on the next day, and the fact that some of the fraternities were planning to hold their annual initiations at this time made this a particularly fitting time for such an event.

Never in the history of the University had the spacious chapel in Alumni hall seen such a gathering as was collected for this annual event; the time when old acquaintances are renewed and new ones formed, and when everyone is filled with that spirit and enthusiasm which an occasion of this kind never fails to produce. With every available seat taken late comers were obliged to stand throughout the program lined against the walls and crowded into the entrances.

Shortly before the opening of the exercises of the evening the football team, led by captain Bailey, filed in, taking seats which had been reserved in the front of the chapel. Tremendous applause greeted their appearance, and a rousing three times three given to coaches, manager, captain, and players followed. The program of the evening opened with a selection by the band which received hearty applause. Prof. J. S. Stevens, chairman of the evening, fulfilled his duties to the satisfaction of everyone, and in his usual dry and witty manner made a few opening remarks. In a brief manner he emphasized the fact that the occasion was in every respect a Maine institution; music, speakers, and every department of the afforded entertainment being furnished by those directly connected with the University. At the conclusion of his remarks an unusually attractive and interesting program was carried out, in which songs, speeches and cheers were intermingled with an enthusiasm and life which at once broke down all restraint, and alumni, students, and friends alike were drawn into the spirit of the occasion.

The program of the evening was carried out as follows:

At the close of these exercises the company adjourned to the gymnasium where, upon the excellent floor and to fine music furnished by the University orchestra, the guests and students finished the program of a very successful and pleasant evening with dancing.

FINANCIAL STANDING OF THE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The financial standing of the Athletic association at the beginning of the year, as shown by the semi-annual report of the treasurer which is submitted to the alumni, is represented by a balance on hand of $16.87. This is an unusually favorable result, and in view of the deficiency which has too often shown up in the past, we owe a vote of thanks to last year's management. We pay a good deal for our athletics, and an unusually large percentage of support must come from the pocket of the student body, since we cannot reckon much from gate receipts. Under these circumstances, it is remarkable that we have any surplus, however small, at the end of the year.

The following items, taken from the above mentioned report, may be of interest. Without going into detail, they show the proportion of expenditure and receipt from the different branches of athletics:

PROF. WINCHESTER'S LECTURE

On Thursday evening, November 3, Prof. Caleb T. Winchester, of Wesleyan, delivered the first of the series of University lectures to be given in the chapel during the winter months. Prof. Winchester is an authority on English literature, and the subject of his remarks, "The English Lakes and their Poets," was a particularly happy one.

He introduced his topic by a description of the lakes themselves and the surrounding landscape, and pointed out the controlling influence which environment had upon the works of the Lake poets. He next took up the lives of each of the men in a fluent and conversational style, and gave many an illuminating glance into the minds of each. His manner throughout was marked by the greatest of ease, and his intimate method of speaking was well adapted both to the audience and to the subject of his lecture.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

The young ladies of Delta Sigma gave a Hallowe'en party at the Mt. Vernon House on Saturday evening, October 29. A large number of guests was present, and all pronounced the evening highly successful and entertaining. Miss Wentworth, '05, served as postmistress, and distributed fate, in the shape of correspondence, to the company. During the latter part of the evening the lower rooms were used for dancing. Bountiful supplies of apples, cider and peanuts were served in the dining room.

WESTERN ALUMNI ASSOCIATION MEETING

On the evening of Saturday, Nov. 5, the members of the Western Alumni association of the University of Maine assembled at Kinsley's restaurant in Chicago for a dinner and special meeting in honor of President Fellows.

After the dinner had been served a short business session was called, at which F. M. Davis, '01, was elected secretary and treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by the recent removal of Mr. Libby from Chicago to Elyria, Ohio.

Dr. Fellows then addressed the association on questions concerning the welfare and development of the University of Maine. He spoke of the numerous opportunities which the people of the State have recently had to learn more about the University. Within two or three years various bodies and organizations of people have visited the University, either formally or informally. When the State Board of Trade met in Bangor that body visited the institution, and expressed its appreciation and interest as never before. As this is an important and influential body of men, the University has had, and will have, benefits growing directly out of this visit. The same may be said of the visit of the County Commissioners during the past summer. The more the people of the State visit the University the better we are pleased. The grangers of Aroostook county came on a special train to visit the University, and also at another time the public schools of Milo. The summer school held at Hamden was invited to the University to hold one of its sessions, and about two hundred teachers accepted the invitation. When the annual meeting of the State Teachers' association was held in Bangor, in October of this year, one day's session of the Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools was held at the University. These visits, and others of similar nature, together with the occasions of dedicating Holmes hall and Lord hall, have given more opportunity for the people of the State to learn facts about the University's present condition than would otherwise have been the case.

President Fellows also told the association how much everyone connected with the Institution appreciated the establishment of the scholarship by the Western alumni, and expressed the hope that this might be an encouragement to the other alumni associations to do something of similar value.

THE MASONIC CLUB

Some weeks ago a meeting of all Masons connected with the University, both undergraduates and faculty, was called, and various schemes for forming a Masonic club were talked over. Prof. Woods was elected temporary chairman, and R. H. Alton, '05, secretary and treasurer. Nothing definite was decided upon, but as one of the members was advised that a Masonic club had gained some prominence at the University of Michigan, a committee consisting of Professors Boardman, Woods and Stevens, G. R. Anthony, '05, and C. W. Campbell, '06, was appointed to correspond with the Michigan club.

At a second meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 2, a more definite course was outlined. A letter from the University of Michigan was read, which stated that their Masonic society, called the Acacia, was to all intents and purposes a national fraternity; that is, members of other college fraternities were not eligible. It was the opinion of all the men present that conditions at Maine did not warrant a further consideration of entering this fraternity.

The most important point developed by the discussion was that there is no society of fraternity and non-fraternity Masons in existence. Acting on this fact, the Maine Masons propose to establish a society to fill the need. They claim that a society composed of men from all fraternities, as well as non-fraternity men, would be a stronger and more popular one than that at the University of Michigan; the proportion of fraternity men who are Masons must be considerable in any institution, and these men should certainly not be excluded from the Masonic society. There seems to be the opportunity for establishing an active and far-reaching society along these lines, and the Masons are taking a decided interest in the matter. A committee consisting of Prof. Jones, Alton, '05, and Campbell, '06, was appointed to draw up a constitution, and this committee made its report at a third meeting held on Monday, Nov. 14. Nothing definite can be said in regard to this constitution, though its general tone is to effect a solid and well defined body, from which other chapters or lodges may emanate.

This is a matter in which all undergraduates should take an interest. If there is any Mason who has not attended previous meetings, he should consult the secretary for future dates. If Maine can establish a society so influential as this is sure to be, it will reflect no little credit upon the energy and purpose of our undergraduates.

MUSICAL NOTES

The musical clubs recently held a business meeting, at which the arrangement of winter trips was talked over. Nothing definite was determined, but the first trip will probably be to Washington county. The constitution of the clubs was read, and signed by all the members. An amendment to this constitution was made as follows: "All members on concert trips shall be responsible for instruments or any other personal property." An auditing committee, consisting of the following members, was elected: Burke, '06, Richards, '06, Southard, '06.

The University band held an important business meeting some days ago. The committee consisting of Sprague, '05, Smith, '05, and Seabury, '05, previously appointed to draw up a constitution, reported at this meeting, and the constitution was adopted as read. Band officers were elected as follows: Sprague, '05, leader; Smith, '05, manager; Leckberg, '07, assistant manager; Twombly, '07, secretary; Prof. Spring, treasurer; and Newman, '06, librarian.

The soloist in chapel last week was Miss Marion Parsons of Bangor, who sang in her usual delightful manner.

The band made a decided hit with its selection from Woodland, which was played for the first time in public on Maine Night. Mr. Sprague is working up another concert number, the overture to Raymond, by Ambroise Thomas.

DEDICATION OF LORD HALL

Elaborate plans are being made for the formal dedication of Lord hall, the new engineering building, the exercises of which will occur on Tuesday, Nov. 22, in the chapel. Gov. John F. Hill, Senator Eugene Hale, and Governor-elect William T. Cobb have accepted invitations to be present and take part in the exercises.

For the dedicatory exercises, it is planned to form the procession at the Mt. Vernon house at 2 o'clock, and march to the chapel in the following order: University band, cadets in uniform, students, official guests, general public, faculty. On arriving at Alumni hall, the lines will open as at the commencement procession, and the official guests, public, and faculty will lead the way to the chapel. For the exercises the program will be as follows:

EDITORIALS

LAST week reports, misrepresenting and insulting, were circulated throughout the State concerning the alleged throwing of eggs by some of the University students after the game with Bowdoin, and the general ill treatment of the Bowdoin men. The daily papers were made the medium through which these calumnious accusations were scattered broadcast, and which made their initial appearance in the columns of some of the Portland and Lewiston dailies. The indignation of the students was at once aroused by these statements so slanderous and defamatory to their character and so degrading to their position as gentlemen. The University council at once instituted a thorough investigation of the charges, and as a result the following letter was sent to the student jury at Bowdoin:

"TO THE MEMBERS OF THE BOWDOIN JURY:

"GENTLEMEN—In behalf of the students of the University of Maine, we, the student members of the University council, wish to make the following statements regarding the alleged ill-treatment received by Bowdoin students during their visit to the Maine campus.

"While it is the sincere regret of every student at Maine that any Bowdoin student or sympathizer should have been egged on the public streets of Orono while on the way to the station, it is a matter with which no student of the University was in any way connected. Neither can we believe that any Bowdoin student could make such an accusation against another college man. Actions of that nature are not perpetrated by students at Maine or any other university.

"In regard to the accommodations afforded the Bowdoin students at the game, we wish to say that while we are sorry that it was not in our power to afford them better accommodations, they received exactly the same treatment and privileges as did the Maine students. Moreover, half of the section of bleachers was reserved for their use, the other half being taken by Maine. Had they been so disposed they could readily have availed themselves of those accommodations when the grandstand became filled.

"We believe that it is an established custom at Bowdoin that no victorious visiting team shall make a public demonstration or parade on the Bowdoin campus at the conclusion of the game. This custom we have always respected when visiting Brunswick and we certainly expected similar courtesy in return. When the intention of the Bowdoin students to make a demonstration on the campus became evident they were at once informed that it would not be allowed.

"This we believe to be a clear and exact statement of the matter as it stands after a careful investigation by ourselves.

"We trust that you will present this matter to the student body and that anything like ill-feeling in either college may be avoided.

"Respectfully,

(Signed)

"G. K. HUNTINGTON,

"A. W. COLLINS,

"J. H. McDERMOTT,

"C. W. CAMPBELL,

"A. J. BUTTERWORTH."

While we regret exceedingly the fact that eggs were thrown at the procession of Bowdoin students on its way to the station, we are very much surprised that any Bowdoin student or sympathizer could have been guilty of believing that any Maine student perpetrated the offense. Rather we are led to believe that such was not the case, but that the reports were circulated with reproachful and malicious intent. We quote from the Bangor Daily Commercial of November 10, which states the facts of the case clearly:

"Much indignation has been aroused among the students at the University of Maine by the recent statements published in several of the papers throughout the State to the effect that Bowdoin students were badly treated and even egged by Maine students on the occasion of the Maine-Bowdoin football game last Saturday. It is regarded as a mean attempt to throw mud at the University by defaming the character of the student body.

"Everybody who is familiar with conditions at Maine know that it is the especial pride of every Maine man that no visiting team or party has ever had cause to complain of its treatment at the hands of the students of the University. Maine men have always stood for what was just and honorable and clean in athletics and in every department of student intercourse among the colleges, and if Bowdoin students were set upon and egged by "muckers" in the course of their noisy demonstration after Saturday's game, it seems hardly fair, on that account, to send broadcast over the State such reports as have recently been published.

"It has been reported that as the Bowdoin parade passed one of the chapter houses of the University, eggs were thrown and several Bowdoin met hit; and yet at least two Bowdoin students who were in that parade spent Sunday at the same chapter house with friends. It seems hardly possible that Bowdoin men would have made friendly visits in a house from which, only the night before, they had been bombarded with bad eggs. In fact the whole story is false and absurd, and almost unworthy of contradiction.

"The students of Maine deeply regret that their visitors suffered ill treatment, but are surprised that Bowdoin students should think that such treatment came from college men. The student body at the state University is not made up of "muckers," as the newspaper stories would seem to indicate, but of the clean and self-respecting sons of representative families from all over the State, who feel that they have been grossly insulted and misrepresented by the recently published reports."

As to the other charges of ill-treatment, we would say that during the last few years while we have had the winning team we have observed proper decorum in leaving the Bowdoin campus and have always treated the students as gentlemen. Such treatment we expect in return from them. It is true that last year at the Brunswick station an attempt was made to procure a Maine banner on which the score was painted, but we freely pardoned the offense and said not a word. We have lived up to the agreements of the Maine Intercollegiate Athletic board, and have cut the eligibility of the men representing us down to such an extent that possibly we have overdone it. We have played the cleanest of athletics. Meanwhile various papers of the State have misrepresented us; our petitions to the legislature for that which was necessary and rightfully ours have been opposed by men whose sympathies far surpassed their judgment; our University has been slandered with obnoxious names; and other things of a petty nature have been perpetrated. Now it seems that, on the slightest provocation, Bowdoin sympathizers have added insult to injury.

We might go into elaborate explanation of, and apologies for, that which we did not do, but we consider ourselves under no obligations to do so, believing that to each right-minded man the foregoing statements will be enough.

WE are impressed at this time rather forcibly with the apparent lack of interest shown by the students toward THE CAMPUS, their college paper, and the indifferent support that has been given it by the student body in general. This condition of affairs at once leads us to ask the question, Is it the fault of the paper or the students?

It seems to us that if the paper is uninteresting and unworthy of support, it is the fault of the students themselves, for it is they who edit it, and they who by their contributions furnish its columns. If these have been stale or uninteresting the students have only to break through their inertia, and by a little personal effort bring the paper up to a standing that will be irreproachable.

Primarily the purpose of THE CAMPUS is that of a college newspaper edited once in two weeks. There are difficulties at once evident in editing news much of which is two weeks old and is served second handed. But even with this fault, what better record of events can anyone have for the year and for his course than a complete file of THE CAMPUS? It is certainly a record that every man in college would highly prize five years after he has taken his degree and looks back on his college days. Then too, this newspaper chronicle is always interesting to alumni who do not follow the University from day to day.

But THE CAMPUS should be made more of a paper for the occasion — something that is attractive to the student of to-day. This is the question that has been puzzling the board of editors for the past few weeks. The idea of making a special article in each issue that will be of special interest both for the time and for future reference is being worked out at present. It is proposed in the immediate future to take each building, department, society, organization and fraternity connected with the institution and present it as a special issue in the columns of THE CAMPUS. The articles will be written in a bright, attractive manner, and will contain information that every student will be anxious to read and preserve.

This scheme and others that follow it cannot be carried out unless the students themselves take hold of the work and help the cause along. At the present time there are very few candidates trying for the next year's board, and there is an excellent opportunity for fellows with a little energy and perseverance to make the board at the next election.

EITHER the University ought to build some new and more convenient walks about the campus, or else the students should keep to those already provided. The beauty of the campus is a thing both University authorities and students are proud of, and well they may be. The lawns, however, have suffered severely this fall, and something really ought to be done to keep them looking well. The little paths, the short-cuts, are widening daily with the passing of perhaps hundreds of feet. The students cannot be blamed entirely for this, though. A fellow hurrying from Alumni to the lower waiting station to catch a car cannot stop to follow the walk round in front of Coburn, and it is a good deal of an imposition to expect him to. Neither can a fellow going or coming from the athletic field be expected not to cross the lawn in front of Oak hall. A cinder path leads from the field to the path in front of the Hall, but there it ends. One must either go in through the building or else follow down the path to the road, and so go far out of his way. These two cases should be taken care of by the University, and the necessary walks should be constructed. As for the other cases, they should be remedied by the students themselves, and undoubtedly they will be if the University but looks to these little accommodations for its undergraduates.

THE kind treatment and courtesies shown the University of Maine supporters by the students of Colby during their recent trip to Waterville was heartily appreciated, and is deserving of more than mere passing mention. All University students were admitted to the football game for half of the regular price, and the center section of the new grandstand was given to them. Before the departure of the train, which bore the defeated team and the wearers of the blue back to Orono, the Colby students collected at the station and, although of course highly elated by the victory which was hardly expected, cheered time after time for Maine and its football team. Such treatment is always conducive to the best of feeling between the two institutions. May it long continue both at Orono and at Waterville; may the mingled cheers of Maine and Colby forever ring with the pervading feeling of good fellowship.

THE suggestion has been received from a prominent alumnus that all the Maine songs that have been written be printed and published in the early issues of THE CAMPUS. This is a particularly good suggestion as it is only too true that we are not as familiar with our songs as we ought to be, and there are many with which most of the alumni are unacquainted. The board will endeavor to collect the songs and publish them at an early date. Right here we wish to say that we wish more suggestions regarding THE CAMPUS might be received from both alumni and undergraduates. They will find the board ever ready to comply with suggestions that will make THE CAMPUS brighter, more interesting, and of more benefit.

THE Lewiston Journal some time ago stated that no Maine college ever held Harvard down to so low a score as that of the recent Harvard-Bates game. We would remind the Journal that Maine held Harvard last year 6-0.

Prof. O. F. Lewis is the author of an article in the November North American Review, entitled "The Self-Supporting Student in American Colleges." The subject is systematically treated. Statistics from 60 colleges in different parts of the country are compared, and the conclusion thus drawn may justly be considered as true in as general a way as could possibly be ascertained. The term "self-supporting" is used to designate those who earn part of their college expenses, as well as those who earn all. In only four out of 59 colleges was it found that the number of students so classified was estimated at less than 10 per cent. of the total enrollment, and the average proportion was estimated at 45 per cent. for the colleges considered.

ATHLETICS

FOOTBALL

COLBY 12, MAINE 11

The Colby game was a partial justification of end running and open play. The wily Craig kept the Maine rooters in an unenviable state of suspense with his frequent dashes. The ball went to the little quarterback at least once in three plays when Colby was in possession of the ball. The remaining times it would be forced unavailably against the Maine line. Twice the visiting eleven would hold. The clear call of the official would ring out, "third down, four yards to gain." Then in the midst of tremendous shouts of "hold 'em Maine" a small figure would come flying down the field past the place where the ends ought to be, causing the grandstand to quiet its cheers in anxiety. Sometimes he would gain twenty yards, sometimes more. It seemed immaterial, for again the call "third down" would sound and the play would be repeated.

To offset twenty yards gained once a minute in this manner Maine gained two yards once in two minutes by line plunging. These results, however, are not sufficient basis for condemning close formation. It was truly only a partial justification of Colby's system of play. Maine's system failed because her ends were weak, because the team work of the eleven from Orono had not been perfected, and most of all, the players lacked, speed, spirit, and fight. "Mike" Farley often expressed the fault tersely, when he said: "It isn't formation that counts, but damnation."

It wasn't very many years ago when the teams representing the light blue did have this "spirit of damnation," the fighting spirit. It seemed then as though the players actually monopolized all the Maine spirit, and the students failed in any way to support the eleven as it should be supported. But, nevertheless, Maine gained her share of championships and more than her share of victories, and it was said that Bowdoin and the wearers of the garnet B feared the delegation of players from Orono. Often the team played uncheered, unaided, unsupported by the students—which is to be deplored—but it won just the same. Now the students have absorbed all the spirit, and the team goes a-begging. There is plenty of football material, plenty of cheering, and plenty of support financial and otherwise. It is a pity that cheering and enthusiasm cannot win games on their own account, but there are eleven men who have to be taken into consideration.

If the team which suffered defeat in Waterville had been instilled with another brand of spirit and more speed it would not be called now "a vanquished Goliath." The mass plays of a team as much heavier than its opponents as ours was, should prove irresistible. That a heavy, fierce attack can win victories has been proved again and again by Yale. But Yale has one of the fiercest attacks ever met with, and enough speed to take advantage of its weight. Another season is far away but it is not too early to plan improvements. The Colby game was a disappointing evidence that something was wanting in Coach King's training. It cannot be said, however, that it would be advisable to adopt the open play system another fall. The old close system has proved a winning one, and with the material in Maine should prove a success whenever the fighting do or die spirit with a little speed can be instilled into every Maine man on the gridiron.

BOWDOIN 22, MAINE 5

An enthusiastic crowd of about 2000 people saw Bowdoin "get back at Maine" on Alumni field Saturday, Nov. 5. The day was an ideal one for football—a little too cold perhaps for spectators who came unprepared for cold weather, but just right for the players. The field, too, was in prime condition, just right for Bowdoin with her fast backs and snappy style of play.

The Maine team with 500 or more loyal rooters, went on to the field with a feeling that, although the chances for victory were doubtful, they would surely be able to give Bowdoin a hard fight, but the first three minutes of play was enough to dispel all doubt in the minds of the knowing ones.

When two teams come together under fair conditions the best usually wins, and Bowdoin certainly had the best team. Not only were her individual players, with a few exceptions, too much for their opponents, but her team work was the best seen in the State this year, and individual excellence combined with good team work is a combination hard to beat.

As to the Maine team—it would be hard to designate any particular spot as the weak one. The team as a whole was SLOW, and that one adjective tells the whole story. Time after time the Bowdoin men "got the jump" on the whole blue line with long gains as the result, while on the other hand, when the Maine backs developed the oldtime speed in the last half they swept everything before them.

Maine kicked off, and without losing possession of the ball Bowdoin pushed down the field for her first touchdown, in just twelve minutes after the first whistle. Bowdoin kicked off this time and Thatcher ran the ball in ten yards, but after making her distance once Maine was forced to punt, and again Bowdoin started down the field, scoring her second touchdown after just nineteen minutes of play. In five minutes more Bowdoin had kicked off, forced Maine to punt and pushed Curtis over for the third touchdown. McGraw ended the first half with an unsuccessful attempt at a goal from his 25-yard line. Score—Bowdoin 16, Maine 0.

In the second half Bowdoin kicked off, and Thatcher brought the ball in ten yards, but after a couple rushes the ball went to Bowdoin again on a fumble. Then Chapman, Curtis, and Finn by steady rushes went down the field and over the line for the fourth touchdown.

Right here the Maine team came to themselves, and the rest of the game was all Maine men could ask for. Only once after this did Bowdoin stand any chance of scoring, when Chapman on a fake punt had passed the Maine backs only to be downed by Thatcher after a long run. Then Bowdoin lost the ball on downs, and with the ball in the centre of the field the Maine backs commenced a terrific attack on the black and white line, first Crowe, then Collins, then Thatcher dove into the holes made for them by Matheas and Talbot in Bowdoin's left wing, the whole Maine team getting into the play, and carrying the Bowdoin line bodily for yards.

An offside play set the ball back fifteen yards, but nothing could daunt the desperate spirit of the defeated blue team, and they literally tore down the field carrying the tired Bowdoin men along with them for a touchdown just before time was called. It was a grand finish—one of the kind for which Maine teams have always been noted—one of the kind which sets the blood boiling in one's veins, and goes a long ways toward dulling the keen sting of defeat—a finish which amply repaid the cheering section which had stood loyally by its team, even when the points were piling up to Bowdoin's credit; but back of it all remained the fact that the game was Bowdoin's.

MAINE 28, TUFTS 0

Maine finished the season in oldtime form, by simply carrying the Tufts team up and down Maplewood field for five touchdowns.

It took just four plays to score the first one, and after that there was never a ray of hope for the brown and blue.

The Maine team played with a snap and vim which they have failed to show before this year, working together beautifully, time after time pulling their man along after he was down.

The Maine forwards had an easy time with their opponents and after opening up big holes for their backs they invariably got around into the play and bore it along, leaving the Tufts tacklers strung out on the ground in their wake.

Crowe, Collins, Thatcher, and Henry Bearce, who took Thatcher's place in the second half, rushed the ball like fiends, Collins and Thatcher both getting away for long runs, while Crowe was good for from three to ten yards every time he was called on.

Burleigh and Quint put up stiff games at end, and dove into the Tufts interference in a manner which would indicate that the ends will not be the weak spots next year.

Henry Bearce, Matheas, Moore, and Miner replaced Thatcher, Bennett, Talbot, and Bailey in the second half, and the most encouraging feature of the game was the showing made by these men who will help form the backbone of next year's team.

The Tufts team played a plucky up-hill game, but were so completely outclassed that it was of no avail. The summary:
